The Emperor is described as being greatly depressed by recent events and not disposed to talk even to members of his household, as he feels deeply his loss of prestige abroad and among his own people. The Emperor feels grieved that old loyal Ministers, as well as Chancellor Von Buelow, should desire to limit his freedom of speech in his after-dinner conversations, even though with foreigners.

Code For Naval Warfare.

London, Dec. 8.—The business section of the international conference now being held in London to frame a code for naval warfare held its first session yesterday.

The delegates read the proposals of their respective Governments and then elaborated them in short speeches. This was followed by a brief preliminary discussion.

It has been decided to hold meetings three times a week and to adjourn over the Christmas holidays.

The social entertainment of the delegates will begin Dec. 10 with a dinner to the delegates and their secretaries by the Earl of Desart.

Cruiser Badly Buffeted.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 8.—With her wireless telegraph mast broken off at the heel, a petty officer fatally injured, doors broken in, a boat swept away, and minor injuries inflicted in different parts of the ship, H. M. S. Brilliant lies in the dockyard, her officers and crew thankful to be in harbor again. The cruiser left St. John's, Nfld., for this port on Wednesday morning. With ordinary weather she would have tied up at the dockyard on Friday morning. As it was, she did not tie up until Sunday morning, encased in ice.

Keep Out the Japs.

Vancouver, Dec. 8.—County Court Judge Grant announced yesterday morning that no longer will his court be allowed to use as a medium for the railroading of Japanese into the favored realm of British citizenship, Judge Grant declared that the usual formal certificates by notaries, giving statements of good character, will not hereafter be allowed, but that the strictest requirements of the law must be complied with.

Murderer Attacks Guard.

Vancouver, Dec. 8.—With the hope of being shot and killed in a melee and thereby avoid hanging John Pertella, colored, made a vicious attack on Warden Brymer in the provincial jail, New Westminister. Pertella is to hang with two others Friday week. The crime was the murder of his mistress in Vancouver last August.

Mrs. Maybrick's Big Win.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 8.—The case of Mrs. Florence Maybrick and her mother, Baroness von Roque of New York, involving title to lands said to be worth about two and a half million dollars, was decided yesterday in their favor in the Chancery Court here.

Smallpox Costly.

Brockville, Dec. 8.—The last smallpox epidemic in Brockville cost the municipality $6,485 for 79 cases. The town is constructing a new isolation hospital, which will be ready for occupation by the first of the new year.

Gillespie Is Sane.

Toronto, Dec. 8.—In the Police Court yesterday William Gillespie, Black Hand letter writer, was reported sane by doctors who had examined him. He was once more remanded a week.

Port Arthur's Utilities.

Port Arthur, Dec. 8.—In connection with the municipal elections the ratepayers will decide by plebiscite whether to continue to run municipal franchises by an elective commission of experts, removed from the influence of annual elections, or whether they shall be leased to private companies. The ratepayers will also vote on a bylaw to raise 25,000 for street railway extension.

Arrested at Rifle's Point.

St. Catharines, Dec. 8.—Held up at the point of rifles in the hands of two determined young farmers, George North and Seymour Wilson, two men who gaves their names as John Doyle and James Schram, were captured early Sunday morning in Grantham Township, and yesterday were committed for trial by Magistrate Campbell.

Schooner Goes Down.

Wallaceburg, Dec. 8.—The Wallaceburg Sugar Co.'s schooner Hough, loaded with 500 tons of beets, sunk while attempting to cross Lake St. Clair, on its way from the Thames river.

The crew were rescued. There is no insurance.

To Prove Thaw Sane.

Pittsburg, Dec. 8.—The reproduction of a story written by Harry K. Thaw, in a society journal reaching all the social world of Pittsburg, has started a report that Mrs. William Thaw and Mrs. Copley Thaw, mother and sister of White's slayer, have begun a campaign to establish a general belief in Thaw's sanity.

The story is called "A Beginner in the High Alps." It was written by Thaw in prison, and appeared in an eastern publication some time ago. It is reproduced here by request of the mother and sister of Thaw.

Valuable Jewelry.

Stratford, Dec. 8.—John F. Hamlet, a Dane from Toronto, arrested here, had in his possession a valuable lot of jewelry. He had taken quarters at a local hotel, and when arrested his outfit was tabulated by the police. It comprised several valuable diamonds, rings, watches and other articles. The prisoner is believed to have been implicated in several robberies in Ontario, and the police consider they have landed a dangerous man. He will be given a hearing before Magistrate O'Loane to-day.

Mrs. Ingersoll's Win.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The Supreme Court of the United States yesterday decided, in favor of Mrs. Ingersoll, widow of the late Robert G. Ingersoll, against Joseph Coran and others, involving a claim of $100,000 by Mrs. Ingersoll on account of services rendered by her husband in breaking the will of the late Andrew J. Davis, a Montana millionaire.

Explosion Kills Eleven.

Calcutta, Dec. 8.—An explosion in the magazine at the military station here yesterday resulted in the killing of 11 men and the wounding of 28 others. Most of the injured will die. The casualties were all among native soldiers. The men were engaged in converting ball cartridges into blank cartridges."

City Hall Threatened.

Belleville, Dec. 8.—The city building had a narrow escape from destruction by fire last night. A blaze originated from a furnace and spread to the city engineer's and tax collector's offices before it was extinguished.

Trade Is Growing.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—J. B. Jackson, Canadian trade commissioner at Leeds, in a report received yesterday, declares that the trade of Canada with the north of England is growing in a remarkable manner.

Unearth Stolen Mica.

Kingston, Dec. 8.—The police investigating the theft of mica from the Brockville mica works, succeeded in unearthing $300 worth at Sydenham. Arrests will follow.

No Word of Clemson.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 8.—No word has yet been received of the steamer Clemson, which left Sault Ste. Marie a week ago. Tugs are scouring the lakes searching for her.

A Task For Kitchener.

London, Dec. 3.—(C.A.P.)—It is understood that Lord Kitchener will be made a field marshal next year. It is suggested that he be given the task of co-operating with the colonies and consolidating the land forces of the empire, formulating a mobilization plan for use in a great war.

Chinese Joint Raided.

Lethbridge, Sask., Dec. 8.—The police raided a Chinese joint and found a white girl. Gee Lee was arrested and bail was refused. The girl at first claimed to be married to Gee Lee, but later acknowledged the true condition. Fourteen Chinks were arrested as accomplices.

Marine Inquiry to Resume.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—The Marine Department investigation will be resumed by Judge Cassels in Ottawa on Tuesday of next week, and some decidedly interesting developments are expected.

Killed Felling Tree.

Quebec, Dec. 8.—Captain Levien Boillon, an old and well-known navigator, was killed yesterday morning by a tree that he was felling crushing his skull.

Missouri Bank Closes.

Springfield, Mo., Dec. 8.—The National Exchange Bank, with a capital of $300,000, has been closed by direction of the comptroller of the currency.

St. Andrew's church, Stratford, observed its 20th anniversary on Sunday. [illegible]

Baby Carriages Excluded.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 8.—To prevent the spread into Canada of the foot and mouth disease vehicular traffic is completely suspended between the two cities on either bank of the Niagara river.

An order just issued prevents all vehicles from crossing the bridges; baby carriages and sleighs are not excepted. The bridges are also fumigated at intervals daily.

It is rumored that pedestrians will not be allowed to cross the bridges, but this is not likely, as the more mild measure of having a disinfecting mat, to wipe their boots on, is probable.

Both Hopeful.

James Ross, president of the Dominion Coal Co., wires as follows: "Perfectly well satisfied with counsel's presentation of the case; confident of outcome.

J. H. Plummer, president of the Steel company, also wires: "Case closed. Believe outlook favorable to the Steel. Nothing conclusive."

Crushed by Wagon.

Guelph, Dec. 8.—Norman Wilson, son of a very well-known Nassagaweya Township farmer, while backing a team of horses into a shed on his father's farm, slipped and fell under the wheels of his heavily-loaded wagon, the wheels passing over his chest crushing him so badly that it is doubtful if he will recover.

May Move Dairy School.

Kingston, Dec. 8.—At a meeting of dairymen, G. G. Publow, chief dairy instructor, said the dairy school here did not receive one-half the amount of milk it should, and unless there was more forthcoming, there might be danger of the school being moved.

Burglars at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, Dec. 8.—A. C. Thoburn's drug store was burglarized Sunday night, $17 being stolen. Part of this sum belonged to the N., St. C. & T. Railway, which lost $500 by burglary at another of its offices ten days ago.

Boy Burglar Sentenced.

Galt, Dec. 8.—Earl Licht, the 18-year-old boy who was caught burglarizing the safe of the local Bell Telephone Co.'s office last Monday, was yesterday sentenced by Police Magistrate Blake to two years and six months in Kingston Penitentiary.

Carnegie Library For Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 8.—The City Council last night decided to submit a bylaw to the electors for $3,000 to purchase a site for a Carnegia Library. Mr. Carnegie makes a grant of $12,500 for the building if the city provides the site.

Congress In Session.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Both Houses of Congress held brief sessions yesterday. Big crowds attended the opening.

Bank Held Up.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 8.—The East Side Bank was held up by three men and robbed of $16,000 last night.

Place For Hindus.

Montreal, Dec. 7.—Brigadier-General Swayne, governor of British Honduras, who has been delegated by the Imperial authorities to look into the Hindus difficulty in British Columbia, is now in the city and he states that he is quite convinced that some six hundred of these people can be taken to Honduras at once and employed in farming, for that is the work they are most accustomed to at home.

He also believes that in a short time all of the 1,500 can be taken care of and the embarrassing question solved to the satisfaction of all concerned. Gen. Swayne says that he will treat direct with the men, as he understands their tongue.

Stopping Car; Meets Death.

Brantford, Dec. 7.—Mrs. Flanders, 13 Oak street, was fatally injured at the Cainsville crossing of the Brantford & Hamilton Radial Railway yesterday afternoon.

She was endeavoring to stop one of the fast east-going cars when the front end struck her, inflicting severe injuries to the skull.

The fatality is the second recent one in which the victim in each instance misjudged the clearance of the car. The motorman said he had seen the woman's signal and was stopping the car for her.

Congress Convenes To-day.

Washington, Dec. 7.—To-day at 12 o'clock both Houses of Congress convened for the beginning of the second session of the sixtieth Congress.

To-morrow will be given up by both Houses to the reading of the President's message. The general report is that it will prove to be a conservative and carefully prepared document, and it is not believed that a great many recommendations for legislation along new lines will be ventured upon by the President.

The Face In the Moonlight.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Christian Rudowitz, a Russian refugee, must go back to Russia to stand trial on a charge of murdering three people, unless he is saved by the intervention of the Department of State or of the President.

It was asserted that identification upon which Rudowitz was arrested here was on the description of a man obtained in the moonlight.

Steamer Clemson Overdue.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 7.—The steamer D. M. Clemson of the Provident Steamship line, bound up from Lake Erie, is several days overdue at Duluth, and grave fears are entertained for her safety. She was loaded with coal for Duluth and passed the Soo Nov. 30, since which time nothing has been heard from her.

IN MEMORIAM

Of Annetta, youngest daughter of Henry and Rachel Elmhurst, Otonabee, who died November 11th, 1908;

This dear one's departure, may it be
A warning to us all,
To think upon our future home
Ere death upon us call.

Now lying in the silent tomb,
And done with all things here,
She who was to the family,
A loving sister dear.

A voice is here on earth of dear ones weeping
The loss of one they loved,
But she has gone where the redeemed are keeping,

The mourners throng the ways and
and from the steeple,
The funeral bells toll slow,
But on the golden streets the holy people,
Are passing to and fro.

And saying as they meet rejoice,
Another long waited for has come,
The Saviour's heart is glad a younger sister
Has reached the Father's home.

Our Father's house has room for us,
They're crowding there from east and west,
The weary ones who have heard the call;
Of love divine are crowned and blest. [illegible]

In the Rambodde district in 1877 the first successful attempt was made to produce tea in Ceylon. In 1892 Ceylon Tea was first introduced into Canada by the "Salada" Tea Co. The excellence of this brand is responsible for the commercial success of Ceylon Tea in this country.

CATTLE MARKETS.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—London cables for cattle are steady at 11½c to 13½c per lb. dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 11c to 11½c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Dec. 8.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market, as reported by the railways, were 112 carloads, consisting of 865 cattle, 876 hogs, 3004 sheep and lambs, with 50 calves.

Exporters.

No export steers were reported as being on sale. A few export bulls sold from $3.75 to $4.30 per cwt.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots of butchers are worth $4.20 to $5; the bulk of the best cattle offered sold from $4.20 to $4.60, very few going over the latter figure, in fact the bulk of cattle offered sold under $4; medium, $3.75 to $4; common, $2.50 to $3.75; canners, $1.50 to $2.25.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. and W. Murby reported the market for stockers and feeders as being quiet, as usual on Tuesday; there were few customers wanting either class, but it is expected there will be on Thursday. There was one very good load of dehorned steers over 1100 lbs. each, very nearly what could be called short-keeps, for which the drover stated he had refused $4.50. The Messrs. Murby reported prices unchanged from quotations given last week, as follows: Best feeders, 950 to 1100 lbs. each, at $3.60 to $4 per cwt.; best feeders, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.25 to $3.75; stockers, 600 to 700 lbs. each, at $2.90 to $3.15; common and medium stockers, 500 to 600 lbs. each, at $1.75 to $2.20.

Milkers and Springers.

The market for milkers and springers has lost its vim, altho choice quality cows still bring a good price. A moderate supply which were principally of medium quality sold from $22.50 to $55 each. McDonald and Halligan sold 12 milkers and springers at $55 each.

Veal Calves.

The market for veal calves was firm at $3 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

There was a large delivery of sheep and lambs, 3000 and over, but this did not cause the market to weaken, but on the other hand lambs went higher than at the Union Yards on Monday. Lambs sold from $4.50 to $5.20 for the general run, but a few lots of choice selected ewe and wether lambs sold at a little higher quotations as will be seen by sales given below; export ewes $3.35 to $3.40.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris quoted selects fed and watered at the market at $6; lights at $5.75.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

We claim that Dr. Norvall's Hair Restorer is easily the best requisite of its brand on the market.

Those who have used it enthusiastically say it is. It cleans and envigorates the scalp, it prevents dandruff and stops the hair from falling out.

Its regular use soon shows surprisingly satisfactory results and there is not one drop of injurious matter in its composition.

JUDGMENT AWARDED TO PLAINTIFF IN SEVEN CASES

In the cases of Michael Carton against David Pilkey, J. Emmerson, Wm. Arbuckle, M. Kennedy, G. D Reynolds, N. L. Stevenson and W. H. Baldston which were heard yesterday afternoon in the High Court, before his Honor Judge Weller, the plaintiff was given judgment in all of the seven.

Mr. Carton sought to recover the payment of notes from the above defendants, which had been given to him by his brother, Mr. Geo. Carton for collection, as part payment of a large sum of money owing Michael Carton by George Carton.

Judge Harding, of Lindsay, is presiding at to-day's sittings. The only jury case on the docket is being heard, that of Wilkins vs. Grover. As his Honor Judge Weller is interested in the Grover estate, he preferred not to act in the matter.

JUROR WAS SUDDENLY SEIZED WITH PARALYSIS

While coming down Brock street from the Court House, where he had been serving as a petty juror in the winter session of the High Court, Mr. James Drysdale was suddenly seized with a paralytic stroke, the right side of his face and the left side of his body being affected. A cab was called and the stricken man was removed to his home on Aylmer street, where a doctor was summoned.

"ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING" THE VERDICT OF THE JURY

In the Ayotte Inquest at Young's Point—Nothing in the Evidence to Indicate That There Was Foul Play.

Special to the Review.

Young's Point, Dec. 9.—"That the said Roland Ayotte came to his death by accidental shooting" was the verdict reached by the coroner's jury yesterday in the inquest into the death of little Rollie Ayotte, who was killed in Harvey township on Nov. 12th. Considerable evidence was heard during the day but there was nothing of a sensational nature throughout the evidence pointing strongly to the fact that young Ayotte had been shot accidentally, although just how it was hard to ascertain from the testimony. There was nothing to indicate that there was any foul play in connection with the boy's death and it only took the jury a few minutes to bring in their verdict after they had retired to consider the evidence.

The inquest which had been adjourned from December 1st, was resumed at ten o'clock in the annex of the Lakeview House, with Dr. Gray presiding; Mr. R. E. Wood represented the Crown, while Mr. O. A. Langley, of Lakefield, was present in the interests of Tommy Gordon, the twelve-year-old boy, who was with Ayotte when the latter was shot. Gordon's evidence was the most important heard during the day and the manner in which he told the story of the accident favorably impressed the jury.

THE AUTOPSY REPORT.

Dr. Young of Peterborough, who assisted by Dr. Boucher, performed the autopsy on Saturday was the first witness and gave the report of the post-mortem.

Dr. Young testified that they had found a number of shot in the left lung. The wound in the breast was such as would be caused by a shot and its cleaness would indicate that the shot was fired at very close range.

To Mr. Langley the witness said that there were no stray shot outside of the wound.

THE DECEASED'S MOTHR.

Mrs. Baptiste Ayotte, the deceased's mother, was the next witness, and testified that he son would have been ten years old on Dec. 3rd. On the day that he was shot he was sent to school but as the teacher was not there he had come back as far as Mr. Gordon's house. She had not seen him until he was brought home dead in the evening. Messrs. Weaver and other men brought him home. There was no hole in his shirt or sweater when he had put them on that morning.

HIS FATHER'S EVIDENCE.

Baptiste Ayotte, the boy's father, was next called and corroborated the evidence of the previous witness as to his son's movements on the day upon which he was shot. He told of his being notified by Thomas Weaver of the boy's death and of finding his son's dead body in the road leading across Mr. Gordon's property. He had not seen young Gordon there after he arrived nor did he see a gun there. The witness said that he had been told that young Gordon was a very bad boy. He had been told that he put Mrs. Trotter's little boy, a child of five or six years, on a stump as a target, and had shot at him. The boy had dropped from the stump and the contents of the gun had entered the stump. He had also heard that young Gordon had threatened to shoot Joseph Gillespie's boys. He had heard some of these things before his boy was shot.

Thomas Weaver testified that he was Tommy Gordon's uncle, and that he was working in the woods not far away from where young Ayotte was shot. Tommy had come running up to them and told them that Rollie had shot himself with his gun, and they had gone to the spot and found the body. Young Gordon when asked how it had happened had explained that his garter came untied and while he was fixing it he had given Ayotte his shot gun to hold. Ayotte had asked for a cartridge and while he was still busy fixing his garter he had heard a shot and saw the boy fall. The boys were friendly and played together, and he had never heard of a quarrel between them.

Dr. Young, re-called, testified that from what he could find the shot must have entered the body from straight in front as there was no slant neither up or down.

Robert Weaver gave evidence corroborating that of Thomas Weaver in regard to being working in the woods, to being notified of Ayotte's death by Tommy Gordon, and to the story that the latter had told in regard to the accident.

LAURA GORDON'S STORY.

Laura Gordon was the next witness. She testified that she was Tommy Gordon's sister, and had been at home on the day that young Ayotte was shot. Tommy had come running home and had told her that Rollie had shot himself and asked what he should do. She had told him to tell his uncle. Thomas Weaver, and he had done so, while she had found that Ayotte was dead by feeling his heart. Rollie had come to their place about 9.15 o'clock in the morning, and he had stayed there until the afternoon, getting his dinner there and the boys had played around the house until 4 o'clock, when she had told Tommy to take the cows to the lake. Ayotte had said that he would go with him as far as the corner. On his way home Tommy had taken the gun with him, because it would be dark when he was returning and he was afraid. Tommy had told her the same story of how the accident occurred as he

SUNDAY SCHOOL EXERCISES

The Presbyterian Sabbath School will hold their annual entertainment and closing exercises in the Town Hall, Warsaw, on the evening of January 1st, 1909. Mr. Robert Clarke, of Toronto, ventriloquist, will furnish the most of the entertainment, aided by the best of local talent. Keep this date before you as a genuine good evening of fun is already assured. Further notice will be given later on.

REV. DR. CLARKE HAS RETIRED

The Rev. Prof. Clarke, M.A., of Trinity College, Toronto, has retired from active work. In Peterborough he was well-known and much beloved. He was a shrewd, kindly man with a high sense of reverence for the good and yet thoroughly human in all his ways. He was a typical Oxford man cultured yet natural, refined, yet strong. His lectures on Kingsley's "Water-babies," and "Robert Burns," were especially liked here. He was unselfish in giving his much sought after services and a grateful country will wish him a "kindly old age."

NORWOOD APPEARS TO BE SATISFIED

With the Result of Local Option in That Village

Special to the Review,

Norwood, December 9— The friends of local option are well pleased with the results of the law during the year. While drinking has not been entirely stamped out, those who have indulgence have only had the privilege from time to time and then only by bringing it in from other places. The law appears to be fully observed by the local hotelkeepers and those who procure liquor must obtain it from other sources.

THE LAYMEN'S BANQUET

The banquet in the basement of the George street Methodist church was a gratifying success. The handsomely-lighted room, made radiant by the presence of so many lovely girls probably never before had a more memorable gathering. Messrs. Davidson and Paterson, two well-known lawyers of Toronto presented the case for the missions. It was a simple, straightforward, and above all, manly presentation of one of the duties of the hour. In Protestant circles, it corresponds to the "extension movement" amongst Roman Catholics. There is this difference however. The latter deals largely with the home mission, the former chiefly with foreign missions. There was perhaps one note that jarred in the universal harmony of last evening's addresses. We refer to the materialism that is submerging Canada. The theme of the addresses was money, men and Christ. In England, greater stress is being laid upon the inspiring power of consecration to Christ. Money bears the same relationship to the movement as water. It is a necessity but a material one only. The spirit of Christ is the one great necessity. With Him all things are possible, without Him nothing. We should have liked to hear this idea, as elsewhere, made the dominant ruling and all pervading idea. The idea that Money is a fundamental necessity in the regeneration of the world is an error. It hampers spirituality, and it is a drawback. Those most closely in touch with the Saviour of the world as their lives sufficiently prove shudder at the too prevailing idea that without money Christ is powerless. We have followed closely the trend of the new movement in Canada and find this difference to exist. We have not yet reached the higher or true spiritual level. However, no one can deny that we are on the ascending scale if the discourses and attendance at last night's meeting are evidence. Mr. Dumble as chairman, gave a short opening address, the tone of which was admirable. "I do not know how to address you," he said. The whole range of that great and solemn subject comes within the purview of that phrase

NO SAW-OFFS IN PETERBORO'

"A despatch to the News yesterday from North Bay said it was believed that the protest against Mr. Gordon, Conservative, was merely formal, and that Nipissing would be sawed off with another riding, probably Peterborough. This is without foundation apparently, so far as West Peterborough is concerned. Mr. J. H. Burnham, the late Conservative candidate in that riding, and petitioner against J. R. Stratton telegraphs the News; "Please contradict the wholly unwarranted insinuation of your North Bay correspondent to the effect that there is a probability of a saw-off between Nipissing and West Peterborough. There will be no saw-off here."—Toronto News.

HOAGLAND WINS AGAIN

Can't Beat Auburn Pedestrian---Lowers Colors of Hubbell of Erie, Pa.

Through the kindness of Mr. W. A. Hoagland, in sending a paper, the following account of a race between him and R. H. Hubbell, is published from the Erie, Pa., Daily Times;

R. H. Hubbell, of this city, failed to wrest the world's championship title from Willuard Hoagland in the heel-and-toe contest at Casino Rink, last night. The match was witnessed by a big crowd of enthusiasts who were pleased with Hubbell's fine showing but convinced that the champion is a wonder. The match was a clean cut affair and there was no lagging in the excitement until the last lap had been completed. The race was a ten-mile walk and was won by Hoagland in 1 hour, 24 minutes and 16 seconds. Hubbell's time was 1 hour, 24 minutes and 45 seconds.

The Auburn contestant got away from the line ahead of his opponent, jumping to a lead of five yards on the first lap. This advantage he gradually strengthened, sprinting all the way and displaying the stride which has won for him over 300 races.

When the first mile had been covere, Hoagland seemed to gain even more speed and after the two men had raced abreast over the final lap of the third mile Hoagland lurched ahead as they crossed the line and maintained the lead of one lap to the finish.

After Hoagland had taken the measure of his opponent there were many of the spectators who looked for a recurrence of the feat every mile or so. But as the mile cards went up and still Hoagland had not gained an additional inch, the crowd realized that a tough contest was on tap and even if Hubbell could not cut down his opponent's lead, he was determined to keep the breach from growing wider.

Both men agreed to the rules laid down by the referee before the match, and neither man made the slightest attempt to violate. The admonition of the referee was that two warnings would be given for infractions of the agreement forfeiture for the third offense. The first warning was not given. This fact speaks well for both contestants, as well as their managers, W. G. DeMonde, of Auburn, and Mr. Benning, of Erie.

Good music served to keep the enthusiasm among the spectators at a high pitch. Tony Loeslein challenged the winner to a race, and Edward Yunker challenged Loeslein to a 15-mile run for the championship of Erie.

BELMONT CLUB TO HAVE TEAM

Make Application for Admission to City Hockey League

The Belmont Club have made application to enter a team in the City Hockey League and will make a strong bid for admission. They have a bunch of good material and can put a fast septette on the ice.

MEETING OF SKIPS TO-NIGHT

There will be a meeting of skips at the curling rink tonight for the purpose of choosing their rinks for the season.

Mr. Angus McPherson is in daily attendance at the rink and expects that if the weather continues cold, that he will have ice in a short time. It has been flooded once already.

DROPPED THREE STRAIGHT GAMES

B. A. C. Bowlers Were in Poor Form—Scores Were Below the Average

The BAC. sustained a set back last night when they met the Examiner A team in the ten pin league series at the PBC., losing three straight games. The enforcement of the foul line rule contributed largely to the result. Best and Bruce being handicapped as they were rolling under the new condition for the first time.

The scores were small in all cases, Huston being high man for the three games with 459. Cairns made his first appearance with the team but showed lack of practice and hardly did himself justice.

MacRae was high man for the losers Hutch's Hams and the Lock Works meet tonight and while the Lock Works are counting upon taking the three games from their opponents, Hutchinson's team are confident that they will strengthen their position in the league race. They have been practicing very faithfully and are ready for the Lock Works.

B.A.C.
Bruce	129	134	104	—367
Best	100	117	104	—321
MacRae	141	110	159	—410
	370	361	367	1098
EXAMINER "A"
Huston	146	164	149	—459
Cairns	114	134	129	—377

PETERBORO' MAN ON EXECUTIVE

Dr. McPherson Appointed to Position on the O. H. A.

Toronto, Dec. 8— President Dwight J. Turner of the OHA. announced today that he had appointed Dr. A. W. Macpherson, of Peterborough and B. Noble Stacey, of Kingston as members of the executive committee for the season of 1908-09.

Dr. Macpherson is the ex-treasurer of the Association and Mr Steacy is secretary and manager of the 14th Regiment team of Kingston, senior champions of the OHA.

The appointment of two Eastern men rounds out the committee, every section of the Province being now well represented.

BOWLERS OF PETERBOROUGH INVITED TO N. Y. TOURNAMENT

A letter was received this morning by J B. Hay, of the Peterborough Bowling Club, from M C. Wyman New York, Secretary of the United Tournament Company which has in charge the next NBA. tournament scheduled to start on May 24th next in Madison Square Garden, New York. Mr Wyman is asking for Peterborough entries to the big event which its promoters aim to make "the most stupendous and inspring sporting event ever held and one that will mark an epoch in the development and history of the most healthful of all indoor sports."

The most remarkable thing about the tournament is the immense prize fund offered. Approximately fifty thousand dollars will be distributed among the prize winners in the five men, two men and individual events, the winning five man team being guaranteed at least $1000.

In closing his letter, Mr. Wyman says that twenty-four BBC. alleys, of the same class as those in use at the PBC will be laid and in explaining how his company can offer such a large amount of money in prizes, he says,

"Bowling is now the national winter pastime of the American people and is second in importance only to our great American game of baseball. The growth and development of the ancient and historical game of bowls in the past ten years to its present standing and importance as a national game with world wide leanings is simply marvellous, and merit alone is the foundation of its progress. Its popularity is due to the physical, mental and recreative benefits which it confers upon the devotees of the sport rather than to any adventitious booming the game has had."

The tournament will last for three weeks

Vice-President, T. Routley.
Sec.-Treas., H. Beal.
Manager, H. Staunton.
Captain, F. Haskill.
Trainer, Corney Burns.
Committee, J. Seymour, C. Wade and C. Stewart.

SPORTING TALK

Young Corbett is going to leave soon on a steamer to keep in condition, he claims. More likely he wants to get some of that publicity which Tommy Burns and some other present day fighters seem to be striving after

If Tommy Burns does all the talking he is credited with in the newspapers he should be ashamed of himself. The way he is boasting of what he's going to do to Johnston is becoming monotonous and sickening.

Squires, after being defeated three times, wants another fight with Burns This pair fight about as often as Ketchell and Papke. It is rumored the latter two may come together again.

When Alfred Shrubb was here he said he was tired of seeing his name in the papers so often concerning conversations between himself and Flanagan, regarding matches with Longboat. The reading public shares Shrubb's feelings.

If Peterborough has no OHA. team this year, things will feel kind of funny around here.

An unfortunate affair was the victory of Smallwood over Longboat in the ten mile race at Philadelphia. Smallwood's time showed that the Indian's running was much poorer than it usually is. This is attributed by his promoters to his poor physical condition. But the New York papers are beginning to comment on the affair as a frame up to get the betting going for the Longboat-Dorando fixture. The Indian, however, has undoubtedly been in poor shape lately and deserves the benefit of the doubt. If the public that has so long held him up as a clean runner became convinced that he was concerned in any jobbing he would at once lose all their respect and interest and become relegated to that undesirable class which is the abomination of professional sport.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING

THOS GORDON'S EVIDENCE

Thomas Gordon was the next witness and stated that he was twelve years of age. He explained the circumstances of the shooting at considerable length and stood the questioning of the Crown Attorney and Coroner Gray without flinching.

He stated that Rollie Ayotte had come to his place in the morning and had remained there until 4 o'clock, and that they had played together around the house all day. At four o'clock his sister had told him to take the cows to the lake and Rollie had said that he would go with him as far as the corner. They started out together and after they had gone a short distance from the house witness gaiter became untied and he gave the gun to Rollie to hold while he tied it. The gun was not loaded but Rollie had asked him for a cartridge while he was tying his garter, and he had given it to him. A little further the witness garter again became loose and he once more handed the gun to Ayotte. As he was fixing his stocking Ayotte had said, "Watch me shoot a cow," but the witness did not think anything of it until he heard a shot and looking up saw Ayotte falling to the ground. He had supposed that he had tripped and that in falling the gun had exploded. He had rushed to his home and told his sister of the shooting and then told his uncle, "The gun was not in my hands when Ayotte was shot," said the witness.

The inquest was adjourned at 12 45 for luncheon.

CHAS. BICKELL.

Upon resuming, Chas. Bickell was called, and stated that he was an undertaker in Lakefield, and that he had attended the funeral of the deceased boy. Dr. Gray had given him instruction to bury the boy if he thought, after examining the case, that it was an accident. He had investigated and young Gordon had told him the same account of the shooting as he had at the inquest. The witness said that he was familiar with fire arms and had shot at the Dominion rifle ranges and won shooting prizes at Lakefield. He gave considerable evidence as an expert of the effect of a shot at close range and stated that in his opinion the muzzle of the gun could not have been more than a foot away from the boy when he was shot. He thought that the shot had an upward tendency, judging from the wound.

It was possible for a gun to be discharged by a heavy jar upon the stock

JOS. JOHNSTON

Joseph Johnston testified that he had been working in the woods near the Weavers' and had been told of Ayotte's death by Thomas Weaver. He told of going to the spot where the body was and of seeing it there. He had had no talk with young Gordon in regard to the case. He had seen the boys playing together that day.

EDWARD JOHNSTON

Edward Johnston, who had been working with the previous witness, corroborated his testimony, but threw no new light on the matter.

This concluded the testimony and the room was cleared to allow the jury to consider the evidence.

Then deliberations lasted but a few minutes when they brought in a verdict of accidental shooting and were dismissed men's movement was not an organization, but an inspiration. It is to enthuse. The meeting in Toronto was attended by one hundred or more business men and the speaker said that at that gathering he could not help seeing something that he never saw before that is, what the day of Pentecost really meant. Those men left that hall with a passion and a fervor that they never before had experienced. They decided to raise $500 000 for the conversion of the world. He thought that it was almost impossible to conceive such a number of men meeting and putting their money into something from which they could see no dividend forthcoming.

The meeting here the speaker thought, was a repetition of what had occurred in Toronto.

The laymen's movement stood for men, money and management. He liked the word men because it meant virility, and the overcoming of great resistance. To realize what women have done for missions it caused men to blush at their lack of faith and fervor. It was a man's work to evangelize the world.

In conclusion he congratulated Peterborough on turning out such a splendid representation of men. Missions were as important as congregations. The laymen's missionary movement was going to be a victory because men's hearts and souls were in the work.

MR. N. F. DAVIDSON, KC.

The second speaker of the evening was Mr. N. F. Davidson, KC, of Toronto, and a brother of Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's church. He gave a splendid address and his remarks were enthusiastically received.

He liked the Laymen's Missionary Movement, he said, because it brought about a unification of all Christian forces for the evangelization of the world in this century. A few laymen in New York figured out in a businesslike way that one missionary could evangelize 25,000 heathen in a working life of 25 years. There are now 13,000 missionaries in the field and treble this number and treble the contributions for this work, and the Protestant forces of this world would evangelize every single heathen in the present century—in our own life time and not in any prospective era. Canada's just share in this work, taking into consideration her foreign population, would be in proportion to that of Great Britain, $4,300,000 annually as against $1,500,000 at present. Protestant people in Canada spent $6,500,000 a year in tobacco alone and surely it should not be a big thing to raise the necessary $4,300,000 for so grand a work as converting the heathen populations.

Continuing, the eloquent speaker thanked God for sending the financial depression which would make the people of this North American continent fall back upon themselves as it were and save us from the awful materialism threatening this country as all other nations. In St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, as a result of the Laymen's Missionary Movement contributions for missionary purposes had trebled because it had recommended itself as a business proposition, and he felt sure that Peterborough's donations of $2 a head would as a result, of the enthusiasm displayed at this function, likewise increase three-fold, that is from $11,840,29 a year to the fair proportion of $25,000. In conclusion of a masterly and effective address, Mr. Davidson urged his hearers "to let Jesus Christ finish his good work of evangelizing the world in your lifetime and mine."

The usual votes of thanks to the committee in charge of the banquet, specially mentioning the name of Mr. Harry Long, the young ladies who so charmingly assisted, the chairman and speakers, were unanimously adopted.

PARISIAN SAGE

Puts Hair on Your Head and Keeps it There

What's the use of being bald? What sense is there in deliberately allowing your hair to turn gray?

Do you want to look old before your time? Give up the thought; old age will come all too soon.

Look after your hair. Parisian Sage will kill the dandruff germs and is the only preparation, so far as we know, that is guaranteed to do so.

Man or woman, no matter how old you are, Parisian Sage will make you look younger.

Why not go to Wm. Madill, druggist, Peterborough, and get a large bottle to-day, it only costs 50 cents, and your money back if it does not cure dandruff, stop falling hair, or itching of the scalp. It will make your hair luxuriant, bright and beautiful and it is the most refreshing, pleasant and invigorating hair dressing made.

High-Handed Injustice

Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—It is easily seen by a majority of our council the other night the smooth way in which they extricate themselves for not submitting the ward system by-law. By this kind of pea-nut policy I think the general interests of the people should not be questioned in any such manner but should be acted upon so that the will of the people should be sought after. It was clearly stated by the city solicitor that if the council wanted to have a vote on the by-law for ward system they could do so. The idea of bringing up the two year system of electing aldermen looked preposterous; however, the ratepayers will have a chance to vote for such aldermen that will favor the ward system. And it should be one of their planks in their platform at the coming election. Of course, those who opposed the petition will not want to jump around and act the Mr. Slick by saying they are in favor of it, when they come to ask for their votes. I will discuss the merits of the ward system later.

Yours truly,
ALBERT HANNA.

The Ghost of Lochrain Castle

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson—Author of "The Princess Passes," "The Lightning Conductor," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON

"Yes. There has been a great disturbance in the house, hasn't there?" Elspeth asked.

"Dear me, yes, miss. That was the fire. But it's all out and over now, it must be nearly two hours ago."

"Was nobody injured?"

"A little. Was he trying to save his friend, Captain Oxford?"

"Yes, miss, that was how it was. He was out of his room at the time, it seems with Lord Lochrain, I believe, who had sent for him on business—at least, that's the story I was told by some one; but he heard screams, in a voice he thought he knew, and would go to find out what was the matter, though his lordship heard nothing, and wouldn't allow that anything was wrong. The queer part is that nobody could find any one who had screamed, though several persons who had gone to their rooms thought they heard a woman shriek, and they say now it must have been the White Lady of the Ivy Tower, who gave the warning, just as she used to do, only in the old days it was when any member of the family was in danger that she would appear."

"The White Lady?"

"Oh, the White Lady is a well-known ghost in the Lochrain family, miss—the old family that used to live here, you know, before the castle was turned into a hotel. I never much believed in that old story, or any of the other fearsome ones that are told about the place until to-night. Now, I can't deny that those screams in a woman's voice, and no woman to be seen, have gone a long way to converting me. Why I heard them myself, though I will say I didn't know where they came from until the alarm of fire in the corridor that goes to the Ivy Tower. It was Mr. Kenrith who got there first and saved his friend from being burnt up in his sleep, as he would have been, probably, since it was in Captain Oxford's room the fire started."

"It might have been a lighted cigarette end, or something of the sort; nobody knows, but Captain Oxford admits smoking in his room. It's strange you should only just have got word of the great excitement in the house, miss, for everybody else nearly was up and has gone off to rest again now. Is there anything I can do for you?"

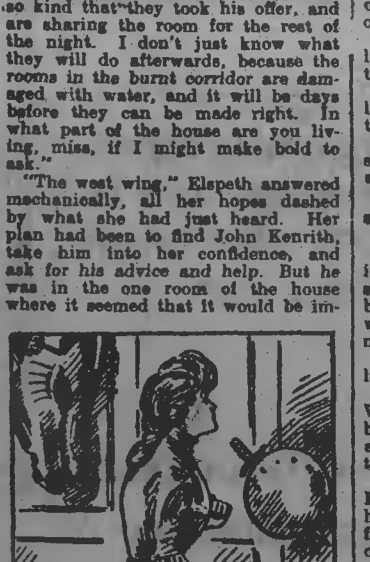
"What became of the people who were obliged to turn out of their rooms in the corridor where the fire was?" asked the girl.

"Oh, miss, it was only Mr. Kenrith and Captain Oxford; one of the other four rooms was a private sitting room and the other three haven't been occupied for two nights. A family was coming into them to-morrow."

"Where are Captain Oxford and Mr. Kenrith, then?"

"Mr. Trowbridge, another millionaire gentleman, like Mr. Kenrith, has given up his sitting room to them. It was the only room free, and though the manager would have been glad to give them his, Mr. Trowbridge was so kind that they took his offer, and are sharing the room for the rest of the night. I don't just know what they will do afterwards, because the rooms in the burnt corridor are damaged with water, and it will be days before they can be made right. In what part of the house are you living, miss, if I might make bold to ask."

"The west wing," Elspeth answered mechanically, all her hopes dashed by what she had just heard. Her plan had been to find John Kenrith, take him into her confidence, and ask for his advice and help. But he was in the one room of the house where it seemed that it would be impossible for her to get at him and still carry out the plan she had proposed to herself.



The girl stood still for a moment.

Besides, it seemed ominous to her that Mr. Kenrith and Captain Oxford should be in a room offered to them by Trowbridge. She did not believe that such an offer would have been made except for a reason of which she trembled to think.

Her brain worked rapidly. She asked herself what she could do, and realized that, if anything at all were to be done it must be done quickly.

She took from her packet the purse which held all she had in the world—a very modest sum.

"This is for the trouble I have made you," she said, giving the man half a crown, "and"—holding up half a sovereign—"this will be for you if can get a message, which I will give you, to Mr. Kenrith, without any one else guessing from whom it comes. I should like to write a note—just a word or two."

"I'll turn up one of the lights, miss," said the night porter, "and you know there's paper and envelopes on all the tables here in the hall."

Elspeth sat down at a small table in a corner and wrote hurriedly. "I must see you for a moment on a matter of life and death. Don't contradict anything the bearer says, but comes quickly. Do not eat or drink anything that may be given you in the room where you are, and do not let Captain Oxford do so, either. This is important. Any excuse to refuse."

In a moment the note was finished, and instead of putting it in an envelope, Elspeth twisted the half-sheet she had chosen into a tiny wisp. "Go to the door of Mr. Trowbridge's sitting-room," she said, "and unless Mr. Kenrith and Captain Oxford are alone together, or unless you are sure you can do it unseen, don't give this letter. If you can manage in no other way say merely that it has been found that something in Mr. Kenrith's own room needs his attention and musn't wait. Then, when you have got him outside the door, hand him the note, and ask him to read it at once. When he has stopped to do so, probably he will go back for a minute to speak to Captain Oxford; but in any case I will be waiting here in the hall. When you come back with Mr. Kenrith I'll give you half the sovereign."

"Thank you, miss, very kindly," said the man. "I wish I could earn as much, only half as easily, every night. You can depend on me. Shall I leave the light turned up?"

"No, no, thank you," said Elspeth hastily. "I'd rather sit in the dark."

Her brain had acted quickly, and she had told herself that, in case her plans went wrong, it would be well for her not to be seen in the hall by any other eyes than those of Mr. Kenrith.

Upstairs, Trowbridge was lingering in his own sitting room, chatting with the two men to whom he had lent it. He excused himself for remaining by saying that every one in the house was far too excited to sleep. They talked over various famous fires, and at last Trowbridge said, "Now when you two fellows have had a parting drink with me I'll say good-night and go off to my own bed. By Jove, I never thought these quarters could have look so comfortable. That cot and the big sofa are quite inviting. I only hope, Mr. Kenrith, that the pain of your burns won't keep you awake."

Kenrith smiled. "If it does, I shan't lose many hours' sleep. It's nearly three."

"By Jove, I've kept you up too long," exclaimed Trowbridge. "It's time for whiskey and good-night."

He went to a small table, where stood a Tantalus, a couple of syphons and some glasses.

"Don't trouble, thank you, as far as I am concerned," said Kenrith.

"Nor for me," said Oxford.

"Oh, come, I shall be quite hurt if you don't try some of my whiskey," said Trowbridge. "It is supposed to be rather good. Won't you drink and wish me happiness in my engagement?"

"Your engagement?" echoed Oxford, looking startled.

"My engagement with Lady Hilary Vane," Trowbridge went on. "It will be announced to-morrow. You two are the first ones who have been told."

As a matter of fact he was lying. Hilary's letter had not been given to him, and when she had learned this from Elspeth she had made the most of a headache and put off the evil moment by remaining in her room all day. Lady Lambart, however, had told Trowbridge that the girl's consent was but a question of a few hours; on the strength of this assurance Trowbridge had paid the sum of two hundred pounds to a certain man who had arrived during the morning, armed with a blue paper for Lady Lambart; and as a reward for what he had done, he considered himself entitled to all the pleasure he could glean from a somewhat premature announcement of his engagement to Lady Hilary.

As he spoke he poured out the whiskey which he wished his guests to taste, and filled up the long glasses with soda water.

"Are neither of you going to congratulate me?" he asked.

"You have surprised us both," said Kenrith, throwing a warning glance at Captain Oxford, who was pale to the lips. "I know Lady Hilary and her mother well, yet I heard nothing."

"You must have seen what was going on," laughed Trowbridge.

"I'm afraid I've been rather selfishly taken up with my own affairs for the last day or two" replied Kenrith anxiously to cover Oxford's emotion.

Trowbridge laughed. "There are those who say—you know what gossips there are in hotels—that we shall be hearing something of the same sort about Lady Lambart and yourself," said he.

An angry light flashed in Kenrith's clear gray eyes. "Those who say such things say what they have no right to say, and what is most unfair to Lady Lambart."

"It might save here a great deal of trouble if it were true," remarked Trowbridge. "I'm afraid the poor lady has been a good deal bothered for money, and if her creditors were sure—"

"I think we had better not discuss that subject any further, Mr. Trowbridge," broke in Kenrith; but his heart secretly smote him, and he wondered if he were to blame for any of Lady Lambart's alleged troubles. Had anything that he had actually said or done influenced her to regretable extravagance? If that were true, it was presupposing that she would have been willing to accept him, had he proposed, and he had never told himself that she would do that.

But, if she had believed that he intended asking her to be his wife, was he not in a way pledged to her by the half intention once in his mind, and the words and actions to which that half intention of his had prompted him?

He thought of Lady Hilary, her love for Captain Oxford and Captain Oxford's love for her. If the girl's mother had been his affianced wife, the child need not have sacrificed her inclinations. Was it not his duty to save her, even now, though, day by day, his intention of proposing to Lady Lambart had been slipping further and further away from his mind?

He had never loved the handsome woman, as he had hoped to love if he married; but until very lately he had admired her exceedingly, and she had fascinated him to a certain extent. Doubtless she had seen and known her own influence over him; and although a subtle change had crept into the relationship lately, had he not perhaps gone too far to retreat?

Kenrith had not asked himself this question in so many words before; until he heard that Hilary Vane was to be sacrificed for her mother. And as he tried to answer it mentally, scarcely knowing what he did, with his burnt and bandaged hand he raised a glass of whiskey from the small silver tray which Trowbridge had placed on the table beside him.

"I beg your pardon. I mixed that for Captain Oxford. It's rather stronger than yours. I remembered hearing you say once that you didn't like your whiskey too strong," said Trowbridge; and thus it was Kenrith himself who held out the glass to his friend.

Oxford would rather have thrown Trowbridge's whiskey in his face than drink it, could he have followed his inclination; but if he refused to drink the man would know why, and he did not wish to quarrel over Lady Hilary Vane.

"She shall not marry him. Somehow, I shall save her, if I have to run away with her to do it," he said to himself, as reluctantly he lifted the glass to his lips.

CHAPTER XVI.

It was the night porter who opened the door at Kenrith's "Come in," and he was holding a beautiful collie dog in leash.

"I beg pardon," he said, restraining the animal with difficulty, "but Prince Charlie seems half out of his senses to-night. He's been as good as gold most nights since he was put in my charge to look after till morning; but whether it's been the confusion of the fire in the house, or the smell of smoke, anyhow he's more like a wild thing than himself. I made bold to bring him up here, thinking if I saw a light still, I would knock and ask the captain to see what he could do to soothe the poor beast."

"That's right, Millar," said Captain Oxford, who paid a porter to take care of the dog at night, the only time in the twenty-four hours when he was separated from his master, even in a hotel. "Let him come to me."

As he spoke, Oxford put down his glass with the whiskey untouched. The porter unfastened the dog's leash from the ring in his collar, and the beautiful creature bounded through the door to his master. The young officer patted his knee, as a sign that Prince Charlie was permitted to lay his head upon it; but to his surprise the animal did not respond as usual to this much appreciated signal. Instead of accepting and giving the expected greeting, he turned and showed his teeth at Trowbridge, a film of bloodshot veins netting the white of his clear eyes. The whole graceful, feathery body quivered with the suppressed growling that rumbled in the dog's chest and throat.

Trowbridge flushed slightly and looked uneasy, as Oxford thrust a couple of fingers through Prince Charlie's collar, and prevented the spring he evidently longed to make.

"I'm afraid your dog doesn't fancy me," said Trowbridge, with rather an uncomfortable laugh. "I'm a favorite with most animals, but this one"——

"I must apologize for him," said Oxford, somewhat stiffly. "I have never seen the Prince like this before. He doesn't make friends easily, but he seldom takes dislikes—or if he does, he never shows them, except under extreme provocation."

"And now he has no provocation," returned Trowbridge.

"Apparently none," the younger man echoed. But he looked puzzled. He was sure that, unknown to him, Trowbridge must have done something to rouse the Prince's enmity, and he was asking himself what it could have been, when the affair could have happened.

"One would think," said Kenrith, smiling, "that the Prince expected Mr. Trowbridge to attack you, Oxford, and that he was standing on guard, to protect you at any cost. He has just that attitude."

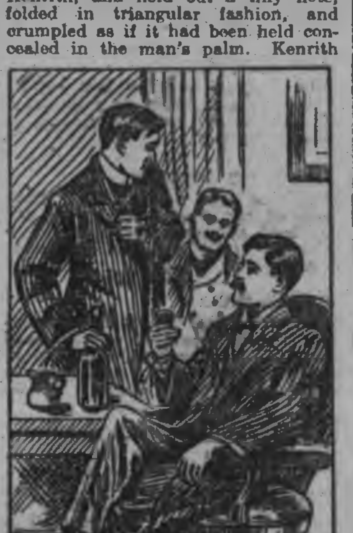
Trowbridge laughed again. "I had better try to show the faithful old chap that his master and I are the best of friends," said he. "Now, let us clink our glasses together, and then drink. That act ought to prove to the dog that we're all right together, if he's the intelligent Scotchman I take him for; and then I'll bid you good-night."

He held out his glass and Oxford took up his again, Kenrith also lifting his to his lips once more. But as Trowbridge extended his hand towards Captain Oxford, each holding his glass, with a fierce growl the collie leaped up between the two men, and striking his tawny head against his master's tumbler, dashed it to the ground. It broke with a sharp crash, its contents spattering the floor, and drenching the dog's finely marked face and glossy ruff. Both men mechanically drew back to escape the deluge, and Kenrith was surprised at the expression which for an instant disfigured Trowbridge's features.

It was natural that he should be slightly startled, and perhaps vexed; but a look of such rage and hatred darkened his eyes for a second, that Kenrith feared in his sudden anger he would attempt to kill the Prince. Quickly as it had come, so quickly did the strange expression fade, however, and Kenrith was half-inclined to think it must have been a trick of light and shadow.

There was confusion for a moment, Captain Oxford holding and rebuking the dog, Trowbridge wiping the spilled liquid from his evening shirt and white waistcoat, which were plentifully bespattered; and the night porter (who had been standing inside the door, as if to await further orders) running to pick up the pieces of broken glass.

As he stooped, his back to Trowbridge, he glanced up meaningly at Kenrith, and held out a tiny note, folded in triangular fashion, and crumpled as if it had been held concealed in the man's palm. Kenrith took the folded bit of paper and instantly recognized the handwriting of Elspeth Dean, which he had seen many times since she had begun to act as his secretary.



"I beg your pardon. I mixed that for Captain Oxford."

He guessed that she had asked the night porter to deliver the note secretly, if he were not alone in the room, and that very likely the man had cleverly made the restlessness of Prince Charlie his excuse for so late a call.

Hastily, while the attention of Oxford and Trowbridge was too completely engaged for them to guess that anything was going on behind their backs, he unfolded the note, and read, with intense surprise and bewilderment the few words Elspeth had scrawled there.

CHAPTER XVII.

It had been a strange and terrible day for Lady Lambart, one of the most terrible of her life, which, of late years, had not been lived all in sunshine.

In the first place, the morning had been begun by a hideous shock. She had hoped to wring a proposal for herself from Kenrith and to have matters settled between Hilary and Trowbridge before the bursting of the storm which had been threatening so long. If she had dared she would have spoken directly with Kenrith of her financial troubles, but instinctively she had felt that, if she seemed even to hint for help from him, though she would doubtless obtain all the assistance she needed, she would lose forever any hope of him as a husband.

He had been brought up in a different world from hers, and the woman he asked to marry him must be—or seem to be—like Caesar's wife. Though he admired her and was perhaps fascinated by her (or she hoped it), he was not enough in love to forgive her for the follies and almost criminal extravagances, which he would certainly find out if she appealed to him for help in this crisis.

Her one hope had been that she might be already engaged to Kenrith, before her troubles reached extreme issues. Then, when she could inform her creditors that she would soon be the wife of the well-known millionaire from the North country, they would be willing, even glad, to wait for their money. If Kenrith made awkward discoveries before their marriage he would be far too honorable, too old-fashioned in his code of morality, to break his promise.

To Lady Lambart's bitter disappointment and chagrin, however, Kenrith had said no word of love, and he neither listened nor looked at her in the old interested way which had given her hope. She attributed the change largely to Elspeth, whom she—herself an arch-schemer—regarded as a designing little trickster, a kind of Becky Sharp; and nothing would have given her more delight than to hear that the young stenographer had been killed or disfigured for life in the motor car accident. As fate had not relieved her of the enemy, she had done her best to assist destiny, and was enchanted with the news that through her Elspeth Dean had lost her place at Lochrain Castle Hydro.

For the present, nevertheless, the girl remained, a detested incubus; and it had been a hateful humiliation to Lady Lambart that she and Hilary should have received a warning from Elspeth.

It was a warning for which to be thankful; still it seemed to Lady Lambart that she would rather not have had it at all, than to have received it through the girl.

It was a great relief that the emergency had driven Hilary to capitulate at last; yet Lady Lambart was not easy in her mind that Elspeth Dean should be the bearer of her daughter's message to Trowbridge. Whether Elspeth had or had not acted in the affair of Captain Oxford as she had been accused of acting, was a detail of slight importance to Lady Lambart; she favored his cause, and might never deliver the note to Trowbridge.

Matters being desperate at the moment, Lady Lambart had tacitly consented to let Elspeth take the letter, rather than there should be any delay for even if Kenrith failed, if the other millionaire were secured, everything might yet be well. She had done her best for him with Hilary, and she intended to have her reward.

When there came no disturbing news from downstairs, Lady Lambart took it for granted that Trowbridge had had the note, and that he had kept his promise to save her and hers whenever the time of need might come.

The two ladies breakfasted in their room, instead of going down as usual; but when an hour had passed in peace, Lady Lambart felt thankfully certain that the coast had been cleared for her, and was anxious that Hilary should descend for a talk with Trowbridge.

But Hilary obstinately refused to leave her room. "He must have had my letter long ago," she said. "He might answer it. It is enough excuse that I have a headache. I've done what you asked of me. I've consented to make the sacrifice, and I shall be miserable all the rest of my life; but I know you don't care for that, mother. I've done enough for this morning. I mean to stay where I am, and keep out of Mr. Trowbridge's way."

"He will think it very strange, and he will have a right to be angry," said Lady Lambart.

"He knows I don't love him," the girl answered.

"Still, you have promised to marry the man now. You have no right to avoid him."

"Oh, mother, I must have one more day to myself," Hilary cried, her eyes brimming with tears. "I've promised myself to him, but in the mood I'm in, if—if he should try to kiss me I feel that I could strike him across the face."

Lady Lambart was startled. There was a look in Hilary's eyes which told her that the girl was in no state to be coerced. She dared urged her no further; for Trowbridge was certainly not a patient man, and if Hilary should forget herself and be rude to him he might repent his bargain. The best thing, she thought, would be to go down and see the man, make up some pretty message from Hilary, with apologies for the headache, and also to talk of the engagement as of a settled thing to every one whom she might meet. She found Trowbridge in the hall, looking pale and anxious, but he brightened visibly on hearing from her that Lady Hilary had definitely decided to accept him. As it happened, while Lady Lambart was engaged in giving the news, the man with the dreaded "blue paper" arrived. Trowbridge was called upon to keep his promise, and she fled, but not to her own room. She dared not wait in the hall, lest there should be some dispute, and she should called upon to see the "dreadful person" whose expected coming had so shaken her nerves. But hastily scribbling a line to Trowbridge, "I will go to see Countess Radepolskoi. Please come to her sitting-room, and touch your right cheek if all is well," she handed the sealed envelope to a waiter with instructions to give it to Mr. Trowbridge as soon as he should come back.

Lady Lambart had the best of excuses for paying a visit to Countess Radepolskoi, as by this time she had heard of the robbery, the sole subject of conversation among the guests of the hotel.

When they first made acquaintance, Lady Lambart and the Countess Radepolskoi had seen a good deal of each other. The Countess had been interested in Lady Lambart because she was a friend of John Kenrith, and Lady Lambart had been interested in the Countess because she was a friend of Mr. Trowbridge, the handsome American millionaire of whom everybody in the Hydro was talking. Of late a feeling of constraint had arisen between them, and Lady Lambart guessed that the Countess had become jealous of Hilary with Trowbridge. Knowing nothing of a bond between them which Elspeth had early suspected, she knew no great reason to fear the Countess. Trowbridge was in love with Hilary, and it rather amused Lady Lambart to see the pain of another woman. Now, she determined, after sympathizing duly with Countess Radepolskoi on the loss of her jewels—quite famous throughout the hotel—she would casually mention Hilary's engagement, perhaps asking with all innocence whether the Countess had been told of it already by "her friend Mr. Trowbridge."

Lady Lambart found the door of the Countess's sitting room ajar. She knocked, and when there was no answer, pushed the door farther open. No one was there; but as she hesitated on the threshold, the Countess's French maid looked out hurriedly from an inner room.

"Where is your mistress?" asked Lady Lambart.

The woman was folding up a handsome tea gown, and Lady Lambart noticed that she was very pale, with a curious, strained look in the eyes, as if she were momentarily expecting something alarming to happen. But, perhaps, this was the effect upon her of the robbery last night; servants were rather like that. "Madame la Countesse has been called away very suddenly, miladi," she said. "I am packing her things, and will follow as soon as I can."

"Gone!" exclaimed Lady Lambart. "That is indeed sudden. Is it on account of the robbery?"

"Yes, miladi; it is on account of the robbery," she replied.

"Surely she will come back!" questioned Lady Lambart. "She has said good-by to none of her friends"——

"I know, miladi, it is most unfortunate, and Madame regrets much; but I doubt if she will come back; though, of course, I do not know all her plans."

A flash of enlightenment darted into Lady Lambart's brain. She imagined that Trowbridge must have told the Countess of his intention to marry Hilary, and that in a rage she had left Lochrain.

"The jewelry is only an excuse," was her thought. "The Countess must have felt she couldn't see the two together, and so she has vanished, making some pretence, I daresay, about Scotland Yard. But perhaps Lady Ardcliffe will know something about it. They were always in each others' pockets lately, and now the fact that they have both been robbed will have drawn them even closer together."

In any case, Trowbridge was certain to be aware of the Countess's departure. Lady Lambart told the maid that if Mr. Trowbridge knocked at the sitting-room door he was to be informed that Lady Lambart had gone on to Lady Ardcliffe's room.

A babel of voices greeted her ears as she knocked at Lady Ardcliffe's door, and one broken sentence came to her clearly. "Of course, I can't prove anything now, but all the same I'm morally certain that"——

The voice came nearer; the door was opened by the speaker, Lady Ardcliffe herself; and at sight of Lady Lambart she gave a little start, growing red, and breaking off suddenly.

"How do you do?" said the elder woman, somewhat stiffly, looking so much embarrassed that Lady Lambart was puzzled.

"We—I—that is, we were all talking over the robbery," she went on. "Will you come in?"

"Thanks, yes; I've come to sympathize," replied Lady Lambart, airily.

"You are very kind," returned the other, with a quick but eloquent glance at her friends.

Trowbridge had interviewed her early in the morning, had learned from her own lips the theory she had formed in regard to her stolen jewels (a thing she had absorbed from the Countess Radepolskoi, as she would scarcely have been able to evolve it alone) and had induced her to promise that she would do nothing inimical to Lady Hilary Vane. "It isn't that I care for the girl particularly," he had said. "If I have given people any reason to think so, it was only to shield her in her affair with Oxford, and also because you have been unkind to me lately. She knows we are great friends and she and her mother may fancy I have put these ideas about her into your head. I shall think you more angelic than ever if you promise not to accuse Lady Hilary. You admit you haven't any real proofs; that the Countess has them all, and has said that she'll make them known this morning; but, mark my words, she'll do nothing of the sort. I've been studying her character, and have discovered that she's as cowardly as she is selfish. She hopes to make a catspaw of you; then, when she has got you to do and say exactly what she wants she will surely throw everything on your shoulders and disclaim any special knowledge or responsibility. Without very strong proofs on which to found an accusation you would be in something of a scrape; and every one would think you had done what you had out of ill nature—a thing really so very foreign from your sweet disposition."

UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION AND HOLIDAY DECORATIONS

Following our usual custom at this season of the year I beg to call your attention to the dangers of life and property from Christmas decorations, displays, etc., which are frequently made at this time of the year. The use of Christmas greens, harvest specimens and other inflammable materials such as drapperies, scenery, cotton to represent snow, and the like, especially in connection with electric and other lighting systems, is decidedly an increase of hazard, it being impossible to make displays of that nature perfectly safe.

The third statutory condition of insurance policy reads as follows;

"Any change material to the risk but within the control or knowledge of the assured shall avoid the policy, as to the part affected thereby, unless the change is promptly notified in writing to the company or its local agent."

In addition to the danger to property from the displays referred to, the danger of life in crowded stores or places of meeting, by reason of a panic occasioned by a fire, even though it be small and easily controlled, is so great that the underwriters, who have made a study of such hazards, would fail in their duty should they not give this warning.

By order,
JOHN A. ROBERTSON,
Secretary.

Mr. Robertson further adds;

The danger is not confined to the stores above referred to, almost any other mercantile establishment is liable to make a display, and it is frequently made in churches, public halls, etc.

Wherever any kind of a display is made, special care should be given to electrical installations, particularly those of a temporary nature. They should only be put in by competent electricians, and all fuse blocks and cut-outs should be located away from inflammable material, and what is known as "enclosed" or "cartridge" fuses only should be used. "Open" fuses are particularly dangerous. The enclosing of incandescent lights with paper and other inflammable material is, altogether too common a practice, and is highly dangerous.

OPEN CONFESSION IS GOOD FOR SOUL EVEN OF NEWSPAPERS

It will be remembered that the Globe called aloud and in unmistakeable accents of anger and disgust for the heads of the Whitney government which it was alleged were worse than the famous "patronage list," men at Ottawa. It was suspected at the time that the venerable journal was running amok through worry over the revelations at Ottawa and the following honest and affecting lines from it will be regarded as an ample atonement. A fault confessed is a fault condoned. The Globe's candid acknowledgement is worthy of the high standing of that journal.

"The Globe asked its readers if they had ever seen any advertisements of the Ontario Government inviting tenders for the supply of groceries, or meats, or provisions. A reader promptly encloses advertisements of the Department of Education, taken from The Globe's own columns, in which tenders were asked for the supply of butcher's meat, creamery or dairy butter, flour, meal, and potatoes, for the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, Belleville, and for the Institution for the Blind, Brantford. These are certainly "provisions," and the rash person who wrote for the information is looking humbled today." —The Globe, Dec. 8th, 1908.

NORWOOD HUNTERS HAD AN EXCITING TIME AFTER FOXES

Special to the Review.

Norwood, Dec. 9.—Messrs. J. L. Johnson and Herb Beavis had the good luck to procure two fine red foxes one day last week while out hunting with hounds. The hounds ran the foxes to their den and the two hunters succeeded in killing one and were examining it, not knowing it had company when the other bounded out and got out of range before they could get a shot at it. The dogs were put on the scent and ran it so hard that it was forced to again take shelter in a den. But vain hope; the hunters were close at hand and after plugging the entrance so as to shut off the means of escape, the nimrods repaired to their homes to put a prop to their stomachs, not having had anything to eat but snow on cedar boughs since morning, and this was nearly dark. Having reinforced their failing strength and procured the necessary equipment for tunnelling they returned to the task of digging out viceship. After several hours of strenuous labour interspersed by occasional pulls at the briar, and other diversions about midnight they located Mr. fox about 15 feet from where they commenced digging. He was promptly dispatched and borne home in triumph. Our friend Mr. J. has the reputation of being one of the most expert fox hunters in the country. We are convinced he has a cinch anyhow when he gets them in their den.

MATTERS THAT WILL INTEREST THE RATEPAYERS AT PRESENT

Interesting Information About the Coming Municipal Elections---Change in System of Electing Aldermen.

Water Commissioner and Four Members for Board of Education to be Elected—Three By-laws.

At the municipal elections in Peterborough in January a change regarding the constitution of the council comes into effect.

There will be twelve aldermen elected as has been the case for several years but the six who receive the highest votes will hold office for two years. The other six will retire at the end of the first year. Afterwards six will be elected each year. The new system is practically the same as that which is followed in the election of members of the Board of Education.

Since the last municipal election took place a change has been made in the wards of the city, the new order of things coming into effect on the first of February, 1908. The change was made by the council of 1907. The wards, five in number, are now constituted as follows:

Centre ward—All that part of the city lying between Sherbrooke and McDonnel streets and east of Bethune street.

POLLING DIVISIONS

The polling divisions have been rearranged and three new polling divisions have been created. For the coming elections the polling places and the deputy returning officers will be as follows.

Polling division No. 1—All that part of the south ward lying south of Townsend street and east of Aylmer street; polling place at M H Halpin's 39 George street; Josiah Robertson, Deputy Returning Officer.

Polling division No. 2—All that part of the South ward, south of Townsend street, and west of Aylmer street; polling place at R. O. Braund's, 55 Park street north; W VanEvery, Deputy Returning Officer.

Polling division No. 3—All that part of the South ward lying north of Townsend street, polling place at L. Spry's. 210 Stewart street; J J. A. Hall, DRO.

Polling division No. 4—All that part of Centre ward, lying east of George street, and south of Brock street; polling place, City Council Chamber, T B McGrath, DRO.

Polling division No. 5—All that part of Centre ward, south of Hunter St, and west of George street; polling place at J. Jay's. 388 Aylmer street; D H Burritt, DRO.

Polling division No. 6—All that part of Centre ward, west of George St, north of Hunter street and also that part of the said ward lying north of Brock street; polling place at J & W Metheral's shop, 464 Aylmer St. J B Metheral, DRO.

Polling division No. 7—All that part of the West ward, lying between Sherbrooke and Charlotte streets; polling place at Geo. Matthew's Co. shop, corner Sherbrooke and Park streets. E J Hartley, DRO.

Polling division No. 8—All that part of West ward, lying between Charlotte and Brock streets and Weller street polling place at A J. Warne's, 656 Charlotte St, J M Greene, Deputy Returning Officer.

Polling division No. 9—All that part of West ward, north of Brock and Weller streets; polling pace at N. Boutley's, 392 Brock street. A Sawers, DRO.

Polling division No 10—All that part of the North ward, lying east of Aylmer street and south of Edinburgh street; polling place at Mrs. Mann's 601 George street. G H Howson, Deputy Returning Officer.

THE STUDENTS ARE SORRY NOW

Queen's Men Will Pay for Damage Done in Fight.

Kingston, Dec. 10.—A fairly attended mass meeting of the students of Queen's University was held to consider what action should be taken in view of the events of Saturday night.

A resolution was passed expressing complete disapproval of the disorderly conduct and sincere regret for the part in it for which the students were responsible. The students' committee ask space for the following statement:

"Much indignation was expressed at the exaggerated reports of the affair appearing in the outside press. Not more than fifty students were directly concerned. No stones were used, nor were revolvers displayed by either police or students. The conflict was of short duration; personal injuries received were slight and the damage to property was inconsiderable. For this damage the students are making full restitution. Kingston citizens offered bail for the students arrested."

A BAD JOLT FOR ONTARIO

Ottawa, Dec. 10.—Ontario apple shippers get a bad jolt in a report received yesterday by the Trade and Commerce Department from the acting trade commissioner in Birmingham, in which, after dealing out high praise to British Columbia apples, he states that he came next to a shipment of 500 barrels of apples from a prominent Ontario shipper, all of which were rotten or half decayed.

The peculiar thing is that in each case the barrels were marked "Not to be shipped" or "Falsely marked." It seems that the consigners collected in advance and that the apples were thus sent forward.

Enquiry at the fruit branch of the Department of Agriculture revealed the fact that while the inspectors at Montreal have power to mark barrels "falsely marked" they have no right to add "not to be shipped" and an investigation will be made as to who placed this mark upon the barrels or how it happened that when so marked they were allowed to be sent to England.

LEADER OF THE ADAMITES MADE GOOD HIS ESCAPE

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 10.—Efforts of the police yesterday to find James Sharp, hailed by his ten fanatical followers as a second Messiah, failed to reveal his movements after Tuesday's bloody fight with the police. It was thought at first that the man taken to the hospital mortally wounded was Sharp, but it was learned afterwards that this was Louis Pratt, one of the fanatic's followers, and father of the girl who was killed. Pratt is lying in the hospital at present with his right leg amputated at the knee and a bullet in his brain. He persists that he is divinely guided, and is very bitter in his denunciation of the police. He is not going to die, he says, but will live to kill more policemen.

Policeman Michael Mullane, the most seriously hurt of the officers, rallied slightly yesterday and physicians say he has an even chance for recovery. Sergt. Patrick Clark and A. J. Selzea, a bystander who was shot through the lungs, are both slightly improved.

It is known that Sharp has had his hair trimmed and his long beard shaved off, but the police have no clue as to his whereabouts.

Shortly after the shooting Tuesday he walked into a saloon and laid down his revolver with the remark, "I am satisfied, I give up." There were no policemen present, and as nobody present seemed anxious to take him into custody Sharp waited a moment, then picked up the weapon, reloaded it, and walked out.

Mrs. Pratt and her four surviving children are detained at police headquarters. Mrs. Sharp is in jail. None of them exhibit any emotion when speaking of the death of Lulu Pratt, but calmly assert it was God's will. The police say the two women and the two eldest girls, Mary and Lena, will be charged with murder. Five residents of a mission in the north end frequented by Sharp's followers are being held for examination.

STREET RAILWAY COMPANY MAY RUN WHERE IT LIKES

Ontario Railway and Municipal Commission Declares That City Has Committed a Breach of Agreement in Preventing Corporation From Using Whatever Streets it Desires.

Toronto, Dec. 10.—"The board determine that the company have the right to select the aforementioned streets (for new routes), and so declare.

"We find that the city has denied the company's right and has prevented the company from using the streets selected for their new lines, and has violated and committed a breach of the agreement which they made with the company."

Such is the summing of an unexpectedly strong decision by which the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board confirm the Toronto Street Railway Co. in their contention that they can lay out such car routes as they may deem best for their own traffic. The city is "beaten to a frazzle" evidently, though no order is made as to costs.

A company advancing all the capital, making themselves responsible for the success of the enterprise, taking all the risk of failure and loss, would require to have the right to select the streets where men most do congregate, where passengers could most readily and easily present themselves for carriage, and where the traffic could be most remunerative.

The denial of this right to the company to thus manage their business would require to be stated in very clear and decisive language.

While the city may requisition the company to extend its tracks • • • the company cannot be compelled to build • • • and the city may grant the right to some other person. To force the company to abandon and to grant the right to build on the abandoned streets to some other person or company, is the only remedy which the city has. This, however, does not prevent the company from picking and choosing the streets that they consider will fit in with the rest of their system.

CHANGE THE KING'S OATH

English Bill Aims to Abolish Insult to Catholicism.

London, Dec. 10.—In the House of Lords yesterday the Earl of Crewe announced that the Government would introduce a bill changing the coronation oath, so that the clauses denouncing Roman Catholicism as idolatrous would not be in the oath, but not otherwise changing its Protestant features.

The Duke of Norfolk and Lord Ripon, Conservative and Liberal Roman Catholic peers, expressed their gratitude at the announcement, which, they declared would be heartily welcomed by the Roman Catholic people.

The Earl of Kinnaird, an Independent, and leader in many religious movements, especially in home missions, expressed grave doubt about the wisdom of such a change, and was not at all sure that the country would endorse the proposal.

The date of the introduction of the measure was not stated, but it is said it will be one of the earliest bills after the Christmas holidays.

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY TO GET AFTER MINING COMPANIES

Charters Will be Cancelled if the Law is Not Complied With.

Toronto, Dec. 10.—Nemesis is after the mining companies that have violated the Companies' Act in the shape of the Provincial Secretary, Hon. W. J. Hanna intends to enforce the provisions of the act against every person or corporation who has not complied with it.

Seymour Corley, crown attorney, has been retained as counsel for the Department, but not in his official capacity. He will take up the cases and has access to full sources of information, which he will utilise to as large an extent as possible.

The companies directly in question are: Mother Lode Mining Co., Ltd.; Big Six Development Co., Ltd.; Crown Jewel Mines, Ltd.; Gifford-Cobalt Mines, Ltd.; Gifford Extension Mines, Ltd.; Agaunico Mines Development, Ltd. (Arizona); and Otisse Mining Co., Ltd.

The Department is carrying on a prosecution on its own account in the case of the Mother Lode and Big Six Companies. These companies have no directors in Ontario and cannot therefore be served. The only way to bring them to time is to cancel their charters. Some other companies appear to be trying to evade the statute by having directors in the United States, and issuing their shares there also.

The two companies named will be on the carpet and if they do not reform their ways the charters will be cancelled.

The prosecution is not a criminal one, but for violation of the terms of the Companies' Act, section 99 being the special clause in question.

The chief failure is in neglecting to file prospectuses. In advertising the company must not state anything at variance with the information filed in the prospectus, nor must it omit to state certain matters specified in the act.

The directors of the companies are the parties liable and they have been served as far as possible in the cases of the companies above mentioned. The charges are under section 99, which has 14 sub-sections, and the penalty for violation is $200 maximum fine for each director for each separate prosecution.

Thomas Mulvey, Assistant Provincial Secretary, who is instructing Mr. Corley by direction of Hon. Mr. Hanna, stated yesterday that he had only seen one mining company's advertisement so far that complied with the act. Brokers do not appear to come under the statute when they are acting generally, but if acting as agents for a particular company they must observe the law as its agents.

The cases under Mr. Corley's charge will come up to-morrow. There are a number of others than the last five mentioned, but service had not been completed last night.

TO FINISH THE WORK

Machine Telephone Co. Not Abandoning Project at Lindsay.

Lindsay, Dec. 9—A communication was read at the meeting of the town council last night from Mr. Mackay, manager of the Machine Telephone Company, re construction work carried on by the company in Lindsay. The writer stated his intention of visiting Lindsay and meeting members of the committee. "You may rest assured," says Mr. Mackay, "that the company has no intention of abandoning the work in Lindsay, but we will complete our work and instal a very up-to-date automatic telephone plant in your town and will connect the same with our exchange at Peterborough."

LINDSAY RINK THREATENED

Curling Rink Slightly Damaged by Fire

Lindsay, Dec. 9.—Lindsay curling rink was threatened with destruction by fire this morning shortly after 11 o'clock.

The caretaker, Mr. Williams, was in the act of locking up the building before going to dinner, and hearing a cracking sound, he at once proceeded to investigate. On going upstairs he was startled to find the room filled with smoke and flames shooting up from the floor. An alarm was at once sent in, and the fire brigade responded with alacrity. The flames were quickly subdued and it was found that the fire had originated from the stove pipes worked its way under the floor and up the wall to the roof burning a hole up through. Had it been five minutes later the structure would have been doomed.

FOR BETTER FARM LIFE

Speakers at Guelph Deal With Humanitarian Phase.

Guelph, Dec. 10.—The humanities of farm life and the evangel of higher living on saner lines formed the themes of the addresses at the usual big public meeting of the winter fair.

President Creelman of the college struck a responsive chord in the hearts of all thinking farmers at the meeting, which was packed to the doors. His remarks were taken up by W. F. Maclean, M.P. of South York, and if such doctrines of rational living were preached as broadly and accepted as completely over rural Ontario as they were last night's audience a regeneration in vitality of the people, a financial recuperation and healthier race of hardy stock should result. The high plane of the discussions and the co-operation of a sympathetic audience amply justified the assertion that Canadian talent on the rostrum as far excelled the imported article as day was better than darkness.

Hon. Jas. Duff occupied the chair, and in a breezy address referred to Ontario's wonderful possibilities in soil and rock bed, while material development might go on greatly all progress would prove abortive if the farmer was not educated from within, he said.

Popular Joe Downey, M.P.P., along with Mayor Newstead, made the address of welcome, and again referred to Guelph's claim and support of the winter fair. To these Lieut.-Col. McEwen, president of the fair, and Wm. Smith, ex-M.P., president of the Horse Breeders, replied. Hon. Dr. Landry, Minister of Agriculture of New Brunswick, also spoke.

OWEN SOUND BARTENDER WAS ACQUITTED BY JURY

Robert Breckels, Accused of Having Given False Testimony in Liquor Case, is Arraigned and Freed After Two Hours' Deliberation.

Owen Sound, Dec. 10.—Great interest was manifested in the trial here yesterday of Robert Breckels, a former bartender in the Coulson House, accused of perjury.

It was alleged that accused on the occasion of his trial on the 19th of August last, when he was charged with having sold whisky, gave false testimony on oath knowing it to be untrue. On that occasion he denied having on the 4th or 5th of August supplied License Detectives Adamson, Allan and Gifford with whisky, and also denied ever having carried a bottle in his coat pocket while on duty behind the Coulson House bar.

In the morning these three detectives again gave evidence, when they averred that the accused had supplied them with liquor from a bottle which he had concealed in his coat. H. G. Tucker, counsel for the accused, examined the detectives as to their past careers, and asked Gifford if it were not the case that he had been a horse thief while in Montana, and had had to leave that place in a hurry, as he stood in danger of being strung up. Gifford denied the allegation.

Accused gave evidence in his own behalf and repeated his former testimony.

In his address to the jury Mr. Tucker stigmatized the spotters as snakes and said that they had gone about with lies in their mouths. The judge summed up slightly in favor of the accused.

The jury were absent for over two hours, and returned with a verdict of not guilty.

Sensational evidence is expected today during the testimony of George Pumple, the C.P.R. driver, accused by Detective Stewart of having bribed Pownall and himself to leave the town.

REED HAS RETURNED

Brakeman Who Opened the Switch at Sandbank Gives Himself Up.

Toronto, Dec. 10.—Brakeman W. P. Reed, who opened the switch which caused the Sandbank collision, with the loss of several lives, is back in Toronto. Yesterday he communicated with his lawyer, J. G. O'Donoghue, that he was prepared to voluntarily give himself up. Mr. O'Donoghue immediately notified Crown Attorney Kew at Cobourg that he would produce Reed whenever his presence is required.

Reed's explanation is that he was so appalled at the loss of life his mistake had caused that he fled. Afterwards he realized that it was his duty to return and face the consequences. His plea is that he thought the main line was clear when he turned on the switch, as his train was to be sidetracked for the purpose of letting the one following it pass. He had no knowledge that another train was due from the opposite direction and returned to the forward caboose shortly before the on-coming train engine telescoped that to which he belonged.

Preparing For Change.

Toronto, Dec. 10.—Legislation will be needed for the proposed change in the date of the Ontario Government's fiscal year. At present it closes on Dec. 31. It is purposed to close the next year on Oct. 31, necessitating a short term fiscal year of ten months.

Next session of the Legislature will consequently be asked to provide estimates for ten months. In order to carry on the business, however, estimates for the following 12 months will also be submitted. These will necessarily be somewhat light, as many of the expenditures cannot be estimated so far ahead. This will be remedied by providing heavy supplementary estimates in the following session of the Legislature.

It is understood that good progress is being made with the accounts and business will be in good shape for the session early in February.

To Develop Brockville.

Ottawa, Dec. 10.—A meeting of the directors of the proposed Ottawa to Brockville Electric Railway was held here yesterday afternoon, and it was decided to progress the scheme as speedily as possible. The railway is intended to run through Augusta Centre, North Gower, Manotick and Merivale.

One of the ideas of the promoters is to develop Brockville and vicinity as a residential district, the electric railway making it possible for business men to travel to and from the capital daily.

The line will be used as a steam road in order to earn the Government subsidy. The distance is 60 miles.

Son Finds Mother Dead.

Sarnia, Dec. 10.—Two highly respected citizens, Mr. and Mrs. John Paul, of this place, were found dead in bed yesterday morning, being asphyxiated by gas. The discovery was made by their son, W. R. Paul, who was passing the house on his way to work and seeing no move about the place, went in to investigate. Going into the bedroom he found his parents both lifeless. Four sons and two daughters survive.

Burned to Death.

Keewatin, Ont., Dec. 10.—Fire which started yesterday morning in Allan Bros.' bakeshop about seven o'clock caused the death of Andrew Allan, aged 18, whose body was charred beyond recognition, and had spread to the adjoining buildings.

Robert Allan, brother of the dead man, was drowned just six months ago and of three brothers who opened the shop three months ago, only John is left.

Building For Mining School.

Kingston, Dec. 10.—A delegation from the School of Mining will wait on the Ontario Government and ask for a new building. For two years the school has been cramped for space.

Gashed His Wrist.

Guelph, Dec. 10.—Thos. Snell gashed his wrist badly yesterday morning while hog killing at the winter fair, due to the animal lunging against him. He lost a lot of blood.

Belt Line Proposed.

Ottawa, Dec. 10.—Directors of the North Lanark Railway met yesterday afternoon and discussed favorably the proposal to run a belt line through Perth, Athens, Brockville, Cardinal, Iroquois, Morrisburg, Winchester, Kenmore, Metcalfe and Ottawa.

To Give Holiday Fares.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—At the regular monthly meeting of the Central Passenger Association here yesterday, it was decided to grant the usual holiday rate on the railroads of the association.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster at St. Kitts.

St. Catharines, Dec. 10.—There was a large turnout of the members of the Canadian Club last night to welcome Hon. Geo. E. Foster, the guest of the evening, who spoke on "Some Things Canada Needs."

Dead In Snowbank.

Kingston, Dec. 10.—Thomas Buck, aged 73, was found dead in the snow at the homestead at Cataraqui, where he was born and lived all his life. Heart disease was the cause.

Woman Gashed Throat.

Huntsville, Dec. 10.—Mrs. F. F. Latcher, an aged resident of this town, made an attempt Tuesday night to end her life by cutting her throat.

Milroy Goes For Trial.

Kenora, Dec. 10.—Joseph Milroy was yesterday afternoon committed for trial on a charge of murdering Richard Danna, near Dryden.

Verdict For $450.

Milton, Dec. 10.—At the Assizes yesterday Allen Kemp, blacksmith of Oakville, was given a verdict for $450 against Harry Giddings, one-time champian athlete of Toronto University.

On June 16 Kemp was kicked on the leg by Giddings and his leg broken, causing contraction of the limb. Giddings alleged that Kemp called him insulting names and dared him to fight.

Grain on the Lakes.

Port Arthur, Dec. 10.—The insurance season for vessels expired at midnight Thursday night, but, though all rushes to get their lines cast off before that time, several have had to remain in port, and there will be departures for four or five days yet. Boats that got away during the night and morning carried 1,837,112 bushels.

United States' Bad Year.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The annual report of Mr. Cortelyou, the Secretary of U. S. Treasury, shows a reversal of conditions for the fiscal year 1908, as compared with the fiscal year for 1907. For the latter year the receipts were $84,236,586 in excess of the disbursements. For the fiscal year 1908 the disbursements were $58,070,201 in excess of the receipts, due to business depression and increased appropriations.

Fortunately, the report says, the available cash balance at the beginning of the fiscal year was $272,061,445.

Pope Resumes Audiences.

Rome, Dec. 10.—The Pope, appearing greatly restored in health, resumed his audiences yesterday. The Duchess of Norfolk was one of those received by his holiness. She presented to him 300 chalices, the gift of 10,000 Catholic women of Great Britain.

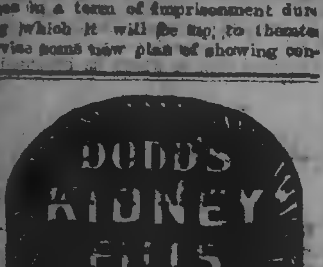
GIVING

The objection is sometimes made that men who are sceptical or critical regarding religious work, especially when mention is made rather frequently of money, are offensively so. Now the objection is not valid, at least not so valid as the criticism, and for this reason. People are not stingey about anything they really want to accomplish. Extravagance then becomes the watchword. Hence we must conclude that religious works are not in the hearts of the people. It is necessary, therefore, to make the hearts of the people fountains of religious feeling and enthusiasm, as in other things. Then we shall have the same generosity exemplified in religious work of various sorts that we now find to come quite natural with regard to [illegible] dress, the pleasures of the table, gifts to those we love, in works of educational value and charitable benevolence. Tobacco alone draws more from the pockets of the people than religion and spirituality draw from the same source. If religion, that is the love and worship of God and His Son, engaged the affection and attention of the people even in an insignificant degree, the amount now given would quadruple without a word. We must, therefore, get at the spring from which this fountain of giving, this desire to gratify arises. Get at the hearts of the people. Spiritualize them. Fill them with real, all-pervading enthusiasm and love, so that it becomes a natural and powerful desire. Who would doubt then the result? Who would then need to cry "Money! Money!"? It would pour into the coffers of the churches. We must conclude therefore, that those who cry aloud are beating the air. Love has rightly been said to be the sole author of all great deeds, and it must be so. Religion does not secure one-twentieth of its share, and it is because people do not seek it, nor care for it. Once that is secured the victory is won—but never till then, all orators and missionaries to the contrary notwithstanding.

TWO MEN IN HAMILTON.

Two Conservatives in the city of Hamilton peddled ballots just before the provincial election last June. The Attorney-General's department at Toronto prosecuted them and brought them to justice. They got their just dues in a term of imprisonment during which it will be up to them to devise some new plan of showing contempt for the good opinion and better morals of the public. The Dexter poll has furnished material for an even more determined action against the evil-doers. The department has wisely decided, however, to wait until it has discovered the real conspirators and culprits instead of punishing the weaklings who were the victims of the famous special and its cargo of whiskey. It is astonishing to most people that an act such as there transpired, should have been attempted. But it may be taken as the first of a period of suspended sentences, merciful views, reformatory legislation, etc., which amounts to just so much encouragement to some people to improve the darkling hour. It is well to be merciful, but not at the expense of justice, which soon brings its penalty. What we succeed in doing in individual instances we unconsciously succeed in undoing in the general impression left upon the underworld.



THE NEW SPIRITUALITY

In another column will be found an able review of the present crusade against the application of business methods to Christianity. There has long since been a rising tide of rebellion against the co-operative eating-house as an annex to the worship of God. Realism and idealism are opposites, not affinitive. We are on the eve of, if not in the midst of a return to the deeper spirituality of our forefathers. Statistics have proved their own undoing. The soul is not reached through the stomach. The haste to bring God within the grasp of the advertiser has failed. There is no possibility of a "boom" in heaven. "Love is the fulfilling of the law." It is quite evident that the revolt against sensationalism is effective. Who will deliver us from this body of death?

EDITORIAL NOTES

Santa Claus looked in for a bite on his way down. He got it. A dog bit him.

The gentlemen who engineered the "saw-off" of election petitions, Grit or Tory alike, are mighty unpopular in rural Ontario today. Political corruption cannot be lessened by covering it up.—Globe.

It is hardly likely that another general election will see a crop of saw-offs after the hammering received by the machine this month from all quarters.

The following incident did not take place in Canada;

An admiral fond of bridge and also interested in the church, got up a benevolent plan to have prominent bridge players contribute a part of their winnings to enlarge a church in Winchester, and was astonished to find the money declined with thanks.

"The prolonged sojourn of Richard Croker in New York is arousing much curiosity and a considerable show of ill-feeling. A banquet given to the ex-boss was attended by Attorney Jerome and a number of Judges. They were publicly and indignantly rebuked by Rev. Dr. Wise, a prominent divine, and this has let loose floods of pent-up denunciation. If Mr. Croker is feeling his way back into the management of Tammany he has already learned that his [illegible] scandalous record has not been forgotten."—Globe.

People who attend banquets as bosses must explain their reasons for so doing or be suspected of sharing in the spoils.

CURE FOR CANCER.

Doctor In London Is Having Wonderful Success With Vaccine.

A new development of the vaccine treatment for cancer, originated by Dr. Doyen of Paris is now being employed daily in serious cases at St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, London, Eng., with wonderful results in the alleviation of pain.

Dr. Doyen isolated a bacillus from cancer patients which he regarded as the true organism of the disease. From this he prepared a vaccine in which he hoped lay the cure for cancer. Distinguished investigators in London placed the vaccine under slow and elaborate tests. They have come regretfully to the conclusion that the microbes are not the real thing, and that the cause and cure of cancer are still to seek. But they have evolved an improved vaccine which promises a wide modification of the present palliative treatment in advanced cases.

Dr. Doyen's bacilli, according to the London investigators, may be described as the organisms of the outcrop of cancer, and not of cancer itself. Cancer implies a lowly organized tissue, which degenerates easily and offers little resistance to the growth of harmful organisms in its vicinity. Dr. Doyen described his bacilli as neoformans, or low growths. Unfortunately they grow as the result of cancer, and are not its cause.

The new vaccine is used at St. Mary's Hospital in advanced cases which do not admit of surgical operations. It allays pain, much as morphia might, and it soothes the inflamed tissue around the cancerous growth. It may in some cases prolong life for a little while, although there is no evidence on which this can be stated with certainty.

"It is a palliative, not a specific," remarked one of the investigators who have been hard at work on the new treatment. "It performs a useful purpose, and its use will certainly be extended. But let nobody imagine, that a cure for cancer has been found. The disease is still, also, the most baffling mystery of medical science."

A Case of Heredity.

Mr. H. B. Irving—"Irving the Second," he has been called—is undoubtedly one of our most promising actors. The eldest son of the late Sir Henry, he has inherited many of the natural gifts of his great father, and his production of "The Lyons Mail" in the west end recently aroused considerable interest, inasmuch as the double role this play entails upon him was one of his father's most notable successes. "H.B." finds an engrossing hobby in the study of the criminal classes, and, apart from his dramatic "hits," achieved considerable distinction with his book written in defence of much-abused Judge Jeffreys.

On one occasion, when Mr. Irving was playing in Ipswich, he visited a house in which Judge Jeffreys was said to have resided when holding the Assizes in that town. This house had now become a stationer's shop, where theatre tickets were disposed of, and when young Irving entered the assistant immediately recognized him. The actor-author-criminologist asked for information concerning Jeffreys' visit to Ipswich. "Well, sir," replied the assistant, looking at the booking-sheet of the theatre that was lying on the counter, "I am afraid I don't know the gentleman; but he hasn't booked any seats this week!"

In the Queen's Kennels.

No one who is privileged to see over the royal residence at Sandringham can fail to be struck with the kennels used for the Queen's pets. They are looked after by three servants, while once a month a veterinary surgeon from London inspects them.

The kennels are some distance from the house, yet, when in residence, the Queen visits them every morning, taking with her biscuits and bread for her favorites.

Her particular pets are wolfhounds and King Charles' spaniels, who often accompany their royal mistress on her walks; but all kinds of dogs are kept at the Sandringham kennels, some being considered the most beautiful in the world.

The Queen thoroughly enjoys the demonstrative marks of affection always accorded to her by her four-footed friends, who may or may not realize that the reward for them is a much-prized dainty.

Rebuking Lord Kesteven.

A few weeks ago, when Lord Kesteven was touring round inspecting small holdings to examine how the new act would work, he entered into conversation with a man he found smoking at the garden gate. They had talked for a few minutes when the wife came out of the cottage near, and exclaimed: "Don't go idling that way, while there is the hay to get in! And you," turning to Lord Kesteven, "go about your business, and let us get in the hay!" Lord Kesteven cycled off. Later on he was going over Lord Carrington's small holdings when the owner, in showing him round, came upon the same cottage where the angry wife lived. When she saw who her visitor had been, she apologized at once; but Lord Kesteven reassured her, and asked to know if the hay had been safely housed, in spite of the delay he had caused.

Cool Lord Rosslyn.

Perfect coolness is one of Lord Rosslyn's most notable characteristics. No reverse ever seems to disturb his stoical disposition. When a youth, and then Lord Loughborough, he once went on a trip to Norway, and, on arriving at Trondhiem, found that the King of Sweden and Norway was also in town. Accordingly, the young Briton immediately went up to the palace and asked to see the monarch. On learning that his Majesty was "out," Lord Loughborough calmly produced his visiting-card, and said: "Well, give him this, and tell him I shall be glad to see him at my hotel." But the best of the affair is that the good-natured king took the lad at his word, and did go round to the hotel, to the no little astonishment of everybody connected with the establishment.

TRAIN FOR BUSINESS

Most men train their brains and almost entirely neglect their bodies. They do not seem to realize that keenness of judgment and clearness of thought depend as much on the body as on the brain itself. Any man can prove this to his own satisfaction by attempting to decide a weighty business problem while suffering with an acute attack of indigestion or a violent spell of biliousness.

The amount of work that the brain can do depends much on the healthfulness of liver, bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices in tablet form. They act directly on liver, bowels, kidneys and skin—and enable these vital organs to rid the system of all impurities. Thus the blood will be kept pure and rich, the brain active, digestion sound, and life made pleasant.

"Fruit-a-tives" are now put up in two sizes—the new 25c box as well as the regular 50c size. If your dealer does not carry them, write Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

INDIAN STUDENTS HERE.

Youth and Girl Come to Toronto University From Burmah.

In Toronto University circles this year the most interesting freshman and freshette are Daniel Solomon and Miss Isaac, both of whom hail from Rangoon, Burmah, India. They are said to be the first students from India at any Canadian university, although Indian students have come as far as England previously for an education.

These dark-skinned students came to Toronto when term opened and have started at McMaster University, both taking the full first year's arts' course, and, although they have not as yet decided how long they will remain in Toronto, both are likely to go on for second year work next year.

Mr. Solomon and Miss Isaac came from far-away India with Miss Armstrong, who has been a missionary in Rangoon for several years.

Miss Armstrong and her father and mother are the Baptist missionaries for the Indian population of all Burmah, which numbers 750,000, but they do not work among the Burmans. Miss Armstrong's father is Rev. W. F. Armstrong, and her mother is known to hosts of people in Canada as Miss Maria Norris, founder of the Missionary Aid Society.

These Indian students whom Miss Armstrong has brought to Toronto are teachers in a Rangoon school in which 400 Indian boys and girls are getting an education which can qualify them for Government positions.

Both Mr. Solomon and Miss Isaac obtained their first-class certificate of the College of Preceptors, London, Eng., about a year ago. They passed this examination at Rangoon, after training in Norris College, an institution established in Rangoon by Miss Armstrong about three years ago for Indian students. After their course at McMaster Mr. Solomon and Miss Isaac will be qualified for positions in this college.

Both of these Indian students are hard, conscientious workers, which has already been indicated by the examinations they have passed.

Mr. Solomon dresses like men of this country or England, but Miss Isaac wears her Indian costume, including the saree.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Said Jury Could Walk.

Hamilton, Dec. 10.—Yesterday afternoon a deputation of grand jurors waited upon the statesmen of the Wentworth County Council and requested that the council should authorize the hiring of cabs to take the grand jurors to the asylum. The council turned down the request, though some of the councillors were willing to go to the extent of paying the jurors' car fare to the top of the mountain. The councillors refused to sanction the expense because they think the asylum is inspected by grand jurors more frequent than necessary.

Croziers Get Less.

Milton, Dec. 10.—Thomas W. Crozier of Toronto pleaded guilty yesterday on the charge of counterfeiting paper money, before Justice Teetzel, and was sentenced to seven years in Kingston penitentiary.

His son, Milton, also pleaded guilty and received a sentence of one year in the Central Prison.

Crozier, Sr.'s sentence is thus two years less than it was on the first conviction, which was quashed, and the son's term is reduced by 364 days.

Pretoria the Capital.

London, Dec. 10.—(C.A.P.)—There is every indication that Pretoria has been selected as the capital of South Africa. A municipal loan of $7,500,000 is to be issued and the Government has authorized $500,000 for a central railway station.

One Killed; One Injured.

Montreal, Dec. 10.—As a result of a scaffold breaking on which two men were repairing at the Montreal Gas Works yesterday, one man lost his life, while the other one is so seriously injured that he cannot recover.

Four Daughters.

Puxico, Mo., Dec. 10.—Four daughters were born yesterday to Prof. Reuben F. Jones, head of the local schools and a school commissioner of Stoddard County. One baby died, but the others bid fair to thrive.

Hops Bill Passed.

London, Dec. 10.—The House of Commons at 3.30 o'clock this morning passed the second reading of the Hops Bill.

The bill prohibits the use of hop substitutes in the manufacture of beer.

The second clause of the measure is regarded as strongly protective, especially against Germany.

War With Germany Sure.

Mexico, Dec. 10.—The following statement is made by Frederick F. C. Rhodes, cousin of Cecil Rhodes, who is in this city in the interest of the large mine owners:

"While in England I talked to some of the best versed men in public, navy and military affairs, and I found the opinion unanimous that war with Germany was inevitable."

Don't Want Winter Carnival.

Montreal, Dec. 10.—The Montreal Board of Trade, at a meeting yesterday, adopted a resolution against the holding of a winter carnival, on the ground that such a carnival would be a bad advertisement for Canada. The promoters of the carnival have already raised $10,000, and are going ahead with the undertaking.

Farmer Dies From Kick.

Guelph, Dec. 10.—On his farm in Pilkington Township, near Elora, Mr. Thomas Farmer, while harnessing up his horse, was kicked in the face by the animal and died two hours' later. The doctor stated that the injury caused a cerebral hemorrhage. Deceased was 83 years old. An aged widow alone survives.

Steals Money to Get Home.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 9.—Chief Chilton of Tillsonburg arrived here last night to take back Thos. Green, an English boy aged 15, who is charged with stealing $50 from his employer, Geo. Kilgour of Tillsonburg. The boy was arrested just after he had purchased a ticket to Liverpool, England. He says he succumbed to temptation by reason of his anxiety to spend Christmas with his parents.

May Be Executed Twice.

Trenton, N.J., Dec. 9.—Prosecutor W. J. Crossley, speaking of the proposed test by County Physician Scannel to see if life can be restored after electrocution, which test is to be made in the case of John Mantasanna, who is to go to the electric chair the week of Dec. 21, said that if the test should result in restoring Mantasanna to life the prisoner would have to be electrocuted over again.

Aged and Wealthy.

New York, Dec. 10.—Miss Mary Goodwin Pinkney is dead of pneumonia, at the Hotel Buckingham, at the age of 99 years. Miss Pinkney was credited with being one of the very wealthy women of the world, the value of her holdings in Manhattan real estate alone being estimated at $10,000,000.

United States Cabinet Changes.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The United States Senate last night confirmed the nominations of Luke E. Wright of Tennessee to be Secretary of War, Truman H. Newberry of Michigan to be Secretary of the Navy, and Hoffman Philip of New York to be Minister and resident consul-general to Abyssinia.

'Phone For G. T. System.

Ottawa, Dec. 10.—Morley Donaldson of the Grand Trunk Railway said yesterday that he would not be surprised if the company gradually introduced the telephone throughout their entire system, the telegraph being superseded by degrees.

Criminal Cases at Owen Sound.

Owen Sound, Dec. 9.—At a sitting of the grand jury of the general sessions of the peace yesterday afternoon true bills were returned against Robert Breckels, charged with perjury, and Robert Catis, accused of shooting with intent to do serious bodily harm.

Shot In the Dark.

Kenora, Dec. 9.—Gillroy, held for murder in the shooting and killing of Richard Denna, declares the shooting was done in the dark.

Hurrying the Irish Land Bill.

London, Dec. 10.—The House of Commons on Tuesday night passed the second reading of the Irish Land Bill.

During the course of the debate Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, announced that it was the Government's plan to push forward the bill as rapidly as possible at the next session.

Lost, With 25 Men.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 10.—There is little doubt that the steamer D. M. Clemson went down with all hands near Whitefish Point. Twenty-three hatch covers have been washed ashore and their description convinces the Provident Steamship Co. that they belong to the missing boat. The crew numbered 25.

B. C. Village Shaken.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 01.—A shock of earthquake caused great commotion in the Village of Skitgate on Nov. 30, according to news brought yesterday by steamer Celestial Empire. Two small Indian houses fell to the ground and the Indian residents greatly alarmed.

Called His Bluff.

Xerxes sent messengers to the Spartan king at Thermopylae, saying, "Go and tell those madmen to deliver up their arms." Leonidas replied, "Go and tell Xerxes to come and take them."

A Convict Island.

Women are barred from the island of Ferdinand de Norouha, belonging to Brazil. It is reserved for convicts.

French Red Tape.

There is nothing that binds like red tape. The story is told of a private in the French army who desired to buy and wear a special kind of shoe rather than the regulation article. He discovered that it was possible only after months of delay and after securing written permits from some seven bureaus or more.

The Great Toe.

The great toe is on the inside of the foot to act as a fulcrum in propelling the body.

Economy.

An English actor who died on the road was shipped in his coffin to London by his manager as "theatrical properties." This cost $4, whereas if he had gone as a corpse the cost would have been $60.

Greenland.

Greenland's population does not number 11,000.

Stoneless Acres.

In Manitoba you can turn a furrow many miles long and not encounter a stone as large as your fist. The earth for a distance down from three to five feet is a rich black loam, made by centuries and centuries of decaying vegetation.

Sardines.

Helped the Police.

Two young thieves who had robbed a shop front in Brussels were so hard pressed in the chase by the police and the shopkeeper that they lost their heads and fled right into a police station before recognizing it.

Eddystone.

The smallest inhabited island in the world is that on which the Eddystone lighthouse stands. At high water the lighthouse, whose diameter at the base is twenty-eight and three-quarter feet, completely covers it. It is inhabited by three persons.

Flint Knives.

The Mexican flint knives were made so sharp that they could be used for trimming hair.

Rolling Stones.

Real "rolling" stones are found in Australia. When several are placed on a smooth surface they roll together in a bunch owing to their containing magnetic ore.

Her Exercise.

"Dare I whisper it," writes one correspondent. "Though I am a married woman, with two bonnie bairns, when my worries and temper prove too much for me I shut myself up in my room and dance a wild Scotch reel. I always did it when I got in a temper as a child as a sort of vent to my feelings, and I do it still and probably shall continue to do so as long as I'm sufficiently energetic."

Certainly a Scotch reel ought to provide enough exercise to exorcise any demon of worry if lack of exercise is the cause of it.

A Bad Quarrel.

"Why don't you try to get him to straighten up?"

"He's his own worst enemy."

"Well?"

"It's pretty hard to patch up that kind of a quarrel."

CHAPPED HANDS

Frost-Bite, Cold Sores, Roughness & Redness Yield to Zam-Buk.

ARE your hands chapped, cracked, or sore? Have you "cold cracks" which open and bleed when the skin is drawn tight? Have you a cold sore, frost bite, chilblains, or a "raw" place which at times makes it agony for you to go about your household duties? If so, Zam-Buk will give you relief and will heal the frost-damaged skin. Anoint the sore places at night and if it is the hands—wear a pair of old gloves overnight. Zam-Buk's rich healing essences will sink into the wounds, end the smarting, and will quickly heal.

READ MRS. YELLEN'S EXPERIENCE!

Mrs. Yellen, of Portland, says:—"I consider it only my duty to tell you of the great benefit I have derived from Zam-Buk. My hands were so sore and cracked that it was agony to put them near water. When I tried to do so they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. I seemed quite unable to get relief from anything I put on them until I tried Zam-Buk, and the balm succeeded when all else had failed. It closed the big cracks, gave me ease, soothed the inflammation and in a very short time healed my hands completely. I would strongly recommend it to anyone suffering from chapped or cracked hands. It is a wonderful healer and should be in every home."

ZAM-BUK ON CANADIAN FARMS.

Every farm should have its box of Zam-Buk always kept handy. Writing from Ochre River (Man.), Mr. C. D. McArthur states:—"I cannot praise Zam-Buk too highly. It is the only thing that has done my hands any good. They crack and bleed in the cold weather, but Zam-Buk has soothed and healed them in fine style. I have a brother who suffers in the same way, and he also has found Zam-Buk of great value as a balm for cuts, burns, and skin injuries of all kinds so frequently sustained in farming. Zam-Buk is in our estimation without any equal."

FATHER AND DAUGHTER BOTH CURED.

Miss Hattie Bertrand, Galesburg, Ont., writes:—"Zam-Buk is the best balm we have ever used. Every year I am troubled with chapped hands and arms, and nothing ever seemed able to heal them until I tried Zam-Buk. It is surprising how quickly this balm has healed up the sores and cracks! My father has used it for several ailments and injuries, and thinks there is nothing to equal it."

Zam-Buk is Soothing and Smoothing.

WHAT ZAM-BUK CURES.

Zam-Buk is excellent for chaps, chilblains, cold-sores, sore faces and lips, chafings, rashes, winter eczema, piles, ulcers, festering sores, sore heads and backs, abscesses, pimples, ringworm, &c., cuts, burns, bruises, scalds, sprains. Used as an embrocation it cures rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, &c. Of all druggists and stores, or post free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Price 50 c. a box, 3 for $1.25. You are warned against the "just as good" preparations which are sometimes offered when Zam-Buk is asked for.

Making Traveling Safer.

Ottawa, Dec. 10.—The Railway Commission has issued an order providing for the daily inspection of electric bells at highway crossings. When they are found to be out of order a flagman must be stationed at the crossing till repairs are made.

Another order provides that freight cars attached to passenger trains must be provided with air brakes and wheels with steel tires. It is also provided that there must in future be a distance of seven feet allowed from the entre of a mail car to the cranes at stations on which mail bags are deposited. This is to prevent accidents to passengers in putting their heads out of a window.

Acquitted of Theft Charge.

St. Catharines, Dec. 10.—Arthur E. Bull, Beamsville, was acquitted on the first of five theft charges before Judge Carman in sessions yesterday. The crown refused to press the other four indictments, but he was held in bail to appear at the June session. A number of witnesses swore that complainant could not be believed on oath.

Going to Prince Rupert.

Chatham, Dec. 10.—H. C. Clements, formerly M.P., who lost in West Kent in the last election, and Geo. Heyward, a prominent citizen, will leave for Prince Rupert, B.C., after the holidays. Both men will take up a permanent residence in the western terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

INTERESTING BETHEL NEWS

Epworth League Elects Officers Basket Social to be Held.

Bethel, Emily, Dec. 10.—We are pleased to learn of the recovery of Miss Olive McElwain, who received some injuries when getting into a buggy at Bethel church on Sunday evening, Nov. 22nd.

Miss Mabel Rea, of Peterborough, was the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Evans Storey, a few days last week.

Mrs. John T. Switzer is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. F. Lang, near Lebanon, who has been very ill.

Miss Olive Switzer and Mr. Ira Switzer were the guests of Mr. Henry Nugents, Omemee, last Sunday.

A large number were present at the Epworth League last Thursday evening. The annual business meeting was held, at which the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President, Mr. Eugene Switzer.
Vice-President, Miss Olive Switzer.
Secretary, Mr. Frederick Reeds.
Assistant Secretary, Miss Eva Mills.
Treasurer, Miss Annie Doube.
Organist, Mrs. M. Ruth.
Convenors of Committees—
Prayer Meeting, Miss Ida Switzer.
Lookout, Miss Lillie Mills.
Floral, Miss Flossie Casey.
Sick and Relief, Miss Cora Switzer.
Social, Mr. William Casey.
Missionary and Temperance, Mr. Moses Ruth.
Forward Movement, Mr. Ira Switzer.

The basket social of the season will be held at Bethel on Thursday evening, Dec. 17th, under the auspices of the Epworth League. A good programme will be rendered by local and outside talent. Doors open at 6.30. Programme begins at 7 p.m. Everybody welcome. A cordial invitation is extended to ladies to come and bring baskets.

All ladies with baskets free. General admission 15 cents. Mr. William Casey, president. Mr. Layward Switzer, convenor of Social Committee.

A goodly number from the vicinity attended Mrs. Duncan Blaylock's sale. The sale was conducted by Auctioneer Gardiner, and the farmers report it one of the highest priced sales of the season. Among the valuables purchased Mr. Thomas Doube secured a fine brown pony.

The annual meeting of the patrons of East Emily Dairy Company was held last week. A large number were present and Secretary Mr. John Collins, gave a very favorable report of the business transacted during the season. Also Messrs. Cameron, Nixon and W. C. Switzer delivered splendid addresses on Dairy Business. Reeve J. R. Boate, presided in the chair, in the absence of the President, Mr. William Deyell.

NO FURTHER CASES OF SCARLET FEVER

No further cases of scarlet fever are reported from the city schools. Everything has been done to stamp out the outbreak and it is believed that it is now under control. School Inspector Mowat informed the Review that no new cases have been reported and that it would not be necessary to close any of the schools.

SEPARATE BUILDING SHOULD BE ERECTED ON JAIL PROPERTY

For the Accommodation of City's Poor and Aged—Recommendation of the Grand Jury in Court of Sessions

It is as follows;—

To His Honor Judge Weller:

We, the Grand Jury at the General Sessions of the County Court of the County of Peterborough, beg leave to report as follows;—

We have visited the County Gaol and were much pleased with the satisfactory conditions prevailing there, and particularly with the cleanliness throughout, for which every credit is due the officials in charge. We found 15 inmates, all male, in the building, of which number nine were vagrants and the remaining six committed for various offences.

The former were mostly elderly men, whose only offence is poverity, and in this connection your jury would respectfully recommend that some arrangement should be made between the city and the county whereby these aged people might be better taken care of in the County House of Refuge, or, if that is not possible, that a separate building be erected on the gaol property for the accommodation and comfort of these aged persons.

We have also visited the Collegiate Institute in the Central Park as well as the Normal School in the north end of the city. These schools are a credit to the city, nicely situated, and thoroughly equipped for the purpose for which they were built.

Your jury also inspected the hospitals and have to report that these, under capable and painstaking management, are institutions of which we may well feel proud. In them the surroundings are made bright and pleasant for any who find it necessary on account of illness to take advantage of the comforts therein provided.

Wishing you the compliments of the season, and that you may be spared to hold for many years the exalted position you now occupy. It is a matter of congratulation that the duties of Your Honor, as well as that of the Grand Jury, are so light at this season.

Yours respectfully,
JOS. MADILL,
Foreman

DIED SHORTLY AFTER BEING BROUGHT TO THE HOSPITAL

With shocking suddenness came the death of Mr. David Crowley, which occurred at St. Joseph's hospital last evening at half past eight. The deceased had been employed by the Cavendish Lumber Co. He was taken ill on Tuesday with appendicitis and had to be removed to his home in Ennismore. A doctor was called. The young man was removed to the hospital yesterday afternoon but he was in such a critical condition that an operation was not advisable. He passed away about half past eight.

The late Mr. Crowley was 21 years of age and was the son of Mr. Patrick Crowley of Ennismore. Besides his parents he leaves to mourn his loss, four brothers and three sisters.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at nine o'clock from the family residence, lot 4, con. 10, Ennismore, to St. Martin's church and thence to St. Peter's cemetery, Peterborough.

THE MINISTER OF EDUCATION MAY PAY VISIT TO HAVELOCK

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Dec. 10—The formal opening of Havelock's grand new school with its $4000 addition which has been built this year, will be held on December 22nd. in that building. The event will be one of the prominent moves in the advance of education in this lively railroad town. This town has now one of the prettiest and best equipped schools in the county and pupils are able to advance to their matriculation and second class certificates without leaving their homes. There are very few schools not supported by the county that can boast of such a thing and the board do not intend to let such a notable event pass without recognition.

It is quite likely that Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education will be present and deliver an address as well as Inspectors Brown and Lees, and Jas. Thompson, MPP, and John A. Sexsmith, MP.

The children will also commemorate the day by holding a concert in the opera house in the evening when an excellent programme will be given. The children are practising at present for the event which will consist of drills, songs, recitations, dialogues, etc.

POULTRY KEEPING; DOES IT PAY OR DOES IT NOT?

Subject Dealt With in Masterly Manner by Mrs. Colin Campbell of Windsor, at Meeting of Ennismore Woman's Farmers' Institute Yesterday

While Mr. Kidd was addressing the Farmers' Institute meeting at Ennismore Town Hall yesterday the ladies' branch of the Institute held a splendidly patronised meeting in the basement of the hall. The feature was a comprehensive and thoroughly practical address by Mrs. Colin Campbell, Windsor, on "Poultry Keeping; is it a Profitable or Losing Business?" Mrs. Campbell showed a wide knowledge of the subject with which she dealt and kept up the interest of her listeners during the entire address. She has apparently made a thorough study of her topic and at the conclusion of her remarks was given a hearty vote of thanks for her splendid address. Mrs. Daniel Crough, president of the Ennismore Institute, was in the chair.

At the commencement of her address Mrs. Campbell gave some valuable advice on the organization and handling of meetings and on the preparation of the programmes and general literature.

The speaker talked on a great many phases of the poultry business and at some length on all of the various points advanced. Among them were the site for a henhouse, housing poultry, the varieties of hens to keep and the care and feeding of hens for egg production. The hens that she considered best as general purpose fowl were any varieties of the following breeds;—Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte and Orphington.

CARE AND FEEDING FOR EGG PRODUCTION.

There should be a good supply of green food, meat food and grain, the latter both ground and whole. It is necessary to feed so as to induce birds to take exercise. In winter green food is supplied by feeding cabbage, turnips or other roots, pulped or whole and by feeding steamed cut clover, or clover leaves in the mash.

Meat food is supplied in the form of ground green bone such as beef heads, livers, etc. Animal meat and dried blood etc., are good foods, but in many cases are more expensive than the others mentioned. However, they are very useful during the hot weather when it is impossible to use fresh meat.

Partially decayed meat should not be used as it is not healthful. Wheat is undoubtedly the most popular grain food for fowl. Corn is rather large and conspicuous and when in the litter does not give enough exercise. Corn is heating and fattening and is therefore best adapted for winter use. Oats should be a first-class food for poultry but owing to the large percentage of hull are not relished by chickens and for this reason are also somewhat indigestible. Barley either whole or ground, is good. It, too, has rather too much hull, but otherwise is a satisfactory food. It is next to wheat in point of value. Shorts and bran are excellent foods to use in maintaining the health of the flocks. The general method of feeding is to give a mash of mixed ground grains moistened with water or milk in the morning, a little whole grain scattered in the straw covering on the floor at noon and all the whole grain the fowl will eat at night.

The objection to feeding the mash at night is that it becomes quickly digested and the bird has not sufficient food to last it during a long winter night. There should be a plentiful supply of good, pure water within easy reach at all times.

Other essentials are grit, which may be given in the shape of sharp gravel, broken delft in small pieces, oyster shell, etc. Lime should always be before the poultry in the form of either oyster shell, old mortar, broken or cut bones.

FEATHER EATING

Fowls which have acquired the habit of eating each other's feathers or picking at each other's flesh are suffering from a depraved or vitiated appetite and it indicates that they are in a diseased state. A food of too stimulating a nature such as oatmeal too much meat, hot mashes, and other forms or rich food, as well as the absence of green bone, are some of the causes of this habit. To cure it, the fowl should at once be supplied with green food and sulphur should be given them in their food. One tablespoonful of sulphur stirred in four quarts of soft feed, should be given once every 24 hours. Give them a place in the hen house where they can dust themselves at will, and on the bare places rub compound sulphur ointment or carbolized vaseline. Do not feed them more than they will eat quickly, leaving none, and avoid giving them hard grain, such as corn and wheat in the middle of the day.

EPSOM SALTS FOR FOWL

Many fowls are often mopey. They stand about in a drooping fashion and do not lay or progress. Another is that they are overfat. As an antidote to both conditions nothing is better than Epsom Salts. They clear out all impurities from the drooping ones and reduce the fat. One-half a teaspoonful to each fowl every other day for two weeks produces good results. Mix it in a little soft mixing food. Add the salts in proportion to the number of fowls.

POULTRY RAISING PROFITABLE.

Many farmers look upon poultry raising as an unprofitable undertaking the few chickens they keep being a small item of their business, but this is a great mistake. If the farmers and all poultry raisers were to keep accurate account of incomes and expenditures as a merchant and another man of business does, they would find that the sale of eggs and poultry would amount to a considerable sum at the end of the year.

BUY ANOTHER SNOW PLOUGH

Present One at Havelock of Little Service When Snow is Deep

Havelock, Dec. 10.—The regular meeting of the village Council was held on Monday in the Council Chamber, with Reeve Thompson and Councillors Campney, Knox, Wood and Phillips present. After the reading of former meeting's minutes Rev. Mr. Caplan addressed the Council, asking for a rebate in hall rent and the Council allowed him a refund of $5. A number of accounts were ordered to be paid.

A change of systems may be profitable, but it sometimes incurs some expenditure. The village started in 1905, to put their cement walks down by the frontage system and this year they changed to general tax system so that those who paid a frontage tax have to have their money refunded. They are Chas Armstrong, Wm Dineen, H. T. Andrews and Alex. Rose.

Moved by Councillors Wood and Knox, that by-law 239, the local option by-law, be published in the Standard for three successive weeks, commencing Dec. 10th.

Councillors Campney and Knox were appointed to buy another snow plough for the town, as the present one does not prove of much use when the snow gets deep.

LADIES TRUE BLUE LODGE

Another lodge will be added to the list of energetic Orange Societies. This time it is a Loyal True Blue Lodge for Ladies.

The aims of this Association is to unite the different churches and shelter the orphan children by providing and maintaining suitable orphanage homes, clothe, board and educate them, and also to rescue any that are being reared in other faiths other than than the Protestant, as were their parents and assist in every possible way the needy widow.

Besides the beautiful home and school house situated in a large park on the Bay of Quinte shores at Picton they are also paying for the support of many in other institutions. Such work should appeal to the support of every Protestant. Night of organization will be arranged later.—Com.

BILLS THAT ARE NOT GENUINE

Counterfeit Five Dollar Bills are in Circulation---Reported to Dominion Police

Montreal, Dec. 10 — Counterfeit notes of the Bank of Montreal, of the five dollar denomination are in circulation in the city. One of the bills was first detected at the Banque Provinciale where it was presented by a butcher who was unable to trace its source. On Monday another bill was spotted in the Bank of Ottawa, in the afternoon. It was immediately detected by the teller and a notification was sent to the Bank of Montreal. Another bill turned up yesterday at the Montreal Clearing House.

The counterfeit bills are skilfully engraved and the public would have difficulty in detecting them except that the numbering is in black whereas all genuine bills of the issue, namely January 2, 1904, are numbered in red. The alignment of the numbering on the counterfeit bills is also irregular. The figures showing the denomination of the counterfeits appear rather bulky while the vignettes of Sir Edward Clouston and Sir George Drummond are somewhat off. The crudest part of the bill is the back, where the coloring is defective. The quality of the paper is also inferior to that of the genuine bill, but, on the whole, the defects are not likely to be detected by the casual observer.

It is believed that there are a large number of the counterfeit issue in circulation and the matter has been reported to the Dominion police at Ottawa.

The steamer Wahcondah left Port Arthur on Monday with 200,000 bushels of grain for Hamilton.

HORSES WENT THROUGH THE TRESTLE WORK

On the Tracks---One of R. Hicks & Co. Teams Had an Exciting Run

A team belonging to the R. Hicks & Co made an exciting run yesterday evening about six o'clock. The team had been delivering a load of coal and while the driver was calling at a house to collect a bill, the animals became frightened and started up Aylmer street. They ran as far as Murray street where they turned and went towards their stable, but instead of stopping they went right on to Stewart street and then around McDonnel to Reid streets to the G.T.R. tracks. Here the runaway occurred. While attempting to cross the trestle work both horses went down and were unable to get up. Word was sent to the G.T.R. station and all trains were held while a gang of men with planks worked for an hour and a half in an endeavor to get the animals up.

Fortunately neither of the horses had any bones broken and the damage done was very slight.

WILL PROVIDE BETTER LIGHT

Fire, Water and Light Committee Recommend Several New Ones---Meeting Last Night.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee took a drive around the city last night to see what could be done towards supplying better light at several points from whence complaints had come. They were out about half an hour and came back and passed the following motion;—

Moved by Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Buller that the following lights be recommended;—An incandescent lamp on Charles street; two incandescent lamps at the corner of George and Smith streets; two incandescent lamps on Bonaccord street; two incandescent lamps on Walnut street and to move the lamp on Park street opposite Elm street a little north and put it on a long arm the lamp to be placed as directed by the chairman of the committee.

The committee also took up a number of accounts and recommended them to be paid.

Several other small matters were also dealt with.

PRISONER NOT GUILTY

Douro Young Man Was Charged With Stealing Thirteen Dollars

A resident of Douro was charged at the police court this morning with feloniously stealing thirteen dollars from an old man, a resident of the same township, on Saturday, November the 7th. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution and Mr G. N. Gordon appeared for the prisoner, who was arrested last Saturday and remanded until today. He pleaded not guilty, and elected to be tried summarily.

After hearing the evidence, His Worship said that it was of a contradictory character and that he could not make a conviction.

The complainant said that he lived in Douro. He had known the prisoner for many years. He met him in Peterborough on Saturday, the 7th of November at the Commercial house. He was afterwards talking to his sister in the American house. The prisoner pulled him into the bar where he said to him, "You are pulling out that money too often. You had better give it to me."

The witness told him that he would not give it to him whereupon the prisoner replied, "I suppose you would not trust me." Complainant said that he would trust him with that and more. He then handed the prisoner the thirteen dollars. The complainant had never got it back.

He again saw him at the American house last Saturday. He asked him for the money and he denied that he was given any.

Complainant's sister said that she saw the prisoner at the American house on the Saturday. She saw him take hold of her brother to take him into the barroom. He did not go but remained with witness. He gave her a dollar. That was all the money she saw. Later her brother, the prisoner and another man standing in the hall. She heard someone say thirteen but it was not the prisoner.

A brother of the prisoner in answer to a question said that he came to the police station to try and have the matter settled without bringing it into court. But his brother said that he wanted the case to come on. He did not get the money.

The complainant recalled, said that there was no third man as his sister had stated. It was the prisoner who said thirteen.

The prisoner denied getting any money from the complainant on the 7th of November. He did not take him by the arm and invite him to the bar. Last Saturday they met again. Complainant asked him about the thirteen dollars but he did not know anything about it. He denied witness' evidence completely. He said that he was neither very sober nor very drunk.

Mr. Sam Long, of the American house said that he did not pay for his supper. He said that he had no money and said that he would pay for it the next time.

FAMOUS PARTELLO STOCK COMPANY

Opend a Week's Engagement at the Grand Monday Night

With an all star cast, the Partello Stock Company, which a year ago did an S.R.O. business at the Grand, is to be with us again for one week, commencing next Monday night, presenting as their opening play, that beautiful four act comedy-drama, entitled "The College Girl." The company this season is headed by that clever little comedienne, Miss Alice Kennedy, who has become quite a favorite among the theatre-goers of Peterborough and vicinity and her support, judging from reports from other cities where the company has appeared, is far above that of last season.

The company's repertoire this season include the following plays;—"A Yankee Abroad" "The Postmaster's Daughter," "Thelma," "Cumberland 61," "Tempest and Sunshine," "A Yankee Girl," "The College Girl," "Lena Rivera," "The Girl of Eagle Ranch," that much talked of play, "A Jealous Wife," "A Daughter of the People," "Sisters," "Under Western Skies" "When the Harvest Days are Over."

High class vaudeville will be introduced between the acts, which is direct from the Keith-Proctor circuit, the best possible to be obtained. A car load of special scenery and electrical effects is carried and each and every play will receive a complete scenic production. Ladies' 15 cent [illegible] evening only limited to 200. Seats on sale at the box office Friday morning at ten o'clock.

MEETING AT THE S. A. BARRACKS

Last Evening---Many of the Old Comrades Resdonded to Invitation

The soldiers' meeting night at the Salvation Army barracks last night, was largely attended. A special invitation had been sent out to those who had once been members of the Army but who had lately wandered away from God and the Army. It was for the purpose of meeting those comrades who had severed their relations with the Army that this meeting was specially convened.

The result was that there were many of the old members present last night. Staff Captain Walton conducted the service and a very profitable time was spent.

NOMINATION.

Monday, Dec. 28th, is nomination day. The nominations for Mayor, Water Commissioner and Board of Education will take place at ten o'clock at the City Council Chamber. The nomination of aldermen will take place at the same place at twelve o'clock on the same day. The retiring Water Commissioner this year is Mr. T. F. Matthews. The terms of four members of the Board of Education expire at the close of the year. The retiring members are Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, M. A. Morrison, Robert Fair and W. S. Robinson.

THREE BY-LAWS.

Polling day is Monday, January 4th. Three money by-laws will also be submitted to the ratepayers on that day. One is for $49,000 to build a new bridge over the river at Smith street, another for $21,500 to pay for the filling in of the water front and for street extensions, and one for $30,000 to purchase the Driving Park for exhibition and park purposes. The loans in each case are repayable by twenty-year debentures bearing interest at 4 1-2 per cent. A majority vote of the ratepayers is needed to carry the by-laws.

SPORTING NEWS

CURLERS WILL HOLD BIG BONSPIEL ON JAN. 18TH

The matter that the local curlers are most enthusiastic about at the present time is the big bonspiel which will be held here on January 18th. A big competition of outside clubs and the locals is planned and the bonspiel will, it is expected, be the biggest affair of its kind ever held in the city. The new rink is an ideal one for the fixture and the local club is justified in being proud of its new curling home.

The proposition of holding the bonspiel is a large one but the curlers are enthusiastically in favor of it. At a meeting of the skips last night it was definitely decided that the bonspiel be held.

PETERBORO LIKELY TO HAVE TWO TEAMS IN O. H. A.

So Peterborough is to have some hockey after all. By some hockey, is meant, without reflections on the local leagues, that Peterborough will be represented in the OHA., probably by two sevens, a junior and an intermediate one.

The meeting will be held at the Oriental hotel tomorrow night.

"What are the prospects," the Review asked a hockey enthusiast of this city today.

"The prospects are excellent," he replied, "for both teams and when things get going the local club should be able to put two likely aggregations in the series."

Things are assuming a more normal aspect when the intention of having two teams in the OHA. is expressed. There would be a big blank in sporting circles here if Peterborough had no OHA team at all. In past years hockey has been Peterborough's forte in the sporting world and for a while this winter it looked as though there would be nothing doing locally in the way of OHA. hockey.

HURTUBISE TO MEET HASSAN

The Belleville Intelligencer says:—Owing to Young "Hachenschmidt having taken an engagement for all next week at the Theatre Royal, Montreal, Mr. W. B. Naylor, has engaged Gene Hurtubise, of Peterborough, the Canadian champion, to wrestle Hassan Abdallah, at the opera house on Monday next.

There will be a great many of Hurtubise's backers from Peterborough here to witness the match, and therefore Hurtubise will put up a better fight than Hachenschmidt, as Hurtubise is champion of Canada.

The men will also be equally matched in point of weight, which is most important in a match of this kind.

The lights on Bar Point in the Detroit river, have been re-lighted by the Lake Carriers' Association.

SPORTING TALK

Upon his return from England J. Howard Crocker, the manager of the Canadian Olympic team, made many interesting statements, of which his comment on Marathon running was most closely watched. Mr. Crocker pointed out that short men with a short stride were the best Marathon runners, and since this the American press have taken the matter up. The Detroit News is the latest to remark on this peculiarity as follows:

Dorando, the plucky little Italian, who re-ran the Marathon race with Johnny Hayes at Madison Square Gardens Wednesday night, has an average stride of four feet; Hayes covers an average of five feet six inches with every step in the race; Melvin Sheppard, the world's middle-distance runner, strides all of eight feet when at top speed. The Marathon race is 26 miles and 385 yards, or reduced to feet for purposes of computation, just 138,435 feet. If the race were a question of stride and not endurance, Sheppard would win it easily, with Hayes second and Dorando third. Estimated by the length of Sheppard's stride or the distance; Hayes' five feet six inches stride would enable him to run the race in 25,070 bounds, while Dorando would have to take 34,608 strides, or nearly twice as many as Sheppard.

RINKS WILL BE GIVEN LATER

The rinks of the Peterborough Curling Club were selected at a meeting last night. Some changes will be made, however, and the Review is not publishing today the rinks selected. They will be published shortly however, when a thorough revision of the list in the hands of the secretary, Mr. J. H. Ferguson, has been made.

The district cup skip selected were Messrs. R. Hicks and T. F. Matthews, and the Tankard Cup skips, Messrs. R. Neill and D. Davidson.

GOOD GAMES AT P. B. C. TOURNEY

Bruce Hutchinson's team surprised the bowling fraternity last night in their game against the Lock Works and the latter were given quite a scare when the Hams tied them in the first contest and then took the second game by a very comfortable margin. With any luck they would have captured two of the three games.

It is a very unusual occurrence to see two teams tied in a match and it was only through a lucky combination of circumstances that the Lock Works managed to find themselves so fortunate as to break even with their opponents in the first game, Hay being fortunate enough to put a ball off the alley on a spare in his eighth frame, while on the last he left up the one pin that would have won the game, getting only nine on a spare with a perfect ball. On the roll off the Lock Works won.

In the second game it was the Hams all the way, but in the final contest things were completely reversed, the Lock Works winning out by a majority of ninety-nine pins.

This game was characterized by the best bowling of the evening, LePlant and Lacheur, both putting up big scores. Lacheur in a sensational finish, wound up with five straight strikes, though his team mate by reason of an earlier start topped his score with the best single of the game.

The scores follow:

LOCK WORKS.

Westbrook	114	113	132—359
LePlant	145	141	185—471
Lacheur	114	120	174—4[illegible]

CURLING

The Toronto Telegram says;—This promises to be one of the busiest curling seasons in the history of the game in Canada. In addition to the regular features, such as the Tankard, district cups, Winnipeg bonspiel, etc., the bonspiels are springing up all over the country like mushrooms. Kingston will hold one, so will Lindsay and Peterborough, and Fergus and Owen Sound, and a bunch of other places will to be heard from. Four husky Scotchmen, with the necessary time and money, could pretty nearly start on January 1st and not miss a day till spring, curling in bonspiels all the time.

WRESTLING

Paris, Dec. 9—After a struggle of nearly two hours Yvan Padounby, the Graeco Roman champion of the world refused to continue wrestling with Grigori Kascheff, on the pretext that he had secured two falls which were not allowed him by the referee. The latter called Padounby to time and gave the bout to Kascheff.

Gotch declares himself disgusted with the attitude of Hackenschmidt. The committee of journalists fixed to arrange all the details, have refused to act and Gotch says they are favoring Hack by so doing. Gotch emphatically states that he will not wrestle the Russian Lion in England.

AT MONTREAL.

Montreal, Dec. 9.—Mort Henderson, the Chicago wrestler, has been doing some good work this season. He wrestled Samson, of Buffalo, last week in Detroit, and won easily in 9 minutes and 11 minutes, Graeco-Roman style. He is a big fellow weighing 212 pounds, and standing over 6 feet tall. He is considered "the best Graeco-Roman wrestler in the west, an has beaten Rooney, Orddmann, Bob Maingoff, Fritz Mohl, Turner, Walter White, and only recently won a handicap match with Tom Jenkins without losing a fall. On Friday he will meet Raoul de Rouen at Sohmer Park and hopes to win. This is his first trip East and he expects to do just as well as the other man from the west did, Westergarde. Henderson wrestles in Rochester on his way here and is said to be in splendid condition. Jim Parr, the veteran English wrestler, considers Henderson the best built man in America. He is anxious to win his first match here, as he intends to stay in the east five or six weeks.

PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

QUICK WIT SAVED HIM.

In the "Memories" of M. Claude, chief of police during the reign of Napoleon III., there is much that is fascinating to lovers of detective stories. One of M. Claude's experiences was that in which he was outwitted by a clever criminal who saw in the police chief's resemblance to Beranger when the poet was at the height of his popularity a means of escape from capture. The criminal had returned to Paris and was living as a rich student in the Latin quarter, then in the height of its bohemian splendor.

Claude thought to make an easy capture of his man by attending a certain famous ballroom at the hour when dancing was at its height. He tells the story:

"I had no difficulty in discovering him seated among a swarm of pretty girls and bewitching danseuses.

"Convinced there were but two ways of getting the better of a cunning enemy—surprise and audacity—I walked straight up to where my rascal was seated. I walked slowly, with steady steps, my eyes on the eyes of my man. He was a dark skinned, handsome fellow, with a face as brazen as it was cynical. I saw by an imperceptible sign that he recognized me. He turned pale—he was mine!

"I was almost near enough to capture him when I saw him bend to the ear of one of his companions. Instantly all the girls surrounded me and stood in a feverish, excited, ardent phalanx before me. They formed an impenetrable barrier, behind which my rascal escaped, while the women pressed eagerly upon me, crying out:

"'Beranger! It is Beranger!'

"The magic name presented upon the youthful spirits there the effect of an electric spark. All the dancers of the establishment stopped dancing and surrounded me with acclamations. The students and young girls rushed up to me, some bearing bouquets, others glass in hand. I was literally covered with flowers, while the whole place rang with shouts, a hundred times repeated, of 'Vive Beranger! Vive Beranger!'

"I was aghast, and yet I understood the trick. On the point of being collared by me, the man I had marked down had recourse to this shrewd game, which must have succeeded even better than he expected. I certainly had some points of resemblance to the illustrious song maker or the whole world of students and grisettes in the Latin Quarter would not have fallen so readily into his trap. I was as bald as the poet at that time, and at all times I have had a certain good natured, sympathetic benevolence in my appearance such as the portraits of Beranger show to this day.

"Well, if the youth of Paris countersigned the intentional error of my clever scamp I owed it to my resemblance to the poet. Though I was tricked, I was well tricked. It was not for me to own to these giddypates that I was not Beranger, but Claude, the policeman, the agent of all the prosecutors, judges and lawyers who under the restoration had done so much harm to their idol. I escaped from the ovation, which was becoming delirious under an avalanche of flowers."

The Wonderful Aphis.

The aphis is in one way the most startling of all forms of insect life, for, although the females can and do lay eggs, its usual method of increase is by a sort of budding process, the young growing on the bodies of the parent exactly as brussels sprouts grow out of the stalks of the plant. The old produce young at the rate of twenty-five a day, and as the young are at once mature each can produce its twenty-five on the following day. It positively frightens one to work this multiplication out to a conclusion, for it means this: Supposing that the aphide could increase and multiply without interference, the twenty-fifth generation would be a number too long to quote here. Put down a 1 and follow it with 28 naughts and you will be within a few millions of it.

Beneath Him.

"These chefs!" said one New York multimillionaire to another. "Mine, you know, draws a thousand a month. He used to be at the Cafe Royal in Paris. But his independence! One night I gave, just to show off, a dinner of 200 covers. The afternoon of the dinner, I found him motoring in the park in a taxicab with two French dancing girls. Of course I hailed him and took him to task. 'Oh,' said he, 'a dinner of that sort I always leave to my assistants. With such masses of food it is impossible to introduce delicate, subtle or original cooking. Now, little girls, shall we drive on?'"—Argonaut.

Adding to His Sufferings.

The Doctor—I expected to go out of town next Saturday, as usual, to spend Sunday with my family in the country, but professional duties forbid. The fates are against me. The Professor—The fates are to blame, are they? Well, it's natural for a week ender to come to a lame conclusion.

Both Agreed.

"Young man, I was told today that you were the worst boy in the neighborhood."

"Gee! If I was a man and any one talked that way about my little boy some one would get licked."

DAIRYING INDUSTRY CAN BE MADE MORE PROFITABLE

The series of meetings under the auspices of the Peterborough Cheese Board have been most successful. In all fourteen meetings have been held and the attendance has ranged from 50 to 150. Addresses have been given by Messrs. Whitley and Barr, of Ottawa and have been most interesting and profitable.

Mr. Barr's address has been as follows:

The quality of our cheese and butter depends very largely upon the quality of the milk and cream delivered by the patrons.

Defects in the milk or cream may be covered up to some extent by a skilful maker, but sooner or later they will develop and injure the quality of the goods.

Patrons should be deeply interested in the quality of our dairy products for several reasons.

Poor cheese or butter means less consumption, less consumption means lower prices. Fine cheese and butter means increased consumption, and nearly always higher prices and larger profits to the producers.

Impure water supply at the factories; unsanitary conditions in and around the factory, and poorly constructed curing rooms, will injure or spoil the quality of our cheese.

I will only discuss two of the points affecting the quality of our cheese. The care of the milk at the farm and cool curing rooms. Cool curing of cheese simply means keeping the cheese in a room where the temperature of the room is controlled by the use of ice. A temperature of 58 or 60 degrees giving the best results.

Will it pay to build a cool curing room?

If I were to ask a private owner of a cheese factory this question, he would probably say: "No, it would not pay him," and he would be stating a fact. But if I asked the patrons if it would pay them to have such a room, their answer would be: "Yes," if they have given the subject careful consideration. In a cool curing room the cheese do not lose as much weight in curing as in an ordinary room. This saving in weight goes directly into the pockets of the milk producers. What will this amount to in one season in a factory making 100 tons of cheese? At the Government cool curing rooms during the time of their operation, the average saving in shrinkage was 1.34 per cent.

If a cheese factory making 100 tons of cheese would make the same saving in weight, it would equal 2,680 lbs. of cheese, which, at 12 cts. per lb. would mean an increase return to the patrons in one season of $321.60. Some claim even a greater saving than this. A patron of one of the factories in the Belleville district made the statement at a meeting in Belleville last year that the patrons of his factory estimated they saved $500 by having a cool curing room in 1907.

In any case the saving in shrinkage would pay for a cool curing room in three years.

This is not the only advantage, the quality of the cheese would be better both in flavour and texture, giving the factory a better reputation and in some cases higher prices for the cheese.

The foundation of successful and profitable dairying is, pure, clean milk. Pure, because the butter fat is the most valuable constituent, and its removal changes the character of the product manufactured.

Clean, because cleanliness affects the flavour of both the milk itself and the product manufactured from it. Healthy cows fed on wholesome food will give good flavoured milk.

To keep the milk properly after being drawn from the cow, two things are necessary. Keep all foreign matter out of the milk, and keep the temperature low, to prevent the growth of bacteria.

Have clean stables; clean cows, clean milkers, bright tin milk utensils, do not expose the milk to impurities in the atmosphere. Two methods are generally used to lower the temperature, aeration, and the use of cold water or ice. Aerating is done by either dipping the milk with a dipper, or by running it over or through some style of aerator.

Experiments conducted by the Dairy Division, Ottawa, during the past season, demonstrated that exposing the milk to the atmosphere by dipping, or running over aerators was not a reliable or safe practice, 38 per cent of the curds from milk so treated at one farm, and 61 per cent. at another farm were gassy, and not clean in flavour. The places where the aerating was done, we considered good; much better than hundreds of places throughout the country where patrons are keeping their milk. Milk cooled without aeration in the same places only gave 6 1-2 per cent. of the curds gassy, and these so slightly gassy that there were no bad flavours on them.

The milk which gave such good results was strained directly into the milk cans, sitting in a tub of cold water, it received no aeration whatever, and the covers were put on the cans as soon as milking was finished, the cans remaining in the water all night. Milk so treated arrived at the factory the following morning in excellent and uniform condition every day during the hotest weather in July and August last. This is the chief advantage of cooling milk in this manner, but it has also this to recommend it, practically no time was required to take care of it, when we arranged the tubs so that the water used to cool the milk, overflowed from the tub into the watering trough, when enough water was pumped to water the cows the milk was cooled quite enough. When we carried the water from the well to cool the milk, we found about 200 lbs would cool the milk from 9 cows. From the good results obtained by treating the milk in such a simple and inexpensive way, we trust every cheese factory patron will make an honest effort to so arrange things, that in 1909 all the milk for cheese factories will be cooled without dipping or exposing it to the air in any way, and the covers put on the cans as soon as possible after milking, by so doing we believe practically all bad flavours in the cheese will be done away with, our cheese makers will have shorter hours and not only make finer cheese, but will make more cheese per 100 lbs. of milk.

The Ghost of Lochrain Castle

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson—Author of "The Princess Passes," "The Lightning Conductor," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON

Lady Ardcliffe had finally yielded reluctantly to Trowbridge's arguments, but she had not told him how she and the Countess Radepolskoi had both been talking in the hall of the hotel the evening before against Hilary Vane and Lady Lambart.

Lady Ardcliffe had said, what she had already said to Elspeth Dean, that the two were in dreadful money difficulties, and that, unless one or both of them could make a rich marriage (as they were striving heart and brain to do), she did not see at all what would become of them.

The Countess had added that she would not be in the least surprised if the mother and daughter descended to actual theft to relieve them in their desperation, as already they must have pawned all their own jewelry which was worth pawning She would not trust Hilary Vane alone in the room with hers, she had continued; and though she had laughed and pretended to be half in jest, naturally everybody who had heard the speech remembered it after the robbery. Lady Lambart and Hilary, congratulating themselves on having escaped a terrible humiliation, little dreamed how their names were being taken in vain in the hotel; and their defenders, Trowbridge and Elspeth Dean, were as ignorant of the talk as the subjects of it; as ignorant as John Kenrith and Captain Oxford, who were known to be friends of the unfortunate pair.

Those who had heard Lady Ardcliffe's words, and especially the Countess Radepolskoi's, the night before the robbery, told all their acquaintances who had not heard; and these persons rapidly passed the story on to others, so that the whole house was buzzing with the hideous gossip which Elspeth Dean, Trowbridge and Mr. McGowan flattered themselves had been killed.

Naturally some of her most intimate friends had lost no time in reminding Lady Ardcliffe of last night's conversation, and all were bitterly disappointed as well as surprised at the Countess Radepolskoi's sudden flitting. A select party had been discussing the situation in Lady Ardcliffe's sitting room when Lady Lambart arrived, and not a woman there but was conscious of a quickening of the pulse when the mother of Hilary Vane appeared at such a dramatic moment.

CHAPTER XVIII.

"I have been to condole with Countess Radepolskoi too," said Lady Lambart, "but I find that she has gone away. Doesn't that seem very sudden?"

"Oh, it is. Even Mr. McGowan, the manager, didn't know she was going. I asked him, and he told me so," said one of the ladies who had been most bitter against Lady Lambart and her daughter." She was unable to resist the temptation to tell something which perhaps the others did not yet know. "And really, it's very odd; no one saw her leave the house."

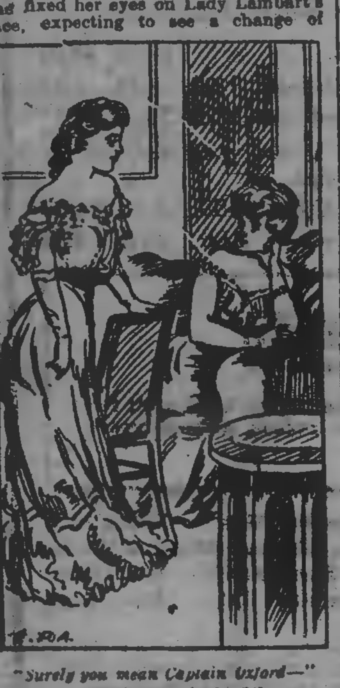
"No doubt she had her own reasons for wishing to get away so secretly," said Lady Lambart, with a veiled sneer. Had she but known how these half dozen women were regarding her, even her proud spirit would scarcely have ventured a sneer at the absent enemy.

Lady Ardcliffe, who had lately made common cause with the once despised "foreigner," against Lady Hilary Vane, flushed with anger. "No doubt she had her reasons for not letting some of us know the meaning of her actions," she retorted, in defence of her absent friend. "I shouldn't be surprised, myself, if she hadn't left the hotel after all."

"What do you mean?" asked Lady Lambart.

"I mean that there may be those under this roof who will be watching. Why shouldn't the Countess be her own detective?"

As Lady Ardcliffe spoke these words she fixed her eyes on Lady Lambart's face, expecting to see a change of color come under her look. Other eyes also were fastened eagerly upon the handsome features; and the six self-constituted judges decided that the woman was too hard and shameless even for a blush.



"Surely you mean Captain Oxford—"

Lady Lambart shrugged her shoulders. "So you and the Countess suspect some one in the hotel, do you? How exciting!"

Dead silence answered, and Lady Lambart began to feel that the silence was electrical, though she did not understand why.

"Really, it never rains but it pours excitements," she went on, when nobody answered. "There was the motor car accident yesterday; and now this dreadful robbery; and my daughter's engagement, which I suppose will cause a little flutter, as Mr. Trowbridge is so popular—"

"Mr. Trowbridge!" exclaimed Lady Ardcliffe. "Surely you mean Captain Oxford—"

"But that is ridiculous," said Lady Lambart. "There has never been the slightest chance for Captain Oxford with my daughter."

"You may not know her heart as well as you think," replied the elder woman. "Girls don't tell their mothers everything."

"I am at least in the confidence of my daughter far enough to know that Mr. Trowbridge has proposed not once, but several times, and this morning has been accepted."

For a moment Lady Ardcliffe felt that she must faint, but, foolish woman as she was, she had enough pride to save her from becoming ridiculous in the eyes of her visitors. With a supreme effort she rallied all her forces, trying to think that her enemy had told an untruth; yet, in spite of her passionate wish not to believe, there was something in Lady Lambart's tone that carried conviction. She guessed that Trowbridge's soft words to her in the early morning had been spoken with an object. He was determined to save Lady Hilary at any price, and he had meant to keep his engagement secret for a day or two. Now his object had been thwarted by the girl's own mother.

All the malice and spite in this middle-aged woman who loved a young man seethed within her, seeming to pour venom through her blood. She longed for some inspiration to show her how best to punish Trowbridge for the trick he had played. Her foolish love for him had turned to hate, and she would have liked to strike him a stinging blow.

The easiest way to strike, and the way perhaps to deal the hardest blow, was to ruin Hilary Vane; but it would be difficult to work without her lost ally. The Countess had said this morning, before Trowbridge had come and separated them: "I have absolute proof against the girl by which I can denounce her when she comes downstairs. I won't tell you what it is, for if I did you wouldn't be surprised; and it's better that you should be surprised. I'm not at liberty either to tell you why I am so certain about this proof; but I am certain; and you'll soon see that I was not boasting."

So Lady Ardcliffe had waited, expecting something sensational; and the Countess had vanished; and she herself had been tricked. But if it were not in her power at the moment to have the girl she hated arrested, she would at least so damage her reputation that Trowbridge, no matter how much in love, would hardly dare to face the world with Hilary Vane as his wife.

"Mr. Trowbridge must have been accepted this morning; indeed, I don't wonder that Lady Hilary said 'Yes,'" sneered Lady Ardcliffe, with trembling lips. "But I venture to prophesy that the engagement will be dissolved before night—and by him."

Lady Lambart, who had sat down, rose abruptly, looking very stately and handsome. "Are you mad?" she exclaimed.

"Not at all—though I've had enough to make me so. It is you who are mad to come here and talk as you have done—after last night's work."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that it was your daughter—aided and goaded on by you, probably—who stole Countess Radepolskoi's jewels and mine."

Lady Lambart, on hearing Lady Ardcliffe's astounding accusation of Lady Hilary, though marble pale, burst into laughter. "After all, you are mad!" she cried. And then, turning to the half dozen women sitting in a silent group, she said "What ought I to do? Send for the manager of the hotel, or—the doctor?"

"Be thankful if I do not send for the police and have your daughter arrested," shrieked Lady Ardcliffe. "There are proofs enough that it was she who took the jewels from us both, and, whatever happens, I intend to get mine back. They shan't be sold to pay your debts."

"Ring the bell, some one, and let us send for the doctor," said Lady Lambart. "This woman has completely lost her senses."

"I think," said one of the others, "that we had better not ring. It is best for everyone concerned that we keep this among ourselves. You may as well know, Lady Lambart, that the Countess also suspected Lady Hilary, though on what grounds, of course, none of us can tell you. She seemed to be certain, however; and so, you see, whether dear Lady Ardcliffe is right or wrong, she isn't in the least mad."

"What a monstrous and horrible accusation!" ejaculated Lady Lambart. "It could only have entered the head of a jealous woman. We all know '[illegible] hath no fury like a woman scorned'—especially an elderly woman scorned for a young girl. Both these women have been madly jealous of my poor, innocent child. This is a plot against her. I understand now the mystery of the Countess Radepolskoi's sudden flitting. Mr. McGowan, the manager, has doubtless heard of this disgraceful scheme, and has simply turned her out. I shall see him, and then, Lady Ardcliffe, I warn you that you had better make your preparations to go also."

It was now Lady Ardcliffe's turn to laugh, which she did, shrilly and hatefully. "Miserable fool!" she cried. "don't you know that you and your daughter are walking on the edge of a precipice? Perhaps at this very moment a detective has discovered the proofs which will send your daughter to prison."

"It may be, Lady Lambart, that she is a kleptomaniac," said one of the ladies, who was neither rich nor important, and who had been snubbed on an unforgettable occasion by the proud Countess of Lambart.

The persecuted woman did not deign to answer, but, finding that she was in danger of falling into vulgar recrimination, without another word she swept out of the room. Thence she went straight to her own, where she stood for a moment or two behind the hastily locked door, thinking deeply.

She remembered the Countess's earring caught in a frill of Hilary's dress, for, though she had not been in her daughter's room at the time of the odd discovery, she had heard the conversation between Elspeth and Hilary. Yes, she thought, it was certain that there was a plot—an incredibly wicked plot—hatched by two jealous, unscrupulous women. But—would it be easy to prove it a plot? Had they not played their game perhaps more cleverly than she yet knew? In spite of her furious indignation against Lady Ardcliffe, the Countess Radepolskoi and all their friends, Lady Lambart began to be very much frightened.

Suppose there really were a detective in the house? Indeed, there probably was one, for no doubt the manager would have sent off in hot haste to the nearest large town—and suppose it should be put in his head to suspect Hilary?

It would almost surely be a stupid head, and therefore all the more dangerous. Some other pitfalls might have been laid, of which she and Hilary knew nothing—would know nothing until it was too late. What horrible, what irrevocable mischief some blundering "detective" might do.

Lady Lambart would fain have talked matters over with Hilary, but feared to tell her the truth in the girl's present strange mood. Instead she rang and ordered the servant who came to have Mr. McGowan informed that she wished him to come to her at once.

He did come, after the shortest of delays, which nevertheless seemed long enough to her; and before he had time even to ask a question Lady Lambart began to pour out her grievances.

She and her daughter had been outrageously insulted in his house. She wished to go at once and consult her London solicitor.

"But, Lady Lambart, in the present circumstances I fear it is impossible—that is, I mean that it will be best for you not to go."

"If you refer to the trifling debt I owe you for our stay here" — began Lady Lambart. But the manager respectfully cut her short.

"No, it is not that, indeed," he replied, "though I must confess I should be obliged if your ladyship could find it convenient to pay. But, you see, a certain suspicion is afloat; nonsense, and cruel nonsense, no doubt; and I have done my best to prevent your being annoyed. Still, there it is; and the affair has happened. Really, Lady Lambart, the only thing to do now is for you and Lady Hilary to stay exactly where you are, and as you are, until the matter of the jewels has been cleared up—as it may be, any minute."

"Is it true there is a detective in the house?"

Mr. McGowan raised his eyebrows, "Naturally there is—I may as well admit that, since the fact has been mentioned."

"And my daughter and I are being watched?"

"Everybody in the hotel is more or less under observation."

Lady Lambart bit her lip, and her eyes were full of a dangerous light. "I will not keep you any longer," she said, "since you do not intend to protect me."

"I am unable to do more than I have done, and am at present doing, I deeply regret to say."

"Then, at least, leave me."

He did not require the second bidding. And with what Lady Lambart suffered in that moment and other moments to come Elspeth Dean—if she had but known—was fully avenged.

CHAPTER XIX.

"I must see you for a moment on a matter of life and death," Elspeth had written to Kenrith, and had forgotten in her great haste and anxiety to name a place of meeting; but Kenrith knew, as he read, that he would be able to find the girl through the porter, who had furtively handed him the note.

In the new light thrown by Elspeth's words the scene just past took a new significance. They could have but one meaning; she had tried to warn him against an attempt upon Oxford's life, and perhaps his own, by poison.

Kenrith did not particularly like Trowbridge, and he had liked him less than ever after his brusque announcement of an engagement with Lady Hilary Vane; but he had not entertained the slightest suspicion against the man's character. Now, had the warning come from any other woman of his acquaintance, he would have regarded it as absurd; but there was something about the young stenographer which compelled his trust, even when reason argued against her.

He recalled the fleeting look of fury on Trowbridge's face when the dog had broken the glass of whiskey and soda which Oxford was in the very act of raising to his lips. If Elspeth Dean were right, Prince Charlie had saved his master's life.

"Let us try once more to have a farewell drink before we part," Trowbridge now suggested, laughing. "I always keep plenty of tumblers here," and he went to an old-fashioned wall cupboard, with a prettily-curtained glass door.

"No, thank you," Kenrith answered pleasantly, but decidedly, before Captain Oxford had time to speak. "My friend is looking rather done up, and as he's still more or less on the invalid list, spirits are not the best thing for him. Rest will do him more good than anything else tonight."

This hint was so broad that Trowbridge was obliged to take it. He apologized good-naturedly for his lack of consideration in keeping them up so long after the trying experience they had gone through, and, wishing them both pleasant dreams, left the room.

"What shall I do about Prince Charlie, sir?" asked the porter, who stood outside the door now, awaiting instructions. "Shall I try downstairs again, or"—

"We'll keep him here for the present, thank you," said Kenrith, anticipating his friend's answer. Oxford had been about to give up the dog to the night porter; but finding that Kenrith was willing to keep him in the room he let it go at that. Millar bade the two gentlemen a respectful goodnight, closed the door gently, and they were left alone.

Kenrith decided to say nothing to Oxford about the note from Elspeth Dean until he himself had seen the girl and learned upon what grounds she based her suspicions. Nevertheless, he did not neglect the precautions he would have taken if he fully believed in the warning.

While Oxford busied himself in caressing the excited collie, he selected from the waste-paper basket, where the glass had been thrown, a few of the larger fragments and put them in his pocket. He also rolled a big easy chair over the spot where the whiskey had fallen on the carpet.

"Now, I am going to leave you for a few moments," said Kenrith. "I have a little business downstairs with our friend the night porter, but I expect to be back soon, and if you don't mind I should be glad if you could stay awake till you see me again."

If Oxford's curiosity were roused he did not say so. Indeed, his attention was engrossed by Prince Charlie. The dog's behavior seemed odd to his master, for though the wild excitement he had shown in Trowbridge's presence was abating, he was still unlike himself. His beautiful eyes were extraordinarily bright and prominent. He kept up a continual whimpering quivering all over, and appearing to suffer in some inexplicable way.

"There's something very queer the matter with the Prince," said Oxford. "I don't understand him to-night at all."

"Watch him," replied Kenrith, remembering that some of the spilled whiskey had fallen on the dog's nose. Still, he kept his own counsel, as he went out to search for the sender of the warning.

No one was to be seen in the dimly lighted corridor. Guilty or not guilty, Trowbridge had no idea that he was suspected.

Kenrith went softly but hastily downstairs, meaning to inquire Elspeth's whereabouts of the night porter; but it was she, not the man, who came quickly to meet him.

"Thank heaven," she whispered. "I was afraid something would keep you—or that you would think I was mad."

"I should have thought any one else mad, who wrote such a letter," he said, "but not you. Now tell me everything."

How Elspeth got through her story she did not know; but somehow she made clear the strange history of events, of suspicions, and of actual knowledge.

There was not time to tell all, for she had a plan to propose; but she began with the fire, and what had happened to her in the corridor when she had tried to give the alarm. She told what she had heard in the secret room, and of the dead face her groping fingers had touched.

"It was Mr. Trowbridge's voice I heard, of that I am sure. Who was with him, I can't tell; but whoever it was, those two are in the plot together. They meant to kill Captain Oxford; it must have been they who tried to murder him before. When I heard that you and he were to sleep in Mr. Trowbridge's sitting room, I was afraid there might be still another attempt, since the fire had failed. But that was only part of my reason for sending you the note. Those two men must be taken together in the secret room, if at all. You see, they meant to go back there for me—and they will be going soon, if they haven't gone already; for they have no time to waste. If they find me gone, they'll know the game is up, and even if they don't try to escape from the house, they'll make it dreadfully difficult to prove anything against them. There'll only be my word, you know."

"They shall be taken in the secret room, never fear," said Kenrith, quietly.

"You mean you will go?"

"Yes, I will go."

"Not alone. They might kill you."

"I have a revolver which I've carried—since yesterday. But I shan't be alone. The man who brought your letter will go with me."

"The night porter."

"Night porter pro tem. He is a detective, and a smart one. No one knows but Oxford, myself, McGowan—and, now, you. Oxford must be with us, too. It's his right, as the plot was against him. He'd never forgive me if I left him out."

As he spoke he stepped to the door of the night porter's tiny room and gave a peculiar knock.

Instantly the man to whom Elspeth had given her letter appeared.

"She knows," said Kenrith. "We can trust her. Thanks to her alone, we are going to unravel the whole plot and kill two birds, or perhaps more, with one stone. While I get more particulars from this lady, fetch Captain Oxford, if you please—and—look here, you'll both want revolvers. Don't let him delay a moment. This may be a matter of life and death."

"Now, you must tell me the way into that secret room," said Kenrith.

"Tell you the way!" exclaimed Elspeth. "Why, I'm going to guide you there. Oh, please don't object! You couldn't get in without me."

Kenrith's eyes lit up with admiration of her courage as he looked down at her in the dim light.

"You're not afraid?" he asked.

"Not with you," the girl impulsively answered, then blushed deeply because she could not take the words back.

Dark as it was, he saw the blush and the look on her face which told him more than the words spoken inadvertently.

"Darling child," he said, "do you know I love you and want you for my wife?"

He had forgotten Lady Lambart and all his fancied obligations to her, even as Elspeth had forgotten all the world but him.

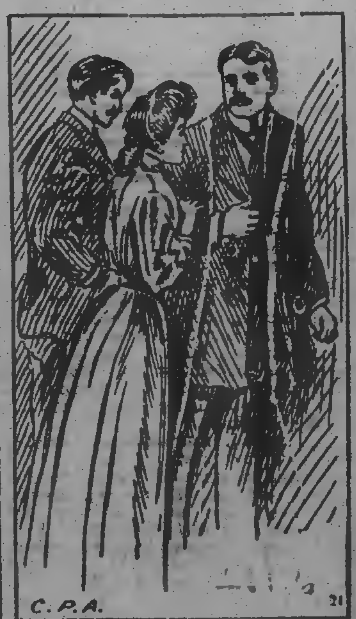
It seemed impossible that she had heard aright. Such happiness could not be, she thought, for her. But before he could speak again Captain Oxford and the porter came hurriedly into the hall.

CHAPTER XX.

There were two ways of reaching the secret room in the tower. Elspeth Dean had the best of reasons for being certain of this, but the only one to which she had a clue was the hidden entrance by the fireplace in her own old quarters.

Fortunately, this was the better way to take, as the men who were to be trapped would almost surely have chosen the other. Had they not intended to do so, they would not have left the door of the tower room locked, and this Elspeth knew they had done, as she had unfastened it when she made her escape.

The three men kept close at her heels, ready to protect her if need be, as she led them up the winding stairs, then to the door of the tower room which had been hers. It was still unlocked, as she had left it, and they filed in, noiselessly as shadows.



"You have done enough," he said.

The room was in darkness, save for the pale starlight that filtered in at the uncovered windows, but Elspeth knew well where to find the place she sought, and no light was needed yet from the police lanterns which the detectives carried.

There was a moment of wild suspense when she feared that, after all, she had lost the secret of the spring which opened the sliding panel. But she touched it at last, with a thrill of triumph, and with a faint click as the sole alarm, the way was open.

Now Kenrith put the girl away, when she would have passed through. "You have done enough," he said in a whisper, "the rest is for us."

But she rebelled gently. "I can't leave you," she answered. "I daren't. I should be more afraid here, or going back, than with you near. Oh, I must stay and see it through."

It was true, as she said. He could not leave her behind. Who could tell whether Trowbridge and the other were already in the secret room, or whether they might not see the girl outside, and in an instant revenge themselves for the ruin she had brought upon them?

"Follow us then," Kenrith said. "But—you are to be careful, for my sake."

Never had the girl been so happy. If death should come to her in the next moment, she would not have missed that which makes life best worth living.

On the other side of the secret door they paused listening. There was no sound, and the detective opened his lantern.

When Elspeth had previously been on the other side of the secret door she had groped in darkness, seeing nothing. Now, by the lantern light, she saw a curious, narrow passage between rough walls of stone. The passage followed the form of the tower, and Elspeth told herself that it probably ran all the distance round between the embrasures of the windows in the tower room. The floor was covered with a strip of thick carpet, evidently new, and probably meant to deaden the sound of footfalls in case the passage had to be used while the tower room was occupied. Just at the turn the queer, ladder-like staircase was visible—that steep staircase down which she had hurried in fear and nameless horror but a short time ago. It was covered with the same new carpeting as that which protected the floor; a patternless green fabric, stained with dust and mud as if with a trace of every footstep which had passed up or down.

Elspeth pointed to the stairs. "It's up above where the dead woman lies," she whispered. "But they left me lying here. See, there are the bands of stuff that bound me, knotted still. They'll look here when they come"—

They were in black darkness, darkness which in this cold and gloomy place seemed thick, as if it might be felt.

There was a slight sound in the distance. A sliding door had been softly pushed back, somewhere out of sight. Then came a muffled sound of footsteps on the carpet and voices talking in low tones together. An instant later a yellow light quivered along the dark wall. They were coming round with a lantern; and, Elspeth heard the same clinking noise which had frightened her on the first night in the tower room.

In a moment more they would know that they had been tricked; but the light had not found the intruders yet, and the four who lay hid waited, scarcely breathing.

Now they came round the turn of the passage, two tall, black figures, walking one behind the other; but the old-fashioned lantern which, with its clinking chain, hung from the hand of the foremost man, did not send its rays up to their faces. Their features were hidden still, as if masked by darkness.

"We're late," Trowbridge's voice said, in a hushed tone, yet audible to those intently listening ears. "You oughtn't to have gone so far off when this thing had to be done still, before dawn."

"We've time still," answered another voice, strange to Elspeth, save that she had heard it here before; but she felt the hand on her shoulder start.

"Where was it we left her?" asked Trowbridge. "Here, I think. 'Why'"—and the light touched the woollen bands which Elspeth had thrown off. But his sentence was never finished. The detective leaped out of his hiding place and flashed the lantern in his eyes.

With a cry of rage and amazement Trowbridge stepped back and stumbled against the man behind him. Then, what followed came so quickly that Elspeth had scarcely time to understand the meaning of what she saw.

The unknown man sprang back as Trowbridge staggered away from the light, but the full blaze of the detective's lantern was upon them both now, sparing only the face of the unknown. The girl distinctly saw him pull a revolver from his breast and aim it at some one among their number. She had the impression that the shot was not fired at random, merely to injure a dangerous enemy and terrify the others, but that it was meant to find and kill one among them. So strong was this impression that, with a quick thought for the man she loved, she tried to throw herself in front of Kenrith. But the light thrown up by Trowbridge's swaying lantern was not upon his face. It was upon Captain Oxford's, and quickly she realized that the coming shot was meant for him.

With a shriek she would have warned him of his deadly danger; but he was saved in another way.

MR. AND MRS. CORNISH WERE REMEMBERED BY FRIENDS

The Lindsay Warder says;—A pleasing event took place in St. Andrew's Sunday school last evening when Mr. Geo. A. Cornish, science master in the Peterborough Normal school, and formerly superintendent of St. Andrew's Sunday school, and his wife, were made the recipients of tokens of esteem by the teachers of St. Andrew's Sunday school. Mr. Cornish was presented with two handsomely bound volumes of The Dictionary of Jesus Christ and the Gospels, by Hastings and Mrs. Cornish with a fine Morocco hand bag.

Some months have elapsed since Mr and Mrs. Cornish left Lindsay to take up residence in Peterborough, but advantage was taken of the annual Sunday school teachers' meeting last evening, and both were invited to attend. Mr. Cornish was formerly science master at the Lindsay Collegiate Institute.

Mr. J. R. McNeillie made an acceptable chairman and the Sunday school was comfortably filled when the presentation was made by the Misses Waters and Duncon. Afterwards Mr. Low, Mr. McDougal and Mr. Horn spoke briefly.

"People sometimes get very expensive presents when they leave town," said Mr. Low, "who in my estimation do not deserve anything in comparison with what Mr. and Mrs. Cornish deserve. We do miss Mr. and Mrs Cornish, while we would not miss lots of people. Mr. Cornish was always interested in the welfare of his fellow beings and gives an example of a useful life for the rest of us."

Mr. Low then read a motion of regret passed at a previous meeting of the session, at Mr. Cornish's departure from Lindsay.

Mr. McDougal spoke of the strong influence Mr. Cornish had exercised in the church and in the town. He hoped the presents would be acceptable and said it was a pleasure to honor such as Mr. and Mrs. Cornish. He concluded by wishing them the best of success.

Mr. Horn told of Mr. Cornish's faithful labors in church work in Lindsay and spoke of the general regret at his removal. He said he was glad to know that Mr. Cornish's efforts had been acknowledged even in so light a way.

Mr. Cornish replied feelingly, and said he was glad to be back even for a short time and to see so many familiar faces. It has been almost five years since he came to Lindsay, and during that time he has been interested in the church and Sunday school, the kind words of the previous speakers, he said, touched him very much. Sunday school work here had always been agreeable to him, and he considered it his duty to take a share in the work of the church.

"Lindsay people are proverbial for kindness," Mr. Cornish said, "and I think they were especially kind to Mrs. Cornish and me. It has been very pleasant to meet so many old friends here this evening."

Mr. McNeillie also spoke briefly and said that Mr. Cornish had been always ready to undertake any work in the church allotted to him. As a member of the session, Mr. Cornish had labored and his duties seemed pleasant to him. "It has not been my lot to be joined with anyone in church work who undertook his share of duties so pleasantly."

CHURCHES AND DINING ROOMS

Mr. Carlisle's Letter Replied to by Mr. Frederick C. Moore

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir.—With your kind permission I would like to give my opinion about this "something" that my dear friend Mr. Carlisle is protesting against. Irishmen have the privilege of speaking twice, that is, if he speaks under a wrong impression "or makes a mistake," or happens to judge wrong, he can speak again and perhaps express himself more correctly. I think Mr. Carlisle not only misunderstands the reason why the social gatherings are held in the churches but perhaps also misunderstands what Paul meant in the quotation he asks us to read. I would ask if Mr. Carlisle would inquire into the need of such gatherings as he condemns and find out just what they are held for and also look into his quotation and see what it particularly refers to. There is one lesson in it for all of us and that is not to back-bite and talk ill of one another. Allow me to quote Bloomfield & Doddridge on this particular portion of Scripture;

> "Here schisms and heresies are taken in the same sense as meaning divisions and parties in the church, but the latter term is now generally applied to separations from it upon matters of faith. The Apostle terms as divisions (or schisms) the want of regard and of sympathy of feeling, and unity of spirit, described verse 20, as existing among the Corinthians which doubtless led to many unhappy and unhallowed altercations.
> "This apparently refers to the agape or love-feast, accompanying and at times preceding the Lord's Supper. To this each brought a portion and the more wealthy seem to have taken again the food they brought, almost to the exclusion of the poorer sort, who thus would fare scantily and feel aggrieved. Bloomfield says,—"The fault with which they are charged is gross selfishness at a meal united with the eucharistical one and formed on such principles of Christian charity and brotherly communion as would be a proper introduction or supplement to it. These love feasts are alluded to in Jude 12, and seem to have been joined to the Lord's supper in imitation of our Lord's uniting it to the passover feast. Some have thought that the Corinthians confounded, partaking of the Lord's supper with their usual meals. Doddridge remarks that Socrates reproves other Greeks, the Athenians for similar conduct at their common suppers."

My own opinion of social gatherings in connection with church work is that they are necessary for the bringing together of young people in our cities away from home and living in lodgings. These people's home must be the church and God forbid that the time may ever come when the church will be closed against such gatherings.

In London, England, and Dublin, Ireland, the mission halls and churches in some of the poorer districts, and not only the poorer ones, are kept open day and night for homeless folk and others who have not a good home of their own, where their sad hearts are made glad and happy. I have no doubt Mr. C. has seen similar work done in Belfast, Ireland—Christ-like people not only come to provide a happy time with singing and music, etc. but also out of love and kindness bring good things to eat.

It has been my privilege to attend a church of this kind in Dublin where social gatherings were a weekly affair and were absolutely necessary.

This church was our home and I have great reason to thank God for the kindness shown me there, and Mr. Editor, if you will pardon my writing just a few words with reference to myself since coming to this country, I was a stranger in a strange land, but the good people of Toronto and Peterborough, who have been so thoughtful as to have these gatherings, have enabled me to meet friend after friend, and to feel perfectly at home even if I am away far from my dear old Irish home, by the side of the road. God bless the promoters of such gatherings as enable us to meet and know each other and help each other to live a better and purer life.

Yours truly,
FREDERICK C. MOORE,

PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT FOR THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH

Favored by the Board of Trade---Municipal Ownership of Power Advocated.

The establishment of a publicity department for Peterborough and the development by the city of the water power on local waters were strongly advocated at a meeting of the Board of Trade last night. Resolutions to this effect were passed.

The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing an industrial revival for Peterborough and while the attendance was not as large as was hoped the business interests of the city were well represented and the discussion was of the most interesting nature.

The general opinion was that more should be done to bring Peterborough before the manufacturers of the United States and the Old Country as a location for Canadian branches and it was felt that this work would best be done by having a publicity department in charge of a competent person, who made it his business to boom Peterborough as a location for manufacturers. In order to get factories here it was pointed out at last night's meeting that Peterborough should have water power to offer prospective industries at a low rate in order to compete with other towns and cities.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. F. Quartermaine.

The president announced that the meeting had been called to discuss a revival of industrial and commercial activity in Peterborough. Practically all were now agreed that there was going to be a return of good times. Within the next two or three years there would be a big industrial boom all over Canada and the United States and Peterborough should be prepared to take advantage of the revival. Many American concerns would be looking for openings for branches in Canada and this city should get after its share. Peterborough was an industrial city, depending largely on its industries. The city was splendidly located and in a few years would be on the waterfront, the Government having decided to have an eight-foot canal from Lake Ontario to Peterborough. The coming of new industries to Peterborough brought up the question of electric power and this city, situated as it was, should be able to compete in this respect with other towns and cities.

MR. LARMONTH.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth was called upon and said it struck him that the Manufacturers' Committee should secure data as to sites for industries and other information about the advantages of Peterborough from a manufacturer's standpoint. This matter should be put in concise form and published so that manufacturers looking for openings would know of Peterborough's advantages. The committee perhaps had this information, but it had not been given the publicity it should. Probably this was due to the expense. The speaker considered that money spent in such a way would be wisely expended.

Mr. Larmonth came out strongly in favor of a publicity commissioner for the city, a man who would get out after new industries like a commercial traveller got after business for his firm. Many firms were looking for openings and Peterborough should have a person whose business it would be to bring Peterborough before such concerns. Peterborough was excellently located, with two railways and the Trent Canal. There were many good sites for factories here, but no one would know it unless the fact was advertised.

ALD. BRADBURN.

Ald. Bradburn believed it would be to the city's advantage to take the matter of securing new industries away from the Council altogether. He agreed with Mr. Larmonth that a competent person whose business it was to look after such matters would be of great service to the city. He did not have faith in the system now in use of corresponding with concerns looking for sites. More could be learned in a day by going and seeing

HAD A DUEL OVER A DEER

Roblin's Nephew Had Thrilling Experience While Hunting.

Winnipeg, Dec. 11.—A serious shooting affray occurred at Rose Isle, Manitoba, on Tuesday. A nephew of Premier Roblin, Alfred Demill, had shot a deer and was bleeding it when an Indian stepped forward and claimed the quarry. Young Demill refused to resign the deer, whereupon the Indian cocked his rifle. Both promptly took cover, Demill behind a tree and the Indian behind the deer's carcase.

Demill fired at the Indian's rifle, hoping to destroy the weapon, but struck the Indian in the arm and hand. Two other Indians arriving, drew knives and further trouble seemed imminent. Demill warned them they must take the consequences if they approached him, and finally the Indians, thinking discretion the better part of valor, loaded the venison in a sleigh, with the carcases of seven other deer, and drove off in the direction of Rathwell.

RUTHERFORD GETS PRIZE

Manchester Professor is Recipient of Nobel Award.

Literature, Prof. Rudolf Eucken of Jena University.

Physics, Prof. Gabriel Lipman of the University of Paris.

Chemistry, Prof. Ernest Rutherford, director of the physical laboratory of the University of Manchester, England.

Peace, divided between K. P. Arnoldson of Sweden, and M. F. Bajer of Denmark, ex-Parliamentarians.

Prof. Rutherford was formerly of McGill University, Montreal. He is now of Manchester University. He was well known when in 1902 he advanced the theory of radio-activity. Two years later when he published the complete results of his researches, he received the Rumford Medal. Prof. Rutherford is only 38. He was born in New Zealand, of Scottish parents.

The Nobel prizes are awarded annually in accordance with the will of the late Dr. Nobel, the Swedish chemist and inventor of dynamite, to those persons who shall be considered to have conferred the greatest benefit on mankind during the preceding year. There are five prizes, each worth about $40,000. One is awarded in physics, one in chemistry, one in physiology or medicine, one for the most distinguished work of an idealistic tendency in the field of literature, and one for the best efforts in the interests of peace among the nations.

CHARLES DAVIES FREED BY JURY

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 11.—The jury in the case of Charles E. Davis, charged with the murder of Dr. Frederick T. Rustin, returned a verdict of not guilty.

Davis is the brother of the vice-president and uncle of the president, cashier and other officials of the First National Bank, and is related to men prominent in financial affairs in New York City.

It was alleged that he had been leading a double life, and that Davis, a drug fiend, had been induced by the physician to kill him, so that his life insurance would not be voided. A suicide compact with a notorious woman was claimed.

To-night there will be a rehearsal of the principals in "The Three Musketeers," at the Y.M.C.A. to-night at at eight o'clock sharp.

DEATH LIST IS NOW FOUR

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 11.—Louis Pratt, one of the leaders of the band of fanatics that fought a bloody battle in front of the city hall here on Tuesday last with a squad of policemen, died at the hospital yesterday of his wounds. Almost at the same time Policeman Michael Mullane, who was shot during the riot, died, making the total number of deaths four.

James Sharp, the leader of the onslaught against the police has not been captured, but the police declare they will have him under arrest today.

Mrs. Pratt, who with her children is being held at police headquarters, now states she knows Sharp was a fake prophet, and wishes she had remained in "the good old Baptist Church."

Holy Rollers Ordered Out.

Sandusky, Ohio, Dec. 11.—The Holy Roller organization at Merlin Heights, about 200 strong, was ordered to disband by irate townspeople yesterday, and the organizers, Jacob Hoppinger and J. C. Deeken of Buffalo, N.Y., were served with notice to leave the community. This action was prompted, it is said, by fear of trouble, due to the Kansas City affair. The Holy Rollers threaten resistance.

Montreal has 456 policeman and the chief has asked for 200 more. Burglaries average one a day.

Fire destroyed the barns, outbuildings and all of the contents belonging to John Pedan, who resides on the Harris farm east of Newtonville station. A lantern which was in the barn was knocked over by a cat.

WILL CONSIDER MONEY BY-LAWS

Board of Trade to Meet Again on Monday, Dec. 21.

The Board of Trade will hold another meeting on Monday evening, December 21st, when the money bylaws to be submitted to the ratepayers at the coming municipal elections will be discussed. There is a diversity of opinion as to whether the city should spend $49,000 on a new bridge at Smith street and whether the driving park should be purchased for $30,000. In order that the matters may be placed fairly before the ratepayers the Board of Trade has decided to have a meeting to discuss them.

GERMANY FEELS THE TARIFF FAVORS TREATY WITH CANADA

Tariff War Between the Dominion and German Empire, Says Horsen Courier, Benefits Neither and is Doing Serious Damage to Latter Country.

Berlin, Dec. 11.—The Horsen Courier, the leading Stock Exchange organ, considers it the duty of the German press to draw the attention of the public from time to time to the fact that a tariff war between Germany and Canada is still proceeding and that the war, far from benefiting either party, is doing serious damage to German trade.

It welcomes the recent information of the German Economic Association for the furtherance of commercial relations between the countries as an excellent basis for a renewal of efforts to secure a satisfactory commercial treaty.

This association, it continues, could not have been established at a more favorable moment, for the elections have just given the Liberals a considerable Parliamentary majority, which will keep Laurier's Government firmly in the saddle for the next five years.

If efforts to renew the negotiations for the conclusion of a commercial treaty are not pushed forward energetically now all hope may be buried.

The Courier points out the value of Germany's exports to Canada, which from 35,800,000 marks in 1903 to 21,800,000 marks in 1905, and increased in the following years to 24,500,000 marks and 29,600,000 marks respectively. The value of Germany's exports from Canada has averaged during the five years ending 1907, a little more than $2,250,000. Were German goods not taxed as heavily as English goods and about a third higher than produce countries, Germany would now occupy a very different position in the Canadian market. In consequence of the rapid development of the country, Canada, The Courier adds, required an enormous amount of industrial products which cannot be supplied at home. As matters stand Germany can hope to participate to only a very modest extent in supplying these growing needs. "It is a matter of urgent necessity that every obstacle in the way of a conclusion of the German-Canadian commercial treaty should be overcome as soon as possible."

SKATING AT BROCK ST. TO-NIGHT

The Brock street rink will open tonight. This will be welcome news to the skaters of the city. Icemaker Jack Thirnbeck has a splendid sheet ready and a big attendance is assured.

Mr. Thirnbeck has spent much time lately in making ice and is to be congratulated at having it made and in such good condition at this early date.

The 57th Regimental Band will be in attendance.

LICENSES MUST BE PAID AT ONCE

Some Milk Vendors Will be Summonsed if They do Not Pay

There are a number of milk vendors in the city who have not yet taken out their licenses and Chief Rosse said this morning that they must do so at once or they would be summonsed to the police court, where in addition to their license, they might have to pay a fine. They will be given until the 15th to pay up.

SPRINGVILLE TO HAVE NEW STORE

Mr. Andrew Reynolds of Peterborough Commencing Business There

Springville is to have a new store. Mr. Andrew Reynolds of Peterborough has moved out to the North Monaghan village and is opening an up-to-date store in the stand formerly occupied by Mr. Fred. Wilson. He is putting in a complete stock of general merchandise and should do a large business.

NARROW ESCAPE OF ITALIAN PRIEST

Youngstown, Dec. 11.—Poisoned as he drank the communion wine at the altar of the Italian church here, the Rev. Father Louis Lops, an Italian priest nearly succumbed to the second attempt at assassination, believed to have been made by disgruntled members of his congregation. The priest is still in a dangerous condition, but it is thought he will recover. Only a short time ago a shot was fired through a window, which buried itself in the wall close to his head.

POULTRY IS NOT INCLUDED

Regulations Regarding Christmas Trade Withdrawn by Government.

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—The provisions of the Dominion Meat Inspection Act in so far as they apply to the shipments of poultry during the Christmas season, have been withdrawn by the Department of Agriculture.

The law provides for inspection of shipments from one province to another. Many merchants, not thinking the law applied to poultry, in anticipation of Christmas trade had laid in large stocks of poultry, but when they commenced to ship they found that the railways refused to carry their goods on account of the law. Shipments of dressed poultry are so large and so numerous that it was found impossible to apply the law to them. The removal of the rule will greatly facilitate Christmas poultry trade.

THE CHURCHES CANNOT UNITE

Union is no Nearer as Result of Conference in Toronto.

Toronto, Dec. 11—The fourth church union conference at the Metropolitan Church will adjourn without bringing organic union of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches within measurable distance. Last night it appeared to be fading away further than ever from accomplishment, owing to the impossibility of the doctrinal committee to reconcile the Calvanistic dogma of the Westminster confession of faith with the Armenian principles of free will as contained in the Wesley sermons. Rev. C. Burwash is chairman of the committee on doctrine. It is admitted that his committee has the hardest task of any. Rev. Dr. Sparling of Winnipeg said, however, "If we do not accomplish union for fifty years what we are now doing is worth the time and effort."

As in former cases the clauses upon which the committee on doctrine can agree will be announced to the public, and not the motions in committee which fail to carry.

One estimate is that within the next ten years the benevolent funds of the denominations will be federated, but no representative will hazard a guess as to the union of the Methodist and Presbyterians. There are said to be some indications that the Congregationalists and Methodists will eventually unite as a result of the annual church union conferences.

The conference is expected to adjourn to-night.

WOOLLEN TARIFF DEBATED TURMOIL AT GUELPH FAIR

Paper on Price and Quality of Canadian Wool Precipitates Warm Time---To Help Woollen Industry.

Guelph, Dec. 11.—All day yesterday the interest in the winter fair was maintained and although the live stock was finished, the seed exhibit, the lectures on sheep, swine and cattle were of a high order, productive of much practical benefit.

The dressed carcases were on exhibition and Mr. Featherston of Yorkshire fame from Streetsville won out in the bacon hog class.

Profs. Klinck and J. Buchanan completed their awards in the grain crop competition and in the 76 entires in white oats, the five prizes were awarded after much difficulty in deciding the valuable qualities of each. The results are valuable. The following awards were made:

First, Thomas McMurchy of Loree, Collingwood, on "New Sensation"; 2, James McLean of Richmond Hill, on "Irish White"; 3, John McLeod of Lucknow, on "White Danish"; 4, J. Cockburn of Aberfoyle, on "Lincoln"; 5, James Baird of Lucknow, on "Sensation."

Thus it will be seen that the banner oat was not mentioned here.

Cattle men were instructed in the art of diagnosing and remedying the diseases of cattle by Dr. H. G. Reed and Messrs. Robt. Miller and W. F. Stephen. The principal diseases were milk fever, contagious abortion and indigestion.

But it remained for the interjection of the woollen manufacturers and dealers into the sheep discussion to stir up a warm time. T. D. Wardlaw of Toronto in his paper touched on the prices and qualities of Canadian wools. Soon the vexed question of woollen tariffs and closed woollen mills stirred the meeting into a turmoil.

Discussion became general and Messrs. E. B. Biggar and H. V. Andrews of Toronto claimed that the imposition of a tax on woollen goods would enable Canadian mills to employ all the Canadian output. Farmers, they contend, would receive 5 to 10 cents a pound more for their wool. Col. McCrae, John Campbell and R. E. Gunn took part in the discussion.

Prof. Day in an excellent address on swine counseled the farmers to go on raising the bacon hog, and not quit because the packers are proving hard at times. He resented strongly the imputation that he was purchaseable by certain interests to act thus on his advice. His one aim was to give a true service to the people of Ontario and he would not curry favor by knocking the packer.

OFFER OF SWAYNE

To Carry off the Hindus—Want Them in British Honduras.

Winnipeg, Dec. 11.—Brigadier-General Swayne, Governor of British Honduras, is en route to British Columbia to negotiate with the Hindus for their removal to Honduras. He is delighted with the prospect of getting Sikhs for his colony, which is in great need of labor; indeed, so great has the problem become that Gen. Swayne has just been in England discussing it with the Government. Removal of the Sikhs was one of the remedies suggested, and he is now on his way west to lay the project before them. His plans were outlined yesterday when he said:

"All matters in connection with the transportation of the Sikhs to British Honduras have been settled, and it is now only a question whether they will accept the terms which are offered to them. I may say that it will be entirely a voluntary matter with the Sikhs; it is between them and myself. If they will come to us in Honduras I will guarantee them oversight and care. I will establish them in villages with their headmen over them, as they were at home in India. All the customs of their country can be preserved to them. They will be placed on the best of land, the returns from which amount to $20 per acre. Owing to my 16 years' experience in India, I know the Sighs very well and sympathize with them. Many of them served under me for years in India."

Hindus as Gardeners.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 11.—Teja Singh, who is leading the Hindus against the Federal Government's plan of sending them to Honduras, has completed a deal for the purchase of 150 acres of land at North Vancouver, where he will instal a large number of Hindus as market gardeners.

Engine a Menace.

Fort William, Dec. 11.—The jury empanelled to enquire into the death of E. R. Noble, engineer, who with his fireman, R. Horsley, was killed in the C.P.R. yards here, returned a verdict declaring: "We are of opinion that engine No. 2166, of which the deceased was in charge, was in a defective condition and unfit for service."

Ottawa Salary Increases.

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—The present indications are that it will be some time before the civil service is classified under the provisions of the act passed at the last session of Parliament.

It is said that the treasury board, which is a sub-committee of the Cabinet council, has abandoned its efforts to bring about some measure of uniformity in the classifications of the various Departments as made by the various deputies, and has referred the whole matter back to the council. The upshot will probably be that the Civil Service Commission will probably be asked to undertake the task.

It is said that it would take the commissioners nearly a year to do the work and in the meantime the matter of salary will probably have to stand in abeyance.

Owen Sound's Campaign.

Owen Sound, Dec. 11.—J. M. Davis, who headed the councillors in January, has come out for the mayoralty against Mayor Kennedy or anyone else. The mayor has decided not to run and Councillor F. W. Harrison will probably oppose Mr. Davis. Both are against local option. The local optionists will not run a candidate.

A newspaper, The Citizen, will be started on Saturday by the anti-local option party here, and will be issued thereafter every Wednesday during the campaign.

Freight Rates Go Up.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Transcontinental freight tariffs, beginning Jan. 1 next, will be advanced on all eastbound traffic, both by rail and water. The class rates on westbound traffic will remain as they are now. The commodity rate on westbound traffic from Atlantic seaboard points to Pacific coast terminals will be increased approximately ten per cent.

This announcement was made yesterday by the interstate commerce commission.

Rush Nearly Over.

Port Arthur, Dec. 11.—Last night saw the end of the big rush season at the elevators, though a few cargoes will likely be shipped to-day and to-morrow. The Wells is expected in for 200,000 bushels of grain.

Altogether about three-quarters of a million bushels were loaded yesterday.

Boy Set Fire to Barn.

Omemee, Dec. 11.—The barns and outbuildings, with their contents, belonging to T. B. Laidley, Elmhurst Farm, two miles from here, were burned at six o'clock yesterday morning. A boy is blamed.

After Piano Factory.

Kingston, Dec. 11.—Deseronto is making a bid for the Wormwith Piano Works, and has offered a building.

Gift to McGill.

Montreal, Dec. 11.—In answer to the urgent appeal for financial assistance made by McGill University, Principal Peterson announced yesterday that Robert Reford, one of the board of governors, had donated securities to the value of $50,000, the revenue from which is to be used towards the increase of salaries of the professors in the various faculties.

In making the donation Mr. Reford stated he was well aware of the necessity of an increase in the salaries of professors of McGill if first-class men are to be retained and the standing of the university maintained.

McGill's needs call for $2,000,000.

Must Disinfect Boots.

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—To guard against the introduction of foot and mouth disease into Canada the Government officials at Niagara Falls have made regulations requiring foot passengers crossing the international bridges to have their boots disinfected before entering Canada.

It developed that the disease was carried to a herd of cattle on Grand Island by sectionmen, who had been in the Buffalo stock yard.

Tip From Rockefeller.

New Brunswick, Dec. 11.—Jno. D. Rockefeller gave the waiter who served him at luncheon here Wednesday, Rudolph Osterwald, five cents for a tip, and advised him to put it in the savings bank.

"That's what I did with my spare cash when I was your age," said Mr. Rockefeller, "and it earned money for me. Never waste your money."

Prison Enquiry Begun.

Kingston, Dec. 11.—Inspector Dawson has arrived in the city and will at once commence an enquiry into the recent smuggling of opium into the penitentiary. It is stated that this investigation will lead up to an enquiry into the affairs of the whole institution.

Dawson, Y.T., Dec. 11.—Announcement was made this week that Missouri capitalists, chiefly of Kansas City, together with Dawsonites, had organized a company with $100,000,000 capital, to dredge, the Stewart and McQueen Rivers, beginning operations next year with at least one dredge.

This company and the Yukon Gold Basin Co., headed by former Governor Ogilvie, will install a joint power plant to drive 30 dredges.

Would Shut Out Live Stock.

London, Dec. 11.—(C. A. P.)—Lord Carrington, president of the Board of Agriculture, has refused the request made on behalf of the Scotch Chambers of Agriculture to close the ports against the importation of live cattle from the United States and Canada. He said it was not wholesome to have only the dead meat trade.

Guilty of Perjury.

Hamilton, Dec. 11.—Will Burkholder and John Rogers, two of those charged with perjury in connection with the raid on a gambling club at the corner of King and Catherine streets east a year and a half ago, were found guilty at the sessions yesterday and will be sentenced at the conclusion of the session.

Banquet to H. Gervais.

Montreal, Dec. 11.—The banquet tendered last evening to H. Gervais, M.P. for St. James, and presided over by Mayor Payette, was a success, the guest of honor speaking at length on the development of Montreal as a natural port and kindred subjects.

Hopewell For Mayor.

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—Controller Hopewell, who was defeated in a three-cornered mayoralty contest two years ago by D'Arcy Scott, will in all probability get the chief magistracy of the capital by acclamation. There is no rival candidate in the field.

HOCKEY BOOTS

Our Hockey Boots are now interesting hockey players. We've the best of Hockey Boots—the regulation sort—the only kind that fills the requirement. We have different grades, but every shoe is a correct one.

FRIDAY, DEC. 11, 1908.

THE QUESTION OF POWER

DISCUSSION

In older nations and amongst the educated or informed it is customary to encourage discussion just as Socrates or the divine Plato did, of old. It is only by discussion that we clarify our ideas. A few sharp turns or a criticism or two and lo! we find that we have been sleeping in a merely fancied security or in a bed of quiet conceit. But it is not every man who is equal to discussing. Many men recognize the futility rather than the utility of it. They dislike the jar. They cannot face the war of words. They prefer to go quietly along through life—in their own way. But life is not made up of such things. It is a war and only by mimic war of the chivalrous, speculative, daring sort can we properly prepare ourselves for the war of life.

Discussion also in the society of men lays bare the heart for hearty lessons of many a man. It is a revealer of men. As such it is invaluable. Men who dread the process of revelation dislike discussion. At any rate the "wrangler" has from time immemorial been a necessary part of our system of education. But like all other good things, he becomes a vice when carried to excess.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES

Farmers' Institutes are beyond doubt "a good thing." One cannot take up a neatly-printed programme of one without seeing a list of numbers worth going to hear. In the dull days of winter they furnish entertainment, but it is a useful entertainment being mingled with information of the latest and usually the best kind. The young people attend and sharpen their wits upon each others' faults [illegible]. The old ones lay up further stores of knowledge for the winter of their lives and help in the universal good by giving their experiences. They keep the world in touch with the farmer and the farmer with the world. He who does not attend knows as a rule too much or too little. At any rate the fault does not lie with the Institutes. All praise is due to those who manage and engineer them locally and otherwise. Much depends upon good management here as elsewhere. Mr. Wm. Collins, the local secretary, like his esteemed and much respected father, the late Mr. Henry Collins, of North Monaghan, takes a deep and probably hereditary interest in his work, which we understand is of a high order of usefulness.

DOES IT PAY?

Barre, Ct., Dec. 10—"Does advertising pay? Well, I should say it did particularly in religion," said the Rev. Francis A. H. Poole, pastor of the First Congregational church here, today.

Mr. Poole took charge of the church three years ago, when it was a moribund organization. He placed advertisements in the Sunday morning papers—big ones—half a page when he had the money—and he told the people what was going on in the church each Sunday.

"As a result," said Mr. Poole, today, "the congregation has doubled in three years. And at today's meeting of the trustees we decided to enlarge the church building to just twice its present size."

The initiation of the laymen's movement in Peterborough has without doubt given rise to much thinking amongst the Protestant laity. They do not yet, however, know exactly what to think of Christianity. Religion perplexes the average man. He knows what morality means, what it involves and sees the direct and indirect consequences with an unerring eye. The most unsophisticated or the most poorly educated can explain in a few, perhaps not always choice words what morality is, both physically and otherwise. Uprightness he esteems a great virtue. "A square man" meets with his warm approval. A shifty unreliable man meets with his instant condemnation. But when it comes to a religion such as Christianity, he finds he is all at sea. He finds it made up of so much involved and involving perplexities that he views all theological argument as a bore and votes all religious discussion as useless and a nuisance. What is the reason of this difference? Is it that the fundamental principles of morality are not identical with the principles of Christianity? It would appear so. A man is worth just so much as such in the estimation of the world and no more. All the wealth of Croesus or of Rockefeller cannot raise him one jot or tittle in the world's estimation as a man. Morality does not depend on wealth. The poorest of the poor can earn and wear a crown of virtue. It is harder for the rich man to do so, indeed than for the poor. But it is different with Christianity which depends for its propagation upon money in the first instance. Without the wherewithal hardly a convert could be won to enter the Christian's Heaven. Converts could not be reached. The business would stand still. It needs advertising and canvassing. And yet morality does not "pay" any more or perhaps to as great an extent as the profession of Christianity. How is it then we repeat that a single virtue can obtain the assent and admiration of all men while Christianity struggles to maintain its own existence? The answer many think, lies in the fact that they are too often divorced. Some forms of religion will accept money from whatever, even the lowest and vilest, sources. They do not lack argument to justify so doing. Could morality accept the fruits of dishonor in order to propagate itself? Not, and continue to be morality. If an "innocent" acceptor it might be pardoned for its innocency but if it received it knowingly and laid it down as a principle of virtue that it is permissible to receive the fruits of wrong for any purpose whatever what would we, what must we think of it? It would dissolve of itself. Are we not then underscoring the mark in our estimate of Christianity in some quarters. Does advertising "pay"—virtue? Why then, should it be called to the aid of the summing-up of all virtues? Christianity or the religion of Christ is surely not to be put on a lower plane. But it will be if it is reduced to the level of a business in which the prostitute, or the puritan can participate with equal facility—so long as they furnish the money. Have we ourselves after all, really reached the true Christian level? Would it not be better to take a course in morality first? The religion of Christ is above all religious ideas. It is to the perfect ideal that we are bidden to rise. Yet we sneer at the idea and grasp with truly appreciative hands the real and then wonder that it is so hard to reach the heart of man that already loves virtue for its own sake even if it fail to practise it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Hon. Geo. E. Foster, in addressing a few words to the Reform and Morality Leagues, which, by the way, we are glad to see have combined, says that "we must reach the foundations of corruption." How about injecting a little self-respect and common sense into public opinion first? It might help later on.

The impending war between the Republicans and the Democrats over what is termed the Panama Canal graft is about to break out. It will be a "corker." As for ourselves, we "believe in" Mr. Roosevelt. He is really a strong man, and a really strong man is never weak—in his morals.

The "sawing-off" of election petitions and charges, of which much is being written just now, is not a wholesome process. It is also a process by which the opposition loses most. It creates the impression that in matters of electoral corruption one party is just as bad as the other, and removes from some minds a reason for voting against a corrupt government.—Montreal Gazette.

A fiat as requested by counsel for Mr. W. D. Beardmore, would have backed the whole cheap power movement into the siding of technical law, there to rust on the rails of protracted litigation.

A fiat has been refused in explicit terms over the signature of Sir James Whitney, Attorney-General of Ontario.

These terms are written into the text of a state paper as nobly useful as any document that ever came from the pen of a Canadian politician.

Niagara power at a price "uninflated" by claims for dividends on untold millions of stock that represents no actual investment of cash—that is the ideal which Sir James Whitney has pledged himself to work out.

That ideal can only be realized in a partnership of municipalities working on the lines of public ownership through the agency of The Hydro-Electric Commission.

The request for a fiat brought the Ontario Government to the crossroads at an early stage in its journey towards the goal of cheap power. A bold, clear-headed and cold-blooded corporation lawyer, in private conversation, taunted a believer in Sir James Whitney as follows:—

"I am against Beck and his whole scheme, and always have been. I want to see the fiat granted, but Whitney's action on the application will show whether he is the big man you say he is or the small lawyer I think he is. I hope Whitney allows himself to be flimflammed with a lot of legal flub-dub and grants the fiat. Whitney has the power. He has the people behind him. I would like to be in Whitney's position and have a lot of people come along and ask me for a fiat to chew my poles to pieces with technicalities."—Toronto Telegram.

LINDSAY TO HAVE A WINTER FAIR

Meeting Was a Failure But Committee Meet With Better Results

The Lindsay Post says:—It looked last night as if there would be no winter fair in Lindsay this winter.

A meeting was called for the council chamber last night, but there were only two merchants present, besides a number of citizens who were not directly interested. It was thought that unless the business men who would be benefitted took a lively interest, it would be useless to undertake a fair. It was decided therefore, to let the matter lie in abeyance for the present.

This morning when the absentee business men learned that there were no results from the meeting they began to wake up and a number expressed a desire to see the project inaugurated and carried to a successful finish. A committee therefore, consisting of Messrs. Sutcliffe, Cleland and Sparling will canvass the merchants this afternoon and see what can be done in the matter.

Since the above was written the Post is pleased to learn that the committee has met with the most gratifying success and that the fair is now assured and it undoubtedly will be a huge success. Energetic men are at the head of the movement and they know how to do it.

JR. DEBATING CLUB FORMED

In Connection With the Y.M.C.A. --First Debate Next Wednesday

A junior Y.M.C.A. debating club has been formed. It was decided to hold debates each Wednesday evening at eight o'clock. The election of officers will take place on December 16th. The subject of the debate will be "The advantages of the city over the country life." Norman Laing will lead the affirmative and Bruce Hunter, the negative.

ENTERTAINED BROTHERHOOD

Of the Charlotte St. Methodist Church Last Evening

The Brotherhood of the Charlotte street Methodist church were pleasantly entertained to a social evening, last night at the residence of Mr and Mrs A. E. Lane, at the corner of Reid and Simcoe streets.

After the business of the evening had been transacted, an impromptu musical programme was given, several of those present contributing vocal and instrumental solos.

At the conclusion refreshments were served and a vote of thanks was tendered Mr and Mrs Lane for their kind hospitality.

CATTLE MARKETS.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—London cables for cattle are steady at 12c to 12¾c per lb. dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9¾c to 10c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market, as reported by the railways for Wednesday and Thursday, were 170 carloads, consisting of 2688 cattle, 2540 hogs, 2644 sheep and lambs, 61 calves and 1 horse.

Exporters.

A few loads of export steers, were sold at $5 to $5.15 and one extra quality load, good enough for Xmas beef, which we are inclined to think was bought for that purpose, sold at $5.40; export bulls of which there was quite a number sold at $3.30 to $4.30, and one or two extra choice quality, went as high as $5 per cwt.

Butchers.

Choice loads of Christmas stall fed steers and heifers sold at $5 to $5.50, Dunn and Levack selling a shipment of 150 cattle at these prices; picked steers and heifers such as are on each market daily sold at around $5 per cwt.; loads of good, $4.50 to $4.75; medium, $4 to $4.30; common, $3.25 to $3.75; cows, $2.50 to $4; canners, $1.50 to $2.25.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. and W. Murby report a fair demand for stockers and feeders this week, prices holding steady for anything with quality. Messrs. Murby bought 200 head at following quotations: Best feeders, 900 to 1050 lbs. each, at $3.60 to $4; best feeders, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.40 to $3.65; best stockers, 600 to 800 lbs. each, at $3 to $3.40; common and medium, $2 to $2.50.

Milkers and Springers.

There is a fair demand for good to choice quality cows, but not nearly as great as it was a few weeks ago, the cows that sold at $70 can now be bought at $60, or at least, cows of the same quality, the proportion of cows selling at $60 now is about the same as those selling at $70 some little time ago. Prices ranged from $35 to $60, the bulk of the best going at $45 to $55 each.

Veal Calves.

A very few, choice new milk fed Christmas calves sold at $7 to $8 per cwt.; but the ordinary run of calves, such as are seen on the market daily, sold at unchanged quotations that is $3 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The run of sheep and lambs was large 2644. Sheep sold at unchanged quotations, but lambs sold higher than for many weeks. Export ewes, $3.25 to $3.40; rams, $2.25 to $2.50; lambs, $4.75 to $5.40 for the general run, and $5.60 per cwt. for a few selected lots of Christmas lambs.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris reported the market unchanged, at $6, for selects fed and watered, and lights at $5.75.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 10.—Cattle—Receipts 125 head; steady; prime steers, $6.25 to $6.50.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

His Majesty's Health.

London, Dec. 11.—In view of the disquieting rumors abroad The Lancet is authorized to state that the health of His Majesty the King gives no cause for anxiety.

The King contracted a slight cold, and subsequently showed symptoms of influenza and neuralgia, but he improved under treatment and he has derived decided benefit from the change of air at Brighton.

New Factory at Welland.

Welland, Dec. 11.—The ratepayers of Humberstone Township yesterday carried the bylaw fixing the assessment on the plant of the Dain Manufacturing Co. for ten years at $10,000.

The Dain Co. of Ottumwa, Iowa, will establish a Canadian plant adjoining Welland, for the manufacture of farm implements. One hundred and thirty acres have been acquired and a plant costing $250,000 will be erected, as well as 100 houses for workmen.

Damages For False Arrest.

Brantford, Dec. 11.—G. W. Hill, Indian herbalist, secured a verdict for $100 damages in the County Court yesterday for false arrest against Detective Rose of Toronto. The defendant acted for the Ontario College of Physicians and Hill was fined in Grey County for unlawfully practicing medicine. Points involved in the case were novel.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

About the Finances

Peterborough, Dec. 11, 1908

Dear Sir,—In the Review of the 3rd inst. there appeared a prominent news item comparing an overdraft in the city finances on Nov. 30th of this year of $12 000 with an overdraft of $109 000 on the same date a year ago and drawing the moral therefrom that the ratepayers evidently made no mistake in electing Mr. Rush as Mayor. The article was so unfair and misleading that though seasoned to newspaper criticism I thought it necessary to have the facts set right. I have been waiting since for the City Treasurer to complete his monthly return to the Council but in the meantime the editor has been good enough to withdraw any criticism of last year's Mayor and Council which might be involved. Truth, however, is always slow to catch up and therefore, I would ask you to publish the following summary of this year's finances compared with last year.

In the last Mayoralty election the chief charge made against me as Mayor for 1907 was that I was extravagant and incapable in the management of the finances of the city and the ratepayers were therefore urged to elect Mr. Rush, who was said to be a man capable of managing the finances. It is therefore doubly fair to examine the Mayor's record on the financial side. I invite the ratepayers to enquire into the facts and I hope the newspapers will examine them fully and publish the results. Here are one or two for a beginning.

Sewers of 1905-6, allotted to City Trust Commissioners	$ 23000 00
School buildings	49 984 93
Permanent improvements built or completed in 1907	65 413 97
Current account	24 55
	$138 423.45

The Mayor of 1907, supported by the whole Council, had decided to sell very few of the debentures because of the poor rates obtainable. The new Mayor adopted the plan one would not call it a policy of selling everything at any old price, and did sell $190,520.70 worth of debentures at the interest rate of 4 3-4 per cent. What does that mean? It means an increase of 3-4 of one per cent. on the rate at which nearly all our debentures, have been sold for several years. What does that amount to? It amounts to an addition to each year's taxes for the next thirty years of $1475.00, or a total of over $40 000 added to the taxes of the people of this city by the financial wisdom of the present Mayor. It may be said that the rate will not come down again to 4 1-4 per cent, and if the city had these debentures to-day they be sold at a rate which would save $28 000.00 to the taxpayers compared with the rate at which they were sold in the early part of this year. I invite the Mayor to justify such financing over his own signature.

Now as to the current account—the expenditures of this year's taxes on the year's business. The figures above quoted show that the overdraft about which there was such a howl a year ago amounted on December 31st to less than $25.00. But it wasn't even that. After the close of each year there are many adjustments arrears and accounts to be settled and the result of the auditors' examination was to show a surplus in the current accounts of 1907 amounting to $4,515.50. So that fearfully extravagant Mayor left behind him the largest surplus in the last ten years.

How does the record of the present Mayor compare? The statement published a day or two ago after being presented to the Council shows a surplus in the current account of $21 140.70. Against this balance there have to be paid in December, firstly, the balances due the School Boards and the City Trust amounting to $21,258.45 and, secondly, the usual expenses for the month, which last year, without anything abnormal, amounted to $15,063.19. That means that the expenditures directed by the present capable Mayor will exceed the largest tax bill in the history of this city by over $15,000.00. That means that there will have to be next year a special levy of two mills over and above the present rate to pay the deficit created by one year of Mayor Rush's management. I again invite the Mayor, over his own signature, to justify such financing.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I want to say that I am prepared to discuss the management of the city finances at any public meeting.

Yours sincerely,

R. F. McWILLIAMS.

Women and Missions

Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I was much interested in the report of the laymen's banquet, given in the Review; but there was a note struck in one of the addresses which I think will not appeal to the women of Peterborough who for years have been interested in and working for the evangelization of the world; and that was the ease and scant courtesy with which we were dismissed from this service. The speaker liked the word men, because it meant virility and the overcoming of great resistance. It was a man's work to evangelize the world. The layman's movement stood for men, money and management. I wonder if he knows what the women have done to make the present movement possible. It is not a great many years since one sermon a year represented the missionary effort of the church when a subscription list was passed. This was followed by a canvass by women for further subscriptions and very few dollars found their way into the treasury that they did not collect. Then came the call of God to the Christian women of the churches. This call coming also from the official heads of the missionary departments of the churches and soon every evangelical church had W.M.S. organizations, officers and managed by some of the brightest most cultured and competent women in the Dominion. Instead of one service a year, each month saw bands of consecrated workers meeting in church and neighborhood societies to wait upon God to consult together, and to devise means to carry on the work. Their object was the evangelization of the women and children of heathenism. Hundreds of devoted Canadian girls have gone to foreign lands glad to spend and be spent in this service for the Master—a service which must be largely done by women, or it must remain undone. I cannot give general statistics but one church I know, has for some years raised nearly $100 000.00, annually, and an aggregate of over a million, and other societies have, I presume, given in a similar manner. As to management I think we need not fear comparison with our brethren. I have heard of missionary societies being severely crippled by debt. Some W. M. Societies, perhaps all, have their funds in the bank drawing hundreds of dollars interest yearly, before they are appropriated. Not bad management, I think. We thank God and take courage. We will not accept our dismissal, but will welcome our brethren as co-laborers. I believe they have pledged themselves to raise six dollars per member and as probably two-thirds of the members of the church are women. I think we may look for a large increase in funds. I said the women's work made the men's movement a possibility. Thirty years of earnest pleading with God, and self-denying work for the cause of missions of the study and dissemination of literature of training our children in mission bands, our young ladies in circles could not but produce results. The student, volunteer movement and the young people's forward movement were the first fruits, and as these joined us in prayer and faithful effort, this last development has been the result and if the church is true to her God, we shall see still greater things, but it will not be accomplished by relegating the women to one side. The apostle tells us that there is neither male nor female, but all are one in Christ Jesus. The church as well as the world has much to learn as to the position and rights of women. At the present time, they have the right to be seen, to raise money, by wise or unwise means, but they must keep silence and be in subjection, having no voice in the councils of the church. We think there is a better time coming. Thanking you for space in your valuable journal,

I am yours,

A WOMAN.

The New Wesleyan President.

The election of Rev. John Scott-Lidgett to the presidency of the British Wesleyan Conference makes him, with the exception of the late Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, the youngest man to occupy the highest honor in the Methodist Church. Possessed of a strong and vigorous personality, and with considerable power as a speaker, his year of office promises to be an exceptionally busy one. Mr. Scott-Lidgett entered the Wesleyan Ministry at twenty-two years of age, and the same year received an appointment to a circuit. He was elected in 1897 a member of the London School Board, and in 1904 became a member of the Education Committee of the London County Council. In the following year he was elected an alderman of the council, being the first Wesleyan minister to be so honored. About a year ago Mr. Scott-Lidgett was appointed editor of The Methodist Times, and has since done much to bring about a better understanding between labor and the Free Churches.

SEVEN CARS OF WHEAT WERE DERAILED ON NEW SIDING

Seven cars of wheat for the Quaker Oats Company jumped the track on the new G.T.R. siding into the factory this morning. The cause of them being derailed is attributed to the fact that the rails had spread. The accident occurred near the bridge over the dam and had it taken place just a little farther on the cars would have all gone into the river.

THE ANNUAL THANKOFFERING

Held Last Night at the Park St. Baptist Church

The annual thank offering meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of the Park Street Baptist church was held last night. Miss Maggie Mann was in the chair.

Rev. Mr. Riddiford the pastor, opened the meeting with prayer. Addresses were given by Mrs. H. P. Kennedy and Miss McCullough, secretary of the W.W.C.A. Messrs. Miller and Dawson gave appreciated vocal selections.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

FELL ASLEEP ON THE ROAD

South Ops Farmer Had Narrow Escape From Horrible Death

Lindsay, Dec. 10—A farmer residing east of the town had a narrow escape from a terrible death last evening and the fact that he is alive today is due to the presence of mind and promptness of a well known resident of South Ops.

The farmer in question was in town during the afternoon and started for home early in the evening. When near Ops station he apparently fell asleep as the team wandered onto the track. The south Ops resident had occasion to visit the station to meet a friend who was coming on the train and who intended getting off at this point. He was surprised to see the sleigh across the track, and he at once hurried to the spot and roused the sleeping occupant.

The train had already whistled for the station and was fast bearing down upon them. Just as the end of the sleigh cleared the track the local came tearing by. It was certainly a narrow escape, and had it not been for the watchfulness of the South Ops resident a terrible accident would be recorded.

Hamilton's old custom house is suggested as a municipal lodging house.

PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT

a manufacturer looking for a location than by a month's correspondence. The result would also be much more satisfactory. Ald. Bradburn asked Mr. Larmonth how much power his company had for sale and was told that the Peterborough Light and Power Company had about 1,000 horse power for sale.

Ald. Bradburn said that he would like to see the city have some power of its own. It would be much easier to deal with manufacturers if the city had power of its own. The speaker told of what the Power Committee of the Council had been doing and came out strongly in favor of municipal ownership of power.

MR. LANGFORD.

Mr. Wm. Langford said that Mr. Larmonth had stated that the city should have a man after business like a firm had its travellers. A traveller, however, could not do business if his firm had not the goods. The city should have power of its own to offer manufacturers and not be dependent on a private company in this connection. Information as to available sites for manufacturers should be put in concise form and given publicity.

ALD. JOHNSTON.

Ald. Johnston said that Peterborough should be able to compete with other places. He mentioned Welland and Campbellford as towns that were going ahead because they were offering inducements to manufacturers. Ald. Johnston agreed with Mr. Larmonth that Peterborough should have man out after industries like a business firm had its travellers out after business.

ALD. GILLESPIE

Ald. Gillespie said the power question was a vital one. If Peterborough had the power it could compete with other towns. Peterborough had many advantages to offer manufacturers and if the city had cheap power there was no reason why many industries should not be secured.

MR. McWILLIAMS.

Mr R. F. McWilliams came out strongly in favor of the city having power of its own. The citizens should not rest until it had been secured. He was also in favor of having the advantages of the city placed before the manufacturers of the United States and the Old Country. The Old Country was the place to look to for industries. Mr. McWilliams stated that a pamphlet should be prepared each year, setting forth Peterborough's many advantages.

MR W R MORRIS.

Mr W. R. Morris was also in favor of a publicity department for the city.

MR. AUSTIN.

Mr. Austin told what Edmonton was doing to secure industries, his information being secured during a recent visit to that city. Edmonton had sent out two men armed with information about that city to travel the United States and British Isles, and placed the advantages of Edmonton before the manufacturers of these countries.

RESOLUTIONS

Moved by Mr. Wm Langford,
Seconded by Mr F. W Dean,

"That it is greatly to the interests of this city to immediately acquire power to sell to manufacturers desirous of locating here."—Carried.

Moved by Mr Wm. Langford,
Seconded by Mr W. Might,

"That this Board of Trade appoints a committee composed of the President, Vice-President, Messrs J. H. Larmonth and W. H. Moore, to interview the city council with the object of having all available sites suitable for manufacturing enterprises tabulated and of establishing a publicity department in connection with their manufactures committee, to advertise the advantages of the city of Peterborough as a manufacturing centre and, when this department should consider it advisable in the interests of the city, to send some businessmen to personally interview intending manufacturers with the object of inducing them to locate here."—Carried.

ANNUAL MEETING OF ORANGE LODGE

Duke of Manchester L.O.L. Elects New Officers--Is in Flourishing Condition

There was a large attendance at the annual meeting of the Duke of Manchester L.O.L. No. 50, last evening in the Orange Hall. Several visitors were also present from sister lodges, principally No. 80 and 1175, which had the effect of making the meeting more interesting, and added considerably to its success.

The various officers presented their reports, giving in detail the numerical and financial standing of the lodge, and the progress it has made since its institution on 23rd March, last, which was considered very satisfactory. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year, and installed in their respective offices by R. E. Juby, District Master;

W. M., Bro. W. H. G. Armstrong
D. M., Bro. R. Mitchell,
Chap., Bro. H. L. Brace.
Rec. Sec., Bro. M. Armstrong.
Fin. Sec., Bro. N. A. Howard-Moore.
Treasurer, Bro. P. Johnston.
D. of C., Bro. H. Dodds.
1st Lect., Bro. N. Hopkins.
2nd Lect., Bro. Geo. Godfrey.
1st Com., Bro. S. Tisdale.
2nd Com., Bro. Chas. Barrie.
3rd Com., Bro. N. Barrie.
4th Com., T. Record.
5th Com., Bro. G. Campbell-Stuart.

After the installation ceremony and and a few short addresses, dainty refreshments were served, which were very much enjoyed.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of Court Chemong, No. 530, Independent Order of Foresters was held in the S.O.E Hall last night when a large attendance of the members were present.

C.R.—W. G. McKee.
V.C.R.—F. C. Rooke.
R.S.—J. W. Buyers.
F.S.—G. W. Powell.
Treas.—Wm. Madill.
Orator—Rev. J. C. Davidson.
Organist—Mrs. H. J. McCarman.
S. of J.C.—G. H. Robertson.
S.W.—W. R. Grose.
J.W.—J. R. Brownlee.
S.B.—J. Jinks.
G.B.—R. Briggs.
C.P.—Dr. N. C. McKinnon.
P.C.R.—A. H. Webb.
C.D.—D. Wallace.
Auditors—Dr. D. N. Carmichael, Dr. J. M. McCulloch.
Finance Committee—A. H. Webb, J. McBain.

An interesting installation ceremony will be held at the semi-monthly meeting on Thursday evening, January 14th, which will be open to the members and their friends.

WILL APPROACH COMMISSION

Peterboro' May Negotiate With Hydro-Electric Power Commission

A Toronto despatch says;

It is expected that Peterborough will shortly approach the Hydro-Electric Power Commission with regard to power. It is proposed to obtain this if possible from sources about twenty miles north of the city, and have practically the same plan worked out as at Ottawa. Failing in this, however, the commission may be asked to bring Niagara power to the city. It is thought that perhaps eight thousand horsepower may be used annually.

A WINTER FAIR

We would ask the Board of Trade at their next special meeting which is to be held shortly to consider the advisability of advocating a winter fair for Peterborough. There is no known means of advertising Peterborough that we have heard of like it. In Western Ontario, at Guelph, and other places winter fairs have been a very distinct success. In all the midland district there is no mid-winter festival of entertainment and instruction. Why shouldn't Peterborough lead the van as usual? Just as sure as some other Midland district centre of population adopts the plan popular interest will swing away from Peterborough to that place. We hold the lead, why not keep it? If it is advisable to advertise, here is an excellent medium and we should have the advantage of enlisting the news-disseminating propensities of journals everywhere. What do the citizens think of it? At any rate we have put the suggestions before the citizens of Peterborough in time so that in case they see fit to adopt it their course will not savour of copying or being envious. The city papers would do, we are confident, all in their power to make the scheme a success and the armouries would furnish us with a place to hold it in, second to none anywhere.

Our hotels are numerous and large enough to accommodate a great number of guests. They are of excellent quality and would help to keep the city in the good graces of the travelling public. We have everything that would make such a fair a success. why not have it?

FIVE TEAMS REPRESENTED IN MERCANTILE LEAGUE

A meeting of the teams interested in mercantile hockey was held in the Grand Trunk freight offices on Charlotte street last night, when five clubs were represented. The object of the meeting was to form a mercantile league and this was successfully carried out, and the new organization starts off with every prospect of great success.

The teams represented were;

The Quakers.
B. F. Ackerman's.
Auburn Woollen Mills.
CGE. office staff.
Grand Trunk.

The following officers were elected,

Hon. Pres—J R Stratton.
Pres.—W C. Ackerman.
Vice-Pres—W Hartley.
Sec-Treas.—E V. Morphet.

Executive committee —T J. Carsons, CGE; Chas Ackerman of Ackerman's; W Shaw, of Auburn's; B A. Rose of the Grand Trunk, and F. G. Hessirp of the Quakers.

All those playing in this year's city league will be barred.

All players eligibe must be employed by the firm with whose team they are playing at least one week before the game.

The executive will meet soon and draw up the schedule.

IROQUOIR TOOK THREE STRAIGHT FROM GRAYS

The Iroquois took the series from the reorganized Grays in last night's ten pin fixture at the PBC, winning all three games. It looked like the Grays had broken their losing streak in the first game which was one of those where a spare would have completely changed the complexion of things but the Grays were not equal to the occasion at the critical moment and they lost by the small margin of ten pins.

They started out like winners in the second game also, but unfortunately Sullivan who had high score in the first game, ran into a series of the most unlucky splits and as a result, fell down.

Perry and McFadden did everything possible to haul the game out of the fire, but they were unable to overcome their opponents' lead and lost by 28 pins.

In the third game Perry took his turn at being high man for the Grays. The pins were breaking badly for his team mates while the Indians were favored by all the luck that was going and easily won out.

Martin had high single and the highest aggregate score of the evening, while the high single for the losers was captured by McFadden. Perry bowled consistently throughout and had the best aggregate for his team.

Tonight the Belmonts and Midgets will come together and the game should prove a most strenuous one as the result means considerable to both teams. The Midgets are now in second place with five wins and one loss, while the Belmonts have broken even to date with three wins and a similar number of reverses. If the Belmonts take two out of three they will oust the Midgets from second place and if they take the three will tie with the Pacifics and Iroquois for that position.

The scores follow;

IROQUOIS.

REFEREEING IS A HARD JOB

Raoul de Rouen Beat Managoff the Turk at Graeco Roman—Forget Had Big Task

At straight Graeco-Roman style recently Raoul de Rouen, the new French wrestler, easily defeated Managoff, the Turk, winning two straight falls, 23.30 and 14.30 mins. respectively. The Turk was outmatched in weight by the immense Frenchman, the difference between the two being about forty pounds, and at the Graeco-Roman game he had no chance. Managoff is well built and very active, and showed that at catch-as-catch-can he would be a formidable opponent for most of the big fellows on the mat in America today. At Graeco-Roman he was smothered by the weight and strength of the Frenchman and after a game struggle succumbed, first on a bar-arm hold in 23.30, and the second time on a half-Nelson, with a bar lock, started by a roll, in 14.30.

The attendance last night was considerably smaller than last week, when De Rouen and the other Turk Yussiff Mahmout, met. This time there was no disorder and neither wrestler showed any desire to quit. But the crowd had lots of amusement out of the disputes that arose over the decisions of the referee, Stanley Forget. Forget had officiated in many of the preliminaries and last night Dr. Gadbois decided that he would look on from the side and let Forget handle the big match.

Forget's troubles started early, each wrestler in turn protesting at the match being stopped for alleged breaks into the catch-as-catch-can game. The Turk, was a frequent offender at this, an once doubled up de Rouen with a toe hold that brought the spectators to their feet. The men were pulled apart and de Rouen walked up and down the stage protesting vehemently and claiming that the other man should be disqualified.

On another occasion the Turk was told to desist from using his legs and he broke away from de Rouen and roughly pushed the referee away from the centre of the mat.

The chief trouble, however, arose when at the end of the first twenty minutes, just a few seconds before time for the gong for the one minute rest, de Rouen secured a neck hold on the Turk which brought him to the mat. The referee ruled that it was a strangle, and many in the crowd agreed with him. De Rouen maintained that it was a "cravat tense," or neck lock, and proceeded to demonstrate the difference between the two on the referee himself. In big De Rouen's arms the referee was put through a treatment that was painful if not convincing. The upshot of the trouble was that the wrestlers were ordered to the mat again after the minute's rest, and in less than four minutes the Turk was downed for the first fall.

The mate was a lively one, but de Rouen had so much advantage in weight that there never seemed a chance of the other gaining a fall, and thus the interest suffered. Next week Henderson, a big chap of 210 pounds, is likely to meet De Rouen.

De Rouen last Wednesday night wrestled Fred Mohl in Boston, and in four minutes Mohl was forced to leave the mat with a broken collar bone.

WILL HAVE TO WALK 25,000 MILES IN TWO YEARS' TIME IF WAGER IS TO BE WON

Undertaking of Messrs. Fletcher and Hines, Two Halifax Young Men—$5,000 Up That They Can Accomplish Feat Within Specified Time.

To walk 25,000 miles in two years on a wager of $5000 is the proposition that has been taken up by F. Hines, 36 Star street, Halifax, and Carl Fletcher, of Buckingham street in the same city. The latter is an immediate neighbor of Hines in Halifax, and the walk was commenced on April 2nd, 1908 and in order to win the bet the walk must be finished by April 2nd, 1910. The bet is between the Halifax Yacht Club, of which the pedestrians are members and the Sporting Club of Halifax. On the conditions of the walk the walkers started without a cent and will have to make their way through as best they can. They are both vaudeville performers and quite frequently give sketches along the route of their walk.

The men are both interested in the financial end of the proposition and while they have no money of their own at stake will each be remunerated in the four figures should they accomplish their task. If they don't accomplish it, however, they won't be out anything, and as both are young, the spirit of sightseeing and the novelty of the undertaking appeals to them. They have already completed 8000 miles of the journey.

IN COLD LABRADOR

The starting point of the walk was Nein, Labrador, 2000 miles north of Newfoundland, and from here they travelled to Port Aux Basque, Newfoundland, and from there had to take the steamer to North Sydney, Cape Breton. In crossing Labrador it was necessary to go over the Newfoundland desert and in this barrens stretch of country the walkers were 36 hours without food. It is about 3000 miles from Nein to Port Aux Basque.

From North Sydney, CB., the route of the walk was to Halifax, from there to Quebec, to Montreal, to Ottawa, to Mattawa, up through the Temiscaming district to the Montreal River then to Halleybury, North Bay and Toronto. From Toronto the globe trotters came here by way of Belleville. The pair have gone 8000 miles, they estimate. From Nein to Halifax is 4000 and from Halifax, here by the long and roundabout course, they took is 4000 more, so roughly speaking they have traversed 8000 miles. From here they intend to go back to Toronto and take the main line to Detroit. From Detroit they will start for the Western States and go as far west as required, then commence their return trip to Halifax.

WEEKLY REPORTS

Every place they visit they get certificates from clergymen and the Mayor of the town if possible and these prove that their travels are bona fide. At the end of every week a report of the ground covered is forwarded to Halifax.

The walkers carry a book in which is given the names of the individuals and firms contributing to them, anything in the line of articles of apparel or money. For while, the men are not asking for assistance anything to help them out on their long trip is acceptable.

Messrs. Hines and Fletcher generally walk in ordinary attire, although when they were in Labrador and Newfoundland they had necessarily to be very warmly clothed. Their average day is about 10 hours in length and the average distance 23 miles. They speak very highly of the way they are received in every place and of their treatment here at the Orienta and from the citizens generally. They have certificates of their visit here signed by the Mayor and Rev Father McColl. A railway map is carried by the walkers so that they can be sure of their bearing.

MEETING MONDAY TO FORM TRACK TEAM AT THE Y.M.C.A.

All YMCA seniors are asked to attend the meeting at the building on Monday night for the purpose of organizing a YMCA. track club. The club, when formed will go in for indoor and outdoor track work and should be a flourishing organization as the Peterborough YMCA. has some fast track men in its athletic membership and a splendid track team could be formed.

It is desirable to get the ball rolling early so all interested are requested to be on hand on Monday evening

MONTREAL CENTRAL Y AND BROWNIES GAME AROUSES CONSIDERABLE INTEREST

The principal topic of interest in basketball circles at the Central Y.M.C.A. these days is the visit of the Peterborough team. The Brownies have made a great reputation up west, playing a very fast game, after the style of the western teams. The fact that the game has been arranged for New Year's eve should result in a bumper gathering. The Peterborough team played in Montreal some years ago and made a clean-up of the local teams; since then they have improved wonderfully, and the game in the Central "Y" gymnasium on New Years' eve should be a good exhibition. The Central senior team, who hold the championship of Eastern Canada, promise to show a big improvement over last season. They are practising hard and will be in good shape to play Peterborough.

There are two games to-night in the Association League at 8.15. Cubs and Harriers come together, and it will be a good game. The second game, Vics, and Business Men line up. This will be the first time these two teams have played this season, and as both teams are playing fast ball and a good game should result. Mr. W. S. Maguire will referee both games.—Montreal Gazette.

THREE GAMES FOR BROWNIES

Will Play Two in Montreal and One in Ottawa—Game With West End Off.

The Brownies play two games in Montreal with Central YMCA. team on December 31, and play in Ottawa against the YMCA. team of the Capital on January 2nd. The game that was to have been played with West End YMCA. in Toronto Tuesday night has been called off as the Toronto men play London instead on that date.

BURNS TO MEET ALL COMERS

At Theatre Royal, Montreal, Next Week—Easy Victory Over Fritz Mohl

Cyclone Burns, the English wrestler, will meet all comers at the Theatre Royal, Montreal, next week. Burns won the English heavyweight championship in Manchester, Eng., in April of this year. Since coming to this country he has wrestled six matches and won them all. His last victory was against Fritz Mohl, whom he beat very easily in two straight falls. He is matched with Yussiff Mahmout and the match will take place during Christmas week in Manchester, N.H.

Burns' best performance was in his match with Lemm, who is now matched with Frank Gotch. Lemm was 35 lbs. heavier than Cyclone, but they wrestled one hour to a draw. Burns was found to have had his shoulder dislocated early in the match, and was only able to use one arm for over half the time wrestled.

HAS HAD HIS KNEE BROKEN

And Hurtubise Will Wrestle Against Cyclone Burns in Toronto To-night

Hassan Abdallah won't be able to wrestle Cyclone Burns tonight at the Riverdale rink, Toronto. The unfortunate Hassan sprained his knee yesterday while going to the station at Montreal and therefore won't be able to take part in the match.

The place of the Turk will be taken by Gene Hurtubise who left today accompanied by his manager, Mr. C. G. Graham. Hassan was also matched to meet Hurtubise on Monday in Belleville but another wrestler will have to be secured to take the Oriental's place.

MARTIN HAS BEST AVERAGE IN THE LEAGUE

Secretary Herb Martin reports that Wareham still leads in the individual averages with 175 for six games, while Pollard, also of the Belmonts, is a good second, with 172. Of the players who have taken part in nine games, Martin is in the lead with Ford, of the Bankers, a good second. The figures for the first seven players are as follows:

Martin, 160 1-2.
Ford, 157 1-2.
LePlante, 153 1-2.
Hay, 153.
Huston, 152.
Adams, 151.
Barber, 150 1-2.

The Ghost of Lochrain Castle

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson—Author of "The Princess Passes," "The Lightning Conductor," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON

Trowbridge, struggling to regain his balance, had caught his foot in the folds of a loose-lying carpet, and falling against the man behind him, not only destroyed his aim, but received the bullet in his own body.

Then, for the fraction of a second, Elspeth caught a glimpse of that other face. Disfigured though they were by fear and some other emotion more terrible still, she recognized the features. They were those of the mysterious man she had seen twice before—once revealed by white floods of moonlight in the tower room; again, in a corridor downstairs as he had passed her. But even as the revelation came, it was gone. The face was withdrawn from the light, and turning the man fled.

"I must have him!" cried the detective, darting along the passage, his lantern held high, and Captain Oxford sprang forward to snatch up the other lantern, which had crashed to the floor. Disregarding the danger of treachery, he bent over Trowbridge, who, shot in the back, had fallen heavily forward on his face.

"Good heavens, I believe he's killed!" cried the young man. "It's Trowbridge!"

"The man who would have killed you," said Kenrith. "Strange that his last act should have been to save your life."

The fallen man stirred and groaned, "I'm—done for," he gasped, trying to turn upon his side, and a thin stream of blood oozing from his lips as he spoke. "I—don't want to die—without seeing—her."

Oxford would have moved him, gently laying him upon his back, but Trowbridge groaned in anger, as well as pain. "No—not you, I hate you," he said. "Let Kenrith."

There was no need for him to finish. The man was dying, and no matter how vilely he had sinned, he must be forgiven now. Kenrith went down on one knee, and brushing up the loose carpet, made a kind of rough pillow for Trowbridge's head.

"Is it Countess Radepolskoi you wish to see?" he asked.

"No—she's dead; I killed her," panted the dying man. "Up there above—she's lying. I— did it to—save Hilary. It's Hilary I must see. Bring her someone, quickly."

Kenrith looked up at Elspeth. "What is to be done?" he asked.

"I will fetch Lady Hilary here; I promise," answered the girl.

"And the doctor," said Kenrith.

Trowbridge heard, and lifted his hand with a commanding gesture. "Not now," he said. "Hilary first—the doctor afterward. But what use? I know I'll die. And I don't want to live. I've—lost everything I've played for. For Heaven's sake, girl, bring Hilary to me. If you will—I—I'll tell her things you would all give much to know."

"I'll go," repeated Elspeth. "There's nothing to be afraid of now."

"The other man—whoever he was," suggested Oxford.

"He will have enough to do to escape from the detective," said Kenrith. "And even if he does escape"—

"What then?"

"And so did I," said Elspeth.

They were the last words she spoke in the secret passage, for Trowbridge's eyes, brilliant with fever in the dull glow of the lantern which was to have lighted him to another crime, implored her not to delay. She went out as she had come, into the tower room and so downstairs, reaching the great hall in time to hear the tall clock strike the half hour after four, and to see the dawn turning to jewels the colored panes in the big stained-glass window.

"The Countess dead!" she kept saying over and over to herself, as mechanically she went on toward the stairs which would lead her to Hilary Vane's room. "It was her face I touched—that cold, cold face lying there in the secret room; her hair that was so wavy and soft. And—and if I hadn't begged him to save Lady Hilary from her at any cost, she would be alive now. How terrible — how wicked he is; and yet—how he loves Hilary! It was for her—he said it was for her."

So Elspeth came to a closed door which she knew, and tapped once, softly. Before she had time to knock again, the door was opened, and Hilary stood silhouetted against the half light in the room within, her long, beautiful hair hanging loose over a white dressing gown.

"Yes. I," said Elspeth. You haven't been asleep."

"No. I am too unhappy to sleep. Oh, Elspeth, I'm glad to see you. Did you come because you felt I wanted you? You were a dear to send my letter to him — back; but after all it was no use. I shall have to marry him."

"Dearest, he is dying," said Elspeth. "Death, and his own wickedness, have freed you. But—he wants to see you now; and you can't refuse."

"Dying!" echoed the girl.

"Yes. I'll explain on the way, if you'll come. Oh, do come, not only for his sake, but for the sake of the man you love. I think—he knows who Captain Oxford really is, and would tell you that, and everything if you asked him, because he loves you so, though he would tell no one else."

Such explanations as could be given in haste, Elspeth did give; but when the two girls reached the tower, Hilary understood very little of what had passed. She knew that Trowbridge had been shot in a secret place near Elspeth's old room; that Captain Oxford and Mr. Kenrith were both there; that Trowbridge was dying, and had begged to see her; that she must try to get him to tell her all his story before it should be too late.

"How is he?" asked Elspeth, at the door of the secret passage, for Kenrith, hearing her voice, hastened to meet her there. "Oh, don't say he is dead, without speaking?"

"No, he is not dead," said Kenrith, "but he can't hold out long. I think he's been shot through the lungs, and that the case is hopeless. Every word he speaks gives him agony—but he wants to speak, Lady Hilary. He's been saving himself for you. Go in; and send Oxford, who is watching him, here."

A moment later the young man came. The dawnlight was finding its way through the windows of the tower room now, and putting out the stars. The three stood close together, talking in whispers, their faces pale and weary in the gray dusk.

"You'll have to go and find the doctor, Oxford," said Kenrith. "It won't do for us to let him die without one, though I know well enough that no doctor can do any good, or could, if we had run after him at the first moment. There's the dead woman up above, too—murdered by him, on his own confession. That secret must be told. McGowan ought to know. Will you wake him, and tell him he had better come? Say that the mysteries which have been puzzling us for 24 hours can be explained behind these walls, thanks to Miss Dean, his secretary."

"I'll do my best," said Oxford. "But look here, Kenrith, do you really think that poor wretch in there was the fellow who tried to do for me the other night?"

"I think that he was acting for some one else."

"Who? Your voice sounds strangely when you say that."

"The man our detective has gone to find."

"Yes—but who is that man?"

"I'll keep my secret till Lady Hilary comes out to us again. Then we shall see if she does not say the same name which is in my mind. But go—go and find the doctor. It is time."

CHAPTER XXI.

Elspeth Dean and Kenrith were alone together for the first moment since he had told the girl that he loved her.

Only a few yards away, on the other side of the secret door, which was now wide open, they could hear the murmur of the dying man's voice, as he talked brokenly, painfully, to Lady Hilary Vane. But they could hear no words; and strange as was the situation, for a few minutes they forgot all its strangeness, except as it concerned themselves.

"You are the bravest girl in the world," said Kenirth. "No other girl could or would have done what you have done to-night. You saved Captain Oxford's life by the risk of your own"——

"But it was you I thought of, more than of him," confessed Elspeth. "Perhaps I shouldn't have had so much courage if I had known that, whatever happened, you were safe and out of reach of the fire."

"I think you would have just the same courage," said Kenrith, "because it is in you. I had not known you long before I recognized your strength of character, your brave self-reliance and noble loyalty, which alone would be enough to place you on a pedestal far above any other woman I have ever known. And then your sweetness"——

"Ah, you are too good to me!" broke in the girl. "I am nothing, really; I'm not worthy of you. I never dreamed that you could even think of me, except in kindness, and as if from far off."

"I have thought of very little else for a long time now," said Kenrith. "But I was afraid that I was too old for you—that you couldn't care for me as a woman should be able to care for a man if she"——

He took her in his arms; and as she stood with her head on his breast, hearing the beating of his heart, she was more than paid, for all her suffering of the past few days would have paid for years of suffering far more cruel than she had known in those dark days.

"I thought you were in love with"——she began at last; then stopped, feeling she had no right to say to him what had been on her lips to say. But he answered frankly.

"With Lady Lambart? No, dearest, I was never in love with her. I've never been truly in love with any woman until you came into my life, to show me what I had unconsciously been waiting to find through all these years. I didn't love Lady Lambart, but I admired her, was even somewhat attracted by her, especially when we first met; and I admit it's not impossible, if I had never seen you, that while we were thrown together here, I might have asked her to marry me. Even to-night I was wondering if it were my duty to do so, though she no longer interested me as she had once. But when you and I looked into each other's eyes to-night I saw something in yours akin to what was in my heart for you. Then I knew that after all I was not too old; that you and I were meant for each other; and that it would be a sin to offer my name to another woman, while you and I belonged to one another in love. Probably, if I had asked Lady Lambart she wouldn't have accepted me."

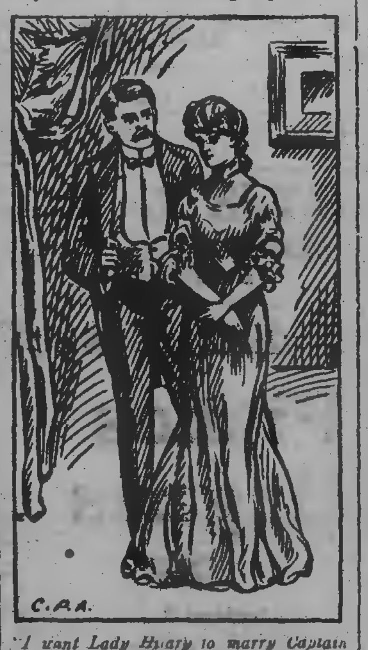
Elspeth made no answer, but she hid an incredulous smile on his breast. Many girls in her position would at such a moment have satisfied their innate desire for revenge by telling all the wrongs they had suffered from a jealous rival; but Elspeth held her peace. Even if she had not loved Lady Lambart's daughter she would not have robbed the woman of such kindly friendship as John Kenrith could still give. She said to herself putting away a mean little temptation, that she would be glad to have him help Lady Lambart in her difficulties.

As if her thoughts had spoken to him, he went on. "I want Lady Hilary to marry Captain Oxford. They love each other, and he's a fine fellow. She could never have been Trowbridge's wife; and now, you and I must see what we can do for those two."

"You and I!" How delicious it was to hear him speak like that, linking her future with his.

"I believe," she said, "that when the whole truth about this plot is found out, we shall discover that Captain Oxford is a man of importance, a man Lady Lambart would think twice of before refusing as a husband for her daughter."

"You think that?" Kenrith echoed. "So do I, somehow; but we have no very solid foundation to go upon, I'm afraid. There's the fact that it was worth some one's while to have him put out of the way, but"——



"I want Lady Hilary to marry Captain Oxford."

"Oh!" cried Lady Hilary, coming quickly into the room. "I think he's dying. Is the doctor here yet?"

"Not yet," answered Kenrith. But at this instant the door opened and Oxford came back, with the doctor and Mr. McGowan.

"Bring more light," said Hilary. "It's so dark there. The lantern is burning dimly. And—he has promised to try and sign a statement, if I will write it out."

CHAPTER XXII.

It was a strange confession which Trowbridge had made to the girl he had loved and hoped to marry, that night when he knew that [illegible] was near.

He had begun brokenly, by telling her how he had loved her, and how, for her sake, he had meant to give up a successful career of crime.

"I want you to be happy," he had said, "so that when you think of me it won't be in hatred. I should like your happiness to come through me, as perhaps, it might have come if I had lived and could have taught you to care for me after you were my wife. If it weren't for that wish I'd let every secret I have, of mine and of others, die with me, for I've been half mad with jealousy of Oxford ever since the first moment I saw and fell in love with you. I came here to kill him, for another; and afterward, to keep you two apart I would have been glad to do it for myself. But I failed, and I've got the shot in my lungs that was meant for his heart. Because I want you to forgive me, and because the one thing to ease the pain I'm suffering is the thought that it's in my power to give you a happy future, I'm going to tell you a thing you would never know if it weren't for me."

Then the whole story had come out, brokenly, for each word he uttered was like a dagger thrust in Trowbridge's breast.

He was not an American, he said, but an Austrian, who had lived in many places and done many things. Neither was he the millionaire he pretended to be. "That was a pose," he said, "and the Syndicate is responsible for my expenses—the Underground Syndicate, as outsiders call it. No, I'm not going to give it away. The others are just as safe as ever, and it doesn't matter any more for my assistant here—Countess Radepolskoi, as she called herself for this occasion, and for a special purpose. She's dead. She had to die, or she would have spoiled your life."

The Countess who was no Countess, and who had become a Radepolskoi merely because John Kenrith had bought the Radepolskoi diamond, had been sent by the Syndicate to get that diamond; also the pearl which Kenrith was supposed to carry with him; and the jewels of Lady Ardcliffe, which were famous. Her own jewels, so magnificent in appearance, were almost all false, and her fortune equally a pretence; money supplied by the Syndicate that she might seem a rich woman, above suspicion. Her maid was a humbler member of the same organization, a person of little initiative, but skilled as an assistant. Trowbridge did not know how the Countess had intended to prove Lady Hilary a thief, but if any jewels—one or two of the few real ones, perhaps, possessed by the Countess—were to be hidden in Lady Hilary's room, or attached to her dress, he had no doubt that the maid had been the person to dispose of them.

He had known for some years the woman who called herself the Countess of Radepolskoi. She was half Polish, half French. Her real name was Annette Dritz. He, Trowbridge, had given her reason to think that he cared for her, and would marry her some day; and they had often "worked cases" together, though at Lochrain Castle Hydro they pretended to be newly acquainted.

As for himself, he had come to Lochrain to play a much higher game than Annette's; nothing less than to get rid of a certain person for an important client of the Syndicate. That person was Captain Oxford. Trowbridge had learned all he could about the young man before attempting to fulfil this engagement. Among other things he had discovered that he was in love with Lady Hilary Vane, and intended to follow her and her mother to the Hydro where they were going. Trowbridge had borne him no personal grudge until he himself had seen and fallen in love with Lady Hilary. Then he had determined to throw over Annette, whose game he had been intending to help on all he could; marry Lady Hilary, and retire from the Syndicate on the considerable private fortune he had been able to amass in his profession.

It was he who had shot Captain Oxford after writing him an anonymous letter appointing a place of meeting, and saying that he had valuable information to give concerning the young man's true parentage. The dog, Prince Charlie, had destroyed his aim by springing on him and biting his wrist, so mangling it that he had been obliged to call for aid from Annette.

He had an appointment to keep in the secret room the same night with the man who had ordered Captain Oxford's death—that important client to whose advantage it was that Oxford should cease to exist.

They were to meet there because it was a convenient place for the client, who could come and go by means of an underground passage which led away to the ruin of a still older castle built by the Lochrains, and destroyed by fire before the newer one was begun.

Annette was summoned there to dress and bind the wound, and in the process much blood had flowed before it could be staunched. Trowbridge had not learned then that the room below was newly occupied by the little typewriter who had just arrived; but afterward, when he found out that the room was in use, he had arranged for all necessary meetings to be held elsewhere.

When the first attempt on Captain Oxford's life had failed, another plan was concocted. As Oxford went out every day in Mr. Kenrith's motor car, the chauffeur was bribed to feign illness, and one of the wheels of the motor car was tampered with. That affair also had ended abortively, the only good thing accomplished being the annexation of Kenrith's jewels while he lay unconscious.

Meanwhile James Grant, Mr. McGowan's secretary, had been suborned. As he was known to be in love with Elspeth Dean, and Elspeth Dean was deep in the confidence of Lady Ardcliffe and John Kenrith, it had been hoped that through Grant she could be used as a tool. But Grant knew nothing of the Syndicate. He thought that Trowbridge—the man who offered him a bribe tremendously tempting—was alone interested in bringing off the desired coup.

Thus, always, the Underground Syndicate was faithfully guarded as well as served.

The only good turn, Trowbridge said, which Elspeth Dean had ever done for him, was to enable him to protect Lady Hilary from the malice of the woman who would have had her arrested as a thief. If Elspeth had not come running to tell him what was about to happen, he would not have known in time to save the girl he loved. As it was, he had simply ordered Annette Dritz to meet him in the secret room without delay. She had not dared to disregard the command, and had hastened to the rendezvous, leaving her revenge to be accomplished later.

Trowbridge had soon followed, and knowing that persuasion or threats would be useless where Hilary was concerned, had come softly upon the woman and stabbed her in the back. She had staggered forward dead without a cry, and he had laid the body gently on the floor, lest some one should be in Elspeth Dean's room underneath.

Trowbridge had been certain that the dead woman might safely be left to lie throughout the whole day, in the secret room, as nobody save himself and that client of the Syndicate for whom he acted, knew that the hidden room had not been destroyed by a fall of the tower's roof.

As a fire was planned for that same night—a fire in which it seemed certain that Captain Oxford must perish—it would be easy to arrange that the flames should spread a little farther and destroy the tower also, with all the secrets hidden there.

If he had not desired to spare Elspeth Dean, she would have been allowed to sleep as usual in the tower room. Then, she would have heard and suspected nothing; no alarm would have been given, and the scheme would have succeeded.

All these things were told by Trowbridge in a few words, and it was not until the last that he dwelt upon that part of his story which was of most importance for Hilary Vane's future.

"Our Syndicate ferrets out the secrets of rich people," he said, "or people who would be rich or titled if some one else were out of the way. Then, it offers its help in bringing about a desired object; and as it never solicits a client who has not something already to conceal, the Syndicate does not risk exposure. It has never been betrayed by a client, and has never betrayed a client. I am not betraying one now, because the man for whom I've acted, under orders from the Syndicate, is already betrayed. Kenrith saw his face, I know, and must have recognized it, as only a few hours ago the man had sent for him—sent for him to keep him out of the way while the fire was started by me. Not that this man or I cared much whether Kenrith lived or died; but he's known to sit up late reading in his room, and it was thought safer for our plans that he shouldn't be there.

"Kenrith saw him, as he tried to shoot Oxford, and shot me instead; and besides, he was pursued by a man younger than he. The one I speak of is Lord Lochrain.

"We—the Syndicate—had found out that there was a secret in Lord Lochrain's family. The son of the old Lord, this one's predecessor, had disappeared, and was supposed to be dead. If he had not died, the present Lord Lochrain would not have inherited. But that was not the secret. The secret was this:

"Old Lord Lochrain's son used to have the tower room, where Miss Dean has been sleeping. He was in love with a girl beneath him in station; his father discovered the affair, and forbade the boy to see the girl. Not long after a quarrel the father and son had in consequence there was an attempt on the old man's life. Someone stole into his room at night, and tried to murder him, but the old man shrieked for help, and help came. The murderer had escaped, leaving only a knife known to belong to Lord Lochrain's only son. After that night the young man was never seen again, and his father lived on, believing him guilty. The boy had escaped, apparently, by the secret way, from his own room in the tower, and next morning the mark of blood-stained fingers was found on his pillow.

"After this the present Lord Lochrain who—mark this—was visiting in the castle at the time of the attempted murder, was practically adopted by his uncle. Later, when proofs of the son's death in Canada were obtained, he became heir to the title and the estates, which would not have amounted to much had not coal lately been discovered on the land.

"We of the Syndicate got on the track of this secret. We discovered that the young man had married the girl he loved, but that she had been made to believe her marriage illegal, and had left her husband. Afterward a boy was born to her while she was in extreme poverty, and soon after his birth she had died.

"There are no better detectives than we have in the Syndicate. We followed up every trace and learned after many difficulties that the child had been taken from a provincial asylum for foundlings, and adopted by a charitable old lady, who knew nothing of his antecedents. That child is now a man, and is known as Capt. Oxford.

"If we had no sure proofs that the present Lord Lochrain himself was guilty of attempting to kill his uncle, and persuading his cousin to go off and join his sweetheart the same night, without knowing what was planned to happen, we were able to frighten him by making him believe that we had them. Also, we were sure it was he who had secretly persuaded the girl that her marriage was illegal, and induced her to run away from her young husband. Such hints were dropped by one of our agents that Lord Lochrain felt himself completely in our power, and offered the sum of a hundred thousand pounds to the Syndicate to rid him of Captain Oxford, the real heir, who could claim everything, if he but knew.

"Lord Lochrain had never seen Oxford, and wished to do so. He was staying with a friend at some miles distance from the Castle, in order to meet me and talk over the progress of affairs from time to time. But with the idea of seeing his cousin he decided to come to the Hydro as an ordinary guest.

"His first sight of Oxford gave him a fright, however, for the family likeness between them is marked. He did not think it would be wise, after all, to appear in public and have the resemblance commented on by strangers just at the time that Oxford was to be put out of the way. Therefore he kept to his room, and intended to leave to-morrow. So far as I know, no one stopping in the hotel had a glimpse of him, except Kenrith, and perhaps Elspeth Dean, one night when he came through the secret door into her tower room, not knowing that any one slept there.

"It was he who had the secret of that strange old bed in that room. He met me just as I had made the girl prisoner, after she gave the alarm of

WILL DANCE OUT OLD YEAR AND WILL WELCOME THE NEW

A year end function of interest will be the Merchants' and Clerks' Ball to be given at the Auditorium roller rink on New Year's Eve, when the merry dancers will dance the old year out and welcome the drawn of the infant season. Fifteen hundred invitations will be issued and the guests will be invited from Peterborough, Lakefield, Norwood, Port Hope, Lindsay and other places.

The rink has a fine level white maple floor and will be an excellent place to hold the ball. The floor is also a particularly large one for dancing and is spacious enough for several hundred couples. The dance, which will be the largest one in Peterborough this season will be looked forward to with pleasureable anticipation.

FIFTEEN, ON AVERAGE, DAILY, ASK FOR CHARITY

Again this winter the number of poor families in the city asking for charity is very large. On an average there are between fifteen and twenty daily, who apply to city Relief Officer Finch Miller for aid.

Mr. Miller, in conversation with the Review to-day said that as much assistance as ever would be required to supply the demands of the deserving poor. However, it was not known whether the Charity Board would supply beef and potatoes as was the case a year ago. It had not yet been decided.

A FEW ADVANTAGES OF THE DIAMOND CALK HORSE SHOE

The Calk being adjustable, the shoe has not got to be removed to be re-sharpened.

The Calk being made of case hardened steel and being triangular, having three sharp edges, it has been tested out to more than equal nine ordinary re-sharpened shoes.

The Shoe and all the parts are made of the best material. The Fittings, that is the Calks, Clamps, and Cap Screws, are renewable at a very small cost, while the Shoe itself is practically indestructible.

LINDSAY $20 IN THE HOLE

Rugby in Small Towns and Cities Doesn't Seem to Pay

Twenty dollars in the "hole."

It is not very nice to be in that shape.

But the Lindsay rugby team, junior champions of the ORFU., are twenty bucks to the bad, and where the money is to come from is the question now confronting the management.

All season the team has been running under a big expense and money coming in but slowly, and now it looks like as if the over worked management would have to dig into their own little hoards to save the rep. off the club.

Too bad, isn't it.—Lindsay Warder.

BONSPIEL JAN. 12th

Local Curlers Have Changed the Date so as Not to Conflict With Kingston Fixture.

The curlers have decided to change the date of their bonspiel from Jan. 18th to January 12th. At a meeting of the curling club on Wednesday night the former date was decided upon, but it has been changed as the Kingston curling club is holding a bonspiel on the 18th of January and the local curlers do not want to clash with the arrangement made by the Limestone City men.

HOCKEY MEETING TO-NIGHT AT THE ORIENTAL

Judging from the interest awakened there will be a big attendance at the hockey meeting to-night at the Oriental when the local hockey outlook will come in for discussion. It looks as though Peterborough would have an intermediate and junior seven in the O.H.A. this year. The Chieftains are asked to attend.

The meeting will be held at eight o'clock.

BOWLING

In a B.A.C. tournament game at the P.B.C. alleys last night, R. Best and W. Wood defeated W. Campbell and W. Cochrane, two games out of three. The first one was a tie and Best and Wood won in the play-off. The second went to Campbell and Cochrane by 4 pins, but they were pie for their opponents in the final game. The feature of the game was Best's rolling in the last game. He went through without a break, putting on the fine total of 216.

MEETING IN LONDON TO FURTHER IMPERIAL MOVE

Many Influential Persons Were Present.

Canadian Ministers Attend a Gathering at Mansion House ---Twentieth Century is Canada's.

London, Dec. 12.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—An influential meeting was held in the Mansion House (the chairman being Lord Mayor Truscott), in support of the movement in favor of state-owned cables and cheaper rates.

Those present were: The Duke of Argyle, Lords Strathcona, Milner, Jersey, Hon. Messrs. Fisher, Borden and Fielding, Sir E. Sassoon and the agents-general of most of the colonies, a number of M.P.'s and the city business men.

There was some objection to state-owned cables expressed in the word Socialism, but Sir Edward Sassoon emphasized the difference between Socialism and Imperialism.

He was more particularly concerned with a state-owned cable service across the Atlantic. It was the logical sequence of the establishment of a Pacific cable. This one step would be of incalculable importance; it was a feasible scheme, one that could be worked on a paying basis.

Figures showed the Pacific cable was not worked at an annual loss each year. There had been an excess of earnings over expenditure ranging from $125,000 to $28,000, which was regularly employed in paying off the orriginal capital expenditure.

The 20th century was Canada's. Was it not a wise policy to give cheap telegraphic communication to both countries (Cheers.)

He welcomed the help given by the United States, but as this great reform is to be achieved at no distant future, he claimed that Britain and her premier colony should lead and not follow. A state-owned cable across the Atlantic would immediately lower the charges 50 per cent. It is believed there would eventually be a uniform charge not exceeding ten cents a word.

It would immediately bring charges on messages between England, New Zealand and Australia to half or less the present exorbitant rates. It would be a harbinger of a pan-Britannic cable and telegraph system encircling the globe.

"Can that be accomplished? I think it can, and I believe it will; I have searched in vain for the word impossible in the latest edition of the English dictionary."

Hon. Mr. Fielding also spoke earnestly in favor of a cheap system on imperial grounds. Resolutions in support of the movement and calling on the Government to convene a conference, were carried. Mr. Asquith was also requested to receive a deputation of business men.

MADE GRANT TO CAVAN TOWNSHIP

Sum Has Been Given to Assist in Building Road.

It is reported that the County Council yesterday made a grant to the township of Cavan of $600, to assist in the construction of a road through the swamp. The distance to Peterborough by this proposed road will be four miles shorter than by the present one. It hardly seems possible that men who are elected to look after the interests of these counties would be guilty of such an action. It simply means the granting of $600 to assist in driving the trade from these counties to the city of Peterborough. (We may be wrongly informed upon the matter, but if not we would like an explanation from Reeve Burnham and Deputy Reeve Merrifield next Monday evening.—Port Hope Guide.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The Huron & Ontario Railway is asking Parliament for an extension of time for beginning construction.

The Bank of Vancouver is asking at Ottawa for an extension of time of commencing business to two years from April last.

W. H. Bradshaw of Tyendinaga, near Belleville, accused of setting fire to his uncle's barn, was acquitted by the jury yesterday.

EXTRADITION IN PROGRESS

Welland, Dec. 12.—It now develops that Edward Balts and William Riley, the two men who are held here on the charge of manslaughter in the drowning of four Chinamen in the Niagara river on the morning of Nov. 12 were on the date in question immigration inspector at Buffalo, and their particular duty was to watch that no Chinamen crossed the frontier without paying the tax.

They came before Police Magistrate Burgar yesterday, when Crown Attorney Cowper preferred a charge of manslaughter and proceedings for an extradition fight began. Mr. Cowper asked for a remand to bring the surviving members of the party of Chinamen from Buffalo to Welland to identify the prisoners.

CROSSINGS DANGEROUS

Dunnville, Dec. 12.—"That Mrs. Edith Miller and Burton Lloyd Miller came to their death by being struck by Michigan Central Railway train No. 31, at 9.45 a.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 8; that the devices for warning persons of the approach of trains at level crossing are inadequate; that the crossing referred to is particularly dangerous and the jury recommend that the electric alarms be placed at each dangerous crossing, and also that the approach to this particular crossing should be tiled and filled in from fence to fence."

This was the verdict of the coroner's jury in the inquest yesterday into the double fatality last Tuesday at Diltz road crossing of the M.C.R.

Engineer Johnson swore positively he whistled for the crossing, but none of the other witnesses heard either the whistle or the bell, though they would not swear no signals were given.

AN EVENING OF GUESSING AT ST. JOHN'S

On Monday evening the A.Y.P.A. of St. John's church will hold an interesting guessing contest. The guessing will be on authors, the title of books and popular magazine advertisements. All attending are requested to designate in some means the title of some books.

Prizes will be given to the successful competitors. Refreshments will be served.

"NOT OUTS" DANCE A GREAT SUCCESS

One Hundred and Twenty-five Young People in Costume--- The Prize Winners

The "Not outs" dance at the Conservatory Music hall last evening was one of the most successful events that has been held there this season. The pupils of Miss Lundy's dancing classes with a number of their friends, were present to the number of one hundred and twenty-five and a thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent

It was a masquerade dance and the costumes worn by some of the young ladies and gentlemen were exceedingly beautiful. Miss Pretty as "Bo-Peep" won the prize for the best dressed lady and Mr Jack Harstone as "An English Courtier," carried off the honors for the best dressed gentleman.

Excellent music was provided by the Misses Gladman. At midnight, dainty refreshments were served.

Miss Pearl Lundy, directress, is deserving of great credit for the successful and pleasing manner in which the dance was conducted.

THIS ROBBER A DARING ONE

Mnotreal, Dec. 12.—A nervy burglar smashed a plate-glass window at 8 o'clock last evening in the jewelry store at G. A. Turcot, on Notre Dame street, near the city hall, and got away with $2,180 worth of diamonds under the very eye of the proprietor.

This part of Notre Dame street is quiet at night, and the burglar chose his time. Smashing the thick glass, he covered the occupant of the store with his revolver and grabbed up the tray of diamond jewelry. Mr. Turcot was powerless to interfere.

A pedestrian, seeing the robber, yelled "police," but the burglar turned and gave him a parting shot for his interference. The police were unable to trace up the whereabouts of the diamonds or the burglar.

60 PEOPLE MAY SEE THIS GAME

Peterboro' and Lindsay Y Teams to Play Basketball on 15th

Among the many features which physical director Eaddie has brought to the local YMCA. will be the basketball game between the local Association's team and the fast Peterborough YMCA. team on Dec. 15th next.

The members of the local team have faithfully kept up their regular practice in the gym under Mr Eaddie's directions who, this morning to a Free Press reporter, stated that the Porridge town team would certainly have to go some if they wished to chalk down a win.

A fine large stand for the accommodation of the spectators was erected a few weeks ago by the Association, there being seating for about 60 people.—Lindsay Free Press.

BECK AT WINDSOR

Gathering of Prospective Power Users---Details of Hydro-Electric

Windsor, Dec. 12.—A conference of the municipalities of the southwestern peninsula was held here yesterday afternoon to hear Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission, explain the Government's Niagara power scheme. One or more representatives were present from Windsor, Walkerville, Sandwich, Amherstburg, Essex, Kingsville, Leamington, Wheatley, Tilbury, Chatham, Blenheim, Ridgetown and Bothwell.

Mayor Wigle was chairman, and introduced Mr. Beck. With Windsor included and taking 5,000 horsepower, an estimate was given at $34.90 per horse-power.

It was decided to establish transformers near Chatham, Windsor and Essex to supply the municipality in this group.

Chief Engineer Sothman and Solicitor Lobb also addressed the gathering and went into details.

A resolution was passed that it was advisable for the municipalities in this district to take advantage of the scheme, and Solicitor Lobb will remain over to-day to assist in preparing bylaws for the municipal councils. Most of them will present the scheme to the ratepayers at the January elections.

Last night the Windsor Council entertained Hon. Adam Beck and delegates to a banquet at the British American Hotel.

MR. RUTHERFORD IS MENTIONED

It is rumored on the street that Mr. Thomas Rutherford will be a candidate for alderman at the coming municipal elections. His friends are urging him to stand.

JUDGE BLANCHET TAKES HIS LIFE WHILE DESPONDENT

Quebec, Dec. 12.—Hon. Judge Jean G. P. Blanchet, judge of the King's Bench, and an eminent jurist, committed suicide at his residence, St. Genevieve street, Thursday night or early Friday morning by shooting himself through the heart with a forty-two-calibre revolver. The cause of his rash act can only be attributed to a sudden fit of despondency brought on by ill-health.

Deceased recently came from Montreal, where he left his wife and family to reside for the winter, and spent Thursday evening at his residence with his sister-in-law, Mrs. Florence Bayand, and daughter, Mrs. Norman Ogilvie, and appeared in good spirits. Yesterday morning one of the house servants entered the bedroom to learn if deceased required any attendance, and when she realized what had happened she aroused the household, and the family physician was sent for, who arrived in time to see life ebb away.

The late Hon. Jean Gervais Protais Blanchet was a member of a family many of whom have greatly distinguished themselves in professional and public life. Two of his uncles, the late Bishop Francois Nobert Blanchet and Augustin Magloire Blanchet, were among the pioneers of evangelization on the Pacific coast. A son of the late C. Blanchet, N.P., of St. Francois, Beauce, the deceased was born at St. Gervais in February, 1843, and was educated at Nicolet College, subsequently entering Laval University to pursue his law studies, and was called to the Bar in 1863. He practiced throughout at the Quebec Bar, was created a Q.C. by the Quebec Government in 1876, and had the same honor conferred upon him by the Marquis of Lorne in 1880. He was elected Batonnier of the Quebec section of the Bar in 1889, and Batonnier-General of the province in 1891. A Conservative in political life, he sat in that interest for Beauce in the Quebec Assembly continuously from the date of his first election in November, 1881, up to his appointment to the Bench on Sept. 19, 1891. He held the office of Provincial Secretary in both the Mousseau and Ross Administrations, and was leader of the Conservative Opposition to Mr. Mercier in 1890-91.

A PROBABLE CANDIDATE

Mr. Archie Moore May be in the Field for a Place in the City Council

The name of Mr Archie Moore is prominently mentioned as a candidate for alderman at the coming municipal elections. Mr Moore is a well known contractor and would no doubt poll a large vote if he decided to let his name go before the ratepayers.

CHRISTMAS TURKEY MUCH IN DEMAND

A Large Market This Morning--- A Big Crowd in Attendance

The largest market that has been in weeks was that of to-day. There was a great influx of farmers to the city, and the number of buyers was exceedingly great, many coming out to purchase their Christmas turkey. Consequently turkeys were in demand, while geese and chickens were not so readily picked up.

Turkeys sold at from $1.25 to $2.25. Geese were 85 cents to $1.00 each, while chickens sold at from 45 to 60 cents per pair.

Butter was 25 cents per pound and eggs were 30 cents per dozen.

On the outside market the usual prices for meats by the quarter prevailed.

SEVEN NEGROES WERE SHOT THE ACT OF A MADMAN

ARE WILLING TO BUILD RAILWAY

Toronto, Dec. 12.—The Canadian Northern Railway is prepared to extend its line from Sudbury to Sellwood, on to Gowganda, the new silver field, if a measure of co-operation can be arranged with the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway.

The proposal is that the C. N. R. complete their line from Sudbury to Gowganda, which would provide a direct service of about 14 hours to Toronto. The C. N. R. is built and in operation north of Sudbury, on which is located the famous Hutton iron range.

From Sellwood the line is under construction to Burwash, 20 miles further north. This leaves only 32 miles of projected line to connect Gowganda direct with the capital of Ontario.

Meanwhile the T. & N. O. has been surveyed from Charlton to Elk City, and the commissions have had a line through this district and the Gowganda country to Sudbury for some time past.

The Canadian Northern stands ready to give the Government line access from Cochrane at Charlton to Sudbury in return for running rights over the Government system between those points.

Tragic Affair in a Memphis Saloon.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 12.—"I shot 'em and that's all there is to it." Beyond this, mumbled as he was being led to a cell at police headquarters, William Laturas, a white man of this city, proffered no explanation of the killing of three negroes and the wounding of four others, one a woman, at a saloon here yesterday.

When Laturas entered the saloon a group of negroes were about a pool table in a rear room. Laturas leisurely unbuttoned a long overcoat he wore and drew an automatic pistol and shot down his victims.

His weapon empty, Laturas threw it in an ash can and walked to a neighboring saloon, where he submitted to arrest.

Laturas several years ago shot and killed a white man, but was released on the ground of self-defence. Several years ago a negro met death at his hands, and he was again acquitted on a plea of self-defence. Recently he forced several men, at the point of a pistol, it is declared, to return money won in a game of chance.

Fifth Victim of Riot.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 12.—A. J. Selsor, a bystander, injured in the fight between religious fanatics and the police on Tuesday afternoon, died early yesterday morning. This brings the death list to five.

James Sharp, self-styled "Adam God," who led the fanatics in their fight, was arrested Thursday night at Monticello, Kansas. He made no resistance.

"Honestly, captain," he said to an officer, "I believed that we were doing right and that it was God's will. When the bullets commenced to hit me, then I had a revelation. I am glad to be back and as willing to stand for anything that God wills. Oh, it is terrible, terrible."

Sharp told the police he tried to kill himself immediately after the fight, but could not get the cartridges into the revolver.

Amuck With Revolver.

Edgewater, N.J., Dec. 12.—Shouting that he was "John the Baptist come to save the world," an aged insane man held this town in terror for nearly an hour yesterday afternoon. He rushed down the main street waving a revolver and held up half a dozen citizens, robbed the tills of three business establishments, stole a team of horses, and exchanged many shots with a hastily formed posse. His wild career was temporarily checked when he was bowled over by shots fired by members of the posse after a chase of more than half a mile.

A Dastardly Crime.

Cartersville, Ga., Dec. 12.—That a band of ruffians entered the home of J. A. Gibson three miles from Cartersville, Saturday night, and perpetrated a series of dastardly outrages upon the members of that family, including the shooting of Mrs. Gibson and criminal assault upon Lizzie Hardy, a sixteen-year-old girl, is the substance of charges contained in warrants just issued for three well-known young white men of this county.

The "Code" In Mississippi.

Hazelhurst, Miss., Dec. 12.—Dr. A. S. Pitts, prominent physician, was shot and killed at his office here by Dr. Thomas Birdsong, a dentist. Dr. Birdsong is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Annie Birdsong, convicted two years ago for the killing of Dr. Butler at Monticello and pardoned.

Homer Smith was arrested as an accessory. It is alleged that Smith lent Dr. Birdsong a pistol with full knowledge that Dr. Birdsong intended to kill Dr. Pitts.

Factory is Very Busy at Present Time—Mr. W. E. Talbot Will Have Fine New Boat Next Summer—Already Completed—Motor Canoes Being Manufactured.

The Peterborough Canoe Company factory is running to its utmost capacity these days and from now until spring will be rushed getting out boats to supply the ever increasing demand for ones of their manufacture. They are turning out more motor boats this year than ever before and after the New Year the company intend opening a showroom in the factory for the special exhibition of their boats.

Something new in the line of boats will be introduced on local waters next summer. It will be the motor canoe, several of which will be manufactured by the Peterborough Canoe Company this winter. They will be a little larger than the ordinary canoe and will accommodate comfortably five persons. Another large steamboat is under construction which when completed will be shipped to the north country. It will be 45 feet long and 11 feet wide.

A Review reporter this morning visited the factory and was shown several fine motor boats of different sizes and models, nearing completion. One particularly attracted attention. It was one for Mr W E. Talbot of this city. There only remains the placing of the engine, to make it ready for launching. It is twenty-seven and a half feet in length and has a five foot, four inch beam. It has a speed of twelve miles an hour. It has a canopy top and is built from the French mitre stern model. It will easily be one of the finest crafts on the local waters.

Two other motor boats one twenty-five feet and the other twenty-two feet in length built from the torpedo stern model are about finished and will be shipped to Montreal shortly after Christmas. A number of 20 foot launches, capable of carrying seven people and equippped with four horse power engines are being constructed. They will travel at the rate of ten miles an hour.

All the boats are made so that they can be controlled by one man. The steering wheel is the regular automobile one and thus the engine is run by it.

TESTING FIRE ALARM BOXES

A test of the alarm boxes in the city is being made by the fire department. It was commenced yesterday and it will take to-day and Monday to complete the tests.

The system throughout the city is in satisfactory working order.

The Hog.

No other animal has been more modified by civilization and none reverts more quickly to the original wild type than the hog. Three generations of running wild suffice to turn the smooth, round, short snouted razorback or hazel splitter thin, lank, leggy, lop eared, sharp snouted, an Ishmael in bristles, running like a deer, if running be possible, fighting as only a wild hog can fight when battle is imperative. The tusks, which have been half obliterated in the process of civilization, get back size and strength. At a year old they are formidable, at two murderous, at three or five more deadly than a sword. They afford a certain index of age up to six years, but are commonly broken in fights long before that time. Wild boars are very ill tempered and when worsted in fighting often revenge themselves by ripping the bark from trees as high as they can reach.

PRESENTATION BY THE LADIES' AID SOCIETY

To Mrs. J. G. Potter Last Evening at the Residence of Mrs. F. L. Robinson

A very pleasant evening was spent at the residence of Mrs. F. L. Robinson, 225 Charlotte street, last evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, of which Mrs. Robinson is president.

The Ladies' Aid Society decided to assist the Young Men's Guild in decorating the church for the Christmas season.

Some friends took advantage of the occasion to present Mrs. Robinson with a handsome fern as a token of their esteem. The pleasure of the evening was also increased by the very appropriate and seasonable presentation to Mrs. Potter, wife of the pastor of St. Andrew's, who has been so closely identified with all the departments of the church's work.

The address was read by Mrs. Andrew McFarlane, vice-president of the society and was as follows:

Mrs. J. G. Potter,

Dear Mrs. Potter,—Your fellow members of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's church, feel that this season of peace, good will and loving remembrance would be a fitting time to signalize our appreciation of the services you have rendered the church and ourselves as humble workers in its interests, and to express the sentiments of gratitude we feel, not only at this time, but have felt day by day throughout the year, for many years. You have been a sympathetic and valuable help in the work our Society is striving to carry on. Not only have your energy and interest been effective means of promoting its objects, but your example of cheerful devotion and ready help, has been an inspiration to us all. Your hospitable home has been placed at our disposal for our meetings, and you have in other ways—in every way possible—been a very great help to us and our work.

In slight recognition of the services you have so freely and fruitfully given, we solicit your acceptance of this purse of gold, accompanied by what you perhaps will hold in higher regard, our best wishes and prayers, not only for a pleasant holiday season, but for a long lease of happy life to be spent, as has been done in the past, and as the Master showed the way, in doing good.

Mrs. Potter was altogether taken by surprise and expressed herself as deeply sensible of the love and esteem of the ladies of St. Andrew's. Nothing of this nature was ever necessary to assure her of that affection for what she had done was but the duty of every member and she had sought to do her humble share, yet with the many demands and obligations she considered the gift an answer to prayer and felt thankful to God that His blessing had rested on the labors of the women of St. Andrew's.

Still another surprise was in store when a few personal friends of Mrs. C. S. McClelland, the popular organist of the church, presented her with a handsome mahogany flower stand accompanied with the following note, "Please accept this small remembrance from a few friends with best wishes for a merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

The evening was brightened with some vocal selections by Mr. Gordon Wright and after a bountiful supply of refreshments all joined in singing "For Auld Lang Syne."

OBITUARY

MARGARET BUTLER.

The death occurred last night at her late residence, 282 Woodbine ave., of Margaret Butler, wife of Mr. J. F. Dingman. The deceased had been suffering for some months with a lingering disease. She was 46 years of age and was for many years a resident of Peterborough. Besides her husband one daughter is left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning at nine o'clock from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

WM. SPILSBURY.

The remains of the late Wm. Spilsbury, who passed away in Hannaford, North Dakota, on Thursday, December the third arrived in the city today at noon and were interred in the Little Lake cemetery.

The funeral took place from Comstock's undertaking establishment at half past two. Rev. Canon Davidson conducted the services. The deceased left Peterborough about ten years ago. He was 78 years of age.

HOW TO MAKE THE BEST REMEDY

Fine Recipe for Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble—Gives Prompt Relief

The following prescription for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles has no doubt been filled millions of times, viz.: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at little cost and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime, drinking a full tumberful of water after each dose. It is stated that stated that this prescription is a positive remedy for kidney trouble and lame back, weak bladder and urinary difficulties, especially of the elderly people, and one of the best things to be used in rheumatic afflictions, relieving the aches and pains and reducing swellings.

A well-known authority states that this mixture acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys; cleanses these spongelike organs and gives them power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood, which is the cause of rheumatism.

If your back or side aches and you suspect kidney trouble it would be wise to try this for a few days.

RIDER THROWN FROM HORSE

Mr. Elias Jones, of Garden Hill, met with a painful accident about two weeks ago, which laid him up for a few days. He was returning home on horseback with a parcel in each arm, when his horse was frightened and stumbling, threw Mr. Jones off. He lit on his shoulder, which was pretty sore for some days, but we were pleased to see him able to come to town last week.

WHERE THE V.C. IS MADE.

Decorations For Bravery Are Manufactured From Russian Cannon.

There are two facts not generally known in connection with the Victoria Cross. One is that the late Prince Consort was mainly responsible for the design, and the other that every medal is made from bronze which has formed part of some Russian guns taken in the Crimea. A supply of this bronze is dispatched by the War Office to Messrs. Hancocks & Co., of New Bond street, silversmiths to the King, when a new medal is ordered, while the process of manufacture of the V.C. is entirely different from that of all other war medals and decorations.

In the case of ordinary medals, steel dies are made and the articles are stamped out complete with one blow of the press, so that they can be turned out by the hundreds and thousands if desired. Each Victoria Cross, however, is made separately in a sand-mould, into which the molten bronze is poured.

After being taken from the mould a chaser works on it for several hours, until all the detail is brought up and the design appears in bold relief from the matted groundwork. After leaving the chaser's hands, the medal has to be submitted to the War Office for inspection, and, if passed, is then fitted with its top bar, steel pins, connecting ring, and ribbon.

The name and rank of the recipient are ultimately cut on one line on the bar, and the name of the regiment in another immediately under it, thus:

Private Thomas Atkins,

while in the semi-circular space at the back are set forth the day, the month, and the year of the deed of bravery for which the Cross has been awarded.

COLD BROUGHT ON KIDNEY DISEASE

Mrs. A. H. Thomson Had Heart Disease, Lumbago and Rheumatism, Tells How She Was Restored to Health.

Brantford, Ont., Dec. 11.—Special—How Colds, La Grippe and other minor ills settle on the Kidneys and develop Rheumatism, Heart Disease, Bright's Disease and other terribly dangerous ailments; and how any and all of them are cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills is fully shown in the case of Mrs. A. H. Thomson, whose home is at 48 Albion Street, this city.

Mrs. Thomson was, some years ago, taken with Cold and La Grippe and Straining, which affected her Kidneys, and the result was Backache, Lumbago, Rheumatism and Heart Disease, which caused both her and her friends grave anxiety.

She had suffered some years when she heard of cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and bought a box, which she used with such splendid results that she continued to take them till she was cured. Since then she has used Dodd's Kidney Pills in her own family and recommended them widely to her friends, all of whom have warm words of praise for the standard Canadian Kidney remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Lumbago and Bright's Disease are all Kidney Diseases or are caused by diseased Kidneys. You can't have any of them if you keep your Kidneys sound and your blood pure. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the Kidneys sound. Sound Kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood.

The interesting series of meetings held by Mr. Robert Telfer, evangelist in the Assembly Hall, George st., under the old Opera House, will close to-morrow night.

At 7 o'clock an address on "Believers." Baptism will be given followed by the ordinance being observed. All welcome. No collection.

Lindsay is to have a winter fair. We would suggest that the remains of a poem on Cobalt, which once appeared in the "Free Press," be placed on exhibition.

A USEFUL ARTICLE
Is Conceded To Be the Most Acceptable Christmas Gift

Let me suggest a nice pair of Gold-rimmed Spectacles for Father or Mother. This would certainly be appreciated during the long winter evenings, when fitted with the proper reading lenses. You can buy them now and have them fitted after the holiday season without any extra cost. We also carry a nice line of Opera Glasses and Eyeglass Chains, which makes very suitable gifts at this time of the year. Everything we sell is guaranteed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

The Finances

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Mr. McWilliams' address on finance is all very well, so far as it goes, but like many other things, it does not go far enough. Why does he not take into account the action of the bank which demanded that the overdraft be paid, and which exacted a penalty of a high rate of interest for every day it remained unpaid? Why were sewers built on streets where there was no water? There are lots of things Mr. McWilliams might more properly have directed his attention to than abusing a genial, businesslike and kind man like Mr. Rush, our Mayor. Mr. McWilliams talked the people, the council and himself to death, and wants to resurrect himself to do it once more. He should wait till he has earned a reputation, and not spring into public notice too quick. A man must have a record behind him and not before him. I have no word to say against his character, as I understand he is honest and well-meaning, but there is too much of him in all his work.

Yours, etc.,
CRITIC.

Have We Lost Faith

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It was never in the history of the province since I remember that cattle and people were both so sorely in need of water. Surely so severe and unusual a drought must be intended as a punishment for our iniquities. They are manifold. We have forgotten God. Let us turn our united prayers to Him in humility and love to-morrow. Let us cry as his children. Why has this not been done? Have we lost real faith?

A BELIEVER IN PRAYER.

The Library

Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I wish to commend Mr. Bennet's letter in regard to the Public Library site.

This institution should be as near to Charlotte and George streets as we can get it to make it of use to the largest number. Such a location would suit all. There is a large and growing number of people in this city who can spent but little time in a public library and none if not centrally located.

A public library should be an educative factor and the utilitarian should be first consideration in selecting a site. Besides why could we not have a beautiful building and have it looks as beautifully five blocks further south than the proposed site. In asking for a central site I believe I voice a very large majority of the workers, in it in office, factory or shop.

Can we look for your active and continued agitation to this end?

Yours faithfully,
J. S.R.

BEING SUED FOR $800

Action Against the Havelock Electric Co. for Flooding at Round Lake

Havelock, Dec. 11.—The Havelock Electric Light Co. are being sued for $800 damages to the land of Mr. Thos. Dyer, of Waybanka, Man., but formerly of Rush Point, and who owns considerable property around Round Lake. In the spring the Electric Light Co. find it necessary to dam back Crowe River, and thus raising Round Lake also. There is a lot of low and around the lake and among it is Mr. Dyer's whose property has been flooded for the past few years. For a long time, the farmers around the lake have been threatening to sue but Mr. Dyer is the first one as yet to file a complaint.

Mr. Dyer's solicitors are Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr, of Peterborough. The local company will defend the suit.

NEW SWIMMING RECORDS MADE

London, Dec. 11.—Cecil Healey, of Australia has regained the swimming record for 100 and 200 yards, formerly held by Daniels, of New York. Healey made 60 yards in 1 min. 6 1-5 seconds. The record previous to Healey's remarkable feat was 1 min. 5 3-5 seconds.

MISSIONARY WORK IN CHINA

Making Good Progress—Address Given by Mrs. Goforth

An interesting lecture on Honan, China, was given last night in the Sunday School room of St. Paul's church by Mrs Goforth.

She was here under the auspices of the St. Paul's EFMS, who also invited all the other missionary societies in the city to attend, and a very large number accepted. Mrs Goforth has been in China for many years and has seen a great many changes take place in the manners, customs and habits of the Chinese. She was home in Canada some seven years ago and addressed many meetings. She is a very interesting speaker and those who were present greatly enjoyed the address. The lecture was illustrated by lime-light views, which assisted wonderfully in impressing upon the gathering the importance of Chinese missionary work.

Mrs. Goforth dwelt particularly upon the old customs of the Chinese, which are now being rapidly done away with. Among these are the modes of travel, which are being superseded by railways; the old fashioned dress and many other peculiar fads characteristic of the Chinese. The custom of binding the young girls' feet is now only practised by the lower class.

Western civilization is making rapid progress in China, and the natives are awakening to the advantages derived therefrom. The opium traffic which has always been the curse of the nation, is now being curtailed to a great extent, and it is only a matter of time when it will be practically out of use.

MY FREE TRIAL TREATMENT MAY CURE YOU

ORANGE LILY

Kingston, Ont., June 6th, 1904.

Dear Mrs. Currah,—I feel so very much better after using the ten days' treatment of Orange Lily you were kind enough to send, that I will not require any more. In fact, I feel entirely well, and it is now a month since I stopped using the treatment. (Miss) F. T. W.

Similar letters to the above are not infrequent, though, of course, such cases are not of long standing. Most women who have suffered for any length of time will require to use Orange Lily longer than the Free Trial Treatment in order to effect a complete cure, but in every case they will be perceptibly benefitted. Further, the benefit will be permanent, whether they continue to use Orange Lily or not. It is not taken internally, and does not contain any alcohol or other stimulant. It is an applied treatment, and acts directly on the suffering organs. In all cases of women's disorders, these organs are congested to a greater or less extent, and Orange Lily will relieve and remove this congestion just as positively and certainly as the action of ammonia or soap on soiled linen. It is a simple chemical problem, and the result is always the same—a step towards better health and complete cure.

In order that every suffering woman may prove its good qualities, without cost, I will send enough of Orange Lily for ten days' treatment, absolutely free, to each lady who will send me her address.

THE MONTREAL RIVER GOLD FIELD

A year ago last June a band of weary prospectors were crossing the wilds of the Great South Bend of the Montreal River, in the Temagami Reserve, west of Willison Township, in search of precious metals. The leaders of the party were Mr Joseph L. Garvin, BA, Principal of Schools, of Lakefield, Ont, representing J W. Garvin & Co, and Mr W. H. Fletcher, of Cobalt, representing C. Salkeld and Company.

When about three miles from the Montreal river their guide declared he had lost his way and that it was necessary to retrace their footsteps. As it was late in the evening, the tired and discouraged party refused, pitched their tent and allowed the guide to return alone.

In the morning they found themselves located beside an immense reef of gold bearing quartz, free milling, averaging about fifty feet in length, averaging about fifty feet in width, with leaf gold here and there on the surface visible to the naked eye.

The discovery was kept a secret for several weeks until the best claims were staked out and recorded and was then made known; but the exceptional financial depression of the following autumn and winter prevented a big rush to the district.

The recent rich discovery of silver at Gow Ganda Lake in the same great South Bend District has aroused the keenest interest and now this new mineral territory is overrun with eager prospectors, and other remarkable discoveries may be expected.

The four most noted claims of the new gold fields have been purchased by "The Titan Montreal River Mines, Limited," authorized capital $2,000,000 in $1 shares, 500,000 shares in treasury, whose prospectus has just been issued, and the first 100,000 shares of treasury stock are offered to the investing public at 20c a share. The huge reef runs through this company's properties for a distance of about one mile.

For full particulars apply to the head office 29 Manning Arcade, King street west, Toronto, Ont. or to J. W. Garvin and Company, of the same address, or to any of the well-known Toronto brokers.

SPORTING NEWS

AN INTERMEDIATE AND JUNIOR SEVEN FOR O.H.A. THIS YEAR

Peterborough Hockey Club Held Re-organization Meeting Last Night—A Thorough Discussion of Affairs Relative to O. H. A. Hockey—the New Officers.

It looks better now. Peterborough will in all probability have two teams in the OHA, this winter, a junior and intermediate seven. Concerning the junior team, there is no absolute certainty that one can be organized, but it is thought that one can be formed that would creditably represent the city in the junior division. The old heads are looked to to get into the game again this season and will probably do so in spite of their declarations of former years that they were turning out for the last time.

And Peterborough with the material at its disposed that it has should be able to put a seven on the ice that would be a consideration in the championship reckoning. Of course this is said of half the teams that got into the game but it can be stated with a good deal of authority concerning the local septette. A look at the players would indicate that.

Jak Morgan, Glover, Rose, Moore, Derocher, Ray and the others and you have pretty dangerous appearing lot of puck chasers for intermediate hockey. The city league with its big membership of fast players to choose from is willing to allow men to be recruited from its ranks—in fact that is one of the ends of a city hockey league.

REORGANIZATION

At the Oriental last night at a reorganization meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club the above measures were decided upon. As was expected from the importance of the occasion from a sporting standpoint a large attendance was present and showed a marked interest in the proceedings. Dr A W. Macpherson was chosen to take the chair.

Mr F A. Clarke, president of the Chieftains, was on hand and explained the stand of that club in the matter of placing a team in the junior series of the OHA. Mr Clarke spoke at some length and very clearly put the position of the Chieftains before the meeting. The boys that made a good showing last year and were favorable to entering the junior series this year. The players wanted to play as representing club however, and if a junior team were organized which they would be part would want the majority of their men on the lineup of such a seven. It was not the intention of the Chieftains to do anything antagonistic to the entrance of a junior team from Peterborough altogether independent of them.

Manager Jack Thirnbeck of the club was also at the meeting.

Messrs Dr Macpherson, R M Glover, Harry Morgan, W Rose and others also gave their views of the hockey situation and as to what would be in the best interests of the city in the matter of having a team in the intermediate and junior series. There was a lot of enthusiasm shown in the discussion.

It was finally moved by Mr H Morgan seconded by Mr Sam Ray, sr, that an intermediate and a junior OHA team be organized. The motion was unanimously adopted.

The election of officers then took place and resulted as follows;

Patrons and patronesses— Mr and Mrs J. R Stratton, Mr and Mrs. R. Denne, Mr and Mrs R A Morrow, Mr T E Bradburn, M.P.P.

Hon Pres, J. H Burnham.
Pres Dr A W Macpherson.
1st vice Pres, C G Graham.
2nd vice-Pres, J Picard, jr.
Sec-Treas, R M Glover.

It was only after much persuasion that Dr Macpherson could be made to take the office of president. However he is a power in local sports and his services are of a most valuable nature.

The officers elected were empowered to draw up a constitution.

THE BELMONTS TOOK THREE STRAIGHT FROM MIDGETS

The Belmonts beat the Midgets three straight games last night in the ten-pin league series at the P. B.C., and incidentally the winners smashed all the records they found lying around loose. The Belmonts were strengthened by the addition of Harold Tanney, a former London crack, who rolled a total of 465 in his three games, just nosing out Joe Pollard for second honors. The bowling of the winners was of a high order throughout and the further they went the more improvement was shown, as the fact that they piled up the highest aggregate of the evening in the last game would indicate.

Wareham was the star performer, his total of 552 for the three games being a new mark for the league. The former record—548—was held by Herb Martin, who still holds the high single game record. The total for the third game—1480—is also a record for team bowling in the league, and is twelve pins better than the record set up by the Iroquois some time ago.

Last night's scores follow;—

Midgets;—

Giroux	424
Brown	357
Hayes	422

Total scores—First game 378; second, 431; third, 394. Total, 1,203

Belmonts;—

Pollard	463
Tanney	465
Wareham	552

Majority for Belmonts, 277 pins.

Week December 14.
Monday—B.A.C. vs. Grays.
Tuesday—Lock Works vs. Exam. B.
Wednesday—Bankers vs. Belmonts.
Thursday—Pacifics vs. Midgets.
Friday—Frontenacs vs. Iroquois.
Saturday—Hutchinson vs. Exam A.

GENE WON THE BOUT

Cyclone Burns Failed to Throw Him Three Times in an Hour.

The Cyclone that Gene Hurtubise was up against at Riverdale rink, Toronto, last night only hit him hard at one stage of the game and that was after 28 minutes of quick stepping when Gene was pinned on a hammerlock and head hold.

The Toronto Mail and Empire says, Cyclone Burns was to have met Hassan Abdallah, but Abdallah having injured himself could not be present. The management tried to get Yankee Rogers or Perrelli, the Greek, but both backed out. Eugene Hurtubise the ex-heavyweight champion was secured, Burns to throw Hurtubise three times in an hour or lose $100. Burns threw Hurtubise once in 28 minutes but was unable to do so again. At the end of the bout he challenged Hurtubise to meet him again, best two out of three falls. Hurtubise accepted the challenge, saying that he would meet Burns any time he wished. Cyclone Burns is the heavyweight champion of England.

HOCKEY FOR THIS SEASON

Looks as Though There Will be Plenty in Both Intermediate and Junior O. H. A.

There promises to be plenty of hockey in this district this year and the local public is likely to see some fast games in both the junior and intermediate series of the OHA.

For the intermediate division it looks as though the towns around here that will be represented will be Cobourg, Port Hope, Lindsay, Belleville. For the junior Peterborough, Port Hope and Cobourg is the grouping suggested.

SPORTING TALK

The Chieftain Hockey Club are deserving of commendation for their enterprise in thinking of putting a team in the junior series of the O.H A. this year. While there are a great many supporters of the game in the city who believe that there should be a team here representative of Peterborough as a city in the junior ranks, and their contention leaves no room for argument, the Chieftains, nevertheless, should come in for a good measure of praise for taking up the matter from their own standpoint. And it is not in a spirit of selfishness they have done so but in the club spirit which is quite natural.

The Chieftains naturally take an interest in their own organization and they show judgment in standing for its interests. No cleaner, faster outfit of youngsters ever chased the puck in this city, and their playing last winter against other teams, among them the heavy city league aggregation, from Bridgenorth was a revelation to the spectators.

GENE AND KAISER

Their Match Here Will Likely be Between Xmas and New Years.

The Kaiser-Hurtubise bout is the next sporting event on tab for Peterborough. It will probably be pulled off in the week between Christmas and New Year's. Gene who was greatly handicapped by boils when he met Kaiser before, will be in the best of condition, and thinks he can gain a victory over the Auburn wrestler.

The bout should draw well here.

CURLING

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—The preliminary games in the Jubilee and Governor-General's matches will be played on January 14, 15, 16, and the semi-finals on Jan. 26 and 27. The finals in the Jubilee match will be played in Montreal on January 28, and the final in the Governor-General's match will be played here on a date to be decided by His Excellency.

The Rideaus are arranging a medal match with the Thistles of Montreal. It will likely take place about the end of this month.

PETERBORO BOY SECRETARY OF BIG PLEASURE PARK

Mr. Joe Guerin of this city has returned after a visit of a few weeks to the Cobalt region. Mr. Guerin says the conditions in that section of the province are not so bad as they are made out to be by some and things are picking up considerably.

He received a letter from Mr Wm. D. Fleming, formerly of Peterborough and well known here. Mr Fleming who has for years followed the theatrical and amusement enterprise line is now secretary-treasurer of one of the biggest pleasure parks in the Mohawk Park of Troy, N.Y. He has been very successful since he left this city and is "in right" and making money in the amusement world.

Mr. Fleming in his letter mentions several of his friends here to whom he asks to be remembered.

ENTERTAINMENT LAST NIGHT OF SEPARATE SCHOOL PUPILS

St. Peter's hall was crowded last evening, many being unable to secure seats, on the occasion of the grand entertainment by the pupils of the Separate schools of the city. These pupils are noted for the splendid concerts given by them and last evening's programme was no exception to the rule. It even surpassed anything that has previously been given.

The excellent programme was as follows;

PART. I.

Boys' Chorus, "The Land of the Maple." One hundred voices.
Instrumental duet, "Tancredi," Rossini, Misses H. Pearce and L. Hatrick.
Song and drill, Six Little Maids From Timbuctoo.
Sword drill, Vatican Guards.
Action song, Little Brownies.
Vocal, "Dorothy Dimple," Miss Anita Legenore.
Operetta, A Peaceful Assault.

PART II.

Instrumental duet, "In Festal Array," Englemann, Misses O'Brien and B. Giroux.
Boys' chorus, Merry Sailor Lads.
Sword dance, Master E. O'Shea.
Sunbonnet drill, Sixteen Girls.
Song, "A Boy's Wealth," Masters J. Clancy and F. Galvin.
Cantata, A Xmas Idyll.
Chorus, Good Night.
Accompanists, Misses A. Sullivan, B. Giroux, M. Gorman.

ANNUAL MEETING MAY BE HELD ON FRIDAY THE 18TH

The annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society will in all probability be held on Friday afternoon, at four o'clock, on the 18th of this month. It will take place in the City Council Chamber. Reports from the president Mr. T. F. Matthews and the secretary, Mr. E. L. Goodwill, will be presented, and general matters of interest to the Society will be discussed.

The Calk being adjustable, the shoe has not got to be removed to be re-sharpened.

The Calk being made of case hardened steel and being triangular, having three sharp edges, it has been tested out to more than equal nine ordinary re-sharpened shoes.

The Shoe and all the parts are made of the best material. The Fittings, that is the Calks, Clamp., and Cap Screws, are renewable at a very small cost, while the Shoe itself is practically indestructible.

THE ARRIVAL HOME OF THE SHEFFIELD MUSICAL UNION

English Newspaper Refers to the Trip to Canada as a Glorious Success—Pleased With the Reception in the Dominion—Dr. Coward on the Tour.

Through the courtesy of Mr. F. Lindley, of McMartinville post office the Review has received a copy of the Yorkshire Telegraph and Star, of November 23rd, which contains an account of the arrival home of the Sheffield Choir. The article, which is as follows, will be read with interest here;

The Sheffield Union Choir of 200 voices, under the conductorship of Dr. H. Coward, returned on Saturday from their tour of Canada. Including some 1,100 mile travelled in the Dominion they have altogether traversed about 7000 miles, and have sung before nearly 60,000 people under circumstances of enthusiasm that will long be a cherished memory with the choristers.

Memorable in many ways was the homeward passage. On the Sunday, and again on the Monday after leaving Quebec, the storms raged with great violence, and very few of the passengers were to be found on the upper deck. "After the storm there came a calm," and after Tuesday the weather was more like August than late November. On the Thursday and Friday sports were held on the first-class deck. Mr. Kenneth Curwen was secretary. Mr. A. Craven, treasurer, Mr W. T. Thompson starter, whilst the judges were Messrs George H. Campbell, James Hastings, F W Fleming, A. W. Speed, and S. W. Hunter. The prize winners included: —Cock-fighting, Mr W A. Twelves; blindfold driving, Miss J. Chester and Mrs F Atkin; driven by Mr. Robt. Charles [illegible]; ladies potato race, Miss Edith Nadin skipping, Miss E. Coward, C. North, Mrs Chappell; and Miss Rhind, tug of war, Mr Gander's team; ladies' tug of war, Miss Breare's team.

MERRY ENGLAND

On the Friday night a very attractive musical programme was presented in the first-class saloon, the proceeds being devoted to the Liverpool Seamen's Orphanage. Over £11 were realized as a result.

"Land ahead," was the welcome cry early on Saturday morning, the first sight of land that the members had had since Newfoundland was left behind on the Sunday.

The musical treat provided as the liner was coming alongside the Landing-stage amply compensated those who assembled to welcome the choir for the discomfiture of having to wait in a heavy downpour of rain. From Sheffield, and other parts of Yorkshire, as well as Lancashire, people had travelled to the Mersey side, and when the Grampian was yet in mid-stream there was wafted ashore the strains of "O, Canada," the National Anthem of the Dominion, rendered by the choir, as they lined the rails of the ship.

At the conclusion the people ashore applauded vociferously, and struck up "Home Sweet Home," while the choir subsequently sang the national Anthem, the Doxology, "Home Sweet Home," "Auld Lang Syne," and concluded with a second rendering of "God Save the King," as the steamer was made fast.

DR. COWARD,

Interviewed on the landing stage by various Pressmen, Dr Coward, who has been the hero of the tour, said their journey had been an unqualified triumph. "We have," he said, "been been received everywhere. From the time we landed it was a gradual crescendo until we reached Hamilton, where we touched the high water-mark, which we maintained right to the end. At Ottawa we were entertained at Government House by Earl Grey."

Dr. Coward mentioned that the choir had really visited Canada at the invitation of Dr. Harris, of Canada, who had guaranteed the expenses of the tour and undertaken a £12,000 risk. Dr. Harris had expected to lose £2000 and was quite prepared to do that in furtherance of his object of advancing in the Dominion all that was best in choral music. Fortunately the success of the venture, financially and from an artistic standpoint, had far exceeded all expectations.

"We have," concluded Dr. Coward, "accomplished our object in spreading friendliness and good feeling between the two countries through the medium of music. On the confession of their own conductors, we have provided them with a model, and our missionary object, as it were, has been achieved."

IN SHEFFIELD.

Though it was after midnight when the special Midland train with the choir arrived in Sheffield a great crowd awaited its appearance at the Midland station and greeted it with a tremendous cheer. The first fond meeting over, Dr. Coward was seized by his admirers and carried shoulder high through cheering masses to an improvised platform where he conducted the singing of "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," "Home Sweet Home," and "God Save the King."

"We have done our best," said the Doctor as he was descending from his pedestal, "to uphold the credit of the city, and I think we have done it." The cheer that followed declared that Sheffield was of the same opinion. One by one the long array of vehicles laden with luggage bore the pilgrims to their respective tours. Thus in the small hours of a chill November morning ended the memorable Canadian tour of 1908.

ON THE TOUR.

Dr. Coward's Story.

"A glorious trip and a most successful tour," commented Dr. Coward, when asked by our representative for his impressions.

"First there were the rehearsals on board the Grampian. They provided the choristers with something to do, and I placed great importance upon them. The journey across the Atlantic was rich in experience and on board everything that ingenuity could suggest for our comfort and convenience had been devised by the Allan Line. We had the sea in its varied aspects and there was the noble St. Lawrence, one of the grandest and finest of rivers, I am told."

"Were the choristers delighted with Niagara?"

"Delighted is not the word; they were simply charmed. The fates were very kind to us when we visited Niagara. For two whole days we were never far away from the famous Falls, but the memory that the tourists will retain the longest was the sight of the rushing, roaring waters by moonlight. Personally, it was the grandest, most awe-inspiring sight I have ever seen. Luncheons, drives and entertainments followed each other in bewildering confusion at the several towns and cities which we visited and the kindness of the Canadian people was nearly overwhelming."

"Have you had any discomforts or disabilities, or has it been all a bed of roses?"

"Oh, we have had little irritating inconveniences, which were quite to be expected when travelling through a new country with such a large body of singers. Not only was it a strange land but there were several customs strange to us and the conditions were not always favorable. It has been a marvel to me that things have gone so well. If any discomforts arose they have now all been forgotten. One source of irritation was the fault of the members themselves and arose through the luggage. By letter, circular, speech and announcement they were told to limit their luggage to one large trunk and one large handbag. Many of the ladies disregarded these instructions and so the handbags became trunks, and had the terms of the contract been carried out, the results would have been appalling. Other little inconveniences occurred, which, at the time, were magnified out of their proper proportion. They are looked upon now as very trivial incidents in a grand and glorious trip."

"And in regard to the object which actuated your choristers in crossing the sea, do you consider that this object has been attained?"

"Most certainly I do, and in a wonderful degree. The huge appreciative audiences to which we sung will remember, I am certain, for years to come, the songs of their kinsmen from across the sea. The enthusiasm which the singing of our National Anthem evoked on all occasions had to be seen and heard to be believed. The loyalty of the Canadian people is undoubted, and their appreciation of everything that is best which comes from the Mother Country unbounded."

"And which is the next country that you or your famous Musical Union will seek to conquer?"

"Ah," replied Dr. Coward, with a smile, "that I cannot tell you. We will await the turn of events."

SIR ARTHUR CURTIS SAID TO BE LIVING IN CANADA

Fur-Trappers Report That English Nobleman Who Mysteriously Disappeared in 1898 on Way to Klondyke Has Been Leading Life of a Hermit.

From Vancouver, B.C., comes news of the discovery that Sir Arthur Curtis is alive. He disappeared in 1898 while traveling in the Klondyke, and, despite diligent searching, no trace of him could be found. It was surmised he had been devoured by bears, and the courts in London gave leave to Lady Curtis to presume him to be dead. As a consequence she, in 1900, married Lieut.-Col. R. M. Brady, R.A., and Sir Arthur's son Roger assumed the title.

Fur trappers now report that they have discovered Sir Arthur Curtis in a remote district of British Columbia, near the Klondyke region. The trappers state that the baronet has been living by himself in the far northwest ever since his disappearance, and has no wish to return to civilization.

The discovery that he is alive has come about through exhaustive inquiries made by the authorities in British Columbia, at the request of some of Sir Arthur's relatives in England.

Mr. Roger Pocock, the founder of the Legion of Frontiersmen, has more than once told of this incident of his adventurous career. He had organized a party, of whom was Sir Arthur Curtis, to proceed to the gold regions.

He and the baronet had had some disagreement, and, taking an Indian guide, Sir Arthur made off into the wilderness.

"C—— (Sir Arthur Curtis) came of a naval family, who must have hated horses from time immemorial. Of most engaging humor, chivalrous, and unselfish. C—— was a born sportsman, an enthusiast at mining, yet seemed only at home on the water. Therefore I was apt to be rude when our success, our very lives, depended upon learning horsemanship and woodcraft. But still he was patient with me, his dignity too fine and deep a thing to ruffle easily upon the surface, and I never guessed how sore he was at heart.

"After fording Mud river we were compelled—ten horses astray in the willows—to lie in camp for a day. Apart from the horse-hunting we had harness to repair, and I did all the cooking. Indeed, bar twenty minutes for a bath, I had been at work since three in the morning, and night fell at nine o'clock while still there was much to do. C—— had been thinking all day, and when he offered to help me wash up after supper, I told him roughly to 'go away and rest.'

The words cut worse than a whiplash across his face—words that could never be withdrawn, never forgiven. C—— was my partner, not my servant; and if I could not command myself, how should I lead? So I was weighed in the balance, was found wanting."

Sir Arthur was never seen again. Mr. Pocock proceeds to describe the heart-breaking search, the co-operation of a party of Indians, who on the ninth day declined to continue the hopeless quest.

"So on the tenth day," he continues, "we who were left gathered about our camp fire for the last time. Our food had all been spent in the search, which meant short rations until some of us could bring a load of provisions from Quesnelle.

"My leadership must be resigned, and my presence would be needed in England, where I must get probate for C——'s widow. The company gave me a paper holding me free from blame."

"All of them, though nearly starved to death, reached the Stickeen in safety, with sixteen horses out of the fifty-one which we had bought, and in this fared better than most men on that disastrous trail."

One member of the expedition has already ventured to doubt the news of the finding of the real baronet. He says:

"At the time that Sir Arthur Curtis left England he was in search of a change of career, as he had not been fortunate in his private affairs. Rumor said that he had impoverished himself on the Stock Exchange.

"But he subscribed to the capital of a prospecting party which departed from Ashcroft in the spring of 1898. It is quite possible he slipped away from the Star packtrain, of which he was a member, and hid himself from the search parties which for eight days attempted his rescue, supposing him to be lost in the bush. He was, however, at that time a remarkably bad bushman, with no sense of direction whatever, had not more than £2, left his coat and all other property in camp, and had the scantiest supply, even of tobacco and matches.

"Although Ashcroft is a town on the Canadian Pacific Railway, the district is mostly high forest plateau, and a few miles back a trapper might make a meagre livelihood. Compared with other districts near at hand, it is the poorest trapping ground, whereas Lilloet, the next district to the west, is comparatively a good country.

"It is not probable that this man, alleged by the hunters to describe himself as Sir Arthur Curtis, is really the lost baronet. It is much more likely that the English papers, describing the renewed search, have just reached the Ashcroft district, where English settlers are prevalent, and that a wild cat story has been invented to amuse the public."

THE DAYS OF OLD WHEN GENTLEMEN WORE LACES

We hear it said everywhere—at the beginning and at the end of every season—that modern extravagance is appalling, that women overdress, that they spend more for a single hat than their grandmothers did for their whole trousseaux.

Like many other often recurring general statements, this is far from being accurate. The well known French writer, M. Henry de Gallier, contributes to the current issue of La Revue a remarkable study on "Spending Money In Days of Yore."

From statistics carefully compiled, from private documents of one or two centuries ago, from letters and bills dating from those distant days, it appears that extravagance was far worse then.

The greatest change in the matter of expenditure is that during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries men spent quite as much as if not more than women for their own attire.

To-day the average man spends considerably less than the average woman on clothes, and in the wealthy classes the difference is more marked still, since it was recently stated by a queen of fashion that, while a man could be quite "elegant" by spending £400 a year on himself, a woman needed £400 a month to dress stylishly.

In the middle class, as in the aristocracy, 150 years ago more things were required by a man. He wore night cuffs of lace, his black suit cost £5 (of our money), his hats—he needed half a dozen—£1 each. He required silk stockings, woollen stockings and "skin" stockings and five or six different kinds of boots.

He had to spend several pounds a year at the barber's and wigmaker's. The middle class woman of those days managed to dress in a cheaper way, though dress was the main expense.

Diaries and memoirs establish the curious fact that the upbringing of three children cost a third less than the clothes required by their mother, a modest woman. Men wore ribbons, lace, embroideries and jewelry in as large quantities as women.

As for jewels, men formerly wore diamonds and pearls on their clothes, shoes and hands, while to-day a man of refined taste is satisfied with a modest ring, simple links, a little pearl as a shirt stud and a large stone as a scarfpin.

"SHINY" FAT FOLKS

One of the fat woman's chief griefs in life is her shiny, greasy skin. If it be pimply besides, as it probably is—or may be—her cup of anguish is full. Powder and cosmetics simply hide these horrors for a season—a very short season. They are not a cure for them. There isn't any cure for them except getting rid of the grease beneath. When she does that she finds her complexion improves.

In this way only can I account for the clear, natural complexion acquired by those who use the Marmola receipt: "One-half ounce Marmola, 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, 4 3-4 ounce Peppermint Water. By causing the excess flesh to be absorbed, it clears the blood of the globules of fat which, physicians say, cause the greasy, oily skin of the over-fat.

This simple receipt makes a mixture both pleasant and harmless. It causes neither wrinkles nor stomach disturbances. It is also quite inexpensive. Make it a point to try some; take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime for a week or two and see if your oily skin does not quickly disappear. As you lose your fat, your complexion should progressively improve, and after a month or so when you have lost 25 or 30 pounds of flesh it should be nearly perfect.

Natural gas escaping set fire to T. Schram's jewellery store, Port Dover, but little damage was done.

A STORY OF SIR OLIVER.

Thought a Difference of Job Made a Difference of Tactics Necessary.

It is said that on one occasion when the Ross Government was in office, and the late Sir Oliver Mowat was filling the post of Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, the Ministry took a certain course of action that was rather unusual, and a member of the Cabinet attended at Government House to have the papers signed.

Sir Oliver looked them over at first casually and then with a closer scrutiny.

"This action," he said, "is most unusual—most unusual. Is there, in fact, any precedent for such a course?"

"There is the very best of precedents," was the reply. "Sir Oliver Mowat when Premier of Ontario took precisely the same action."

"Indeed—indeed! And when?"

"Very true, but," said Sir Oliver, "I was not Lieutenant-Governor at that time."

In the Rambodde district in 1877 the first successful attempt was made to produce tea in Ceylon. In 1892 Ceylon Tea was first introduced into Canada by the "Salada" Tea Co. The excellence of this brand is responsible for the commercial success of Ceylon Tea in this country.

BILLS THAT ARE NOT GENUINE

Counterfeit Five Dollar Bills are in Circulation---Reported to Dominion Police

Montreal, Dec. 10 — Counterfeit notes of the Bank of Montreal, of the five dollar denomination are in circulation in the city. One of the bills was first detected at the Banque Provinciale where it was presented by a butcher who was unable to trace its source. On Monday another bill was spotted in the Bank of Ottawa, in the afternoon. It was immediately detected by the teller and a notification was sent to the Bank of Montreal. Another bill turned up yesterday at the Montreal Clearing House.

The counterfeit bills are skilfully engraved and the public would have difficulty in detecting them except that the numbering is in black whereas all genuine bills of the issue, namely, January 2, 1904, are numbered in red. The alignment of the numbering on the counterfeit bills is also irregular. The figures showing the denomination of the counterfeits appear rather bulky while the vignettes of Sir Edward Clouston and Sir George Drummond are somewhat off. The crudest part of the bill is the back, where the coloring is defective. The quality of the paper is also inferior to that of the genuine bill, but, on the whole, the defects are not likely to be detected by the casual observer.

It is believed that there are a large number of the counterfeit issue in circulation and the matter has been reported to the Dominion police at Ottawa.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS SHOULD BE SENT EARLY

Postmasters are urging people to send their Christmas parcels early, and to see to it that they are fully and properly prepaid.

Their postage on parcels to Canada and United States ports is a cent an ounce, and on printed matter a cent for two ounces. Parcels to Great Britain and foreign countries must be taken to the post office in order to get rates and make the declaration of contents, etc.

THE BANK OF OTTAWA

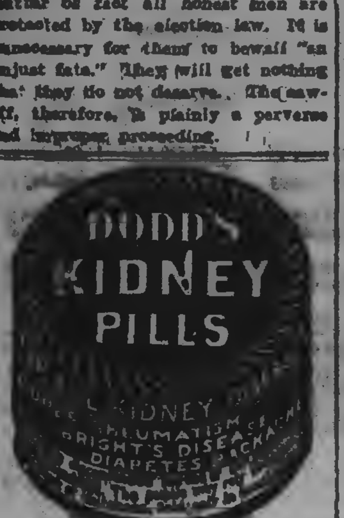
The annual statement at the annual meeting of this old and well-known financial institution shows how generally the policy of retrenchment and care was observed during the late stringency. The earnings of $429,879 provided for the 10 per cent. dividend on the capital of $3,000,000 and left a balance of $129,879. There was applied to the redemption of bank premises account $46,720, and $5,000 was voted to the officers' Pension Fund. The bank now has assets of $33,524,891, shown by the statement to be conservatively held, so that it is in position to profit by the improvement in trade all are looking for.

THE EVIL OF THE SAW-OFFS

"One of the most flagrant evils in the politics of Canada is the protection given to all forms of electoral crime by the "saw-off" system of dealing with alleged offences. A week ago a great deal was heard, on both sides, about bribery and corruption in the recent Dominion elections. Prima facie evidence of the most damaging character, adequate to the unseating and disqualifying of Conservative members, was known to be in the possession of Liberals. Similar evidence against Liberals was claimed by Conservatives. Representatives of both party organizations met on the last day allowed for the filing of petitions, and the "saw-off" principle was applied to almost the entire list. The petitions were not filed. The evidence was suppressed. The men guilty of corrupt acts will be allowed to take their seats in Parliament. The festering sore is allowed to remain in the body politic. Neither party gains in the game, and both parties suffer by the concealment."—Globe.

There will be few except interested parties who will fail to agree with the powerful editorial of the Globe of which the above is a small part. It may be quite true that the putting-in of a protest in the hope that some slight and probably unintentional violation of the strict letter of the law may be discovered, is taking an unfair advantage of that law. This however, is provided for in the statute itself which allows the judges to dismiss such a protest or counter-protest at their discretion. As a matter of fact all honest men are protected by the election law. It is unnecessary for them to bewail "an unjust fate." They will get nothing that they do not deserve. The saw-off, therefore, is plainly a perverse and improper proceeding.



THE LAYMAN'S QUEST

The Laymen's movement will fail if it be not founded upon the right idea. That is sure if we hold the Christian belief. That idea is the ideal of perfection which God bids us to attain through the merits of His Son. This is the Christian theory. It is a mistaken and a false idea, therefore for any body of men to seek to illustrate the Christian ideal by the human real. These are not alike, but natural opposites. To keep away from "the world" is what we are bidden to do and yet laymen rapturously proceed to base their forward movement upon human devices and real, not ideal means. Heaven is a state of virtue. It must be so necessarily. It is not a scientific or a philosophic theory. Money cannot buy it. It is clearly a condition of character. Men or women as living examples of virtue and good works, founded upon a belief in Him, who is the only reliable source of true spiritual inspiration, are not merely examples of successful manufacturers or products of an age of business energy and invention. Many people, if not most, have been gradually schooled into the belief that the almighty [illegible] the almighty dollar. They treat Him accordingly and point with pride "to what they have accomplished during a successful year" in distributing their goods. Until men nourish and demonstrate Christianity for the pure love of it, and all that it means for and by reason of that love and in the manner and spirit of those who love and practise virtue and the higher philosophy, it must remain a much-advertised [illegible] which the more it is advertised the more widely it produces national rascality and general dishonesty. Advertising the Christian faith is about the same as advertising virtue. It is time for a change. Is there any instance of Christ's taking up a collection for mission purposes? "The young man was bidden to give all that he had to 'the poor'" not to missions. Giving will not save. We are told that if unworthily done it is more likely to destroy. Why? Not because the gift is counterfeit, but because that condition of mind is counterfeit. So much for the effect upon the giver. What shall we say of the object of that giving? It is enough to repeat that God Who knows all is not to be mocked. The desired end cannot be attained by undesirable means. That is a false philosophy. The true path is the straight one. There is no other way. Virtue is not builded upon a foundation of filth. To the pure all things are pure. But to the impure nothing can be pure. This, we take it, is the kernel of Christian ethics. The maker of the wonders of the universe is not in need of shining coin. The spirit of him, who seeks virtue for the love and practise of it is what He requires. We are in danger of making out our ideal of God to be a successful man-of-business. The Indians made their god a warrior because they loved war. The Hawaiians picture him as a surf-rider. The flesh-eaters of the southern seas picture him as having a capacious maw. The Greek ideal was beauty. Ours is Business. We cannot express, apparently, our enthusiasm in any other terms. Our science is expressible only in dollars and cents. The trail of the serpent is still visible over it. A bait in the form of a banquet is said to be necessary to draw Christians in a supposedly superlatively Christian country together that they may show their love of their heavenly Father. It is all of a piece. Surely there is something wrong. Even Sir Wilfrid Laurier could command a better hearing. And what may we ask, would be said of his party's esteem for that gentleman if it had to give a prize package with each ticket, as an inducement to attend.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Capitalists in some quarters are declaring war to be inevitable and they understand how to make it so.

The annual Christmas ball in connection with St. Carthagh's church, Tweed, and St Edmund's church, Stoco, will be held in Murphy's opera house, on Monday evening, December 28th. Full particulars by poster.—Tweed News.

Enough said.

We are unable to understand why Rev. Dr. Workman is fighting so vigorously to keep within the church. It does not interfere with his liberty to [illegible] new schemes and ideas if he is "allowed to stay out of the Methodist church." No principle of liberty is involved but there is one of propriety and it is on the side of the church.

The secretary to the Katikiro of Uganda in his book, "Uganda's Katikiro in England" tells how the dancing of English people impressed him, and his opinion is certainly not flattering. "On this day," he says, "I saw, how the Europeans dance to the piano, a thing which they like doing very much. When they dance they jump up and down and twist around men and women holding on to each other in pairs; for my part I preferred the music to the dancing, which I thought was a shameful thing for men and women to dance together. They danced in many different kinds of ways, a different way for each time. [illegible]

THE MERRY CHRISTMAS TIME

A little girl wandered into an office far lower Broadway. She was ragged, ugly and forlorn. The first impulse of the porter was to tell her to "clear out," but he paused long enough to let his employer catch sight of her.

"What a piece of drift-wood! What a wreck! Eh! Tom?"

"Yes sir. She is all that."

The ragged, ugly-faced, shivering little piece of humanity looked at them both without speaking. The expression of her face was neither defiant nor cringing, nor desperate. It was simply without fear—or hope.

"What do you want?" asked Mr. Sampson, gently, as he stood holding a paper in his hand.

"Money!" and the dirty little tongue slipped from the lips that whispered the desired word.

"Mother!" said the little girl once more.

"Mother!" again echoed Sampson in assumed wonderment. "Well! Well! Where is your mother?" But before she could answer Sampson had bethought himself. "Wait! I will go with you and see for myself," while he hurried into his private room from which he presently emerged all ready for the street.

"Tell them not to wait to-day, Tom! Probably I shall not be back till to-morrow. Come! child" said without more, the child as if understanding it all took him by the hand.

"You will take me to your mother?"

She looked up at him and nodded her head.

"You know where you live? You live somewhere?"

Again a nod.

The policemen looked at them. The people in the street looked at them. The man on a dray driving into an alley swore at them as he pulled up to avoid running over them. Sampson was now hurrying on so rapidly that the little girl had to run. She too, woke up and became interested. She pulled him into a blind lane that opened into another world. He shrank with instinctive dread. It looked like the home of highwaymen and blackguards. But the child dragged him on, and presently they climbed a ladder-like "stoop." The child let his hand fall while she stood on tiptoe and loosened the latch. Then she took his hand again. Up stairs and up they went. Oh! the evil-smelling horror of the tenement! Strange to say, they mounted unwatched, so far as Sampson knew until they reached the room where mother lodged.

"Good God!" exclaimed Sampson, as he looked down at her. The woman was ill and unable to speak. She lay in a heap of rags on the floor.

"Where is your father?"

The child shook her head in the same inscrutable way as before. It was evidently a mystery. The mother lay panting and pale amid the indescribable filthiness under and about her.

"Dying!" thought Sampson. "Have you no brother or sister?"

Again the child shook her head, but this time she had caught his hand again unconsciously and was holding it tightly. Her eyes were fixed upon her mother. Then she appeared to grow alarmed and went over and put her arms about her.

"Seven years old and in this plight. Christmas [illegible] Christmas [illegible] will never do. You stay here, my child and I will get a carriage and take you away to the Home."

The child looked at him and stood still. The afternoon had grown damp and chilly as it wore on towards evening. Sampson ran up the steps of the huge Home for the Destitute and hurried on into the office. [illegible]

"I will bring a dying woman and her little girl here in an hour. Have you quarters vacant?"

"Yes, sir."

The policeman carried the dying woman wrapped in her wretched rags down to the cab. The child followed close after, a piece of dirty red ribbon clutched tightly in her hand. Now and then she looked up anxiously at her mother's face.

"Who are you, do you know?" asked Sampson of the child as they drove through the crowded street.

"Put them carefully away," said Sampson to the nurse. "Here's enough for a week, but I will come back to-morrow. Good-bye, my child." He hurried away.

"So that is the Merry Christmas-time they talk about. The man who could be merry in the face of such poverty and misery as this must be be either mad, or a magnate, either crazy rich or crazy poor. What do you think, Nell?"

"We must leave that to God, Charles," answered his wife.

"But who does it if we don't? Does He?"

"Hush! Will it make things better for anybody to rail and be nasty about it?"

"Now that you come to speak of it that way I believe it is only so much worse."

"Very well!" said his wife. "Then that is the reason you may depend upon it. We must not add to human misery by lamenting."

"Quite right, quite right. I shall now be happy under all circumstances and try to make others so. It is for it must be—the Merry Christmas-time. I wish I'd thought of this before. Come children, a romp."

INCURABLE HEART TROUBLE

LOOKED FOR DEATH IN A SHORT TIME.

Entirely Cured by "Fruit-a-tives."

"Gentlemen:—The days of miracles are not all past and I feel that my complete recovery, from what seemed inevitable death, is practically a miracle. I suffered from severe Indigestion and Dyspepsia for nearly two years. I could not take food without fearful distress and I became almost a skeleton as the result of the suffering. I could not do any work and became so run down and weak that I could hardly walk. I was attended by two experienced doctors. They both pronounced my case heart failure and incurable, and I looked forward for death in a short time. I not only had the doctors but after they gave me up I tried many remedies and treatments but got no better.

At this time my son asked me to try "Fruit-a-tives," and from the outset of taking these wonderful tablets I was better and gradually this medicine completely cured me. I took a large number of boxes, perhaps a dozen, and now I am entirely cured and I have gained over thirty pounds in weight.

I am now so well that I have sold my farm and bought 200 acres more land. I make this statement voluntarily for the sake of humanity, and I am convinced that "Fruit-a-tives" is a wonderful remedy that will cure stomach trouble where doctors and everything else fail."

(Sgd) Henry Speers, J.P.

The doctors were all wrong. Mr. Speers had what we call "irritated heart." Indigestion and dyspepsia completely upset the stomach. Poisonous gases were formed which swelled the walls of the stomach and pressed against the heart.

"Fruit-a-tives" immediately strengthened the stomach; insured sound digestion and regulated the bowels. There were no poisons—no noxious gases remained in the system, and the heart was no longer irritated. Then the pain and fluttering stopped.

"Fruit-a-tives" is put up in two sizes 25c and 50c. If your dealer has not both, write Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

London Fog.

A London fog brings out hundreds of thieves, but it also brings out men who are wanted by the police. A detective told a representative of the press about two curious instances of thieves being caught in this way:

We had been on the lookout for weeks for a swindler who had stolen bonds in his possession. The inspector who had the warrant at last declared that the man must have got out of the country. But one densely foggy night the inspector happened to be in a quiet street not far from Bedford square, when a stranger, against whom he nearly ran, said:

"Can you tell me precisely where I am? I've got mixed up somehow."

"Follow me and I'll show you," said the officer. And he did show him—to the police station, for the man was the very one he had been looking for.

In another case a sergeant, in one of the thickest fogs ever known, politely helped a lady in distress near the Kensington road. The lady couldn't even recognise her own house among several all alike, and the sergeant, on her behalf, knocked at a door and was answered by a man.

The lady did not live there, but an hour or two afterward I arrested the man who had come to the door. He was a German baker, the head of a large firm, and we had been seeking him for months.

The Man in the House.

The hour was midnight in the home of the Ramscatters. The family consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Ramscatter and their young son, George, almost at the age of maturity. All had retired when suddenly a loud yell penetrated the air.

"There's a man in the house!"

The alarm awakened mother and father. They jumped up, screaming:

"Where? Where?"

"Here!"

It was George's voice. Ramscatter proceeded cautiously across the hall to his son's room with a revolver in one hand. He was followed by his wife.

"George, are you injured?" shouted the father.

"There's a man in the house!" came the reply.

Ramscatter prepared to fire as he threw open the door.

"I don't see any man!" he exclaimed as he flashed on the electric lights.

"He's right here," answered the son.

"What do you mean, George?"

"I mean that it's now five minutes after 12 o'clock. Today is my birthday, and I'm twenty-one years old."—Bohemian Magazine.

"FELICE," IL DIT, "I ARE A HERO."

JEAN JABOT.

He Deals with Popularity as He Finds it in the United States.

By Porter Emerson Browne.

SINCE last week's writings, I has been reading large thoughts on serious subjecks by M. Aristotle, M. Martin Dooley and other Chicago filosofers. Results is heavy filosofical thinks of my own which is enclosed herebeneath on subjeck of U. S. Popularity. Also thanks is due to [illegible] [illegible], fresh can goods drummer and et cetry [illegible] which don't know much, but it helps some.

U. S. Popularity are a fleeting and evvynescent thing, like [illegible], [illegible], [illegible], theatre-[illegible]. Are like lightening because she don't hit two times in the same place.

English Popularity are different; likewise many other countries. English popular gent when he once get popular stays that way so long as he live, also so long as he are dead. English Popularity are a steady and a permanent job that begins when it commences and last until the Angel Gabriel plays his last trump.

English soldier, which are engaged in masterly and victorious retreat over back in the features of a terrible rain of shot and shell and clean collars and toothbrushes and et cetry things and rescue the monocle which have been tossed behind in the excitement by General Arthur [illegible] Maude Lucretia Hannibal Ernest Eustace Clarence Claude Wilhelmina Muntgumery, F. D. Q., C. O. D., S. R. O., N. G., Tenth Duke of Wagging [illegible]. General All Them Things is much obliged and give English soldat the V. C., or the [illegible], or whatever them circumstances seems to need. And English soldat become a hero and get more Popularity than he knows what to do with it. And Popularity is made to stick like it are tattooed on him.

No matter what he do, English soldier are popular. Tourists and other nuisances comes to see him. Maybe perhaps he are washing dishes or scrubbing the kitching floor or doing simmylar little household duties. But it don't make no difference. He are still a hero. Maybe, perhaps, he get in his stummick too much absinthe and kick a gendarme in the wishbone. Gendarme smile, and judge smile and everybody smile, and says, "Quel difference? Il est un soldat—he are a soldier. You cannot expeck a soldier which are custumed to fighting to spend his time setting on the doorstep playing with a petit chat, can you? Mille diables!" Maybe he give away, or put up in pawnshop, all here meddles she has been gave by admiring populace. Still it don't make no difference. Maybe she commit murder, mayhem, arson, both kind of larceny, kidnapping and enjoy other simmyiar amusements. Not yet it don't make no difference. He are always a hero, and her popularity stays the same size. And when she die large monyment are sticked up in Westminster Abby, so that he can be popular all the time he are dead too. Oh, English popular gent are popular for keepings, by gar!

But U. S. Popularity are difference—much. U. S. gent do something and get large chunk of popularity [illegible] he. He go home and tell him wife. "Felice," il dit, "I are a hero. I has got popularity to inclinderate. Because I has sinked a large boat in a small [illegible] of water so that nobody can't get by unless he have on roller skates, and has bottle up the enemy, I are a hero in comparison by which all previous heros is like old maids hiding under a feather bed in a thunderstorm. I has got the hero business cornered, and if the Interstate Commerce Omission don't get after I there ain't nothing to it, by gar!"

He speak avec raison. It are true. And U. S. populace sticks pickshers of him in all the parlor winders and gives him bankets, and large sums of money, and meddles, and parades and et cetry things and his name are almost as widely knowed as the latest breakfast fodder or the newest suspenders. He don't have to work no more. He have déjeuner in bed, and spend all the rest of the days at the photograph having his picture took and refusing offers to go on lecture tours.

But one day some U. S. Lady she kiss him; or maybe he give away to his wife some gift of the people which was give to he with a string on it; or he talks too much; or something comme ça.

Allons! He ain't popular no more.

"He are a fake anyhow," says first somebody.

"He parts his hair in the middle. Down with him! A bas le bluff!" says third somebody.

"I don't know what is it he done; but he didn't had no business to do it. He are a false alarm," says fourth somebody.

Everybody else says et cetry things. And U. S. popular gent are what in U. S. are called Down and Outside. He have to go back to work again; and nobody won't give he no job. He are against it. Also his wife have to take in washings.

But it are his own fault. He should of knowed to blow popularity onto someone else when he did it. Or else became naturalized Englishman, or something like that.

U. S. popularity are like [illegible] automobile, only more than. A hero should be there quick and then get out from the way before he are pinched. If he hang around too long, he are not a hero, but a scrimble.

Otherwise, too, besides heros. It are the same even poets, pollyticians and et cetry things.

M. Rosefelt, which are the largest Popular bile the U. S. has ever saw (Except M. G. Washington, which are dead and taking no chances), are onto all the tricklets of the trade. Popularity with he are a science: He not only know when to hang onto Popularity, but, which are more importender, when to let go. The last half of this is information which few U. S. gents has got.

M. Rosefelt know that no matter how strong and healthy Popularity are, it needs a vacation once and a while. Only places where M. Rosefelt make a slip-up is in drawing a leaky son-in-law.

U. S. gents always seems to find so much trouble by not knowing how to be popular that I has made a set of rules to guide gents which is [illegible] being popular. Here is them:—

First—Popular Gents should be popular from 10 A. M. to 2 P. M. Sundays and holidays off. Also 3 months vacation every year.

Second—Popular Gents, before [illegible], should [illegible] to [illegible] Land, [illegible], or simmylar place, and keep sitting [illegible] in their [illegible].

Third—Popular Gents should never say nothing or do nothing. Everybody is bound to take offence at something; and somebody are bound to take offence at everything.

Fifth—Popular Gents should not become popular unless they don't care what happen to them and has no regard for their families.

Sixth—Popular Gents, if they wishes to stay popular, should die while doing it. Also they should die quick.

HOW CAN THEY DO IT?

THE woman took up a looking glass about the size of a fifty cent piece and began to twist her neck to the right and to the left in her efforts to see the back of her head in the large mirror. The eye and ear specialist watched her disapprovingly.

"It is a wonder to me," he said, "that half the women in the land are not crosseyed. The contortions to which they subject the muscles of the eye in their efforts to see themselves as others see them are something awful. If an acrobat on the stage should perform with his limbs the feats that the average woman does with her eyes, day after day, he would be advertised as a marvel of agility. But he couldn't do it. He couldn't stand the strain.

"And women are not going to stand it always, either. They are bound to pay the penalty. It isn't natural for the eyes to be pulled and hauled from right to left and turned inside out every time a woman puts her hat on, and they are going to make her suffer for the unnecessary strain. Only yesterday I had a patient who put up a most pitiful wail about the condition of her eyes.

"'They don't seem straight any more,' she said. 'They give an observer the impression that I am looking seventeen ways for Sunday.'

"'Yes,' said I, 'they do, and they will continue to look so, and even worse, if you don't quit rolling them about.'

"'How do you know I roll them?' she asked.

"'Nothing else could make them so crooked,' said I.

"Then by degrees I drew from her the information that she had a little mole at the base of her right ear, and in trying to doctor that blemish she would roll her eyes until the pupils were almost lost in her head. And then she wondered why her eyes were crooked.

"If I had my way I would smash half the hand glasses in the country, especially those little pocket editions. I suppose it is perfectly natural for a woman to want to take a look at her back hair before going on the street, but justice to her eyes demands that the hand mirror be considerably bigger than a ten cent piece."

A MUSICAL WOOING.

"I'm Leaving Now the Old Folks," dear,
And going far to roam;
In "My Merry Oldsmobile" I'll speed
Away from "Home, Sweet Home."

When "The Last Rose of Summer" blooms
In "Dixie Land" I'll be;
"The Message of the Old Church Bell"

THE MAN OF THE HOUSE.

"ON one occasion," said the salesman, "I was canvassing a certain county, when I came upon an old fellow splitting wood in front of a farmhouse.

"'Good morning, sir,' said I, with my politest smile and bow. 'I'd like to see the man of the house.'

"The old chap regarded me gravely for some moments and then replied:—

"'There ain't none, stranger. I guess the party you wants to see is my wife.'"

THE HUMORIST'S PLEASANT EVENING.

By Jack P. Robinson.

IT was night. The long day's work was over. The overheated typewriter was cooling its joints and the last story had been put in the mails and the last clipping pasted in the scrapbook. The evening paper lay crumpled on the floor by our side. We leaned far back in our old spring rocker, that fools so many people because they will persist in thinking it's a common rocking chair and tilt away back, and go over, heels in the air. But altogether it's the most comfortable chair we've got, and we're not going to give it up for anybody. If they don't like it let them remain outside in the entry and sit on the Persian rug.

In front was a common kitchen chair with a high back. We are also attached to this chair just because it has so high a back. We can sit in the old spring rocker, hoist our feet in the air and rest them on the back of the other one, and there you are. Somewhere I read that a Mexican once said all Americans think better with their feet higher than their head, as the position promotes circulation. Maybe that's the reason why. Who knows?

It was an extremely comfortable position. In our teeth stuck the reed stem of our old pipe with a red clay front. It was burning like a haystack afire, and we were enjoying a restful, well earned smoke.

Suddenly a weight that felt to be about forty pounds or so struck us all at once somewhere in the vicinity of the bread basket. Were we surprised? We were. Painfully surprised, in fact. When a man is lost in reverie and engaged in slowly assimilating his supper over a pipe of tobacco and his all day thoughts, to have a dull thud hit him in the spareribs like a catapult—well, it will startle him some, to say the least.

Sure thing! It was the cat. We are not partial to cats as a rule, but there is a little kitten around the place that seems to think we are the only huckleberry on the bush and gets on our lap and goes to sleep whenever opportunity offers. It seems she was sitting quietly on the desk and took a sudden notion she would come over to see us and have a snooze, and she made an extra wide leap through the air, covering a distance that seemed incredible for so small and insignificant a cat.

A sudden double barrelled yowl broke the peace and stillness of the autumn air, and an infuriated man might have been seen holding his stomach with one hand as he chased from the premises a little yellow cat that wouldn't bring eight cents at auction. Both were a good deal surprised. No doubt when the cat got her wind again she told all the other cats about the funny thing that happened to her when she quietly went to take a nap as usual; a fellow chased her from the room and endeavored to take all of her nine lives at once.

But it's no joke to have even a two pound kitten thrown at you from a distance. If you don't believe it, try it on; and then if you don't imagine you've been thugged, handbagged or hit with the dull, heavy end of a roll of rejected manuscript I miss my guess.

Harold—He has saved a ten spot of mine for the last eight months.

A TOUCH OF GAYETY.

"YES, I'm dissipating too much," said the long necked yokel, as he rubbed his head despondently.

"Dissipating!" gasped his thick necked friend.

"That's the word I used. You've heard that expression about 'burning life's candle at both ends'? Well, that's my case exactly. To tell the truth, I have been having too gay a time. Last night I went down to the drug store and drank a soda. Then some travelling man offered me a cigar. Of course I had to take it. For an hour or so I was flying high."

"You don't mean it!"

"I mean just what I say. Then I went over to the depot restaurant and bought a ham sandwich. I ate it, and actually forgot myself and took another. On my way home I dropped into the church social for a few minutes. Some of the young ladies made me try the grab bag, and I drew a blank."

"Such extravagance!"

"That's exactly it. Extravagance and dissipation will kill me. It was nine o'clock before I reached home."

"Nine o'clock!"

"Yes. I guess I must be sowing my wild oats. Well, I'm through now. Night before last I called on my gal. She wouldn't let me leave until I had taken her to the drug store and bought ice cream. You know what it cost. Talk about flying high! Why, the New York 'four hundred' can't touch me when I get good and started. I'm simply worn out after these nights of wasteful debauchery."

"LOOK here!" shouted the angry man. "I asked for turtle soup, and there isn't a morsel or even the flavor of turtle in this soup."

"Well, sir, what do you expect? Shakespeare said there was nothing in a name. SUPERSTITIONS I HAVE KNOWN.

By John Kendrick Bangs.

YES, Ethelinda, we do believe in certain superstitions. For instance:—

We think opals are unlucky when you pay $75 apiece for a lot that are worth $9 a dozen.

We think it unlucky to walk under a ladder and have a painter on the top rung drop a quart of green paint on our new chimney-pothat.

We think it most unlucky to sit thirteen at table when there is only food enough for four.

We think it unlucky to start on a ten day trip on a Friday when we have hardly enough money in our pockets to last over Sunday.

We think it unlucky to pass in front of a funeral procession when the hearse is being driven so fast that it knocks us down and runs over our stomach.

We think it is a sure sign of bad luck to open an umbrella in the house and have a hornets' nest drop out of it on to our head.

We think that there is no doubt that trouble will follow a man five feet two inches high, with muscles like a jellyfish, who calls a professional pugilist a liar to his face.

We are sure it is a sign of ill luck when a mirror cracks across the front and it cost $22 to have a new glass inserted.

We think it unlucky to put a beaver hat on a bed where some man or woman weighing 200 pounds is likely to sit on it.

ACTIVITY IN CONNECTION WITH HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Meetings Will be Held Regularly During the Winter—Annual Meeting Was Held Last Night.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Historical Society was held yesterday evening in the chemical laboratory of the Collegiate Institute.

The minutes of the last annual meeting and of subsequent executive meetings were read and confirmed.

The President, Mr T A S Hay, then read his annual address which was as follows,

To the Officers and Members of the Peterborough Historical Society.
Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I have not prepared a report for the annual meeting, but there are several point I wish to bring before your notice this evening and will be very glad to hear your views.

The late Secretary-treasurer, Mr T. Wallace, having removed to Toronto, a meeting was held on November 19th. to appoint a successor, which resulted in the appointment of Mr W J. Dunlop. in whom I feel assured we have a most efficient officer.

It is now two years since any dues were collected from members and the treasury, although not quite empty. is in need of funds to successfully carry on its proper functions.

It is necessary to discuss the advisability of continuing as an Historical society as well as our relations with the Ontario Society with whom we are affiliated or to reorganise as a purely Museum Board. If the former is decided on, it is essential that a strong and active board of management be elected so that interest may be aroused and maintained.

If it were not for the Museum the Society would scarcely have an excuse for existence. Certainly the Museum has continued to grow and the valuable collections deposited there have increased in number and value, notwithstanding the apathy shown by many members.

The Society has enjoyed the use of the building at Inverlea for the past twelve years, through the generosity of Mr. Richard Hall, practically free of expense and it is noticeable that by far the largest proportion of visitors are from outside the city.

Owing to the establishment by the Provincial Government of one of the Normal Schools in Peterborough, and the enlargement of the field of education in the Collegiate Institute, Public and Separate Schools the usefulness of the museum has increased many fold. The collections therein containing many valuable and rare specimens. On the teaching staffs of these schools are gentlemen of highly scientific attainments who have expressed their intention of using the exhibits for instructional purposes which we as members should appreciate."

The register of exhibits commenced some years ago should be completed up to date, from which a convenient catalogue and a general classification can be made, which is most desirable and necessary for the proper study of subjects.

As this is the annual meeting of the Society it is now in order to elect officers and committees and it is hoped that with a strong and active board we may have a prosperous year.

T A S. HAY,
President.

An interesting discussion, participated in by Col Rogers, Mr S J Keyes Mr G A Cornish, Dr Burnham and Mrs Birdsall, followed the reading of the address. It was agreed that, as the museum side of the society's activities had been emphasized in past it would be well to pay more attention to the historical interests. All were agreed that monthly meetings should be held at which historical and scientific subjects would be treated of and discussed.

It was decided that more attention should be given to Provincial and National history than had been in the past. Mr G A Cornish of the Normal School agreed to give the paper at the first of these meetings to be held in January and a programme committee was appointed to arrange for monthly meetings for the season.

The election of officers was then proceeded with and resulted as follows:

Hon Pres, Col H C Rogers.
Pres, T A S Hay.
First vice-Pres, Dr Burnham.
Second vice-Pres, Mr Richard Hall.
Third vice-Pres, Mr G A Cornish.
Sec-treas, W J Dunlop.
Executive committee, Col Rogers, G A Cornish, S J Keyes, Mrs Birdsall, Dr Burnham, Inspector Mowat and J E Hodgson.
Museum committee, Mr E Elcome, G A Cornish and the Secretary.
Programme committee, T A S Hay, W J Dunlop, Col Rogers, G A Cornish and S J. Keyes.
Auditor, Mr Frank Adams.

It was moved by Col. Rogers and seconded by Mr Cornish that the President and the Secretary be authorized to secure a canvasser to collect the yearly dues of fifty cents per member.

WEDDING BELLS

ARMOUR—RYLOTT

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Dec. 12—Miss Beatrice Rylott, daughter of Mr. Wm Rylott, of Victoria, Belmont, to Mr W H. Armour, of Carleton Place, took place at the Methodist parsonage, on Tuesday, December 8th, the ceremony being performed by Rev Mr Balfour.

After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the bride's residence at Pineneven where a most sumptuous dinner was served to those present, the near relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride's many friends will join in wishing the young couple a most prosperous married life.

FARQUHARSON—McMILLEN

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, November 18th, at the home of Mr A. McMillen, of Canevale, Sask, formerly of Belmont, when his second daughter, Miss Elena Josephine, was married to Mr. James Farquharson of that place.

The ceremony was performed by the Methodist minister and the bride looked charming in a dress of blue broad cloth, trimmed with silk and all over lace. She was attended by her sister Miss May, who wore a suit of green trimmed with silk

The bride's travelling suit was of brown panama cloth with hat to match. The groom was assisted by Mr. Thos. McMillen, brother of the bride.

Their many friends in this district will join in wishing the young couple their best wishes.

HOW TO MAKE THE BFST REMEDY

The following prescription for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles has no doubt been filled millions of times viz.: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at little cost and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime, drinking a full tumblerful of water after each dose. It is stated that stated that this prescription is a positive remedy for kidney trouble and lame back, weak bladder and urinary difficulties, especially of the elderly people, and one of the best things to be used in rheumatic afflictions, relieving the aches and pains and reducing swellings.

A well-known authority states that this mixture acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys; cleanses these spongelike organs and gives them power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood, which is the cause of rheumatism.

If your back or side aches and you suspect kidney trouble it would be wise to try this for a few days.

REV. DR. SYMONDS AT BOBCAYGEON

Rev Dr. Symonds kindly gave another lecture in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening, taking for his subject Dickens' book, Martin Chuzzlewit. The Dr. pointed out the various types that the leading characters were intended to represent, and with what masterly skill the gifted author had drawn them. A few of the leading characters were taken and extracts read, with remarks between connecting the story and showing how the characters representing a vice were in some instances made to change their ways replacing vice with virtue. In all well-written books there are lessons to be learned, for the greatest study of all is the knowledge of oneself, and by seeing the weakness portrayed in the characters of the novels the incentive is given to correct that weakness in oneself. A hearty vote of thanks was given to the Rev. Dr. Miss Katha Bottum and Miss Welsh gave a piano duet at the opening which made a pleasing commencement.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

"FIGURES" OF SPEECH.

Misinterpreted Numbers Cause Disappearance of Pie.

One day Willie Billfuzz came home from school very tired and hungry, and, going into the pantry, he saw a beautiful apple pie there looking so tempting that he could hardly resist eating it. Then he happened to notice a slip of paper bearing the figures you see here—namely, 7237 and 319. It afterward turned out that his mother had put these figures down to remind her of some articles she was going to look up in the encyclopedia on those pages, but Willie got the piece of paper wrong side before, and, looking through it to the light, he made them read "test pie." Not wishing to disoblige his mother in so small a matter as this, he did test the pie and found it so good that when he was through there wasn't enough of it left to be seen with a microscope.

Then he wrote under his mother's figures the numbers 21,319 and 907,917 and made himself scarce. When his mother came to look for the pie she only found these mysterious figures. She concluded there must be some meaning to them, and, happening to turn the paper back side before, she saw that her figures made the words "test pie" and that Willie's read "pie is tiptop." Of course she was somewhat disappointed that Willie had disposed of her baking, but when he explained the matter she couldn't blame him, for the figures read plainly enough. You can satisfy yourself of this by turning this page over, holding it up to the light and looking at them, or, better yet, by copying them on a blank piece of paper and looking through it from the back side. This shows how careful we should be when we make figures so that other people will not mistake their meaning.—Pathfinder.

A REMARKABLE PLANT.

South American Orchid That Seemed Endowed With Reason.

A naturalist has discovered in South America one of the most remarkable plants known to botanists. It is an orchid, and its peculiarity consists in the fact that it has a tube by means of which it takes a drink of water when it needs it—you might almost say when it wants it, for the plant really acts as if it had volition and the power to reason.

The naturalist was sitting one afternoon at the side of a lagoon on the Rio de la Plata. Near by was a forest of dead trees which had evidently been choked to death by orchids and climbing cacti. One of the orchids was growing from the branch of a dead tree that overhung the water at a distance of about one foot. From the center of the plant hung a stem about one-fourth of an inch wide. The stem reached down into the water to a depth of four inches.

There was nothing remarkable about that, but when he approached the plant and touched the stem the latter at once began to coil itself up like a roll of tape. Subsequent examination showed him that the stem was a tube, open at the lower end and connected with the roots of the plant by a series of hairlike tubes. Ordinarily the tube remained coiled in the center of the plant, but when it needed water it slowly uncoiled itself, let its lower end dip into the water and then coiled itself up again, the water from the tube pouring out into the roots.

He saw this remarkable action repeated time and again, just as if the plant felt thirsty and would reach for a drink of water as a man would do in the same circumstances. He found many of these orchids, some of them over places where water had been, but was no longer. These would uncoil their tubes and reach about over the ground in search of it, which made him feel more than ever as if the thing had human sense.—Chicago News.

Perils of Bad Company.

There was once a farmer whose corn was destroyed by the cranes that fed in his field. He grew angry and declared he would stop the nuisance. So he put up a net and caught not only the cranes, but a fine large stork that had come down from a neighboring roof to chat with the crane.

"I'll wring your necks," said the farmer. "You are pests and have hurt my fields."

"Spare me!" cried the stork. "I'm innocent; indeed I am. I never touched any of your belongings."

"That may be true," answered the farmer, "but I find you among thieves, and I judge you accordingly."

The Zoo.

If polar bears were on the stairs,
If tigers came to tea,
If fearsome bats and silver sprats
Came in to call on me
And giant snakes ate all the cakes,
How happy I should be!
If leopards gay arrived to stay
And brought the kangaroo,
If parrots red within my bed
Should put the cockatoo,
I'd laugh with glee, because, you see,
I just adore the zoo.

Parliament January 20.

Ottawa, Dec. 12.—Wednesday, Jan. 20, was decided on by the Cabinet council yesterday as the date for the opening of the first session of the eleventh Canadian Parliament.

Ministers had hoped to call the House together a week earlier, but it was considered inadvisable to bring the members to Ottawa on Jan. 13 with a possibility of the new wing not being in readiness.

On the opening day a Speaker will be selected and on the following day the speech from the throne will be read. It will be Friday, Jan. 23, before the debate on the address is proceeded with.

Charles Marcil, who for four years has been Deputy Speaker, is almost certain to be elected to the Speakership.

Guelph Fair Over.

Guelph, Dec. 12.—The great live stock show at Guelph closed its doors last night. Big express drays are carting out the numberless crates of prize and valued chickens to entrain for their several destinations. Cattle, sheep and hogs are betaking themselves to the farms, while the grain and seeds are being carried home to hundreds of new farms to do their silent work for field reform.

Toronto Population 301,930.

Toronto, Dec. 12.—According to the police census Toronto has a population of 301,930, or, within a greater Toronto, of 338,814.

Counts taken by the police on previous occasions were: 1893, 188,333; 1897, 195,987; 1901, 221,583; 1905, 262,749.

Postmaster Acquitted.

Cobourg, Dec. 12.—R. L. Ralls, postmaster at Fenella, accused of offences against the postal act by not delivering Parliamentary literature sent to Conservatives in the district, was yesterday acquitted by a jury.

Embargo Helps Halifax.

Montreal, Dec. 12.—The local offices of the Furness Withy Steamship Co. announced a consignment of 1,600 head of cattle booked through to Europe via Halifax, due to the embargo at U. S. ports.

Big Grain Cargoes.

He Knew.

A young teacher whose efforts to inculcate elementary anatomy had been unusually discouraging at last asked in despair:

"The spinal cord is what runs through you. Your head sits on one end, and you sit on the other."—Rochester Herald.

Once Was Enough.

They met by chance;
They'd never met before.
They met but once,
And she was smitten sore.
They never met again—
Don't care to, I allow;
They met but once—

Philanthropy.

"No," said the bishop of Oklahoma, a wise and broad man who had seen much and suffered much; "I make it a rule to perform marriage ceremonies free. I have no desire to profit by other people's mistakes."—Puck.

He Got His Answer.

"Ah, prithee, lady, tell me, if you can,
Who 'mongst your friends you think the handsomest man."
The lady smiled, "Well, from my point of view,
The handsomest is one most unlike you!"

THE GHOST OF LOCHRAIN CASTLE

BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON

fire, and helped me carry her to the room where she had slept. She was unconscious, and it was easiest to leave her there then, as we had other work to do quickly. But he said the head of the bedstead was one with the wall which divided the room from the secret passage, and without moving her the whole bed could be slid along, the mattress tipped up and the girl thrown on the floor of the passage. Then the bed could be slid back again, and everything in the tower room would look as it had looked before.

"Our big mistake was in letting her live till we should be able to come back and carry out a plan I had for putting it out of her power to injure us.

"Once again I tried to serve myself and the Syndicate by taking Oxford's life; but then, as always, fate has seemed to be against me. Time after time he has been saved in one way or another—twice by his dog; at last by me, since I am dying in his place."

Lord Lochrain was never brought to trial for crimes committed and crimes planned, for in attempting to escape from the pursuing detective he slipped on the stairs which led from the secret way to an underground passage, and, falling to the bottom, broke his neck. But a short confession signed just before death by Trowbridge and Kenrith's recognition of the face in the tower would have been enough to doom him, had he lived.

Clews followed by the mysterious Underground Syndicate in search of prey were traced again by men employed by Oxford, and his case was proved, one valuable bit of evidence being the sketch of his father — a speaking likeness of himself—preserved by Elspeth Dean.

Not far from the dead body of Annette Drits, in the secret room, were found all the stolen jewels, those of Lady Ardcliffe, as well as Kenrith's famous diamond and pearl. But there were no papers compromising the Underground Syndicate, and that organisation still works with all its old secrecy and astounding success.

Lady Hilary has now no need to prove her innocence to any one, and Lady Ardcliffe was forced to apologize for all she said. As for Elspeth, she had never faltered in her loyal belief in her beloved friend, and it was not through any curious questioning, but purely by accident, that she learned from Hilary's own lips the explanation of certain small mysteries which had puzzled her.

Hilary had not wanted her mother to know where Kenrith kept his jewels, lest, in her foolish pride of seeming to know all his affairs, she might be tempted to speak of that which had better be kept secret.

When the girl had bent over Kenrith as he lay unconscious after the motor accident she had thought nothing of the jewels, nothing of all her wild talk to Elspeth, but only of the man himself. She had laid her hand upon his heart to see if it were still beating, and it was then that Trowbridge and the "Countess" had appeared.

As for the shining jewel that had been tied up in Hilary's handkerchief, it was a ring given her by Captain Oxford. She had not dared to wear it openly because of her mother, and had kept it hidden inside her dress, meaning to give it back if she should be compelled to engage herself to another man.

Captain Oxford did not wish to hurry on his marriage now. Because he loved Hilary so much, and because he had suffered so much pain and humiliation at the hands of the girl's mother, he wished to be in the possession of his title and estates before she came to him as his wife.

IT was different, however, with Kenrith. The sooner Elspeth Dean could belong to him the better he would be pleased; and there was no reason for waiting.

After that strange and terrible night the little stenographer was the heroine of Lochrain Castle Hydro. But she was no longer a stenographer.

The girl considered herself still bound to work for Mr. McGowan until her fortnight was up; but Kenrith would not hear of this arrangement, now that she was engaged to him. He insisted that Mr. McGowan should at once telegraph to London for some one to fill Elspeth's place; and that he should state to the manager of the agency at the same time his reason for superseding her. Therefore, instead of learning that her protegee had been unsatisfactory, Elspeth's old friend, Miss Smith, was informed that Miss Dean was to marry John Kenrith, the millionaire from the North, whose book on social questions she had been typing when they first made acquaintance.

The girl had been liked by all the guests at the hotel who had come in contact with her, and the news of her engagement pleased everybody—everybody, with one exception.

That exception was Lady Lambart, to whom Elspeth Dean's happiness meant the most complete humiliation in her forty years of life. She had had many hard blows, but the loss of John Kenrith, and his love for the girl she had hated and tried to ruin, was the hardest of all. Many days passed before she was able to console herself in the smallest degree by the reflection that at least her daughter would be marrying a rich man when she married the new Lord Lochrain; and that probably the mother of Lady Lochrain would have her debts paid and be decently provided for.

She had done all she could to separate the lovers, but they had come together in spite of her, and she knew Hilary well enough to be sure that she would want for nothing.

She even tried to atone for the past by being gracious to her future son-in-law; but, though scrupulously courteous, he was icily cold, and Lady Lambart guessed that her life would, in future, better be lived abroad.

Of all places on earth, Lochrain Castle Hydro was the last one where she wished to remain, since it also sheltered Elspeth Dean; but a certain stubborn pride compelled her to consent to Hilary wish that they should remain. Outwardly, she was on friendly terms with Kenrith, guessing that Elspeth had not told him of her cruelty, and, as Hilary was asked to be bridesmaid, she actually found herself compelled, unless she would betray her feelings, to be present at the wedding.

The happiest day of Elspeth's life was the most miserable one in Ida Lambart's; but she wore a brave enough smile on her handsome face as she bore her punishment.

Six weeks later came Hilary's marriage to the new Lord Lochrain, about whose great romance every one was talking. This might have been a triumph for the bride's mother had she been as other mothers, but she realised when it was too late that she had played her cards badly for her own hand, after all.

She was not disappointed in the allowance she hoped to receive, but even gentle-hearted Hilary did not speak of any future life together. And now, in the summer, Lady Lambart, painted and still pretty, is seen at Aix-les-Bains or Homburg. In the winter she is at Cairo or Monte Carlo, and, though she takes in several society papers, she invariably crumples them up, or throws them aside angrily, if she comes upon a paragraph concerning the social success of young Mrs. John Kenrith, wife of the millionaire.

ILL WIND'S GOOD.

By CHARLES GRAVES.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

A flood of golden morning sunshine streaming through the windows and falling full upon his face awakened Tom Goodhue. It awakened him with a rather unpleasant start and brought to his mind the disquieting suspicion that he had overslept.

He came out of bed with a bound and looked at his watch. It was 9:30—half past 9, and he had an appointment to go sailing with Helen Caverly at 9 sharp! Surely the gods of misfortune severally and collectively were following in his train!

He dressed in record breaking time, bounded down the stairs and, breakfastless, made all speed to the long pier in front of the hotel, his mind busy with the many apologies he would undoubtedly need in a few moments.

But the apologies were doomed, for the present at least, to remain unspoken, for when he reached the pier he saw, running out of the harbor before the smart breeze, a knockabout with a well known pennant fluttering from the mast.

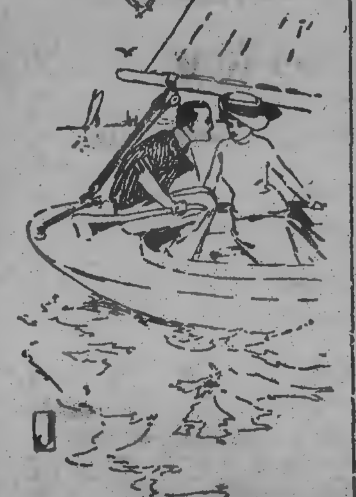
Yet he was not the man to submit tamely to adverse circumstances. At the end of the pier lay hope in the shape of his own power boat, pulling at her painter as she swung to the tide. In a moment he had scrambled aboard, pulled the cover from the engine and turned over the flywheel.

There was a series of sharp reports. He threw off the moorings, sprang to the little wheel in the bow, and the power boat went tearing away from the pier, sending up twin waves of white spume at her bow as she sped in pursuit of the distant knockabout.

The engine of a power boat, however, is not one of the things to be classed among such certainties as death and taxes. Scarcely had he passed the can buoy on the outer legde when there was an ominous coughing of the exhaust.



"I'M GOING TO FINISH OUT THAT PROPOSAL," HE DECLARED.

Immediately it grew spasmodic and seemed to take a half hearted, despairing note. Then it ceased altogether, and with this cessation the little craft lay helpless on the long swells coming in from the bay.

Countless precedent cases had taught Goodhue what to do. He pulled off his coat, caught up a wrench and attacked the engine, not without a certain grim wrath.

At the end of half an hour, despite all his art and all his mad efforts with the wrench, the engine, beyond a few derisive, choking puffs, refused to respond.

Goodhue hurled the wrench angrily into the locker, shook a vindictive fist at the balky machinery and delivered himself of his opinions concisely and forcefully.

Then he looked despairingly at the sail momentarily growing smaller to the eastward and ruefully surveyed the blue streak of shore behind him, not without certain poignant longings for breakfast.

All his labors had merely succeeded in getting him stalled here in the middle of the bay. He grunted his disgust, tied his handkerchief to a boat hook as an improvised signal of distress and set it up in the stern. Then he stretched himself upon the cushions and calmly went to sleep.

He was awakened by rippling laughter. He jumped up to find close alongside a knockabout with its sail rattling sharply as it headed into the wind. By the tiller was Helen Caverly, her eyes sparkling as she took in his plight.

The girl laughed again.

"What on earth are you doing out here so early in the morning?" she said mockingly. "Are you aware that it is but a trifle past 10:30?"

"I am pursuing you," said he, "or, rather, I was pursuing you until this—this unmentionable engine went back on me."

"And why were you pursuing me?"

"I wanted that sail you promised me this morning."

"I waited for you until long after 9."

Goodhue grinned sheepishly. "I—I overslept," he confessed lamely. "Then when I got down to the pier and found you gone I started out in the power boat—without any breakfast."

"What noble self sacrifice!" she mocked.

"And I'd have caught you, too, but for that engine. It always breaks down when you want it most. However, you've seen my plight and come alongside, and that's the main thing, after all. We can have that sail now, can't we?"

"Do you think she deserves it?"

"Frankly, I don't, but I'm going to trust to your generosity."

She looked at him doubtfully for a moment. "Of course," she said at length, "I can't desert you like this, helpless as you are upon the high seas. Come aboard. I'll tow you back. You must be very hungry by this time."

Goodhue caught up the boat hook, pulled the power boat alongside the knockabout and scrambled over her rail. In a moment the painter was fast, and, towing the helpless craft behind her, the knockabout was headed shoreward.

The girl held the tiller. Goodhue sat down beside her.

"I was particularly anxious to come out sailing with you this morning," said he.

"So it would seem," she observed dryly.

"There was a very particular reason why I shouldn't miss it," he went on placidly, ignoring her tone. "I wanted to finish out what I was saying to you night before last on the Gregorys' piazza when that idiot of a Benson came out and interrupted us."

A wave of color surged into the girl's cheek. Her nose went up in the air a fraction of an inch.

"Under the circumstances," said she, "considering the fact that I have just rescued you from a rather trying situation, it seems to me no gentleman would take advantage" —

Goodhue moved closer to her.

"No gentleman would have missed his appointment with you this morning," said he. "Therefore I am no gentleman. Following out the same course of logic, the fact that I am no gentleman absolves me from playing the gentleman's part of silence just now. I will take the tiller, Helen."

He took it. The girl began hastily trimming the sheet.

"I am going to finish out that proposal," he declared. "If you won't listen to me I shall refuse to be saved. I shall return to the power boat and trust myself to the mercies of these treacherous waters," he ended, looking tragically at the quiet sea about them.

"Besides which," he went on, "kindly remember that I have had no breakfast. Will you listen?"

The girl turned to him with flushed face, but her eyes were shining.

"You certainly must have that breakfast," she chuckled. "Go ahead. I am all attention."

One of the most beautiful of the many handsome Christmas windows in the city is that of Richard Hall & Son. The arrangement is highly artistic and the scheme a most appropriate one. It reflects great credit on Mr McDonald, the firm's window dresser.

His "Future Wife."

By Nellie Cravey Gillmore

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The judge fingered the dainty note reflectively, narrowed his keen gray eyes, breathed a little faster—and startled himself by blushing. Yet the contents of the missive were very simple, very commonplace and ran as follows:

Pecan Grove, Oct. 20.

My Dear Judge—Billy is very anxious to have you run down for the week end and has asked me to write and urge you to come.

There is to be quite a jolly crowd—about a dozen of us—and we are going to wind up with a big Halloween ball Saturday evening, the 31st.

Come and learn who is to be your future wife. With best wishes,

DIANA LANDIS.

Judge Underwood was abruptly conscious of a vain and frivolous desire to be young again. He even took out his pocket mirror and studied his reflection critically, noting the little furrows between his straight black brows with an apprehensive heart.

Would Miss Landis have written so cordially had she dreamed of the reckless tide of emotions surging within him at the bare sight of her well remembered little scrawl? Would she have written at all? He thought not, for Diana was but nineteen, and he was hovering very close to forty!

Ten years ago he had taught her the three R's in the village school at Pecan Grove, and five years ago she had been the first to discover the half dozen silver hairs that had since grown into the little tuft of gray above his left temple.

Still, he could no more control the feelings that obsessed him than he could clip off the years that stood between him and his heart's desire, so with an impulsive hand he seized a pen from the rack and dashed down his answer:

New York, Oct. 22.

Dear Miss Landis—Your kind invitation reaches me at a most oppertune time, and you may be sure I shall enjoy taking a week off down at the Grove.

The prospect of finding a life partner appeals to me almost as much as the anticipation of the visit, as I am beginning to need ballast very badly. Sincerely yours,

R. H. UNDERWOOD.

As soon as he had dispatched his letter the judge thrust aside the clamoring pile of briefs on his desk, picked up his hat and hurried down to his tailor's.

When informed by his sartorial excellency that the pearl gray, just completed, made him "look like a boy" the judge was again so foolish as to allow his face to grow red, but he merely scowled in reply and ordered the suit sent to his rooms at once.

The next morning at 9 he left on his journey, reaching Pecan Grove at 3 in the afternoon. Billy Landis was at the station with a smart little trap, and they had an exhilarating two mile spin through the hectic autumn woods.

The judge longed to ask some questions about Diana, but kept craftily silent, hoping that Billy would presently volunteer a little information.

And after thrashing out every other subject under the sun—so it seemed to his guest—Billy finally remarked: "We have six girls—angels, all of them—and six of the opposite variety of brute, including you and myself. Di has planned no end of thrilling stunts for every day in the week, she and Teddy Carstairs."

The judge felt his heart drop like a leaden plummet, but he forced himself to say, matter of factly: "I don't think I ever heard of the name down here. Is he"—

"Of course you didn't," interposed Billy quickly. "They're a nice English family who have leased the adjoining plantation. Teddy is the oldest boy. He's a brick too."

Judge Underwood was keenly conscious of a desire to kick himself clear back to New York. Why ever had he succumbed idiotically to the temptation of the moment in allowing himself to be invegled down here? He had permitted himself to be made a fool of by a girl's offer of friendly hospitality, by a tailor's stupid drivel, by his own arrant imbecility.

But he managed adroitly to box up his feelings and observe with a surprising degree of enthusiasm: "It was awfully good of you all to have me down. I was just on the verge of stagnation, and this little breath of fresh air will set me up considerably."

Then with the deadliest sensations he had ever experienced the judge pulled a smile to his lips and a light to his eyes as they drove up with a flourish under the porte-cochere.

The first person his gaze rested on was Diana herself. She ran out with both slim brown hands extended in welcome and a beautiful flush showing vividly through the apricot tan of her cheeks. "I'm so glad to see you, judge," she said. "It seems like a century since you went away, yet it's been only two years, hasn't it?"

"By facts and figures," he replied, crushing her fingers warmly, "otherwise—eternities."

They both laughed and stood on the porch chatting till Billy returned and dragged Judge Underwood off to his room. After they had gone Diana stood still in the same spot for several minutes. Presently she drew a deep breath and shook her head.

"No," she mused softly; "it's made a difference. What with legal honors and money and New York people"—

At this juncture Teddy Carstairs came up and interrupted her reflections, claiming her for the next tennis match, and, gulping her irritation, Diana smiled and accompanied him down to the court.

From his upstairs window the judge, with the little "green god" at his elbow, watched them cross the lawn and disappear. Half an hour later, having exchanged his dark traveling suit for the delectable gray, he went downstairs and joined the crowd on the veranda.

"We are going to bob for apples first," announced Diana, who was adorable in a pink lingerie frock, "and afterward run around the square one at a time. Then there's the looking glass stunt and the 'face in the well.'"

"Let me suggest," remarked Teddy Carstairs from a sprawling position on the sofa, "that as we have only to 12 o'clock to dance we divide up on these honors. I choose 'bobbing.'"

"Your idea is in order, Ted," approved Diana, with a charming dimple which the judge registered against her in his heart. "Are there any more volunteers?"

There were five. Four more were started out separately to walk around the square in quest of their affinities, while Teddy and Molly Perkins disappeared in search of a looking glass.

"It looks as if we are in for what the well will reveal," laughed Diana as Judge Underwood came up to her.

"You are the general," he said, "and I'm reporting for orders." The week's intimacy had put them on terms of the most friendly companionship, although long ago the judge had consigned his foolish hopes to the dead past.

But Diana, who had never been very astute in arithmetic, was doubly so in mind reading, and she penetrated the judge's most sacred thoughts with subtle divination. "Then," said she, "if you're a good soldier you will go down to the old well in the corner of the cabbage field, glance in and turn away quickly, coming as fast as you can back to the house. Wait till you hear the clock strike 9." And she left him before he could protest.

For an instant the judge stood gazing after her with wistful, troubled eyes. Then, summoning his dignity—and his courage—he slipped, unnoticed, through one of the low windows and walked leisurely down to where the old well loomed, a dilapidated bulk, from which all water had been drawn, in the half light of the dilatory stars.

He paused a second, with his hand on the crumbling bucket shelf. Then he took a deep breath and looked down into a solemn pair of unwinking brown eyes. His heart gave a terrific, most unmagisterial throb, and then the judge did a very arbitrary thing. He deliberately struck a match, throwing its bright yellow glare across two crimson cheeks, a shining nest of golden brown hair and clouds of pink dimity.

At this juncture the judge quite forgot that he was almost forty, that he was wearing his immaculate pearl gray, that a million stars were looking on, for he vaulted lightly the inclosure of the well and dropped down, four feet, into the soft sand beside his "future wife" and folded her, regardless, in his arms.

"But you were to look and run right away," protested Diana in a muffled tone. "You didn't play fair; it's all a joke."

"It's a sublime reality," the judge cut in luminously, "and six automobiles couldn't have dragged me away."

Diana gurgled softly as he kissed her again. Then they scrambled out together.

DANTE'S LAMP.

The city of Florence has just done penance for a crime committed nearly 600 years ago. It has placed an ever burning lamp in the tomb of Dante at Ravenna.

Florence banished Dante, proscribed him, confiscated his property, sentenced him to death, rejected with scorn his plea to be allowed to return to the city he never ceased to love in spite of its cruelty to him. Ravenna gave him a home in life and sepulcher when he died. Florence repented of her bitterness when too late. She prayed Ravenna to allow the body of the poet to return to her, but Ravenna refused. Florence appealed to the pope, and he ordered Ravenna to surrender the bones of Dante, but Ravenna prized these bones like those of a saint, defied the pope and built over the body she had cherished a simple but stately tomb. To wipe out the stain upon her reputation proud Florence hired Boccaccio to give readings of the "Divine Comedy" from a rostrum in her market place, but she has ever been jealous of the privilege of Ravenna in possessing the bones of the great poet.

Florence has at last humbled herself, and her act of penance was performed the other day in the presence of a vast assemblage from all the cities of Italy. A hanging lamp of silver severely simple in its design was made by a famous artist and paid for by popular subscription of the Florentines. This was borne to Ravenna with great ceremony and suspended from the vaulted roof of Dante's tomb, where it was filled with oil and solemnly lighted by the mayor of Florence. As a voluntary votive offering the city of Triest—Italian at heart though in Austrian territory—gave a silver jug in which to keep the oil for the ever burning lamp. Other cities gave the wicks and burners and lamplighters, and there were speakers representing many towns, but all of these were accessories. The event which Italy was celebrating was the long delayed penance of Florence. Henceforth, just as the lamp burns forever before the sanctuary in which the blessed sacrament reposes, so will the Florentine light shine before the grave where Dante sleeps, day and night, century after century, so long as men read the poems that have been called "divine."—Arthur Bennington in New York World.

Army Slippers.

To call a man "a warrior in dressing gown and slippers" is now only half as opprobrious as it used to be. The French war department has decided to equip the cavalry with felt slippers as part of the field kit. It is only necessary to supply the dressing gowns to make the old terms of stigma accurately descriptive of the men who do the fighting. The war department has proved by experiment that nothing rests the soldiers so quickly after a hard drill as to take off their boots and go about in loose slippers. As many a man grown to honorable maturity can testify to the value of the slipper as an instrument of reform, it may happen that the slipper will be as potential as Red Cross conferences in diminishing the horrors of war.—Youth's Companion.

The Turks' Wives.

Though a Turk is allowed four wives he rarely has more than one, both on account of the expenses and also for fear of placing himself at the legal mercy of so many women. He is also most anxious to be considered on a level with the men of other European countries, and he is aware that a plurality of wives is a fatal barrier to his ambition in this respect. Monogamy is very surely gaining ground, and the harem life is losing its hold on the people. This is especially the case in Constantinople, where the native aristocracy is brought into closer touch with the customs of other races, and there is no doubt that in time it will be a thing of the past.—London Chronicle.

A Monkey Doctor.

A monkey in the zoo at De Soto park is entitled to the degree of M. D., according to its keeper.

One of the monkeys in the cage swallowed a marble. It had presence of mind enough to suspend itself by the tail and hang head down in an effort to let the marble drop from its throat, and, failing, it called in the simian language, and one of its brothers responded.

The doctor monkey rammed its slender arm down the afflicted one's throat and extracted the marble. The relieved sufferer seized the marble from the doctor and threw it from the cage with all its strength.—Rome (Ga.) Dispatch to Chicago Inter Ocean.

Red Tape and Fire Fighting.

Conflagrations are hard to fight in Constantinople because of the excess of red tape. As recently as ten years ago much time was wasted in getting the fire brigade to work because leave from Yildiz kiosk had to be obtained before the signal could be fired. Further time was frequently wasted on the spot because the Turkish firemen had a way before beginning operations of making a leisurely oriental bargain with the people whose property was to be saved. In one case when a village caught fire in the winter the entire place was destroyed and many lives lost through cold and privation owing to this chaffering.

Joseph Millroy will be tried at Kenora on a charge of shooting Richard Dense.

MRS. ELLEN NAGLE

HON. C. C. BROOKS

MRS. H. A. S. MARSH

MRS. S. M. MORRIS

PRINCE JONAH KALANIANAOLE

GRATEFUL MEN AND WOMEN PRAISE PE-RU-NA.

Mrs. Ellen Nagle, 414 4th St., Green Bay, Wis., writes: "I have often heard Peruna praised and it is more widely known here than other medicines, but I never knew what a splendid medicine it really was until a few weeks ago when I caught a bad cold which settled all over me.

"The doctor wanted to prescribe, but I told him I was going to try Peruna and sent for a bottle and tried it. I felt much better the next morning and within five days I had not a trace of any lameness or cough."

Prince Jonah Kalanianaole, Dewey Hotel, Washington, D. C., Delegate to Congress from Hawaii, writes:

"I can cheerfully recommend your Peruna as a very effective remedy for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."

Hon. C. C. Brooks, Mayor of Sunbury, Ohio, also Attorney for Farmers' Bank and Sunbury Building and Loan Co., writes:

"I have the utmost confidence in the virtue of Peruna. It is a great medicine. I have used it and I have known many of my friends who have obtained beneficial results from its use. I cannot praise Peruna too highly."

Cystitis Entirely Relieved.

Miss Mattie McArthur, care of Hospital, Medical Lake, Wash., writes:

"I have not written to you for some time, but, Oh, I have given you many words of praise. I am so well. I had cystitis very badly and could not walk any distance without suffering intense pain, but I do not have a touch of my old suffering now. I can never praise Peruna enough. I am telling every one how much good Peruna has done for me."

Catarrh of Head and Throat.

Mrs. William H. Hinchliffe, 29 Myrtle street, Beverly, Mass., writes:

"I have taken four bottles of Peruna, and I can say that it has done me a great deal of good for catarrh of the head and throat. I recommend Peruna to all sufferers with catarrh. I do not think I ever felt much better. I am really surprised at the work I can do. I do not think too much praise can be said of Peruna."

Suffered With LaGrippe.

Mrs. H. A. S. Marsh, 2128 Reservoir St., Los Angeles, Cal., President Woman's Benevolent Association, writes:

"I suffered with la grippe for seven weeks, and nothing I could do or take helped me until I tried Peruna.

"I felt at once that I had at last secured the right medicine and I kept steadily improving. Within three weeks I was fully restored, and I am glad that I gave that truly great remedy a trial.

"I will never be without it again."

Used Pe-ru-na For Bronchitis.

Mr. Frank Battle, Jr., First street, near Charlotte Ave., West Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"I desire to say for the benefit of others that your Peruna has unquestionably cured me of chronic bronchitis. It is the grandest discovery of the age for throat and lungs."

Peruna is not simply a palliative to relieve some of of the distressing symptoms. It brings permanent relief.

Malarial Fever For Several Months.

Mrs. Sue M. Morris, 2214 Patterson St., Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"Last fall a severe attack of malarial fever laid me up for some months. My condition was serious for a time and the doctor who was attending me did not seem able to cope with the trouble.

"A neighbor advised me to let the doctor's prescription alone and try Peruna, extolling its virtues to the skies, and I am now ready to do the same, for in three days I was much better and in ten days I was able to be up and in two weeks every trace of malaria had left my system.

"I now use Peruna off and on when in need of a tonic and it braces me up wonderfully."

"The Doctors Gave Me Up."

Mr. Lewis Kitchen, Hulington, Ohio, writes:

"I cannot thank you enough for the good your Peruna has done me. About six months ago I could not leave my bed, and the doctors gave me up saying that I had consumption and could not live. Then a friend recommended Peruna to me, and I commenced using it.

"When I started to use your Peruna I weighed 117 pounds, and now I weigh 172 pounds. I had been sick for ten years, and was so sick I could not turn over in bed when I began the use of Peruna. I think it is the greatest medicine of its time.

"I am now feeling well and hearty and would not be without Peruna."

Weak and Nervous.

Mr. Charles Brown, Rogersville, Tenn., writes:

"I feel it my duty to write you a few words in praise of your Peruna. I have tried many different remedies, but have found that Peruna is the greatest tonic on earth, and a perfect system builder.

"A friend advised me to take Peruna for indigestion, and it cured me in a short time. I was very weak and nervous, could sleep but little at night, but Peruna cured that tired, all-gone feeling, and made me feel like a new man, so I heartily recommend it to all who are weak and run down. Peruna will give new life and energy. I cannot speak too highly of Peruna, and will not forget to recommend it on every hand. I will answer any letter from those desiring to know what Peruna has done for me."

Systemic Catarrh.

Miss Marie Lesser, 928 W. 86th street, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I am glad to give a good word for Peruna, and I hope that all who see this who are troubled with systemic catarrh as I was for years, will profit by it. I had tried many remedies, but none did more than give me temporary relief and some did not even do that. I took Peruna at the suggestion of a friend and was more than pleased and surprised at the results. I am now perfectly well and strong."

True Cause of Disease.

IN these days almost every ailment is supposed to be caused by disease germs.

The medical profession as well as the people, seem to have gone mad over the germ theory of disease.

The universal fear and dread of disease germs is becoming a very serious matter to the welfare and happiness of the people.

Dr. Hartman has consistently contended through all the rise and spread of the germ theory, that most diseases are caused by climatic influences.

For instance, catching cold is responsible for more than one-half of the ills to which human beings are subject.

Danger of Neglected Colds.

A person catches cold easily, thinks nothing about it, neglects it, when it finally becomes settled in some organ of the body, and chronic disease is the result.

A few doses of Peruna in the beginning of the cold would have saved months of suffering, as well as great expense for treatment.

Instead of trying to dislodge or kill some imaginary germ, if Peruna was used at the proper time its tonic properities and anti-catarrhal qualities would soon convince the patient that he has found the right remedy.

Keep Peruna in the house. Use it whenever cold or climatic affections assail, and sickness in the household will become greatly lessened, if not entirely prevented.

Catarrh of the Stomach.

Mr. Christian Hofmann, R. F. D. 1, Slatington, Pa., writes:

"For many years I suffered with catarrh of the stomach. I was coughing day and night. After having tried three doctors and many remedies, one of your almanacs came to my hand, and I bought some Peruna. So far I have taken six bottles, and I have not suffered with catarrh this summer. I am cured and Peruna did it. I give Peruna to my children when they feel bad and you should see how healthy they are."

Nose, Throat and Stomach.

Mr. Delbert B. Craft, Lowell, Ind., writes:

"For a long time I suffered with chronic catarrh of the nose, throat and stomach. I would continually take cold and my stomach was in bad condition. I truly suffered untold misery. I took various medicines and tried the treatment of several physicians, but I felt no better. A friend advised me to take Peruna. I wrote to Dr. Hartman, who prescribed treatment. As soon as I commenced to take Peruna I was surprised at the relief it gave me. I kept on taking it until I had taken thirteen bottles and was cured."

APPLES AS LOVE CHARMS.

They Have Played a Large Part In Superstition of Our Race.

There is a mine of quaint and superstitious customs connected with the apple which would make capital reading if all the instances on record could be gathered between the covers of a volume. The apple in times past has been used as an omen of luck—good and bad—success in love and marriage, and in some cases [illegible] ward off disease.

A curious yet romantic belief which still exists in some parts of the south of England is to fasten several apples on to strings, after which the strings are hung and twirled before the fire. The owner of the apple which first falls off so does the order of matrimony proceed. Single bliss is the lot of the owner of the last apple left on the string.

In times past the apple has played a prominent part in the traditions of Scotland, and even now in the Highlands the peeling of an apple to reveal the letter of a young girl's future husband's name is regarded with superstitious awe. The romantic maiden procures a large apple and proceeds to pare it. If the peel breaks, then there is a calamity ahead and an interrupted love. If it break twice, once while being pared and again while being thrown, then it means still more disaster, for the twice-parted peel means twice-parted love.

But if the peel be safely taken from the apple, safely tossed around the head three times, and safely thrown to the ground so that it makes a letter on the floor, then it becomes an agent of fate, and as such will help the girl in deciphering the first letter of her future lover's name.

More generally known, and at the same time more weird-like and fearful in character, is the celebrated spell of eating an apple before a looking-glass, with a view to discovering the inquirer's future husband, who, it is believed, will be seen peeping over her shoulder.

A more serious and recent custom, however, consists of a bowl of water with a number of apples floating about. Fond mothers have to drop forks into the water from a distance of about four feet, with the hope of piercing an apple. If this is done successfully the feat is said to protect their children from catching cold.

"Guinness's."

Guinness's stout and Lord Iveagh, who will celebrate his sixty-first birthday on November 10th, are necessarily inseparable, but so are Lord Iveagh and philanthropy. For Guinness's stout has made Lord Iveagh one of the richest men in the world, and Lord Iveagh has chosen to be one of the most charitable. The debt of gratitude which dear, dirty Dublin owes to his lordship can never be repaid, and, in spite of his immense wealth, he is still content to work at his business. Often one may see him walking briskly from his house on St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, to the splendid block of buildings on the south side of the Liffey, where Guinness's stout comes from. Next to philanthropy, his lordship's chief hobbies are collecting art treasures and sport. Lord Iveagh, by the way, belongs to the "no hat brigade" when out with the guns. He invariably goes out shooting bareheaded, and it is said that the only time he has been seen with his head covered, while in pursuit of game, was on the occasion when a certain distinguished guest was so surprised to see his lordship standing bareheaded in the rain that he knotted his handkerchief at the four corners, and insisted on placing it on Lord Iveagh's unprotected brow.

"Claudius Clear."

So Dr. Robertson Nicoll, whose life of his friend, "Ian Maclaren," was recently published, is known to the thousands who read The British Weekly, the paper which he founded and edits, and in which "The Correspondence of Claudius Clear" has been a prominent feature for the past twenty years. In his Life of "Ian Maclaren" Dr. Nicoll tells an interesting story of the way in which that famous book, "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush," came to be written. During a visit from Maclaren, Dr. Nicoll was so much struck with his racy stories and character sketches that he suggested that the teller should make some articles out of them. The idea was at first unwelcome, but at last Maclaren promised to try. The first sketch he sent was clever but disappointing, and Dr. Nicoll returned it. A second was also more or less unsatisfactory. Then he sent the first four chapters of what is now known as "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush," and Dr. Nicoll knew, on reading them, that his popularity was assured.

When "Labby" Was a Schoolboy.

In his younger days Mr. Henry Labouchere, one of whose letters has been throwing a remarkable light on the Home Rule split, had a great weakness for practical joking. On one occasion, having more money than he knew what to do with, he determined, instead of treating his chums, to do the "big toff" in solitary grandeur. He accordingly dressed with great care, sallied forth to one of the largest hotels in Eton, engaged a private room, and ordered the waiter in lordly tones to bring him a bowl of punch. The discreet waiter stared, but brought the liquor. It was then the Etonian's turn to wonder what he should do with it. At length, his eye lighting upon a cupboard of antique oak, a brilliant idea struck him. He opened the door and poured the whole of the punch into the cupboard. Then he rang the bell and ordered the waiter to bring another bowl. Mr. Labouchere declares that he will never forget the expression of amazement on the man's countenance. The fresh bowl was brought, however, and, its contents having followed the first instalment, the Eton boy disbursed the bill, tipped the waiter, and swaggered out into the street, the cynosure of all eyes. He took great care, however, never to go to that hotel again.

Christmas and Now

Christmas comes but once a year — but "once" doesn't mean any time.

Christmas is "coming"—that's true.

But there isn't much difference between Christmas and Now.

Now is—Now.

Then the difference is less than two weeks.

And those weeks will soon slip by.

Christmas will soon be here with its gifts.

The gift spirit has already arrived.

It's just waiting to take firm root, and then the buying will begin in dead earnest.

Now is the time to buy—the best time to start buying, anyway.

Start now to scrutinize The Review advertising colums as you never did before—it will save you lots of time and worry and pay you, too.

The man who has up-to-date goods will be up-to-date enough to want to let other people know, and the Review is better than a block-long window, because the Review goes to you and tells you. It's the easiest way. It's the most sensible.

And remember, the up-to-date advertiser's advice is right—it pays you to shop early

OLD MOORE'S ALMANAC.

Seer Prophesies That Death Will Be Heavy on Nobility.

"Moore's Almanac," described as the "original edition — 212th year," is out betimes for 1909, and is as full of omens as ever. First, it gloats over the fulfilled predictions of the 211th issue, pointing out "how excellent they were." The prediction "that the Government was in danger of defeat" is held to have been justified amply by the loss of three seats at bye-elections. In regard to the assassination of the King of Portugal, the seer points out that he predicted that "Portugal will suffer from the position of Saturn and Mars," and that "a crisis of some magnitude" was threatened in that country. He also reminds his readers that "the Mile-end trial early in August is again referred to (page 25), where it was prophesied that 'matters to do with workhouses will occupy public attention.'"

So much for the past; what of the coming year? In the winter quarter, we are told, "The affliction of the sun is bad for royalty and the ruling powers, and death will lay its icy hand on many of high position in the land. A noted cleric or scientist will pass away." In America and Germany trouble is foretold, and in Persia "Mars will be culminating, which points to dangers to the Shah."

The astrological signs in March portend "much distress and poverty in the land," and yet "the revenue will be in a good state," and a reduction of taxation will be made. At this period the death of a great statesman or general is foreshadowed, but when the sun enters Cancer on June 22 the conjunctions are expected to be ominous for trade and the revenue, and to point to disturbances, bank failures and panics on 'change.

In September "the affliction of the sun is bad for royalty, and denotes a harassing times for the governing powers." Moreover, we are actually assured that "disputes are to be feared with the colonies." Mars will again be "culminating," and the Emperor of China is warned in this connection to "beware of assassination."

Yet another warning is offered to King Edward in view of the total solar eclipse, which is to occur on Dec. 23, and will "adversely affect both our own land and India, and will cause a heavy death rate among the nobility." The prophet solemnly proclaims that "the King of England is warned to take care of his health, as this eclipse falls on the place of Saturn at his birth." Evidently there are evil times ahead of us if the "Vox stellarum" speaks with the ring of truth.

Their Designs.

Bishop (kindly)—And all these lovely young ladies whom I have just met in the guild room have some common bond?

Curate (modestly)—Yes. They all hope to marry me.—Judge.

The Worst of It.

'Tis better far to kiss the girl
  You love than any other,
But when you've married her how hard
  It is to kiss her mother!

A PRACTICAL SUGGESTION

Do you want a bathroom done by a practical plumber under the supervision of a practical firm who have learnt the business and can give you a properly installed bathroom, not an experimental one such as you get from unpractical firms in the business. Did you ever stop to think how absurd it is for you to expect a satisfactory result from firms who have never spent a day learning plumbing, heating, or wiring, who are tailors, tinsmiths, stove agents, bicycle agents, or any other line of business, opening up a department of plumbing, heating, or wiring, with a good mechanic employed to-day and a poor one next week, and your bathroom or your extravagant hot water or steam heating the result, with insufficient heat but a big coal bill. This is nearly always the case with unpractical firms installation.

We have a well trained staff all the year round, mechanics second to none which our Mr. MacGregor has trained himself. We have never less than 10 and at present we have between 20 and 25 on our staff. Our men are reliable, study our interest and try to please you every time.

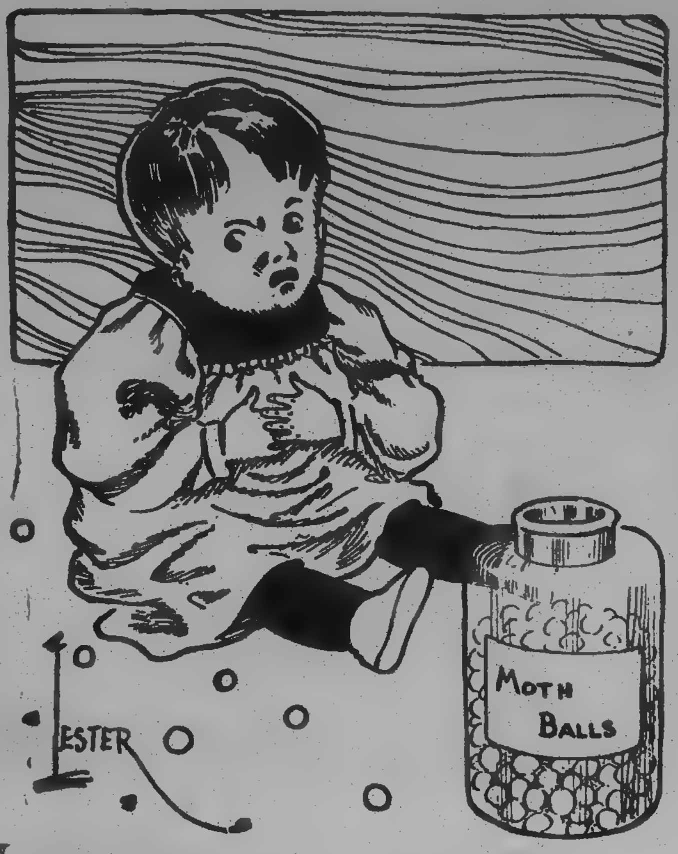
Something Wrong With Bud's Merry Christmas



'Twas merry Christmas till des now, an' I was feelin' dandy.

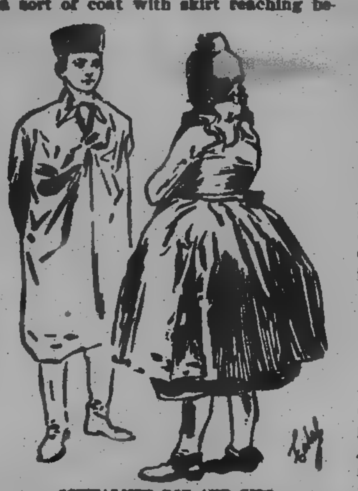
SCHWALMER BOYS AND GIRLS

Their Quaint Costumes and Their Odd Christmas Dance.

Over in Hesse-Nassau, a district in Germany, there is a section of the Hessian people who present an interesting study, particularly in regard to their quaint Christmas customs.

These people live in the valley of the river Schwalm. The Schwalmer boys wear a peculiar round hat or cap without brim or visor. It resembles in shape a small cheese box. They wear a sort of coat with skirt reaching below the knees, something on the order of the highlander's kilt, and white socks with black bows.



SCHWALMER BOY AND GIRL.

The Schwalmer girls also wear white stockings with the black bows. Their skirts reach scarcely below the knees. It is the fashion to wear several stiff skirts, which stand out from the person much in the manner of the hoop skirts of our own grandmothers. On their heads the girls wear a funny little pill box sort of hat, to which are attached broad bands tied under the chin, completely concealing the ears.

The boys and girls have an outdoor dance at Christmas when the weather favors. Each village has a favorite dancing ground where the young people gather for the fun. The boys stand in a semicircle, while the girls line up to await their partners. Everybody maintains a dignified silence. Finally one boy steps forward to the maiden of his choice, lifts his arm and bows profoundly. Each of the boys in his turn then goes through the same ceremony of choosing his partner, who is his for the day. Then begins the dance, which is vigorous and hearty.

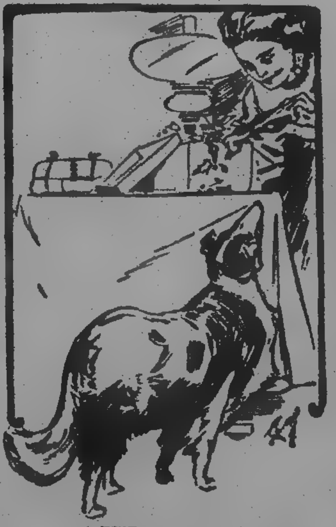
A DOG'S CHRISTMAS GIFT.

How a Friend Remembered Roy the Collie.

Last Christmas a neatly ribboned box arrived by express in a New England town addressed to Roy, a collie. A fine large bone, with plenty of good red meat still adhering, was found within. Roy put the bone where it would do him the most good after one of his friends had removed the paraffin paper and holly berry garnishment which the donor had sent along. The bone was a Christmas gift from a little girl in the south, who had spent the summer in Roy's town and had become very fond of the dog. Roy's next friend dictated and sent the following telegram to the little girl:



A FINE LARGE BONE

Here is a new sort of three legged race which does not require all the trouble of tying your racers together and is very much better than the old way. In fact, girls may go in this kind as well as boys, with no fear of hurting themselves, and two nimble girls stand a very good chance of beating two boys too.

All you have to do is to grasp the raised left foot of a companion, who hops along in front of you. It is really a race of hops, and the best hopper will surely win a Christmas gift as a prize, for it is no trick at all for the one behind to run as fast as the front one can hop.

Porto Rico's Christmas

Few Stockings — No Chimneys

Christmas for the Americans in Porto Rico is pretty much the same, so far as the observance of the day is concerned, as Christmas at home or anywhere else.

The chief difference is in those characteristics of the season that are due to or are influenced by the weather, which more nearly resembles that of the Fourth of July than a winter holiday.

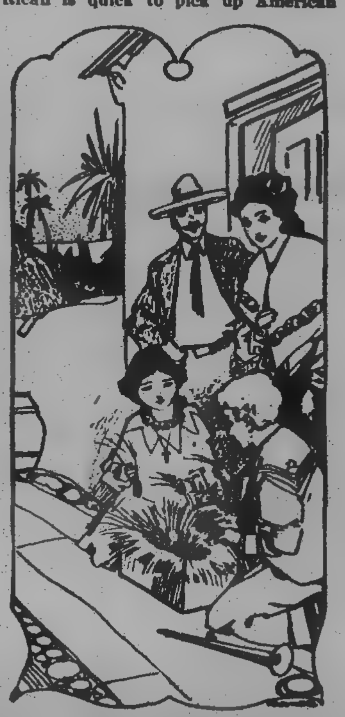
There is the same spirit of good feeling, the same cheery greeting, the same happy experience for the little people in the shape of gifts from Santa Claus and that same more or less sincere determination on the part of their elders to forgive their enemies—which sometimes they do.

Among the natives Christmas day is a church holiday only, and it is very generally observed by them as such, but it is not the occasion of family reunions nor the day of gifts, as with us.

The Porto Rican family gatherings occur and their Santa Claus makes his appearance on the 6th of January—"El dia de los Reyes," or "the day of the kings," commemorating the bringing of gifts to the infant Christ—but Kriss Kringle manifestly does not come down the chimney for the very good reason that there are no chimneys to Porto Rican houses, and for equally obvious reasons he does not bring his reindeer nor his sleigh.

Instead of hanging up their stockings the native children prepare a box filled with grass to represent a manger and place it outside their doors on the night of the 5th of January, just as the little Dutch children in Holland put out their wooden shoes.

Christmas will always be a church holiday to the natives, and El dia de los Reyes will also probably always be observed by them. But the Porto Rican is quick to pick up American ideas, and the observance of Christmas day is yearly taking on more of an American character.



THE CHILDREN PREPARE A BOX TO REPRESENT A MANGER.

One evidence of this is the growing custom, so common in the southern states especially, of evidencing one's appreciation of the occasion by the free use of tin horns and other agencies for the production of noises.

The first intimation one usually receives that the day has arrived is the result of an enthusiastic and determined attempt about 3 a. m. on the part of a native youngster to blow his lungs out through the small end of a tin horn, and his enthusiasm is in direct proportion to the size of his horn.

But as the old adage has it, "the better the day the better the deed," and the tin horn is only another expression of the time honored sentiment "Merry Christmas to you all."—Army and Navy Life.

Brother Dickey on Christmas.

Dey say hit is better ter give dan ter receive, but I wants ter put my friends on notice dat I been 'p'inted ter be a receiver 'twell after Chris'mus.

De Chris'mus turkey roos' mighty high, but by de blessin' er Providence some er us got a mighty long reach.

He dat give ter de po' lends ter de Lawd, but in dat case some folks think dey'll hatter wait too long ter git dey money back.

Peculiarity of Mistletoe.

An interesting item regarding the mistletoe is that it is the only plant whose roots refuse to shoot in the ground, a peculiarity possessed by no other parasite. It is found on the fir, the lime and the apple tree as well as on the oak.

The Woman of It.

Mrs. Dorcas—What was the first thing she did when she got the Christmas present?

Dorcas—Went to the store to find out what it cost.

Describing the Climate.

"Is your climate changeable?" asked the stranger.

"Not very," answered Farmer Corntossel. "It keeps shiftin' around a little till it strikes a kind of weather nobody likes; then it sticks."

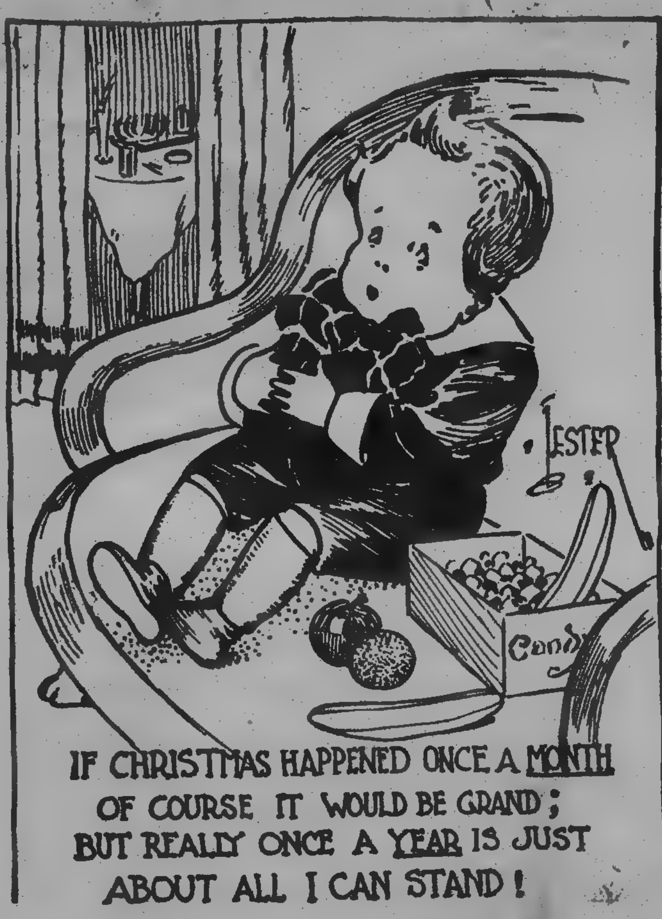
An After Dinner Talk



IF CHRISTMAS HAPPENED ONCE A MONTH OF COURSE IT WOULD BE GRAND; BUT REALLY ONCE A YEAR IS JUST ABOUT ALL I CAN STAND!

Mother's Coronation Day

That first Christmas was the mother's coronation day. Each recurring Christmas perpetuates the memory of her great glory. In public and in private celebrations of it hers should be the central figure. Solemn gladness akin to the Creator's satisfaction in his "very good" work should fill her soul.

In Mr. Harrison S. Morris' beautiful poem, "Incarnation," we read how a laborer, laden with "a tray of tools, a timbered frame," walked in the sunshine through a city street—

Nor knew that out of myriads one
Beside him saw a shadow run
That clasped the centuries in its shade

. . . .

But, like a living spirit, there,
In even footfall at his side,
A shadow walked the pavement wide
With bended head and humble pride
And angled cross aslant the air.

It was as if the dateless sun
Forgot the years, the far abode,
And, lo, upon the sordid road
The cross worn Nazarean trode,
Holding the journey never done.

Every mother who holds her baby in her arms repeats, unconsciously or consciously, the story of the incarnation. The blended shadow "clasps the centuries," past, present and to come, and eternity itself "in its shade."—Marion Harland in Independent.

The Navy's Christmas.

Christmas in the regular navy is observed as one of the big holidays of the year. Starting off with a grand dinner in the middle of the day, discipline is from then on relaxed, and the fun is fast and furious till sundown, and often the evening is enlivened by amateur theatricals. The vessel is gayly decorated with bunting, and at each masthead and at the bow and stern green trees are lashed if procurable.

Having been encouraged by the liberal patronage of the past three years, I purpose going one better this year and will present to the citizens of Peterborough a larger and better selected stock than ever. Having gone to considerable expense in remodelling the interior of the store. Especially noticeable is our New Book Shelves, which show not only the titles plainly but also the binding, etc., etc. Worth any person's time who is fond of books to spend an hour or so, merely looking them over. No salesman required, they are right in front of you. These shelves have been pronounced by several representatives of large publishing houses as the most attractive and convenient of any ever before seen. They are Silent Salesmen without any glass front.

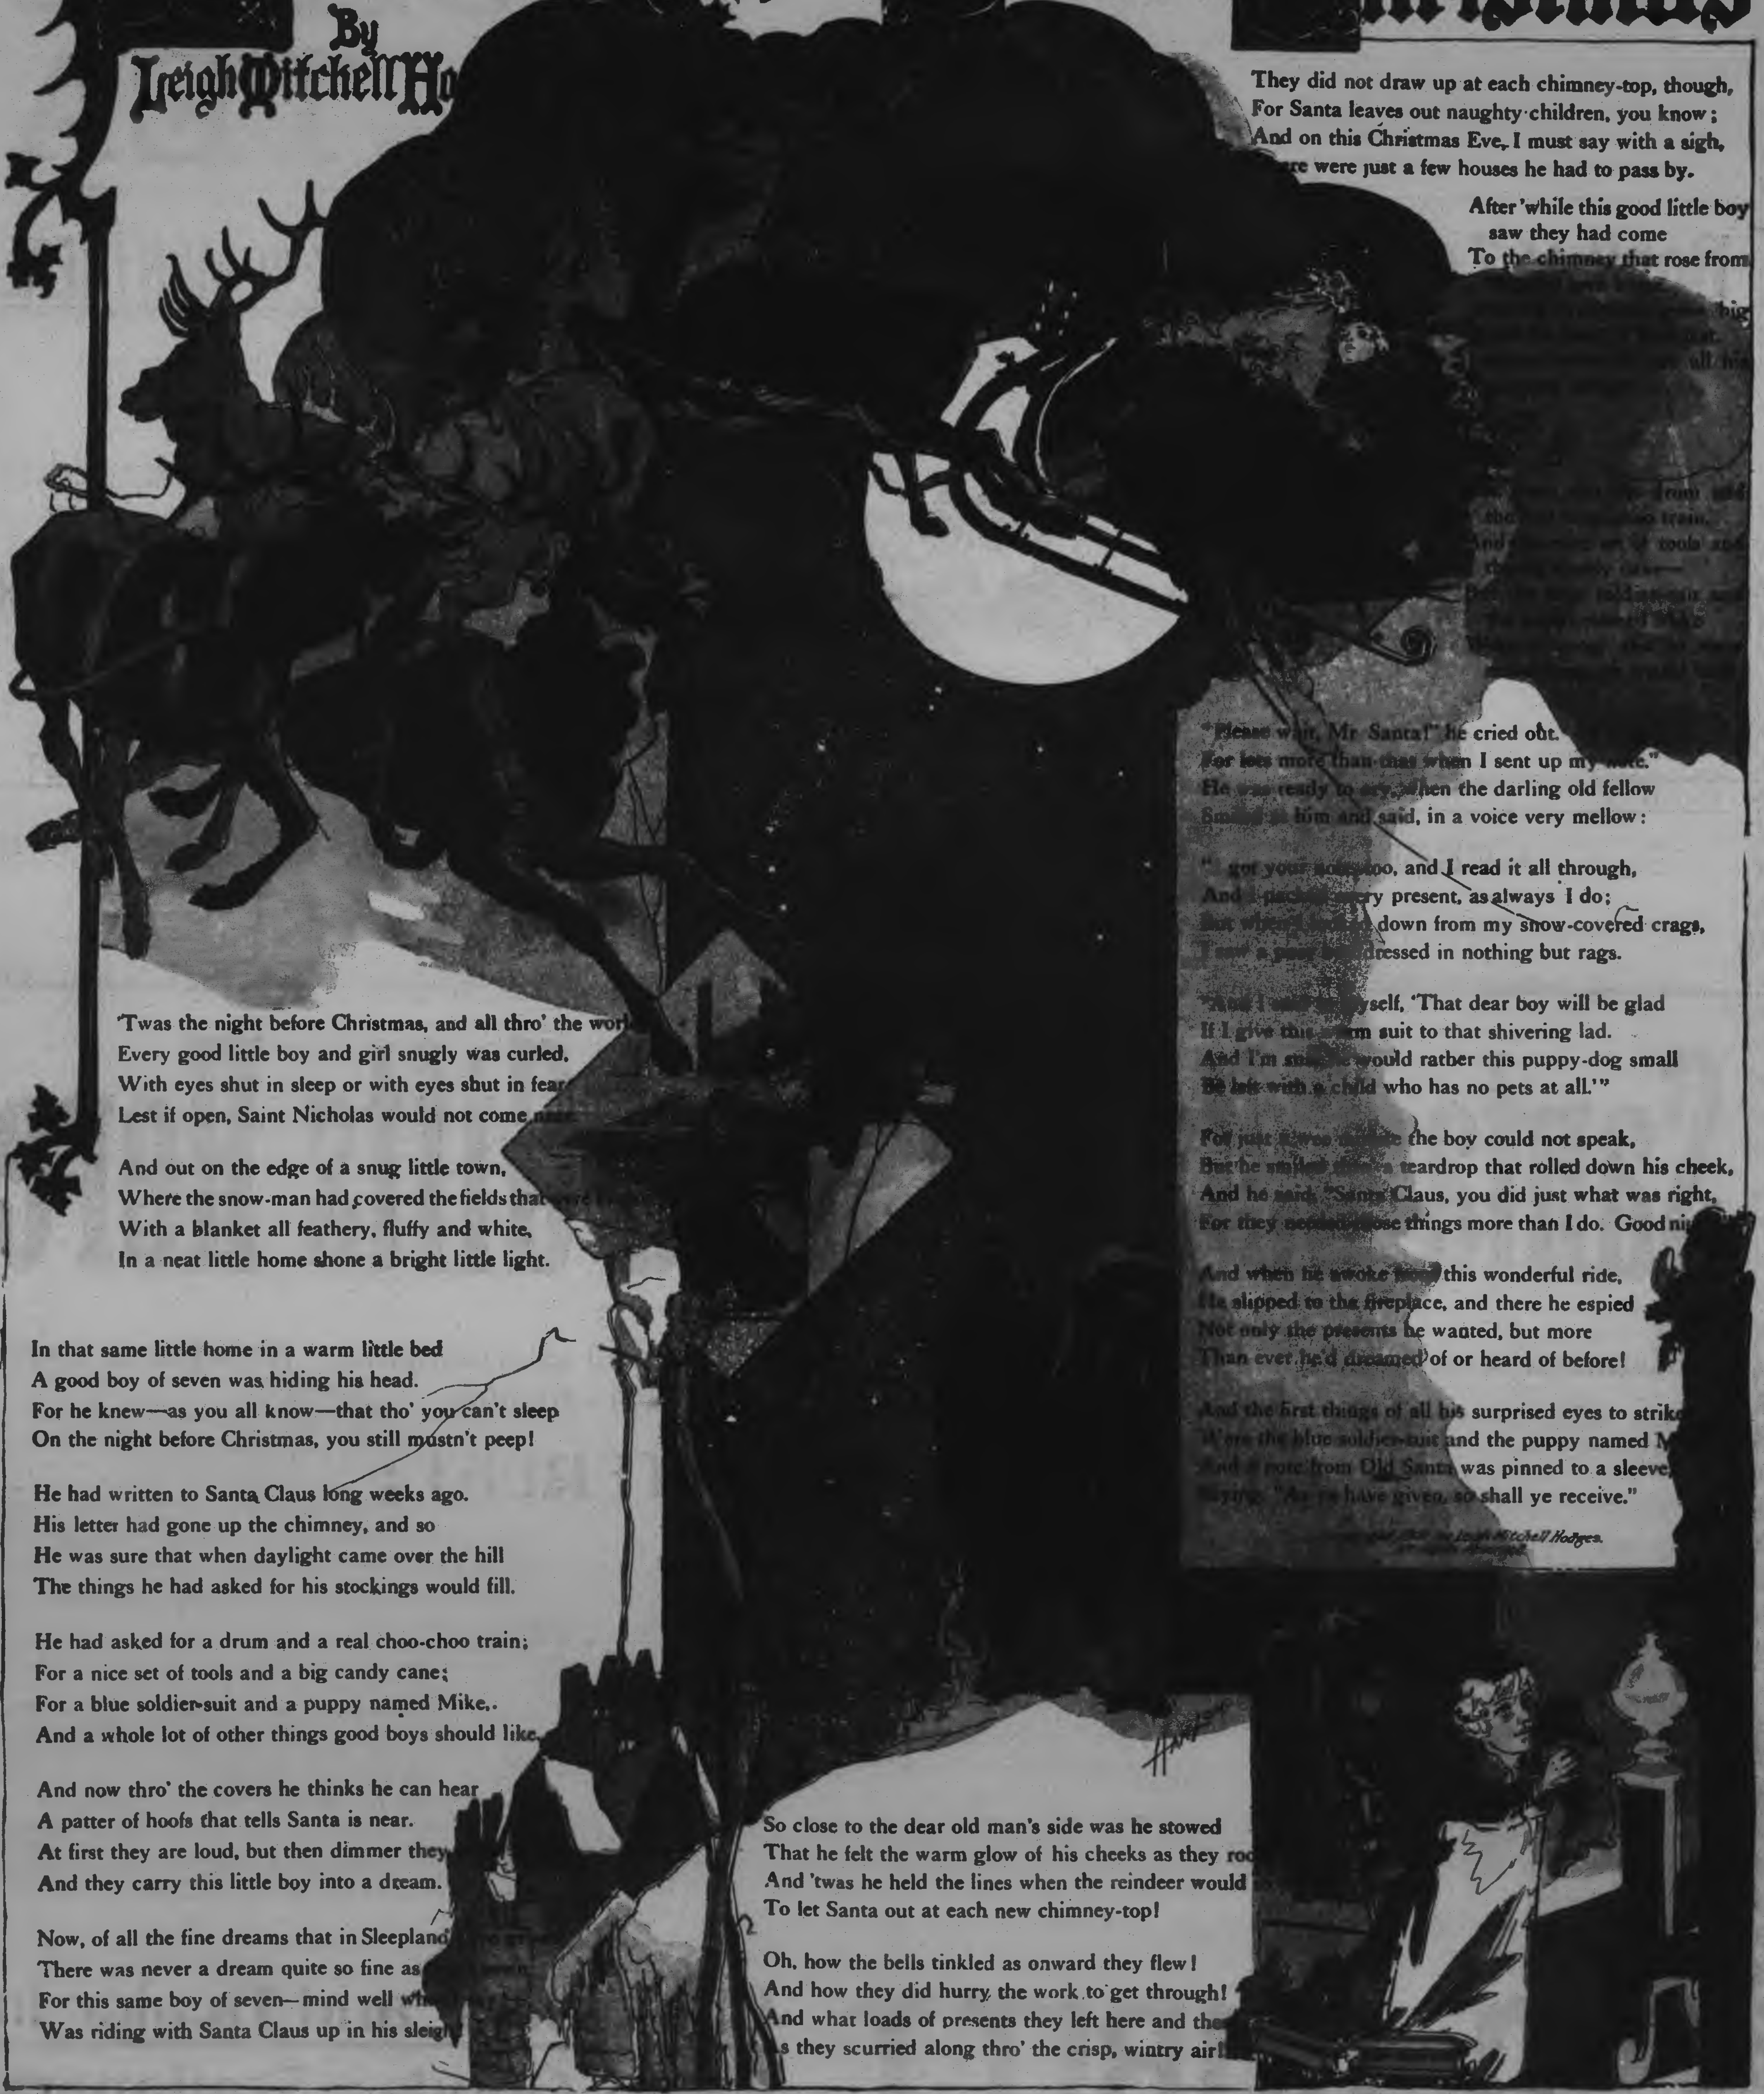
Another Night Before Christmas

By
Leigh Mitchell Ho



'Twas the night before Christmas, and all thro' the wor
Every good little boy and girl snugly was curled,
With eyes shut in sleep or with eyes shut in fear
Lest if open, Saint Nicholas would not come [illegible]

Where the snow-man had covered the fields tha
With a blanket all feathery, fluffy and white,
In a neat little home shone a bright little light.

In that same little home in a warm little bed
A good boy of seven was hiding his head.
For he knew—as you all know—that tho' you can't sleep
On the night before Christmas, you still mustn't peep!

He had written to Santa Claus long weeks ago.
His letter had gone up the chimney, and so
He was sure that when daylight came over the hill
The things he had asked for his stockings would fill.

He had asked for a drum and a real choo-choo train;
For a nice set of tools and a big candy cane;
And a whole lot of other things good boys should like.

And now thro' the covers he thinks he can hear
At first they are loud, but then dimmer they
And they carry this little boy into a dream.

Now, of all the fine dreams that in Sleepland
There was never a dream quite so fine as
For this same boy of seven—mind well wh
Was riding with Santa Claus up in his sleig

So close to the dear old man's side was he stowed
That he felt the warm glow of his cheeks as they ro
And 'twas he held the lines when the reindeer would
To let Santa out at each new chimney-top!

Oh, how the bells tinkled as onward they flew!
And how they did hurry the work to get through!
And what loads of presents they left here and the s they scurried along thro' the crisp, wintry air!

They did not draw up at each chimney-top, though,
For Santa leaves out naughty children, you know;
And on this Christmas Eve, I must say with a sigh, re were just a few houses he had to pass by.

After 'while this good little boy saw they had come
To the chimney that rose from [illegible]

"Please wait, Mr Santa!" he cried out.
For [illegible] more than that when I sent up my note."
He was ready to cry, when the darling old fellow Smiled at him and said, in a voice very mellow:

"I got your note, too, and I read it all through,
And I packed every present, as always I do;
But when I started down from my snow-covered crags,
I saw a poor boy dressed in nothing but rags.

"And I said to myself, 'That dear boy will be glad
If I give this warm suit to that shivering lad.
And I'm sure he would rather this puppy-dog small
Be left with a child who has no pets at all.'"

For just a wee minute the boy could not speak,
But he smiled thro' a teardrop that rolled down his cheek,
And he said, "Santa Claus, you did just what was right,
For they needed those things more than I do. Good ni

And when he awoke from this wonderful ride,
He slipped to the fireplace, and there he espied
Not only the presents he wanted, but more
Than ever he'd dreamed of or heard of before!

And the first things of all his surprised eyes to strik
Were the blue soldier-suit and the puppy named M
And a note from Old Santa was pinned to a sleeve,
Saying: "As ye have given, so shall ye receive."

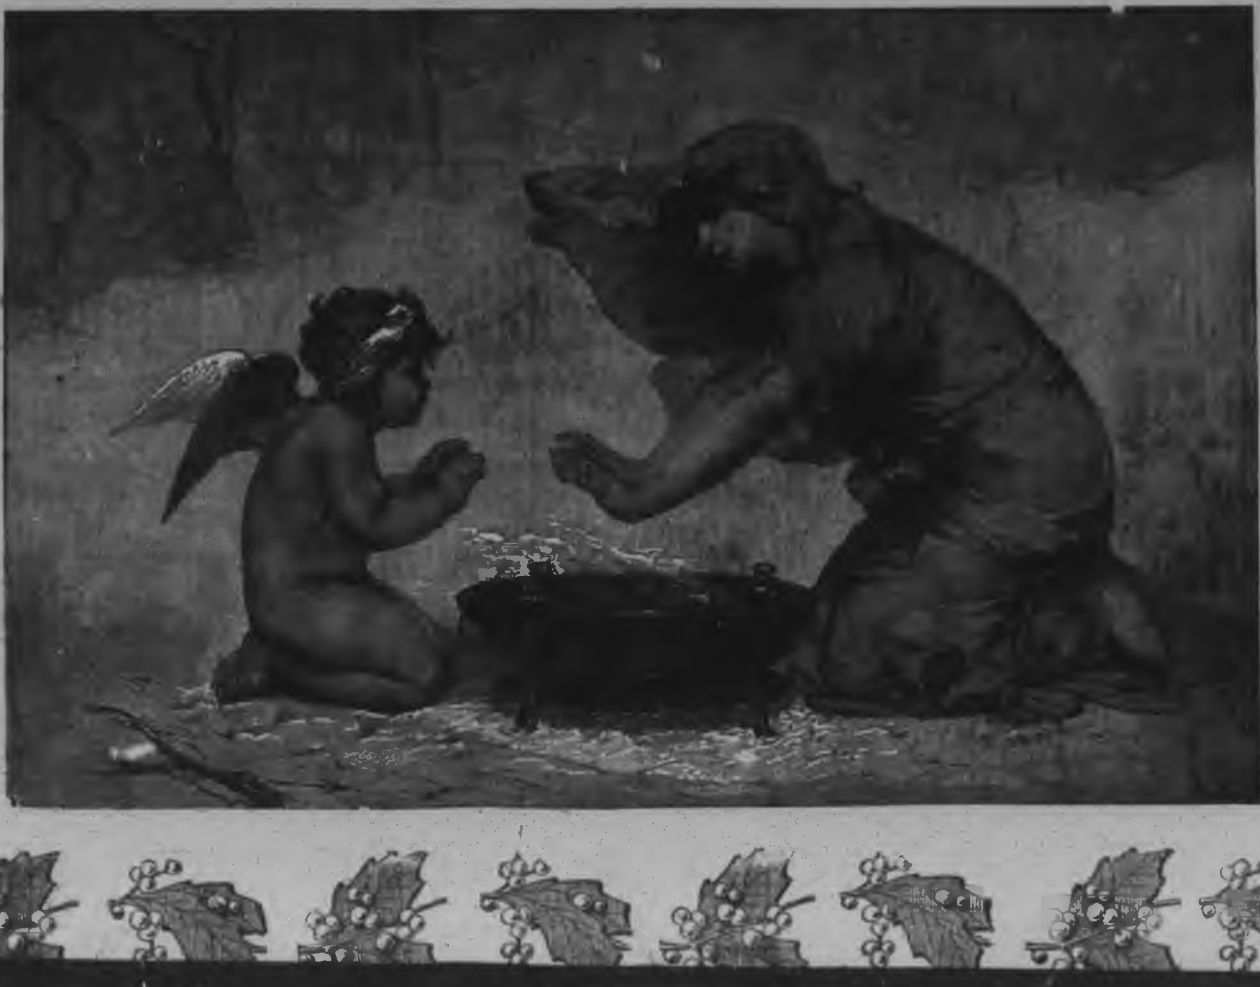
Under the Mistletoe



He Called For Trumps.

The major was laying down the 'aw on whist. He always did, and woe to the man who ventured to differ from him!

"I tell you," he said, glaring defiantly round, as if daring any one to contradict him, "I once, and once only, had all thirteen trumps dealt to me!"

"You, I suppose, were—er—the dealer?" a meek looking young man put in

The major turned purple

"No, sir," he roared, "no, sir! Confound your impudence, I was not the dealer!"

"Then may I ask," the meek young man asked calmly, "what happened to be the trump card the dealer turned up?"

Lord Morley's Love of Music.

Lord Morley is a great lover of music, his favorite composers being Wagner and Chopin. Some years ago, when he was Irish Secretary, he was visiting at a friend's house, where a young lady, an excellent amateur pianist, was also staying. At the request of the hostess the young lady played in the drawing-room one forenoon while Mr. Morley, as he then was, was at work in the library. "You stopped playing this morning just in the middle of 'Tristan,'" said the statesman to the musician when he met her in the afternoon. "I waited for you to go on, and lost half an hour's work in consequence. Do, please, finish next time, or you will incur a very serious responsibility."

Self Help.

Dashaway—Well, Uncle Jasper, how are you getting on with your Christmas dinner?

Uncle Jasper—Fust rate, sah. Colonel Winterblossom done guv me a present of a fine fat turkey, sah.

When Mistletoe Was Banned.

Because of its association with pagan rites the mistletoe was for centuries forbidden a place in English church decorations at Christmastide, and it was not even mentioned in old rhymes until the seventeenth century, in Herrick's time, although the holly and ivy had for two centuries previous been the subjects of various poetical effusions.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

Crawford—I thought you were perfectly delighted with the Christmas present your wife gave you.

Crabshaw—At that time I didn't know she'd had it charged.

In Christmas Land.

Mistletoe just overhead—
Touch one spray above!
Holly berries just as red
As the lips of Love.
Christmas skies of blue and gray,
Heaven in bright view,
And the sweetest gift today
Just the lips of you!

MYSTERY SURROUNDS THE DEATH OF EDWARD O'BRIEN

Fatality on the Norwood Road Saturday.

Companions Claim Ignorance of the Cause--Inquest Was Opened This Morning.

There is a link of vital importance missing in the chain of circumstances surrounding the death of Edward O'Brien, of Douro, who met his death on Saturday owing to causes which at present remain unknown. So obscured is the matter of the fatality that Coroner Dr. Gray decided that an inquest should be held, and it was opened this morning in the hall over Lane & Eano's undertakin gestablishment at 11 o'clock. Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, and High County Constable Cochrane were present in the interests of the Crown.

The following jury was empanelled:—A. E. Micks, foreman; Archie Campbell, James R. Bell, James Head, John Halpin, Fred Cook, Jos. Hickey, James Murty, J. T. C. Bang, K. O. Leeb, J. D. Craig, Wm. Hudson, J. W. Carey.

After the jurors were sworn in they were taken down to the undertaking rooms by High County Constable Cochrane and there viewed the remains. No evidence was taken and the inquest was enlarged until Tuesday evening at 7.30 o'clock when it will be resumed in the City Council Chamber.

HORSE DROPPED DEAD.

As has been mentioned the affair is quite beclouded and as no evidence was taken this morning details of a definite character are not available. From what can be learned the deceased came into the city on Saturday morning with a load of hay. He returned in the evening. He was accompanied by John Smith and James Guerin. When in town a horse trade had been effected, one of the team that had brought the load into town having been traded for another animal. The horse secured dropped dead when about three miles out from the city on the Norwood road. This was about 9 o'clock at night. O'Brien was left in charge of the waggon, it is stated, while his companions sought assistance.

FOUND HIM DEAD.

When they returned they found him dead. How he came to his death they declared they did not know and as no definite statement has been obtained from them it is only a matter of surmise as to the cause of his death.

They took the body of their friend to the residence of Mr. J. Corkery, some distance further on. Mr John O'Brien, Douro, a brother of the dead man, was sent for, and came into the city to Lane & Eano's undertaking establishment and the remains were brought to the undertaking establishment. Coroner Gray was notified of the death.

BRUISE UNDER EYE

The only injury on the body is a bruise above the right eye. There is quite a discoloration under the eye and an abrasion on the eyelid. The injury does not appear to be sufficient to cause death but it is the only cause to which it can be attributed.

Dr. Young performed the post mortem examination.

A wife and daughter residing in Buffalo survive the late Mr. O'Brien, and also his mother, three sisters and two brothers.

His mother is 85 years of age. The sisters are Mrs Patrick Lynch, Lake street; Mrs Sullivan, Douro, and Mrs. Crough, Smith. The brothers are, Michael, Ashburnham, and John of Douro. Deceased was well-known in this community. He was born in Douro and resided there all his life.

THEATRES OPENED

Big Montreal Houses Present Song and Picture Show on Sunday.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—The proprietors of the Academy and Francais, two leading theatres of the city, carried out their threat yesterday of opening their doors for Sunday perforances as a protest against the moving-picture shows running every Sunday.

The performances were of the nature of songs and moving picures, but the patronage accorded was not heavy. Two hundred were present at the first Academy show, and 300 were at the Francais.

The police were out in force at each theatre and collected evidence for the threatened action against the proprietors for violating the civic bylaw.

Seventy-five moving picture shows do a thriving business here every Sunday, in addition to Sohmer Park, which puts on a straight vaudeville show.

TO ORGANIZE LOYAL TRUE BLUE LODGE

A local lodge of the Loyal True Blues will be organized at a meeting in the Orange hall on Wednesday night at 7.45 o'clock. The members of Watch Tower Lodge, No. 277, will be present to assist in the organization and degree work.

MANY KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Dynamiting on Panama Canal Results in a Terrible Disaster.

Colon, Dec. 14.—A giant blast of dynamite, already prepared for firing, was prematurely exploded in the workings at Bascobispo on Saturday.

Thirteen bodies have been recovered, but it is believed a score or more are under the masses of rock and earth thrown up.

The charge consisted of fifty-one holes, sixty feet deep, and spread out over a large section of territory. The last hole was being charged by J. J. Reidy of Minneapolis, an experienced powderman, when it exploded. The others were exploded by the concussion. Reidy was blown to pieces. The other American dead include J. J. Kope, Philipsburg, N.J., steam shovel engineer, and J. T. Hummer, Dunellen, N.J., steam shovel craneman.

Bascobispo cut is about thirty miles from Colon, and the shock of the explosion was distinctly felt here.

FORMER CITIZEN DIES IN SEATTLE

Word comes of the death on December 7th, at Seattle, Wash., of Wm. C. McKee, a former citizen of Peterborough. The late Mr. McKee is well known here to many of the older residents. He left this city about twenty years ago for Vancouver, where he lived for ten years, and since had resided in Seattle, where he followed the occupation of contractor.

He was a brother of Mr. Thomas McKee, of Peterborough, who has been in Seattle since April, and of the late R. B. McKee, of the Peterborough Hardware Company. Interment took place at Vancouver.

Bloodhounds are being obtained by the Bedfordshire County Council to track incendiaries eleven suspicious fires having occurred recently in the county.

SPECIAL MUSIC IN THE CHURCHES

In the churches of Peterborough next Sunday there will be special music to tell anew the glad tidings of the birth of the Saviour of the world. The choirs are working on special music and the programme in each church promises to be unusually attractive.

The sermons will also be of an appropriate nature.

NARROW ESCAPE

At Grand Trunk Crossing on Simcoe Street --Pedestrian Raised Gates.

An accident was narrowly averted at the Grand Trunk crossing on Simcoe street on Saturday evening. Had it occurred the blame would have rested upon a person who lifted up the gate over the track in front of the pavement in order to get across. When that portion of the gate was raised the part over the road raised also, and a man with a team started to drive across. An engine was approaching at the time and the gateman had to do some fast work to get the gates up and allow the team to get off the track before the engine was down upon them.

The gateman at the Simcoe street crossing says that several accidents have almost resulted on account of persons meddling with the gates. The gateman is in charge of them and no one else should interfere with them in any way. It is the gateman's duty to raise and lower the gates. The public should not try to take this work on itself.

HIS MAJESTY MUCH BETTER

King Edward's Influenza Has Now Passed Over.

Brighton, Eng., Dec. 14.—King Edward will return to London to-day to resume his social engagements. The King was not in the best of health when he came to Brighton, but he seems to have entirely recovered.

For some days there has been some of the usual wild talk in regard to the King's health, which the cancelling of a few of his engagements always lets loose. The truth is the King had a slight touch of influenza following a severe cold. For a short time it was feared that he had an attack of gout and throat trouble, but now all is well.

The King is an excellent patient so long as he is kept amused, though he is apt to get nervous about himself. It may be noted that not a single extra insurance on the King's life has been done by Lloyd's, where there are always a large number of policies of indemnity against loss which might be occasioned by his death. The bulk of these policies are held by hotelkeepers and theatrical managers.

IS ON TRIAL AT SIMCOE

Simcoe, Dec. 14.—Chief of Police Malone came up for a hearing at 10 o'clock Saturday morning before Magistrates Beemer and Earle. The prosecuting attorney asked that the hearing be remanded for one week as the crown was not ready to proceed, the principal witness, Constable Wilkins, still being unable to give evidence.

The defence held that Magistrates Beemer and Earle had disqualified themselves from acting on account of the motion made before the county sessions last week by Magistrate Beemer and seconded by Magistrate Earle, that Malone be removed from the list of county constables. Mr. Kelly argued that the court was disqualified by reason of bias, and he would not ask for bail as he had intended.

The magistrates gave their reasons for their course before the sessions, saying that they were not biased in the matter against Malone, but that they were acting for the good of the public.

The case was remanded until next Saturday at two o'clock, when it is possible that it will still be remanded.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS MAY REFUSE NEXT FINANCE BILL

British House May Have to Dissolve.

Rumor That Asquith May Accept Peerage and Give up Leadership.

New York, Dec. 14.—A cable despatch to The Sun from London says that since Mr. Asquith has expressed his intention of clinging to office, despite the rebukes of the Lords, the upper House may endeavor to force an election in the spring in connection with the budget.

It is anticipated that some of the heavy burden of the new taxation, which is inevitable, may be of a Socialistic nature. The Lords, as is well known, always pass finance bills formally and without modification. Their power to amend or reject has not been exercised for generations, just as the Sovereign has never used his constitutional right of veto.

It is suggested that the Lords might refuse to approve some objectionable form of new taxation in the next budget and thus compel the Government to appeal to the country immediately. It would depend upon the nature of such interference as to whether the country would approve of such an exercise of long dormant power by the peers.

Peerage For Asquith.

London, Dec. 14.—A curious report is given currency by a usually well informed correspondent of a provincial paper to the effect that Mrs. Asquith has expressed her confidence that her husband will accept a peerage at the general election, thus leaving the leadership of the House of Commons to David Lloyd-George.

In view of Mr. Asquith's declamation against the House of Lords on Friday, Mrs. Asquith would appear to have been talking somewhat at random if she really made such a statement. The Premier's program speech on Friday has not improved the Cabinet's position.

The House of Lords has given judgment in the appeal brought before it by Miss Chrystal Macmillan and a number of other women graduates of Scottish universities who claimed that their degrees conferred the franchise on them.

The Lord Chancellor's judgment, in which the other law lords concurred, was to the effect that from the earliest time to the present day women had been under disability in regard to voting in Parliamentary elections, and, if that legal disability were to be removed, it must be done by an act of Parliament.

"We'll live to fight another day," was Miss Macmillan's only comment when she heard the decision.

Meanwhile some of the opponents of woman suffrage are coming seriously to fear that the disability will be removed. As David Lloyd-George, President of the Board of Trade, stated at the Albert Hall meeting last Saturday, there is a majority in the present Cabinet in favor of woman suffrage, and it is well known that A. J. Balfour's sympathies lie in the same direction.

Last week saw the formation of two new organizations, one in favor of, the other against, the movement to extend the vote to women, and it has further been marked by the acrimonious discussion of the scenes which disgraced the Albert Hall meeting.

CHILDREN BURNED

Four Little Ones Cremated in Fire Near Ottawa on Sunday Morning.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—The four children of W. J. Scharfe, a farmer of Hawthorne, a small place on the Russell road, ten miles from the city, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the Scharfe House Sunday morning.

Scharfe rose at six o'clock, and having lit the fire proceeded to the barn, where he was joined by his wife shortly after. While they were engaged in milking the cows the house caught fire from the stove-pipe.

When discovered the upper portion of the building was in a mass of flame. Scharfe made frantic efforts to rescue the children, who were sleeping upstairs, but was driven back by the flames and smoke. He could hear Ruby, the eldest of the four children, aged 4 1-2 years, calling "Daddy, daddy," but he could not get to her. The other children who perished were Ethel, aged three; Willie, aged two, and Dorothy, a four-months-old infant.

WILL BE ORDAINED TO THE PRIESTHOOD NEXT SUNDAY

At St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday next an impressive ceremony will be performed that of the ordination to the priesthood of Mr. Victor McFadden eldest son of Mr. Martin McFadden, this city. The services in connection with the ceremony will commence at half-past ten o'clock. The ordination will be performed by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor and the special sermon will be preached by Rev. Father Roache, President of St. Michael's College, Toronto.

Mr. McFadden is at present in Toronto. He has taken his theological course in St. Michael's College, and is a clever and bright young man with a splendid future before him.

ATTORNEY IN KENORA CASE IS PLACED UNDER ARREST

Kenora, Dec. 14.—One of the most sensational and disgraceful scenes that ever occurred in a Canadian court of justice was enacted on Saturday afternoon during the preliminary trial of the poker players—Martin Schwieg, Samuel Farquhar, George Archambault, Jr.—for conspiracy.

N. Hagal, K.C., arrived Friday night to defend the prisoners, and Saturday morning was suffering from indisposition. After adjournment for luncheon, he delayed court some little time by his late appearance, and during the examination of witnesses he had numerous disagreements with Crown Attorney MacKenzie and the presiding magistrates, Vereker and Belyeau. He subsequently was ordered out of court, and, refusing to go, was roughly handled by Chief of Police Gordon amidst great excitement.

When detained in an ante-room, he kicked several panes of glass out, and for a time pandemonium reigned. Afterwards the court adjourned till Monday. Martin Schwieg meantime was committed for trial, and Archambault and Farquhar were remanded.

WERE SIMPLY PUTTING ON A LITTLE BURLESQUE STUNT

Hines and Fletcher, the two walkers, who were on a jaunt in which they were to make 25,000 miles in two years, are good pedestrians are they not? They are not. At least they are not of the 25,000 mile in two years variety.

It is alleged that they are a couple of actors, who were with a company under the management of Mr. Al. Stephens. They worked the walking story and a section of the public, in order to beat their way through. Their plausible yarn got them some money and many favors.

It was their custom, they said to get a certificate of their visits to different towns, signed by the Mayor and a clergyman or priest of each place they visited. The Mayor at Lindsay refused to give them a certificate as he said they rode into the town.

The police department of some place will handicap them to such an extent that they won't be able to compete the distance in the time set, if they try to work their little game, much longer.

A CANDIDATE FOR MAYORALTY

The Review has been informed on excellent authority that another candidate will be placed in the field for the mayoralty at the municipal elections in January. Who the gentleman will be the Review's informant would not make public until a later date.

FRENCH ENGINEER SAYS PANAMA CANAL IS UNSAFE

Paris, Dec. 14.—M. Bunau-Varilla, an eminent French engineer, predicts disaster for the great Panama Canal unless the site of the Gatun Dam is changed. He says:

"It is doing a service to the United States to affirm that the plan being followed will almost infallibly end in the greatest disaster in the history of great public works ever recorded. The canal, as conceived, will exist or not according as the Gatun Dam holds or does not.

"Now, I, with all the French engineers who have studied the Panama Canal question, have the absolute conviction that the site of the Gatun Dam will result in certain destruction. I raised the first cry of alarm in a letter to President Roosevelt on March 5, 1906, and not only is my conviction not modified but it has just received an ominous confirmation in the accident which occurred at the end of November."

KEEPER IS DEAD

Special to the Review.

Kingston, Dec. 14.—Samuel Stevenson, keeper at Rockwood insane asylum, died last night, never having regained consciousness from a blow from a hammer on the head, given him by a Cunningham patient, who has the delusion that he is God.

Stevenson was aged 47 and leaves a family of eight children. He had received other injuries during his career as a guard.

A VENEZUELAN SHIP SEIZED

Willemstad, Dec. 14.—The Dutch cruiser Gelderland came into this port yesterday morning towing the Venezuelan coast guardship Alix, with the Dutch flag flying and a Dutch crew on board. The Gelderland captured the Alix off Puerto Cabello on Saturday. At the time the Alix was lying close inshore, and notwithstanding the threat which the Venezuelan Government had made to fire upon any of the Dutch warships committing a hostile act, the Gelderland steamed at speed towards the guardship and sent an officer and guard in a launch to seize her. This they did without resistance, and no shot came from the forts on land.

The crew of the Alix were put ashore and the Dutch officer and marines remained on board, the Gelderland finally taking the A' in tow and steaming away with her prize.

FURNACE PIPES WERE RUINED

A chimney fire at the American Hotel, Hunter street, was the cause of some alarm last night about 8.45, and a call was sent in for the brigade. The blaze was soon put out and the only damage will be to the smoke pipes from the furnace. These, however, were totally ruined.

HEAVY SNOW IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Dec. 14.—Thirty hours' continuous snowfall in Montreal and throughout a large portion of the Province of Quebec is giving the railroads and the municipal authorities a severe battle to keep open the means of transportation. The Canadian Pacific has half a dozen giant snowplows at work on its lines, between Montreal, Smith's Falls and Quebec, and the other railways are kept equally busy.

In Montreal it is costing the city more than $1,000 an hour to keep the streets open, without counting the cost to the Street Railway Co.

The McGill Observatory records show a snowfall of over fourteen inches, an unusually heavy one for this season of the year.

WINDOW LOOKS VERY PRETTY

Christmas Decorations at White & Gillespie's Store---Work of Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald Jr.

The Christmas decorations in the store windows are attracting much attention and among the very pretty ones is that of White & Gillespie. It is decorated with evergreens and a little house built of candy occupies part of the window. A lighthouse is also a prominent feature of the decorations. Altogether the window is very prettily arranged and very attractive.

The window dressing was the work of Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald Jr., and he is to be congratulated on his splendid taste and originality.

Widow Stabbed.

Pottsville, Pa., Dec. 14.—Mrs. Father Brandt, widow of a former prominent physician of Lelellewn, near here, was found on the kitchen floor of her home Saturday stabbed to death with a butcher's knife.

The case is shrouded in mystery, as the home bears no evidence of having been robbed and the wound is of a character, the knife having entered the throat and emerged at the back of the neck, that it is not thought it could have been self-inflicted.

Marie Corelli's Admirer.

Stratford-on-Avon, Dec. 14.—An admirer of Marie Corelli's writings, who came all the way from Birmingham to see the novelist, was arrested on Saturday as a dangerous crank. The stranger invaded Miss Corelli's garden, but being unable to obtain access to the house, he pulled out a revolver and began firing. The appearance of the police finally put an end to his activity. The man offers no explanation of his act except that he wanted to see Miss Corelli. He has been remanded.

CHRISTMAS WEATHER

The weather so far this year has been worthy of the best Canadian traditions in that respect. We might do with a little more water in the lakes and rivers and more snow on the ground, but we cannot have everything. The skies by night and day are beautiful in the extreme. The starry splendour of the heavens set in an apparent background of deep blue gives the same idea of the awe-inspiring grandeur of the firmament. The pale white moon does not suffice to obscure the gleam of the stars. The fleecy clouds hanging low near the horizon add to the whiteness of the winter scene. At sunrise and sunset the pale red of the ascending and descending sun is reflected upon the sparkling hills. The blue gray of the leafless woods fills the eye with its strange and cheerless beauty. How much better is this wintry loveliness and the crisp air than fog and a downpour of rain. We have much to be thankful for.

BE WISE TO-DAY

At one time of our lives as in the case of most people we were full of the joy and anticipation of Christmas before, during and even after that delightful season. But the grim reality of life fastened itself like an octopus on our young affections and enthusiasms with the result that we got to regard Christmas and Christmas joys as survivals of a period of the youth of mankind and by no means justified or justifiable on any considerable pretence. Year by year this passion for looking at things as they are got the upperhand until it became necessary in the interests of health and happiness to go back to these old joys and fancies. The health of mankind is largely dominated by the will as the new science of psycho-therapy demonstrates and as every man and woman of sense well knows. What is the moral of it all? Simply that joy like beauty is in the eye of the beholder. Be happy and you'll be happier. Our fate lies in our hands or rather minds.

"He sees with equal eye, as God of all,
The hero perish or the sparrow fall,
Atoms or systems into ruin hurled,
And now a bubble burst and now a world.

The material world is not the source and end of human happiness. The ideal world is where our happiness lies and they only can be happy and can make others happy who learn to know it. It is for this reason that Old Country people think us so crude and primitive, being as it were children of the moment with our eyes bent always upon the ground.

SIR WILFRID'S PROTEST

We hope for the credit of Canada that Sir Wilfrid Laurier did not intend to commit a corrupt act in sending a letter to the electors of Ottawa on the eve of an election in which he himself was a candidate in that city. As an announcement of policy to the country at large it was of course unobjectionable but as a private specific statement of that policy to his own constituents it is, we should suppose, an entirely different thing. The point for consideration is "What was it intended to be?" A consideration of all the circumstances might shew that the letter arose naturally and without special intention but it might shew the reverse in which case it is distinctly protestable and wrong. It would be wrong, moreover, not the less especially, but the more especially in a a minister who has a dual capacity of minister and member and cannot dissociate the one from the other. What he does as minister may be quite unpardonable in a member and vice versa. Therefore we can see no unpardonable impropriety in investigating Sir Wilfrid's or Mr Borden's conduct at any time provided, always that it is done as a duty and not as a piece of petty spite. The law is supposed to be above trifles and men should follow its example. Only such conduct as amounts to a reversal of the true verdict of the people should really be the subject of a protest.

THE UNEMPLOYED

If we, humans, could solve the problem of unemployment, it would almost seem as if the millenium had arrived. The Swiss plain, practical, simple people have gone farthest in this respect and the result given below in an article from the Literary Digest is well worthy of inspection;

"The problem of helping those who have not and can not get work seems especially acute the world over this year. Some advocate the undertaking of large government works not absolutely necessary at the moment in order to supply occupation for idle hands. In Manchester they are raising a charitable fund for the relief of the unemployed. This is merely a revival of the sportula or bread-basket which the rabble of degenerate Rome were ever asking to be refilled at the expense of their rulers. The beggars of Spain and Italy were educated under the tradition of a system which the satirists of Domitian's age justly stigmatised. Wise and frugal Switzerland seems to have hit upon a system which completely solves the difficulty. Those in active employment are induced to join what is called a Labor Insurance Institution. The one at Berne is a good example Edith Sellers says of it in the Nineteenth Century and After, London;

"Any man who lives in Bern, whether a Swiss subject or not, may now insure against unemployment in the municipal bureau providing he is able to work and not above sixty years of age. All that he has to do is to apply to the bureau, either directly or through his employer or his union, for an insurance book, and fasten into it every month an insurance stamp of the value of 70 centimes. In return for these 70 centimes a month he secures the right to a money allowance for every day, up to sixty days, that he is out of work during the months of December, January and February, provided that he has been in work for at least six months in the course of the year, provided also that he has not lost his work through laziness, disorderly conduct, or any other fault of his own, and that he has not refused work offered to him on reasonable conditions. A man who is unemployed because he is unemployable whether from illness or any other cause can not claim an allowance; nor can one who is out on strike, or who has belonged to the bureau for less than eight months, or who is in arrears with his fees. For the first thirty days the unemployed allowance is a franc and a half a day each for men, who are alone standing, and two francs for those who have others dependent on them; and for the remaining thirty days it is as much as the directors can afford to make it—anything from 50 centimes to a franc and a half. If the directors refuse to grant a man an allowance, or if they reduce his allowance at the end of thirty days below what he thinks it ought to be, he may appeal against them to the Court of Trade. The unemployed elect two of themselves to watch over their interests and see that each of them receive his due."

In connection with the Insurance Bureau and housed in the same building at Bern is a Labor Bureau, which supplies work to men and women applicants. Of this institution we read,

"In 1905-6, 13,361 men and women applied to it for work, and it found work for 6,582 of them. The next year 15,500 persons applied for work, and 8,365 of them received it. Beyond its share of the salaries of the three officials and of the rent of the building where it is housed, the labor bureau received nothing from the municipality. Nor does it need anything; for, although when acting for employers or employees belonging to Bern it does its work gratis, it charges a small fee when acting for aliens, and these fees cover its expenses.

Neither of these bureaus entails any great expense on the community, it must be noted, and they both render it good service. And they will assuredly render it much better service in days to come than they render it now. For that in labor bureaus and insurance against unemployment lies the true solution of the unemployed problem there seems little doubt."

This writer gives the following statement of the source and amount of income—1906-7—of the Unemployment Insurance Bureau;

Members' fees	$764
Employers' voluntary contributions	208
Other presents	16
Municipal grant	2400
Interest on capital	201
Total	$3,588

EDITORIAL NOTES

Toronto is at its old tricks of the frog and the bull. It's annual brag of how enormous it is getting to be, elicits the scorn of Hamilton and Bobcaygeon.

The Christmas number of the Farmers Advocate is a very fine specimen of the printers' art and contains much entertaining and useful information.

In China women are coming to the front rapidly. They have newspapers owned, printed and distributed by women. Their liberty is unshackled. Will China beat us out?

Owen Sound is both sound and fury if we judge from its record of liquor prosecutions, fines, punishments, imprisonments, etc. It must be a nice place to live in while it certainly is a "fine" place for the Whitney government to advertize its law enforcement policy from. The new law concerning bartenders is likely to work a revolution.

It will be noticed by sentimentalists that France, after coquetting with the idea of abolishing the death penalty, has decided to do nothing so foolish. It seems that messieurs the murderers would not permit it. A series of particularly atrocious crimes occurred at the psychological moment and persuaded the people of France that they could not deal with such cases adequately by imprisonment. The criminals began to enjoy their immunity too soon.

Times of great prosperity and easy living have in all ages been times of relaxing morals. More time and thought given to pleasure and self-seeking and less to work and the service of mankind —more association with the frivolous and less appeal to heaven have their results in greater tolerance of what man's true conscience abhors. Canada has passed through a decade of wonderful expansion and in the wake of prosperity has come a somewhat desperate condition of public morality and of public opinion with regard to morality.—The Witness.

The assertion that "it is difficult for an Opposition to raise money," is disproved by the size of the Opposition campaign fund available for the use of the Conservatives in the late general election. There is reason to believe that a plentiful share of it came into West and East Peterborough. "Of course no one outside the inner circle knows the amount of the Conservative corruption fund—except perhaps the great corporations contributing."—The Examiner.

The above quotation contains a charge which we hope our readers will take pains to remember. It will all come out in the washing before very long, when, if the Examiner's charge is true, it will have a chance to prove it.

"The pineapple seems to have its natural home in Hawaii," said Mr Dole. "The progress of the pineapple growing and canning industry in our part of the globe is one of the most remarkable in commercial history. Seven years ago what few pineapples were grown in Hawaii were grown under the native system which which really was not any system at all. At about that time American money brains and scientific agricultural experience were injected into the pineapple growing business with the result that today the Hawaiian pineapple is not only as well known as any of the fruit from longer established producing centres, but it ranks highest in quality and flavor.

Rolled Pennies With Nose.

New Brunswick, N.J., Dec. 14.—Alleging that their brother Henry, a freshman at Rutgers' College, was brutally hazed, Harry and Samuel Jacobson, druggists at Elizabeth, came here Saturday and demanded an investigation. They said young Jacobson was compelled to roll pennies across the main street of the college town, with his nose, and that he was then subjected to a beating with fence pickets. The boy, they say, is at his home in a serious condition. The faculty are investigating.

Rush Work on the U. S. Navy.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 14.—Considerable interest and speculation was created Saturday by the posting of notices at the navy yard, engineering department, and which it is said will be followed by similar orders in the other departments, for work to be rushed without interruption for 24 hours each day.

There is no explanation of the order further than faster and better results can be secured.

Girls Sleep In Barns.

Kingston, Dec. 14.—Four wayward girls have been sleeping in barns the past few nights. They were discovered by the police after having been reported missing by their parents. They decided to transfer their trunks home. They quarrelled with their parents over going out at night.

No Arbitrary Settlement.

Washington, Dec. 14.—The House by a decisive vote Saturday refused to further consider the bill providing for arbitrary settlement of disputes between employers and employes.

The bill providing for the protection of all conditions in United States was passed by a slim majority.

Humor

AT THE BOX OFFICE.

Youngster Easily Explained the Location of Seat He Wanted to Occupy.

There was an expectant line of prospective theater goers at the box office window, and the treasurer despite his usual genial disposition was becoming a bit grumpy. His replies were short and terse. This was not lost on a youngster who stood awaiting his turn.

"What is it, boy?" the ticket dispenser asked shortly.

"Gimme a good seat," was the rejoinder.

"In what location? Talk fast."

"I want the dog seat," the kid answered.

"Look here; I haven't time to fool. Where do you want to sit?"

"I told you in the dog seat—d-h-o-g—dog seat. Ain't that plain enough?"

"Well, where is the d-h-o-g seat, then?"

Gee, chappie, get wise—K-0!"

And then the treasurer smiled.—Lippincott's Magazine.

He Tried Not To.

When a nine-year-old Teddy displayed the shining new quarter which Mr. Ringloss had given him down at the corner store mother very naturally asked if her little boy had said "Thank you" to father's friend.

No answer.

"Surely you thanked Mr. Ringloss?" she persisted.

Still no answer. Trouble showed on the little face.

"Teddy, listen. You ought to have said 'Thank you, sir.' Did you?"

No answer yet, and trouble threatened to produce showers.

"Come here, dear little son. Tell mamma now. Did you thank Mr. Ringloss for the quarter?"

Then the storm broke, but between the sobs and tears came the required information, "I told him thank you, an' he said not to mention it, an' I tried not to."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Out Again.

"Why," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "I thought your sister-in-law had recently undergone a serious operation, yet I saw her out in her automobile this morning."

"Oh, yes," her hostess replied after having ordered the butler to see that the footman was furnished with a new suit of livery at once, "she's out again. She repuderated very fast, you know."—Chicago Record-Herald.

An Exception.

"It seems powerful queer," remarked the man on the empty cracker box, "that men are made of dust."

"I don't reckon you are," rejoined the grocer peevishly.

"'Cause dust settles," answered the grocer.—St. Louis Republic.

Woes of a Physician.

"Yes," sighed the doctor, "I have two classes of patients to contend with."

"Name them," said his friend the druggist.

"Those who swear by me and those who swear at me," replied the M. D.—Minneapolis Journal.

Supererogatory.

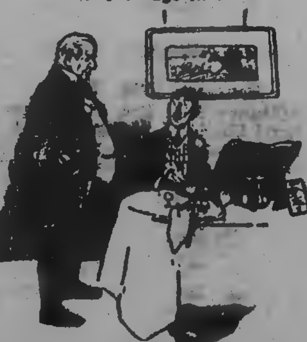
Johnnie—Why, muvver, I don't have to put that in any more. Aunt Hattie's engaged!—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Village Inn.



"Why don't you supply toothpicks after lunch?"

"I used to, sir, but people used to take 'em away wi' 'em!"—London Weekly Telegraph.

Naturally.

"See here, landlord," said a guest at the village hotel as he eyed the flattened pillows and crumpled sheets, "this bed has been slept in."

"Course it has," replied the landlord triumphantly. "That's what it's fer, by grass!"—Chicago News.

"Distance Lends," Etc.

"I don't know anybody my wife hates more than the Winkinses."

"Why, she used to think pretty well of them."

"Yes, but that was before they moved next door to us."—Philadelphia Press.

Instructing Rollo.

"Father," said little Rollo, "what is a dead game sport?"

"A dead game sport, my son, is usually a man who is putting on airs one day and trying to borrow $10 the next."—Washington Star.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Germany Awaits Result.

London, Dec. 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A Berlin despatch states that the German Government is awaiting the result of the debate in the French Senate with regard to the proposed Franco-Canadian commercial treaty.

Should the Senate, as expected, ratify the treaty, then there is little doubt that Germany will try to come to a similar arrangement with Canada.

It is believed that, supported by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the present Canadian Cabinet will find a modus vivendi which will be acceptable to the commercial interests of Germany.

Shot In Hotel.

Winnipeg, Dec. 14.—Arthur Cunningham, an Irishman, was fatally shot in the basement of the Oriental Hotel last night.

Proprietor John Colt heard a shot and hurried to the basement, but on the stairs they were halted by a man who threatened to shoot. Calling the police, they found Cunningham lying on the floor with a wound in his head. He had a ticket for Dryden, Ont.

Cunningham made a statement to the effect that he was held up, shot and robbed in the hotel basement.

Tea For U. S. Fleet.

Colombo, Ceylon, Dec. 14.—The United States Atlantic fleet under command of Rear Admiral Sperry was sighted at seven o'clock yesterday morning. The fleet left Manilla December 1.

The sixteen vessels are to remain here for six days to take on coal and give the men and officers an opportunity for shore leave. Colombo is the first stop on the homeward stretch.

The Colonial Secretary of Ceylon has received instructions from London to extend such hospitality to the American visitors as King Edward would wish to have shown the United States. The Legislative Council has voted an appropriation for entertainments.

It is planned, among other things, to present five pounds of tea to each officer and one pound to each man in the fleet.

Lady Laurier's Auto Burns.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—Five automobiles, including the motor car presented to Lady Laurier by Lord Strathcona a year ago, were destroyed in a fire on the premises of the Canadian Cycle and Motor Co., on Sparks street, early yesterday. Lady Laurier's car was valued at $8,000. Another valuable car lost was one owned by T. L. Willson, the calcium carbide king. The damage to the building, which was constructed of stone, was slight, but the five automobiles destroyed were valued at $30,000. Lady Laurier's car was uninsured.

Creemore Man Killed.

Toronto, Dec. 14.—W. C. Perry, manager of the Parkdale branch of the Singer Sewing Machine Co., received word yesterday that his father-in-law, George Hines, had been killed in an explosion in Cobalt on Saturday. He received no further particulars, beyond the fact that arrangements were being made to ship the body to Creemore, where deceased formerly lived, on Monday. Mrs. Perry left the city yesterday for Creemore. Mr. Hines has been working in the silver fields for almost two years.

Banquet to Rutherford.

Stockholm, Sweden, Dec. 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Dr. Leffler, the well known mathematician, gave a luncheon on Saturday in honor of Profs. Lippmann of Paris and Rutherford of Manchester, two Nobel prize winners. Covers were laid for 120 guests, representing the scientific world.

M. Tolle, Minister of Foreign Affairs, welcomed the two guests of honor. Referring to Prof. Rutherford in a cordial speech, the Minister said he was a young explorer in the real of that new and marvellous science, which is neither physics nor chemistry, but a combination of both, and in view of this fact he ventured to hope they might again welcome Prof. Rutherford there as the winner of another Nobel prize. He drank to the welfare of French-British science.

Woman Found Dead.

Chatham, Dec. 14.—The body of Mrs. Reaume, a widow, who kept house for a man named John Cogan, was found dead in her bed at one o'clock yesterday morning, when Cogan returned from the country, where he had been since Friday.

The doors of the house were all locked and Cogan had to gain entrance by a window.

Jumps Bail.

Belleville, Dec. 14.—The grand jury at the County Court on Friday brought in a true bill against Ernest Prickett of Deseronto for seduction. The young man was allowed out on bail. Saturday when the case was called Prickett was missing, and his bail of $500 was estreated by Judge Fraleck.

Disaster In the Black Sea.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 14.—A telegram received here from Sebastopol reports that a Turkish steamship bound from Constantinople foundered in a storm in the Black Sea. Details are lacking, but it is believed that the crew and 50 passengers were drowned.

Japs to Fight C.P.R.

London, Dec. 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Edinburgh Scotsman understands the Japanese are about to commence a rate-cutting war against the Canadian Pacific, with the object of driving them off the ocean like the American lines.

Lunched With the Prince.

London, Dec. 14.—The Prince and Princess of Wales invited Hon. W. S. Fielding to lunch on Saturday.

A CAXTON PAGEANT.

London May Thus Honor Accession of Its Printer Lord Mayor.

Something altogether delightful and new is in contemplation for the show which will inaugurate the reign of Sir George Truscott as Lord Mayor of London. Louis N. Parker will be master of the pageant, and he has submitted to the sub-committee which has charge of the arrangements in the preliminary stage his scheme for the coming "show."

Inspired by the circumstance that the Lord Mayor is a printer and a member of the Stationers' Company, Mr. Parker has chosen the figures for his pageant from the golden age of English literature. He proposes to begin his period with Chaucer (1328 or 1340 to 1400), and to end in the middle of the seventeenth century with Milton. This gives him a range of great men of letters, and if his scheme in all its fulness is approved at the meeting of the grand committee, London will witness something very picturesque and daring in the way of spectacles.

Particularly appropriate will be the inclusion of William Caxton, who set up the first printing press in England in the Almonry that stood to the west of the Sanctuary of Westminster Abbey. Caxton, by deputy, working at his ancient printing press of 1470 and a modern master printer, in the person of Sir George Truscott, appearing in the same procession will provide a singularly piquant contrast. Shakespeare and Bacon — although the heretics may question the appearance of the two figures—will have a place, and Spencer and Raleigh and Ben Jonson and Sir Philip Sidney will be there.

Al though the full details will not be settled until Thursday, this brief outline will give some idea of the scope of Mr. Parker's plans. It is understood that 200 figures, mounted and on foot, will walk in the procession but this number will, of course, include many minor figures and attendants.

WEALTHIEST ACTOR-MANAGER

Sir Charles Wyndham's Art Has Piled Up a Handsome Fortune.

So Sir Charles Wyndham, who has just produced "Bellamy the Magnificent" at the New Theatre, London, is reputed to be. And every penny of his capital he has made by his own exertions without the assistance of "backers." Moreover, when he first started in management, his capital amounted to $150. Early to rise has always been Sir Charles' motto, and, whatever time he may have gone to bed, he is up every morning at eight o'clock and ready to transact business an hour later. Like Sir John Hare, Sir Charles has a very good opinion of Americans and American audiences, and tells some good stories of his experiences while touring on the other side of the Atlantic. On one occasion a manager went to him and pressed for a performance, at which the prominent citizens of the town would be present.

"I consented," says Sir Charles. "There was no time to post bills, so they sent out runners. I went down to see the hall. Not a seat in the place. 'Don't you worry about that, you'll find all the chairs there tonight,' said the manager. And so I did, sure enough. When I arrived in the evening the hall was half full of chairs, of all shapes and sizes—camp stools, piano stools, three-legged stools, drawing-room, dining-room, and kitchen chairs—in fact anything on which one might sit down. I couldn't understand it until I was informed that it was the rule of the theatre that everybody who purchased a seat should provide his own. The place at night was packed—the approaches to the theatre being crowded with contingents of families entering the place, followed by negro servants carrying half-a-dozen chairs on their shoulders."

To Tap Coal [illegible]

Preparations are being made by the Canadian Northern Railway Co. to establish rail connection with a coal area from which a supply may be obtainable at all times for the railroads and for the public. Surveyors have already been sent over the ground to locate the line. The C.N.R. have 20,000 acres of coal lands in the vicinity of Brezeau district, in Alberta, and in this engineers and surveyors have been working for the past eight months. Tests have been made of this coal, and it has been found to be admirably adapted for steam purposes. A survey has been made of an air line from the coal fields to connect with the G.T.P. line. This line will make the coal considerably cheaper. From the G.T.P. the coal can be taken out to Edmonton, and from there shipped to points on the C.N.R. where required.

Chiefly Legal Advice.

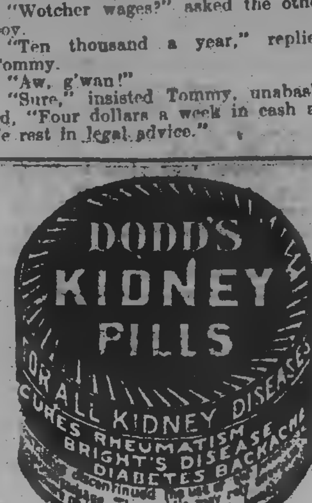
A certain prominent lawyer of Toronto is in the habit of lecturing his office staff from the junior partner down, and Tommy, the office boy, comes in for his full share of the admonition. That his words were appreciated was made evident to the lawyer by a conversation between Tommy and another office boy on the same floor which he recently overheard.

"Wotcher wages?" asked the other boy.

"Ten thousand a year," replied Tommy.

"Aw, g'wan!"

"Sure," insisted Tommy, unabashed, "Four dollars a week in cash an de rest in legal advice."



FAMOUS WINDSOR ARCHIVES.

Round Tower Wherein Reposes the Unique Plan of the Kaiser.

Perhaps never before have the archives of Windsor Castle been the object of such national interest as that occasioned by the famous interview with the Kaiser.

In the archives of Windsor, he stated, is the telegram "in which I informed the Sovereign of England of the answer I had returned to the powers which then sought to compass her fall," and also His Majesty's plan of campaign against the Boers, "awaiting the serenely impartial verdict of history."

The archives of Windsor Castle are in the very centre and most dominant part of the castle buildings—namely, the great Round Tower. Some years ago a strong-room was built in the tower, and all the important documents, including Queen Victoria's letters, were removed there. Here it was that Lord Esher and Mr. A. C. Benson edited the volumes which have just been published.

The great Round Tower, from which no fewer than twelve counties can be seen on a fine day, stands upon an artificial mound constructed by the Norman kings, and was in former times surrounded by a deep ditch. In days gone by it was the residence of the governor, who was charged with the custody of the state prisoners. Here King John of France, and King David of Scotland, captives of the Black Prince, were confined. The Marshal de Belleisle, who was taken prisoner during the German wars in the reign of George II., was the last person to be confined in the tower.

In the centre of the tower is a large bell, captured at the fall of Sebastopol in 1855. It weighs nearly 17 1-2 cwt., and was cast at Moscow.

THE SAILING JELLYFISH.

In the South Pacific He Travels Where He Wants to Go.

Few marine animals seem at first glance to betray less intelligence than the jelly-fish. Up with the tide and down with the tide, carried along by this or that current, moving with the eddy of a backwater hither and thither, the jelly-fish has become almost a synonym for helplessness. Scientifically, of course, the popular idea of the jelly-fish is wholly mistaken; but it is perhaps only in tropical waters that he is found in the perfection of intelligence. In the South Pacific, round the islands of Polynesia, and as far south as the upper portion of the North Island of New Zealand there is a jelly-fish who not only knows where he wants to go, but is even provided with a sail which he can (and does) hoist or lower at will. The sail, like the rest of this curious animal, is almost transparent, but, unlike the body of the fish, which is of the usual gelatinous construction, the sail is a membrane almost as hard as shell. Round about the Ellice Group the navigating fish is often found with a sail measuring five inches across, and he navigates the shallow island waters with the skill of a Hooghly pilot, steering in and out of snaggy places and avoiding obstructions both above and below the surface with unerring skill. Like his cousins in home waters, this navigating jelly-fish has the power of stinging its natural enemies, and its sting is fatal to other fish and dangerous to man.

"Tuppence."

Mr. Herbert Gladstone, who was brought to Bow Street by the Suffragettes recently, is still occasionally greeted with the historic nickname which he bore at Eton. When his father added twopence to the income tax about thirty-eight years ago Herbert, who was then a diminutive lower-form boy, was promptly christened "Tuppence," a name which clung to him through the remainder of his school days. The cross-examination which Miss Pankhurst subjected Mr. Gladstone to reminds one of an amusing incident that took place some time ago at a woman's suffrage meeting in Yorkshire, at which Mr. Gladstone spoke. In the course of his speech the future Home Secretary complimented the lady orators on their eloquence, and remarked on the great pleasure it always gave the sterner sex to listen to women talking. The words were scarcely out of his mouth when a deep male voice proceeded from the back of the hall and proclaimed, in broad Yorkshire dialect, "Eh, lad, thou'st no wed yet thyself, I see!"

Big Pensions In England.

The biggest annual pension that is paid in any part of the world is $96,000. The Duke of Richmond is the recipient of this vast annuity, which is perpetual, passing from son to son. The pension was granted 300 years ago by Charles II.

Taking the annual payment on account of pensions at the present time, Earl Nelson is in receipt of the highest, outside the royal annuities—viz, $25,000 per annum, payable in perpetuity to all and every one of the heirs male to whom the title of Earl Nelson shall descend.

The Duke of Wellington's annual pension of $20,000 is for life, and Lord Rodney's pension of $10,000 is, like that of Earl Nelson, perpetual.

The largest pension on retiring from office is the $25,000 a year given to retiring lord chancellors.

A Twelve-Month's Walk.

The Australian mail brings news of a remarkable achievement by a well-known Queensland drover, Mr. G. du Moulin, who successfully brought 1,200 head of cattle from Hodgson Downs, in the Roper river district of the Northern Territory, to Charleville, a distance of 1,750 miles. The march occupied just under twelve months, and the first three hundred miles of it was through trackless bush which could only be navigated by means of a compass and the aid of a half-savage Warrigal of the far north. Mr. du Moulin believes that the proposed Transcontinental Railway would open up, between Cloncurry and the South Australian border, a country extremely rich in minerals, while beyond lie thousands of square miles of splendid pastoral lands.

In the case of a Bow County Court case sixpence a visit was stated to be the fee of a Leyton Doctor.

WHO'S GIRL.

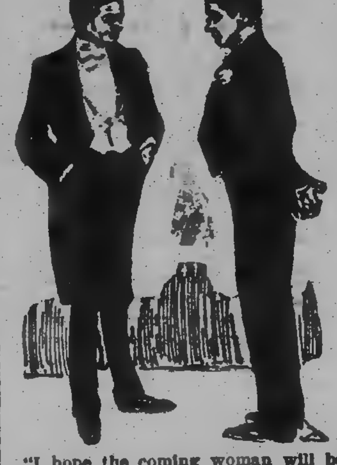
I'm mamma's girl all day—tause why?
She gives me cookies w'en I cry,
An' helps me d'ess up Bess an' James—
Those is my two bes' dollies' names—
An' w'en I'm hurt she kisses me
An' makes me well, an' so, you see,
I dot my weasons w'en I say
'At I am mamma's girl all day.

I'm papa's girl at night—tause why?
My papa works all day to buy
Some bwead an' meat an' dess a stick
Of tandy 'at won't make me sick,
An' 'en he takes me on his knee
An' tells some fairy tales to me.
So don't you fink 'at I am wight
In bein' papa's girl at night?

I'm gamma's girl w'en she comes to
Our house tause she will allus do
Nice things for me an' tause she bwings
Some dolls an' blocks an' books an' things.
My mamma says 'at she spoils me
Tause she's so dreffful good, you see,
'En gamma laughs—tause why? She knows
'At I'm her girl until she goes.

I'm mamma's girl all day, an' 'en
At night I'm papa's girl, an' w'en
My gamma comes I'm her girl, too,
But still you see 'at I ain't fru
Wiv bein' people's girl—tause why?
A boy named Tommie lives clost by,
An' w'en I goes to see his squir'l
My bruvver says I'm Tommie's girl.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

So Say We All.



"I hope the coming woman will be an improvement on the going one."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, the latter is invariably from fifteen minutes to an hour late."

A Problem.

Thomas W. Lawson at a dinner in Boston talked about success.

"Success in finance," he said, "is due in great measure to prompt action. The doubting, hesitating, Hamlet type of man had best keep out of finance. He is sure to be swamped. The street has no use for him.

"Such a man always makes me think of my boyhood friend Grimes. Grimes was a falterer, a doubter, a Ham[illegible] the worst type.

"One night I dropped in on him and found him bent in a brown study over a white vest.

"'Hello, Grimes,' said I. 'What's the matter?'

"'This vest,' said he. 'It's too dirty to wear and not dirty enough to send to the wash. I don't know what to do about it.'"—Washington Star.

Not Troubled With Intellect.

A physiologist came upon a hard-working Irishman toiling bareheaded in the street one day last summer.

"Don't you know," said the physiologist, "that to work in the hot sun without a hat is bad for your brain?"

"D'ye think," asked the Irishman, "that Oi'd be on this job if Oi had enny brains?"—Success.

Poor Milkman Again.

The milkman was boiling over with indignation.

"And you mean to say my milk don't look right?" he snapped. "Why, lady, this can of milk is a picture."

Keeping Within the Limit.

Mrs. Justwed—Oh, dear, dear! Mary, since you've been here—only one month—you've broken more china than your wages amount to. How on earth are we to prevent this sort of thing?

Mary—Well, mum, I might have me wages raised.—Philadelphia Press.

Her Impromptu Conundrum.

"You called on Miss Tartun, and she greeted you with 'Why, Mr. Sorreltop!' Well, what was there in that harmless exclamation to offend you, Percy?"

"Yes, but she—er—didn't punctuate it that way. She said, 'Why Mr. Sorreltop?'"—Chicago Tribune.

Her Amusement.

Mr. Jawback—Are you lonesome when I'm not home evenings?

Mrs. Jawback—Not a bit. I have resources of my own.

Mr. Jawback—Gee whiz! Have you learned to quarrel with yourself?—Cleveland Leader.

Out of His Reach.

"At last!" exulted the ex-bicyclist as he soared aloft in his aeroplane. "I've found a public highway now where there is no sprinkling cart demon to come along and turn it into a sea of mud!"—Smart Set.

Candid Admission.

Kind Lady—And you claim to be an Englishman? I'll test you. How many meals do you eat a day?

Sandy Pikes—As many as I can git, mum.—Chicago News.

Fashionable.

"She's very stylish, isn't she?"

"Oh, yes; she's in the best society. Why, her two-year-old baby doesn't know her when he sees her."—Cleveland Leader.

Dofish or "flake" are seriously interfering with the Cornish herring fishery.

On a warrant issued four and a half years ago Francis Leach was remanded at Tottenham England, charged with obtaining credit for a roll-top desk by fraud.

A motor omnibus belonging to the London Omnibus Co. when travelling along the Commercial road knocked down and killed a little boy on his way to school.

A GENEROUS IMPULSE

The George street Methodist church more out of the fullness of its heart probably than of its purse gave its entire offering of yesterday, $1200,00 to its baby sister, St. James's. The George street church has during its career, been a marvel of strong, determined and energetic policy. Nothing daunts its spirit and its heart is equally bold and true. The gift to St James's is under all the circumstances a splendid testimony to the quiet, sweet spirited generosity of the George street church. It is a case also of the right and the left hand. The act is one to inspire people in this age of the gross and uninspiring. We can all rejoice in the nobility of a good deed well done.

An excellent musical and literary programme will be rendered at Knox Church concert Tuesday Evening Dec. 15th by best local talent.—Admission 25 cents.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT GEO. ST. CHURCH

Rev. D. O. Crossley of Whitby Preached Two Instructive Sermons---Large Congregations

Large congregations were present at both services at the George street Methodist church yesterday. Anniversary services were held, the special preacher being Rev. D. O. Crossley, of Whitby, and a former pastor of the Charlotte street Methodist church.

In the evening he preached from the 15th verse of the 14th chapter of the Book of Exodus, "Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward."

"Forward and not backward should be the motto of every man and woman connected with the church," he said, "and in nine cases out of ten in which difficulties have been overcome, great things achieved and victories won, it has been by a forward movement."

Every person should take the forward step himself. Each can do a great deal without expecting assistance from God, but there are things that cannot be done without His help.

The reverend gentleman thought that the policy of standing still was the popular one at the present time and in that laid the greatest danger of the church. It was the duty of every Christian to go forward and do their best to stamp out everything that was evil.

A reference was made to the local option campaign being waged, and to the deaths of three men in Whitby in one week being due to liquor. In Peterborough, the reverend gentleman stated, was an ideal place to work for God and to do good. Here there are so many people who need help that no Christian need be idle for a moment, and he urged all to go forward and help win all nations to Christianity.

FRENCH JOURNAL ATTACKS K. OF C.

Says Object of Knights of Columbus is to Assimilate to Profit of Protestants--Gee!

Montreal, Dec. 13—La Verite, the extreme clerical organ, has undertaken a campaign against the Knights of Columbus, alleging that this society's real object in being controlled by the Irish-Americans is to assimilate the races of the continent to the profit of the Anglo-Saxon Protestant element.

"Our compatriots" adds La Verite "and a good number of Germans on the other side of the line have not been slow to demask the plans of the Knights of Columbus."

"The Irish Society," continues the clerical newspaper, "is a race belonging to the worst possible assimilators, has tried for a long time past to get French-Canadians into their order but the Franco-American press gave the alarm and upset their calculations."

La Verite tells them that they are Freemasonry and that their friends are the worst enemies of the French-Canadian race, hence the bounden duty of every one in this province will be to combat the movement.

Inthon Bible Class

While the meeting yesterday afternoon was pretty well attended it wasn't as large as it should have been.

If the Inthon's would use the class motto "We can if I will," a little more, it should see the attendance jump to one hundred and over.

Next Sunday in connection with the Christmas lesson the class will be treated to a talk on "Astronomy," by one of the Inthons.

For a while the Inthon's thought a hockey team would be a good thing for the class but now that we find the great majority of the members are benedicts the team will be given up, and those who wish can represent the class by joining the Church League of which Mr. Robertson has taken charge.

OBITUARY

THOMAS JOHNSTON.

The death occurred last evening of an old and very highly respected resident of Otonabee in the person of Thomas Johnston, who passed away at the residence of his son Mr. W. D. Johnston lot 26, concession 9.

The deceased was 83 years of age, and was born in the County of Fermanagh, Ireland. He came to this country at the age of twenty-one years. He did not settle in Otonabee until three years later in 1851. Previous to that he resided a short while in New York State and then in Durham county. In 1854 he was married to Margaret Dundas. She predeceased him fifteen years ago. He was widely known and highly respected by all who knew him.

Two sons and one daughter are left to mourn his loss. The sons are Messrs. W. D. and T. J. Johnston, and the daughter is Mrs. Christopher all residing in Otonabee.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon from lot 26, concession 9, Otonabee, to the Little Lake cemetery.

JOHN FRANCIS.

The death occurred very suddenly on Saturday evening of John Francis at his late residence at the corner of Thomas and Bolivar streets. The deceased had been ill for a little over a week and his demise was quite unexpected. He was forty years of age and was, until two years ago, a resident of Hastings. He was prominently identified with the Hastings Lodge of Oddfellows before coming to Peterborough. He leaves to mourn his loss, a wife and three small children.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery. The Peterborough lodges of Oddfellows will have charge.

HAVELOCK

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Dec. 12.—Mrs. Byrne, of Peterborough, was the guest of Mrs. McGregor during the week.

Mr. Fred Bennet, who was struck by the outgoing Toronto-Tweed local some time ago, is recovering nicely and will soon be able to start again.

Rev. H. Copland, rector of St. John's church, was in Marmora on Wednesday last at the re-opening of St. Paul's church in that town.

Mr. Wm. Gorman, of Peterborough, is the guest of friends in town.

Mr. Charles Herrington is gradually regaining strength after his recent operation.

Mrs. W. Hubbel and Miss Lillian attended the wedding of Mrs. Hubbel's niece, Miss Ethel Kellar, of Healey Falls, to Mr. Charles Pallister, of Campbellford, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rod Kellar, on Thursday last.

Mr. Ralph Fulcher, of Marmora, Grand Organizer of the Loyal True Blues for Eastern Ontario, was in town this week in the interests of that Order.

Mr. George McCann, of town, and Mr. Wm. Clark, of Preneveau, have left for Cobalt, where they have secured positions firing stationary engines.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hanbel, of Anson, spent Thursday and Friday at "Maple Lodge," Preneveau.

Miss T. La Rose left on Tuesday to visit with friends in Cornwall.

Mrs. Bert Easton and daughter Pearl, of Taylor's Mill, are visiting in town.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Tucker, of Chattenton spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Holcomb.

The Blairton Methodist Sunday School will hold their annual Christmas entertainment on Christmas night.

The Town Council will hold their last meeting for 1908 on Tuesday, Dec. 15th.

The members of the Methodist church choir assembled at the residence of Mrs. B. Haig on Friday last, and the evening was spent in various forms of amusement. The following address, accompanied by a beautiful hall-rack, were presented to Dr. H. Kindred during the evening;—

To H. C. Kindred M.D.,
Leader of the Methodist choir:

We, the members of the choir and music committee, of the Methodist church in Havelock, take this opportunity of expressing to you our appreciation of the valuable and efficient services you have rendered to us and to the church. The manner in which you have contributed to the culture of our voices, and teaching us to have a higher appreciation of the best music, has helped, we believe, to render the services of the sanctuary more interesting to the people and acceptable to God. Be assured of our gratitude to you for the devotion of your valuable time and rare talent to so good and worthy a cause. This hall rack which we now present to you and hope you will accept, is only a small token of the esteem in which we hold you. We also trust that you will not consider this presentation a signal to retire from the arduous duties of choir leader, but rather that you may be encouraged to continue in this voluntary service for Christ and His Church.

Signed
MRS. ROY CAMPNEY,
MRS. B. HAIG

Rev. D. Balfour read the address and Dr. Kindred replied in suitable terms, expressing his pleasure for the beautiful gift of the choir, and his appreciation of the honor conferred upon him by that body.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

The Mayor's Reply

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I notice in the Review of Friday night a letter signed by R. F. McWilliams which demands some attention on my part, in order to correct its misleading statements and to give a correct idea of conditions which he misrepresents.

Much is made of the alleged loss sustained by the sale of debentures. There are two points in this connection. First, these debentures could have been sold early in 1907, and should have been sold by the mayor and council of that year. They could have been disposed of at that time at a much lower rate of interest and a decided saving effected. If Mr. McWilliams holds me responsible for my connection with the sale of debentures he must take the responsibility of the neglect which resulted in loss.

Secondly, we had to sell the debentures. The bank overdraft was so large that the bank insisted that it must be reduced. The debentures had to be sold and were sold on the best possible terms at the time, and by the Finance Committee not by the mayor. I might say that the bank overdraft at the end of 1907 would not have been nearly as large had less work been done in the line of building sewers on streets where there were no water mains when material was at its very highest, and labour hard to procure, work being so plentiful that year.

In regard to Mr. McWilliams' alleged deficit at the close of the present year, it is to be said that this amount is very greatly exaggerated. If there should be any deficit it will be due largely to justifiable reasons. It will be accounted for by the fact that the expenditures on streets and bridges was abnormally large and defensibly large for two reasons—the people have the benefit of the improvements represented by the expenditure, and the ratepayers were given employment. During the season as many as fifteen unemployed persons visited my office in one day asking for work. Was it better to spend considerable sums of the people's money in charity, or to give citizens employment on work on the streets which would, at least, represent value to the taxpayers? Then there were besides other considerable expenditures for which value was received and which add to the total of the amount chargeable to this year's expenditure and which will go to make a deficit at the end of the year, if there should prove to be one.

Of this fact there is considerable doubt. The estimated deficit of 15 000 of ex-Mayor McWilliams, is liable to very great reduction. There will be set against his estimate $13,000 of uncollected taxes, of which between $11000 and $12,000 may be available. Other incoming amounts will offset liabilities to a sufficient extent to remove any fear of a considerable deficit, which, if any, will be of comparatively small amount.

I do not wish to argue the question, merely to state the facts as they exist. The facts seem to me to show that this year's Council acted to the best of its ability in protecting the city's interests in the matter of the sale of debentures forced upon it by the urgency of the bank and the neglect of last year's Council. Under the circumstances the draft on account of street expenditure was justified by the conditions. It was a case of either charity or work and myself and the Council preferred the expenditure of money for value received.

In conclusion, I may emphasize two points: the Council of 1908 disposed of, to the best advantage, debentures which could, and should, have been sold a year before by the council of 1907, on terms which have prevented the loss represented by the practically forced sale of this year. The large overdraft on the streets was caused by giving employment to labor which gave substantial returns, instead of paying out money in charity which would have tended to pauperize honest and worthy citizens resting under the disadvantage of want of employment.

I might remark that last year's Council arranged with the banks for current accommodation at a rate of six per cent. for 1908. This year's Council has arranged with the bank for the accommodation of 1909 at five per cent.

Yours faithfully,
H. RUSH.

(The above letter, which should have appeared in Saturday's issue of the Review, was unavoidably held over.)—Ed.

The Fair Grounds By-law

Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir.—As our municipal elections are soon on us, and as the Peterborough Industrial Fair directors, are very anxious that the electors should understand why they are asked to vote on a bylaw to buy the exhibition grounds.

Now, Mr. Editor, we don't ask the city to purchase those grounds for exhibition purposes alone, what we ask is that the city purchase the grounds for recreation purposes and allow the fair directors a place to erect suitable buildings.

At the present time we have the fair grounds under a short lease, subject to three months' notice in case of sale.

We have now arrived at a time when the management of our fair must have good buildings to meet their requirements and worthy of the city of Peterborough and I ask all fair minded citizens would the board be justified in spending any money on grounds which they don't own, and might never get using more than the present year.

We have had two successful years with our fair and have now acquired a balance to our credit, and as a board we feel that if the city will purchase grounds where we will have a permanent place to erect on, that before our fair next fall, the directors will spend a large amount in suitable buildings to accommodate the stock and poultry also to allow our merchants a place to make exhibits, as they are very anxious to do.

Now Mr. Editor, what we want the citizens of Peterborough to do is to carry this bylaw by their votes, to purchase the present grounds, as the investment is considered good. Mr. Morrow has already received an offer from a real estate dealer of twenty-six thousand dollars—$26,000.

By extending George street south, across the property and holding the western portion—which is the cheapest part—for park purposes, and the eastern part, which is worth the most money to be sold in building lots, then there would be a large amount of the purchase money returned from their sale.

If there is any information the citizens would like to have I will be pleased to give them.

Yours very truly,
R. H. LEARY,
President of Peterborough Industrial Fair.

TRENT VALLEY HOCKEY LEAGUE HAS ELECTED ITS OFFICERS

At Annual Meeting at Havelock—Entry of Rough Riders Refused—Large Membership Expected This Year

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Dec. 11— The following are the officers elected at the annual meeting of the Trent Valley Hockey League at the Dineen house on Friday evening last:

Hon Pres, J W Pearce, Marmora.

Hon vice-President, Jas Thompson, Havelock.

Pres, R Fletcher, Marmora.

First vice-President, W Whitty, Stirling.

Second vice-President, R J Hoover, Madoc.

Secretary treasurer, T E Dineen, Havelock.

Executive committee

R Pearce, Norwood.
B M Quackenbrush, Warkworth.
Coughlan, Hastings.
B Conners, Madoc.
E Andrews, Havelock.
E O Wiggins, Marmora.
W Whitty, Stirling.

A representative is also to be supplied from Keene.

In the absence of Dr J J Wade, of Hastings, Mr R Fulcher of Marmora, occupied the chair.

Last year's business was wound up and then the chairman made the announcement that he had been commissioned to inform the league that a silver cup valued at $20 had been donated as a trophy, the cup to be the property of any club winning the championship two years in succession. The donor, however, preferred to keep his identity unknown until the trophy had been won by some club.

The application of the Rough Riders of Peterborough for admission to the league was thrown out.

Havelock this year will be in district No 2 with Marmora, Madoc and Stirling.

In No. 1, there will be Norwood, Warkworth, Hastings and Keene.

An attempt will be made to form a third league of Trenton, Napanee and Deseronto.

A board of referees were appointed consisting of one member from each club. Should two teams fail to agree upon a referee they must notify the president at least four days before the game and he will appoint a suitable official. In such a case each team must bear one-half of the expenses of the referee.

The secretary will have certificates printed and forward twenty-five to each club. Certificates must be returned to the president and secretary before January 1st, 1909, for their signatures.

Each member of a club must have been a continual resident of their respective towns from Dec. 15th, 1908.

Each district will arrange their own schedule. District No 1 will meet at Hastings with Mr Pearce as convenor, and district No. 2 at Marmora with Mr Smythe as convenor.

OHA rules will govern all games. The final games for the championship will be home and home games.

The club fee for admission to the league was fixed at $3.00 to be paid before January 1st.

KAISER COMES OUT WITH A HANDICAP PROPOSAL TO THROW GENE TWICE IN HOUR

A short time ago a letter was received from Charlie Kaiser, of Auburn. The letter was published in the Review and the writer offered to take on Hurtubise in a best two out three match as catch can bout. The letter which appears below was received this morning and Hurtubise's manager, Mr. Chris Granam, has taken up the American's terms on the conditions he offers. As Kaiser has expressed his willingness to wrestle here if the local grappler wants the match to be pulled off in Peterborough the bout will be held in this city.

It might be said that the acceptance of Kaiser's former challenge was published in the Review and a copy of the paper forwarded to him, but he apparently wanted an official acceptance from Hurtubise's manager. The letter to hand to-day reads as follows:

Oswego, N.Y., Dec. 12.

Mr. A. C. Yokome, Sporting Editor.

Dear Sir,—My challenge to Mr. Hurtubise, which appeared in the Review, has not been accepted yet. If Mr. Hurtubise is afraid to wrestle me let him say so, if not, I will agree to throw him twice in one hour, providing he makes a side bet of at least $100. I will agree to weigh less than 160 lbs. and Mr. Hurtubise can weigh a ton if he likes. Hoping this will make him give me a decided answer.

I am yours truly,
CHARLES KAISER,
25 Bridge st., Oswego, N.Y.

THE RING

"The Johnson-Burns' fight is over before it starts. Johnson sure winner. Place your money accordingly. I am in best condition and am challenging all comers in any class. Expect to get on several matches, negotiations now pending."

The Burns-Johnson fight is to take place in Sydney, Australia, on the 26th of December at 11 o'clock in the forenoon. The result will be known in Toronto on Xmas night as we are between 14 and 16 hours behind Sydney in the matter of time. The fight will take place in a 16-foot ring the referee not to break the men, who are to fight themselves free; they are to fight to a finish; either man can wear fingerless kid gloves or soft bandages next to the hands, but not both: Burns to receive $30,000, win, lose or draw; Johnson to receive $5000 and expenses, win, lose or draw.

Y. M. C. A. BOWLING

The bowling fixtures in the Y.M.C.A. tournament to-night will be;

Staff vs. Happy Thoughts.
Friendly Bible Class vs. Leaders.
Chieftains vs M.A.S.

PHILLIPS SIGNED

Will Play With Whitcroft's Team in Stanley Cup Games.

Ottawa, Dec 14—Tom Phillips will play hockey this winter and leaves the East next Wednesday.

But Phillips will not come to Ottawa. He has signed with the Edmonton hockey team and will play against Wanderers for the Stanley Cup.

Phillips' movements after the Cup series are unknown. He will still be eligible to play with Ottawa, and it is possible he will remain in the East and join his old team if the E.C.H.L. does not object.

This news is somewhat startling in view of Phillips' telegraph correspondence with the Ottawa Club during the past 24 hours.

The information which the Free Press obtained through private source is authentic and will place the Western hockey star more in the limelight than ever.

Stanley Cup Trustee Wm Foran was questioned last night on the eligibility of Phillips to play with Edmonton and stated there was nothing to hinder him only he would not be allowed to compete in further Stanley Cup games with another team, Ottawa, for instance till the expiration of a full season.

It is stated that Edmonton will give Phillips $500 for the Cup series alone which casts all previous hockey salaries to oblivion. In the event of his rejoining Ottawa at the same terms he played here last year, his total earnings for the one season will figure out at something like $2400.

It is not improbable Phillips contemplates returning to the West after the Stanley Cup series. He has only signed with the challengers to play two games.

SPORTING TALK

The Peterborough Hockey Club has undertaken to place two teams in the OHA intermediate and junior septette and it behooves all players for both teams to get out to practice as there is not a great deal of time between now and the opening of the hockey season.

Some of "Peterborough's old-time hockeyists are apparently trying to get young again."—Toronto Star.

THE BELLEVILLE CLUB'S PROPOSAL

Wants Belleville, Peterboro', Port Hope in Association With Prescott as Eastern Limit

Port Hope Guide.—A letter was received from the secretary of the Belleville Curling Club asking for the views of Peterborough on the proposal to form an Eastern Ontario Curling Association with Port Hope as the western limit, Lindsay the northern, and Prescott as the eastern, and that annual bonspiels be held. He is communicating with other clubs in the district.

The Lindsay club will not likely join the new proposed association as they have enough foreign games to play as it is.

Mr. J. H. Ferguson secretary of the Peterborough Curling Club has a similar letter on fyle but no steps have been taken as yet regarding the proposal as the curlers have not held a meeting since the receipt of the letter.

MELBA IN PROPHECY.

Famous Prima Donna Speaks About Women of a Century Hence.

"It is simply fascinating to me to picture the woman of a century hence. My mind throbs with questions. What will she say and do? Above all, what will she wear?"

It was while discussing the woman's suffrage movement, to which, as stated recently, she has confessed herself an adherent, that Mme. Melba, the famous singer, drew a picture of the woman of the future. She had just returned from a tiring rehearsal at the Albert Hall, where she will make her last appearance in London until 1910.

"Instinct," she said, "seems to tell me one thing about the woman of the future. Her freedom, which she will surely win, will not rob her of her woman's love of home. Man, after he has battled with and been buffeted by the world, returns with an ever-growing longing for the peace and beauty of his home environment. Woman, when the wider book of life lies open before her, will surely find the bonds of home life drawing more tightly around her. Woman will always be woman; hard, unsympathetic facts of life will make her home seem even more of a haven.

"Will woman's beauty grow? I think it will be more refined in the future. In one hundred years' time a type of extreme daintiness will, I believe, prevail. The greater use of her brain will 'spiritualize' the future woman. Her face will be alight with intelligence."

With regard to the dress of the woman of the future, Mme. Melba prophesied rich color blendings, and sweeping, graceful effects.

"Freak fashions will die," she said "There will be harmony in dress, a daintiness of manner and speech, a shunning of hollowness and affectation."

"Linkie."

Someone once described Lord Hugh Cecil—known in the family circle as "Linkie"—who recently celebrated his thirty-ninth birthday, as a "very gawky boy," and it must be admitted that there is some justification for the description. Not only is he tall, thin, pallid, and nervous, particularly when he first commences to speak, but he seems to suffer from chronic uncertainty as to the disposition of his legs and hands. But these characteristics do not prevent others from recognizing in him the cleverest of the Cecils—and the most original. He has startled the House with his views on many occasions, but never perhaps quite so much as when he proposed to punish members who did not obey the chair with imprisonment for an indefinite period. The House angrily debated the question for two hours, and then voted as follows: For, 0; against, 426—probably a Parliamentary record in majorities. One of the funniest mistakes which Lord Hugh ever made was when he undertook to open a church bazaar at Deptford a few years ago. Not till he arrived at the Church did he discover that it was Nonconformist, which led his political opponents to slyly declare that, being a High Churchman, he had to be absolved before he could proceed with the ceremony.

How Miss Braddon Writes.

A sweet, simple gentlewoman. No better description of the famous lady novelist who recently celebrated her seventy-first birthday could be given; for, in spite of the fame which her writings have brought her, she is never so happy as when concerning herself with housekeeping and children. Miss Braddon is above all things domesticated, and has always made it a rule never to let her work interfere with her home life. Most of her novels have been written in the early hours of the morning, and a curious fact in connection with her work is that, while all her novels have actually been written with her own hand—she has never used a typewriter or employed a secretary for such work—she never writes her MSS. in the the same hand that she writes her letters. The latter are written in a bold, flowing style, while the calligraphy of her MSS. is generally cramped and pointed. It is said that she uses a quill for the one and a steel pen for the other. Before she devoted her energies to writing novels—and it might be mentioned that her output of the latter was over sixty in forty-three years—Miss Braddon wrote poetry, and was at one time an actress playing small parts in the provinces.

Railways In Malaysia.

The iron road is steadily advancing, even across the most unlikely places in the east. The Penang Gazette announces that Sir William Taylor, resident-general of the Federated Malay States, and Mr. C. E. Spooner, C.M.G., general manager of the Federated Malay States Railways, left Kuala Lumpur by train at 4.30 a.m. on Sept. 7, and arrived in Singapore on the same evening, having thus easily established the record of having slept in Kuala Lumpur one night, and in Singapore the next. The train arrived at Johore Bahru at 3.30 p.m., giving ample time thus to go on to Singapore the same afternoon. The full journey from Kuala Lumpur to Johore occupied eleven hours. In places where the line is well established, the resident-general's train traveled 35 miles an hour, but in other places, on the new sections in Johore, it slowed down to 18 miles.

A Papuan Hopper.

In the waters round Papua there is a fish equally curious in western eyes, though by no means so picturesque as the "jelly-boat." This is the hopping fish, which, in the eternal pursuit of food, contrives to spend most of his working day out of the water. To all appearance he seems to be continuously hopping in and hopping out, but, as a matter of fact, he always keeps his tail in the water, for, by one of nature's quaint reversals, it is at that end of him that he keeps his breathing apparatus. In Papuan waters Miss Grimshaw is said to have seen specimens upwards of 20 inches long. A smaller variety is found in the mangrove swamps along the northern coasts.

Peterborough England, Cathedral Restoration Fund which was started 25 years ago and has just been closed, has reached over $250,000.

CRADLE SONG.

My little ship has doused her sail;
Ship ahoy!
She's drifting in for me to hail;—
Ship ahoy!
Did you sail away from the morning shore?
Have you ever sailed this way before?
Will you anchor now till the night is o'er?
Ship ahoy! Ship ahoy!

My little ship is laden well,—
Ship ahoy!
With treasures more than I can tell;—
Ship ahoy!
All beautiful dreams in bales below,—
With picnics in boxes, ready to go;—
And parties where fun and sweet cakes grow:
Ship ahoy! Ship ahoy!

Why don't you answer to my hail?
Ship ahoy!
You're sheltered now from storm and gale;
Ship ahoy!
Your lookout leaves his faithful stand,
And your captain pulls for the dreaming land,
And your anchor holds in the golden sand,
Ship ahoy! Ship ahoy!

O, safely swing till morning tide!
Ship ahoy!
My bonnie barque, my joy and pride!
Ship ahoy!
You're safe in the harbor 'neath the hill,
In the lovely Isles where the dream-buds fill,—
The sun is down and the winds are still;
Ship ahoy! Ship ahoy!
—W. M. MacKeracher.

WEST COAST WHALING.

Industry Is Steadily Growing on Vancouver Island.

One of the most important of Vancouver Island's industries at the present time is whaling. The Pacific Whaling Co. has three stations, one at Sechart, in Barkley Sound, one on the west coast of Vancouver Island and one at Nanaimo, this being a winter station only. The company has two steam whalers. The crews are mostly Norwegians, who work on a percentage basis earning big wages. In August, 1908, the captain of the St. Lawrence, hunting from Kyuquot, earned $430, and the seamen forward averaged $80 each. The whaling grounds are close off-shore, and the steamers during this season have brought in from three to five whales a day. From April to August the two stations took 500 whales. The steamers are fitted with a small harpoon gun at the bow, and when the steamer steams up to a whale the gunner sends a harpoon tipped with an explosive bomb into the whale's carcase, killing the mammal, which is then pumped full of air and buoyed until when the day's hunting is done, the whole killed are taken in tow and the steamer returns to the whaling depot, where the oil is extracted and the carcase converted by patent process into fertilizer. The oil is shipped mostly to Glasgow, the fertilizer to Honolulu. The duty of 8 cents a gallon on oil has so far prevented the company from seeking a market in the United States. Experiments are being made to can whale flesh for sale in the Orient, particularly Japan, where there is a demand. An odd sperm whale is occasionally taken, the spermacetti adding to the profits. The stations employ about 100 men, mostly Indians and Japanese, and produce 500 barrels of oil a week and from 150 to 200 tons of fertilizer a month. The other companies which propose to engage are the Queen Charlotte company, which has located a station at Ross harbor, on the south of Queen Charlotte islands, and the Prince Rupert Whaling Co.

The earnings of the Pacific Whaling Co. during 1907 were $119,657.29; this year the earnings will far exceed that sum. Deductions were made of $25,320.29 as reserve account, $4,515 for deterioration of the Sechart plant, $1,200 for the deterioration of the steamer Orion and a similar amount for the St. Lawrence, the Kyuquot station having not been used before that time.

Tale of a Municipal Jaunt.

In 1892, when Stratford was erecting its jail, the City Council was sent as a delegation to Kingston, to study the most approved methods of imprisonment. One of the members of the council was somewhat illiterate and had never traveled so far before. He was so interested in seeing new places that at every station he would get off the train and walk up and down the platform in order to see the different towns.

Down past Belleville the train stopped at a tank to take water, and the representative from the Canadian Stratford-on-Avon got off as usual to explore. When he came into the coach again one of the party asked him:

"Well, George, what place is this?"

He was greeted with the reply:

"There don't seem to be no place, but the sign calls it Castoria."

Thought Burglar Was Dad.

When two young Winnipeg society ladies returned from a theatre recently to their home, they stepped out of the carriage, and, on entering the house, heard someone snoring in the library where the reflection of a fire in the grate could be seen through the door. They supposed their father had fallen asleep, and planned to pleasantly surprise him, so they rushed in and threw their arms around the sleeping figure, and implanted kisses in the dark. The vision raised his head, and revealed the face of a burglar, who had decided to take a comfortable nap before proceeding with his work. References were not exchanged.

Seventy-Four and a Pickpocket.

James Kellar, 74 years old, snowy of hair and whisker, was sent to the Central Prison for five months as a vagrant from the Toronto Police Court recently. He was identified as an expert pickpocket and was credited by Crown Attorney Corley with having operated a school for pickpockets in the city when he was sent down for a year some time ago.

The boy of Mr. J. C. Targett, a follower of the local hunt, was found on the Great Western Railway line at Reading.

How He Scared Sister.

A Gaylord street little girl, eight years of age, ran to her mother crying one afternoon.

"Willie is bad," she said between sobs.

Willie, her ten-year-old brother, was called "on the carpet." "What did you do, Willie?" asked his mother.

"A what?"

"A Hemoracampa leucostigma."

"What's that?"

Willie held out his hand. "This is one," he said.

It was a caterpillar. Willie had found the scientific name for it—how his mother does not know.

A Trunkless Body.

An explorer lately returned from his travels was relating his adventures. "I peered," said he, "into the thicket, and there before me lay a trunkless body." "Nonsense," remarked an interfering critic. "Who ever heard of a trunkless body?" "My friend," replied the traveler quietly, "the body was that of an elephant." He resumed his story.

FINDING FRANCES.

By CARL WILLIAMS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Miss Pollard! This is a surprise indeed! I supposed that you were out west."

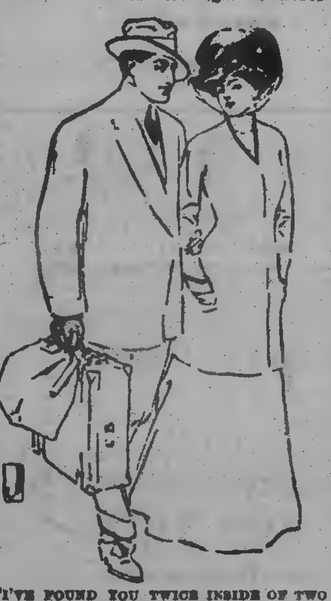
Christopher Brooks, boarding the fast train in Philadelphia, motioned to the porter to place his suit case in the section occupied by Frances Pollard and sank into the seat beside her in response to the mute invitation in her eyes.

"I am to visit old school friends," explained the girl. "It is my first visit to New York."

"And you never let me know that you were coming!" Chris' tones were laden with reproach.

"How could I?" defended the girl. "In spite of the fact that you did not answer my last letter, I wrote you that I was coming east and that I should be glad to have you meet me at the station in Chicago and visit between trains."

"Chicago!" echoed Chris. "I went to New York six months ago. I wrote you of the change, and as you did not reply I supposed that you were lost in the social whirl and did not care to waste time in writing when I was so far away."



"I'VE FOUND YOU TWICE INSIDE OF TWO HOURS."

"You should have known me better than that." The words were simple, but the look accompanying them was eloquent. It seemed to tell Chris that only through faint heartedness had he failed to win his fair lady and that there still might be a chance.

"It seems to be a muddle all around," he said. "The firm were rather angry at my going, though I gave them two weeks' notice, and they knew that I was bettering myself."

"The chances are that they did not forward your letter to me and did not mail my letter to you. I remember that I dropped it into the office mail box. The cashier was a petty sort of person. This may have been one of his revenges."

The many changes which had come to both since their parting furnished a theme for conversation, and the train was pulling into the terminal at Jersey City before it was exhausted.

Exultingly Chris felt that the misunderstanding was all cleared up, and he told himself that it would not be his fault if Frances did not return home an engaged girl.

"Will your friends be here to meet you?" he asked as the porter took their hand bags.

"I told them not to bother," explained Frances. "Bessie's mother is an invalid, and Bess works downtown somewhere. I'll just take a cab to the house. It's uptown. The address is in my grip. I always carry everything in my grip. Then I have only one thing to watch instead of a valise and a purse and perhaps a couple of bundles."

"That's a sensible thing," cried Chris admiringly. "Only you mustn't lose your valise."

"I should say not," agreed Frances laughingly. "I should find myself without money and, worse yet, without even Bess' address, since she had to move last week because their old house was torn down."

"I'll look out for the valise," promised Chris as he helped her down the steps of the Pullman. "Better walk behind me and let me force the way. I'm more used to New York crowds," he explained, with the pride of a new resident.

Now, at Jersey City the concourse opens on three ferry slips, all leading to various parts of Manhattan. Chris headed for the downtown ferry, which would bring them near the subway, and not until the boat was reached did he turn to see if the girl was still following.

The gates were closed behind him and the boat was slowly passing out of the slip when he made the discovery that Frances had not followed his instructions.

She was not in the tail of the crowd that had been hurried aboard by impatient gatemen, nor did a careful search of the boat reveal her, and Chris' hope that she might have been swept aboard by the other gangway was dashed.

He made the return trip on the same boat, railing at the delays and after a hurried scrutiny of the concourse decided that she must have taken the upper ferry to Twenty-third street.

A boat was about to start, and he rushed on board, the perspiration streaming from his face. He still carried Frances' valise and his own heavy suit case. Frances could not leave any ferry house without the valise, for it contained her money and her friend's address. She could not apply to the old address to find out where her hostess had moved, because the house had been torn down. She must wait for him.

He dashed through the exit and through the waiting room, searching both floors, but there was no trace of the girl. He was about to go to the street and question the carriage agent when the doorman, who had watched his actions curiously, came up.

"Are you the chap that lost a lady?" he demanded. "If you are, I told her to go back to the Jersey side and wait for you. She followed a man she thought was you and got on the wrong boat."

Chris pressed a coin into the man's hand and sprinted down the slip just as the boat was pulling out. He barely managed to leap aboard before the gates were closed, and he stood on the forward deck to cool off.

When the boat should make the Jersey shore this worry would be at an end. So he regarded the panorama of river life complacently.

He was the first passenger off the boat and out on to the concourse, but neither on the concourse nor in the waiting room could he find her, though he searched both. She must have boarded the Cortlandt street ferry, so for a second time he made for the slip, catching the same boat that had carried him across before. One of the deck hands regarded him curiously as he passed.

"Ain't you the fellow what paid his fare to me to stay on the boat a couple of trips ago?" he demanded.

Chris nodded, and the man grinned. "I thought you was," he continued. "There was a lady down here looking for you this last trip. I remembered you went right back, and I sent her on to Twenty-third street. She didn't have the price of her fare," he added meaningly, and again the grateful Chris passed out a coin.

"Funny you didn't see her," mused the man as he slipped the money into his pocket. "She was on the boat when we landed. I told her to take a look around and then make for the Twenty-third street slip.

But things were far from all right. When Chris leaped from the boat at the uptown landing, the doorman who had spoken to him before laughed loudly as he caught sight of the panting and perspiring traveler.

"I told you to wait on the Jersey side," he cried. "The girl came back, and I told her you were down there waiting. The man on one of the Cortlandt street boats sent her up here while I was sending you back. I told her to sit there in the shed this time for an hour and I'd find you somehow. Better stay on this boat. The fare's 3 cents. You owe a ticket for her too. She didn't have any money."

Chris passed over a dollar. "Keep the change; it's worth it," he said, and he went back on the boat.

Fifteen minutes later the crowd surged off the boat in a rush for the trains, and Chris went with the tide of humanity until it separated toward the various gates.

As he turned to search the seats a pair of soft arms went about his neck, and he looked down into Frances' crimson face.

"I didn't mean to do that," she cried, "but I was so afraid I'd lose you again if I didn't grab right hold of you."

"I like it," declared Chris. "I thought I never should find you."

"That's the way it seemed to me," she confessed. "I never was so glad to see any one in my life. A fat woman came in between us, and when I looked around to find you there were two men who looked so like you that I wasn't certain which was really you. They were both going toward the uptown boat, and I followed them."

Chris transferred the valise to the hand that carried his suit case, and with the other he grasped her arm.

"I'm not going to lose you this time," he announced. "I don't want ever to lose you again, Fanny. May I keep you—always?"

What he saw in her eyes caused him to lean over and kiss her.

"Everybody kisses everybody else at the railroad station," he explained as he led the way to the boat. "And they haven't half my excuse. I've found you twice inside of two hours."

Fiction

THEIR LAST MEETING.

By CY WARMAN.

Every morning for a month or more the man had come to the gate in the outer office and asked to see the general manager. Every morning the office boy had given him a blank form to fill out:

"Mr. A.

"Wishes to see—Mr. B.

"Business—private."

As often as the boy went in with the slip of paper he came back with the answer, "The general manager is too busy to see you."

In time the employees learned to look not at the clock for the hour of 10, but to the gate that swung in the low fence. When he had come and gone thirty-seven times, leaving thirty-seven neatly filled requests behind him, the manager instructed the boy.

"Mr. A.," said the boy and closed the door of the private office, leaving the two men alone. The general manager was embarrassed. Instead of a long haired, hollow eyed crank, with soiled linen covering his concaved chest, his caller was a well dressed, intelligent looking gentleman.

"Delighted, delighted, Mr. B.," said the stranger, advancing with outstretched hand. "So good of you to see me! Yes, I did call the other—yes, yes, I know how busy you are! Just so, just so! Ah-h!"

The men shook hands hurriedly, eying each other precisely as a pair of prizefighters enter the ring.

The manager noticed for the first time a peculiar look in the man's eyes. "Sit down," said the stranger, and the railway man sank back into his swinging chair. "I shan't take much of your time—this time," said the visitor, hooking one leg over the corner of the table and sagging into a comfortable pose. The manager felt fidgety under the stranger's soul searching eyes.

"I've got a good thing," said the man, keeping his eyes upon the manager's conscience.

"I was afraid of that," said the manager half playfully, but the man did not smile.

"You have some heavy grades on your line."

"Yes," assented the manager.

"You have doubtless observed that it is almost invariably upon a mountain that the air plays out. Just when they are needed most is when the brakes refuse to work. You know that, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, I've spent sleepless nights working out a system that will always work and save millions of money now lost in wrecked rolling stock and thousands of useful lives."

"What is your scheme? My time is limited."

"First of all, you shall build for me a mammoth windmill on the banks of the Missouri. The ceaseless winds that come crying across Colorado and Kansas will push the paddles in the big wheel, which, revolving, will drive a great pump that will force air through a small pipe to be laid along the line under the ties. Beneath each water tank upon the mountain side we shall build an air tank, so that while the fireman takes water the brakeman can take air, filling the air drum with good valley air, and then there will be no trouble. It is because the mountain air is too light to hold that the trains get away on the hills. Knowing this, the blood of innocent men, women and children will be upon your head if you fail to protect the lives of your patrons."

"I'll see you again about this," said the manager, putting on his hat and leading the way out through a private door. All the way out the man kept close to the manager. The elevator dropped them to the ground floor. The manager called a cab. As the door closed the man reached through the open window into the carriage, pressed the manager's hand and said significantly, looking deep into the railroad man's soul, "You won't lose me!"

The inventor continued to call upon the manager, every day at first, then twice a week and later only three or four times a month.

One evening the general manager sat in a box at the theater. Between acts a gentleman who sat almost directly behind the railroad man left the box for a moment. Presently the general manager became aware that his friend had resumed his seat and, with his gaze still on the audience, remarked: "I lose half the pleasure of the play because of an innate dread of fire. I wish somebody would invent something that would put out fire without drowning people."

"I can do it," said the man at the manager's elbow."

"How?"

"How do you put out a candle?"

"Well, I would blow it out."

"Exactly. First I would lay a system of air pipes under the building."

The manager felt a chill creeping slowly over him. Somewhere he had heard that voice before. He began slowly to turn his head, but his neighbor put a hand upon his shoulder and bade him listen. "You tremble when your own life is in danger," said the man, "but you do not tremble for the hundreds of lives that are constantly endangered by your carelessness, narrowness and stinginess. On yonder mountain side tonight people play at the open door of death as"—

"Ahem!" said the manager's friend, returning to the box. The wind crank, seeing that he held the gentleman's seat, arose, smiled, bowed and walked away.

Always after that the manager carried about with him a haunting dread of the wind crank. He would turn a corner in a crowded street and meet him face to face, and for the briefest moment the man would search the soul of the manager. Once in the city that was headquarters for the company they held a great exhibition, and the general manager was chosen to welcome the president of the United States. The moment he came to the edge of the platform and faced the waiting multitude, waiting not to hear the railroad man, but the president, he became embarrassed. "Ladies and gentlemen," he began, "I see before me"—

Pulling himself together, the railroad man went on. His friends began to tremble for him. What he said had nothing to do with the exhibition, the president or the people there assembled. "The company has always endeavored to keep abreast of the times. We have adopted every safety appliance that has been invented, but so long as human hands, guided by the brain of man"—

At that point a man who was intelligent when he was sober broke in on the orator, "Oh, come offen th' perch an' let som'on' talk 'at can talk sense!"

Blushing to the very roots of his hair, this local orator, the man who had been called "the Demosthenes of the west," stumbled from the stage.

At last the long winter came to an end, and the inventor went away with the snow. At all events, the manager had been rid of him for a long while when one day his special stood upon a short spur near the mountain top waiting for the eastbound overland express. Presently the party were made aware of the approach of the opposing train, but instead of the low singing of the rail, for which they had been listening, they heard suddenly the roar of a runaway train and the frantic cry of a locomotive for brakes. The flagman who had opened the switch to let the special back in on the spur stood there waiting to let them out again when the express should pass. All the people had climbed down from the waiting train to stretch themselves. The engineer was oiling his engine. The fireman had climbed up a bank to gather some wild flowers that grew where a little stream of clear cold water gurgled from the rocks. Seeing the flagman still holding to the switch, the general manager ran toward him, calling to him to let go and stand back.

What might have happened if the manager had remained quiet no man knoweth, but when the flagman saw him coming and heard him shouting without understanding what he was saying he glanced nervously in the direction of the approaching train. The wild engine at that moment rounded a curve and headed down a short tangent straight for the switch. The flagman was seen to glance back again at his own train, which stood well in the clear, then throw his weight on the switch lever. Over went the rail for the spur, and across it went the flying train.

An air hose had blown off just as they tipped over the top of the hill (this was before the days of the self acting, self adjusting automatic air brake), and the few hand brakes at the crew's command had served only to steady the train. They could not hold the big mountain engine, and now she shot in on the spur, wide open, spitting fire and screaming like a wild fiend. She hit the special with a crash that shook the very hills. The special train, with its lighter locomotive, was driven back three cars or more and crushed like an eggshell against the rock cliff that rose perpendicularly at the far end of the spur. The heavy sleepers crushed the mail and express cars against the wrecked locomotives. There were the old familiar shrieks of the broken engines, the moans of the mangled and the excited shouts of the rescuers. The general manager had succeeded in dragging a man from the ruins and placing him in an easy position. The man appeared to be quite dead. As the manager was about to turn away something tugged feebly at his sleeve. The manager stooped down, put his ear to the man's breast, peered into his face and then stepped back with a startled expression. Now, with the superhuman strength that sometimes comes to dying men, the wreck lifted his head and looked with strange, wild eyes into the face of the manager.

"Oh, you murderer! Do you still argue that you can hold a train with mountain air? Now, with a system of air pipes—running up from the valley—all this wreck—and—death"—

The general manager put his ear down again, but the troubled heart was hushed.

THE MAZE OF MINOS.

New Discoveries in Crete and the Minotaur Myth.

Every one acquainted with Greek mythology remembers how Theseus, the benefactor of prehistoric Greece, went over into Crete and with the aid of Ariadne and a ball of twine threaded his way into a labyrinth built for King Minos and killed the minotaur, a portion of whose food consisted of Athenian maidens. The spectacle is now presented of the Cretans insisting upon being taken under the folds of the blue and white ensign of Greece, the country from which once the monarch of central Crete extorted as indemnity the choicest specimens of human flesh that Athens could produce for the replenishment of the larder of the fierce man-bull.

Minos, according to Greek mythology, was the son of Zeus and Europa. The wife of Minos was Pasiphae, Ariadne being their daughter. Pasiphae gave birth to the minotaur, a man-bull. This fabled monster was imprisoned in a labyrinth designed for Minos and built by Daedalus, a fabled sculptor. The minotaur lived upon human food. Minos, having conquered the Athenians, demanded a yearly tribute of seven youths and seven maidens to be served up to the minotaur. Thesus, an Athenian, ranking next to Hercules among the Greek heroes, on one occasion was sent to Crete with the tribute. Ariadne fell in love with the youthful Thesus and assisted him by means of a ball of twine to enter the labyrinth safely. He slew the minotaur and was enabled to escape again. This relieved the Athenians of the future payment of human tribute.

It used to be thought that this story and many of the others recounted in the Homeric period as well as Minos himself were myths. Recently archaeological discoveries in Crete, however, have served more than to suggest that the stories have a historical foundation. Not only the capital of Minos, but his palace, his throne and now a labyrinth which may well have been devised by a real Daedalus have been discovered in the ruins of Knossos, in the center of the island. Many carvings indicate that bulls figured in the rites of the inhabitants of that old world palace, and men and women are shown taking part in the sports, which possibly were connected with the worship of some cruel deity to whom human sacrifice was offered in this form. Perhaps this is the origin of the story of the feeding of the minotaur with human dainties.—New York Tribune.

The Japanese Game of Shogi.

A letter from Japan published in a German paper says: "When one sees how popular the game of shogi is here it is easy to understand the superiority of the Japanese as strategic officers. The game is played on a board and is in some respects like chess, but it has so many peculiarities that it is a thing in itself. Each player has twenty pieces. The direction in which they move is indicated by arrows on the top or smaller end of the pieces. A captured piece is not laid aside, but becomes the property of the captor and is impressed into his service. This is characteristic of the people, who know so well how to utilize the works and ideas of others. Another feature of the game is that when a piece succeeds in crossing into the enemy's territory its value becomes increased, and its identity as to superiority is established by reversing it, turning it on its head. Despite the complicated situations the rudiments of the game are easily acquired, and hence its popularity."

Melbourne In 1835.

One of Australia's colonists, a veteran of ninety years, has just published his reminiscences. While walking up George street, Sydney, in 1835, he heard a bellman announcing the first sale of allotments in the new township of Melbourne. He went inside. The auctioneer proclaimed the merits of this new township and predicted that it would be a grand city some day. "Yes, a city of kangaroos," interjected a scoffing spectator. Hardly a bid could be elicited. A few years later the gold discoveries did rapidly convert the township of Melbourne into a great city, and the lucky people who had bought allotments for $100 or $150 found their value increased to $100,000, $150,000 and in some cases even $250,000.

A Lofty Headdress.

The American lecturer who tried to persuade the women in his audience the other day that their own hair was a prettier, not to say less obstructive, sight than their hats ignored the warnings of history, says an English writer. No matinee hat of today is so high as the lofty headdresses worn by Marie Antoinette, which were the despair of poor simple minded Louis XVI. But when deprived of all possibility of being able to see a performance at the opera he presented his wife with an aigret of diamonds in the hope that it might supplant a headdress forty-five inches in height the queen promptly had the diamonds incorporated in a new headdress which was taller than all its predecessors.

Camel Meat For Parisians.

Camel meat is to be the fashionable delicacy in Paris this season, as a result apparently of the opening up of Morocco. A large wholesale butcher in Paris has signed contracts for the supply of a large consignment of humps and heads. Camel, it seems, is like prime beef, only tastier. Camel foal is much more fancied by gourmets than veal. The hump is the daintiest morsel, but the head is also a delicacy eaten pickled.—London Telegraph.

At Twenty and at Forty.

The man of twenty loves a lass,
And everything is honey.
The man of forty loves, alas,
And everything is money.

Excuse.

"Ella, you must not let that young man kiss you until you are engaged."

"But, mamma, he's just practicing for the engagement kiss!"

The Old Time Shawl.

The shawl was originally not a woman's garment exclusively, for the Scotch highlander has his tartan plaid, and the men of northern Italy still wear a cloak which is very little more than a shawl. There can be no question that the shawl is more useful and more picturesque as an article of attire than the close fitting coats both men and women now wear. The shawl could in case of emergency be used to protect two persons or to wrap a child in or as an extra bed covering. Its fashion did not change every three months, and it could be used and passed down in the family until it was worn out. Nowadays the only time when such articles are used is when people are making an ocean trip or traveling in Europe. "Traveling rugs," which are nothing more or less than men's heavy shawls, are extremely English, and for travelers they are considered very proper and desirable, but outside of a steamer, train or carriage no one who cares for what people will say would be seen with one.—Argonaut.

GENE AND THE TERRIBLE ONE

Will do Battle in Brockville To-morrow---Catch as Catch Can Bout

Gene Hurtubise and the Sultan's favorite will meet in Brockville. The following despatch has been received:

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 14.—Hassan Abdallah, the Turk, and Gene Hurtubise, the Peterborough champion, have been matched to meet here on the 15th inst., in a bout at catch-as-catch can, best two in three.

A TRACK CLUB FOR THE Y.M.C.A.

All Y.M.C.A. men interested in track athletics kindly be at the meeting to-night in the Y.M.C.A. parlors at 7.45. The purpose of the meeting is to organize a track club and to elect officers for the year. A good turnout is requested.

Light snow falls, but generally fair and cold to-day and Thursday.

Negotiations by the Canadian Northern for the purchase of the Wisconsin Central are at an end.

Was a Good Go

The Toronto Star says;

Cyclone Burns, the English champion, seemed to have "bitten off more than he could chew" at Riverdale rink last night when he tried to toss Gene Hurtubise, the Peterborough French-Canadian, three times in an hour, or forfeit $100. The Peterborough giant replaced the injured Turk Hassan Abdallah, and the result was a great struggle. Hurtubise took no chances. He hugged the floor or his opponent like a leech the entire hour. He did not attempt to do any work himself, and as a result Burns was unable to get more than one tumble. He grabbed this after 28 minutes of the hardest kind of work, but got another he could not claim at the call of time. He had the Peterborough man in a position that meant a fall, but he couldn't pin him down. The crowd, which favored Hurtubise against the far-famed Englishman, cheered mightily as the last ten seconds ticked away, while Burns threw his weight down upon Hurtubise' left shoulder and strove mightily to force it to the mat.

YESTERDAY'S COLLECTIONS GIVEN TO ST. JAMES CHURCH

George St. Congregation Denote Anniversary Offerings, Amounting to $1201.33 to the New Church—Have Now Given $3641.33 to it.

The anniversary services of the George street Methodist church were of an unique character, and were different from previous anniversary services held in that church, inasmuch as the offering instead of being kept for their own use, was given over to St. James' church. The collection yesterday was a substantial one, and it amounted to $1,201.33. Every cent of it was handed to St. James' church. The congregation of George street church had previously given $2,440, making a total of $3,641.33 that they have contributed to the building of St. James' new church. Yesterday's donation was as a Christmas offering.

George street congregation has established a precedent in the way of giving anniversary offerings to outside churches. The giving was not prearranged, but was spontaneous on the part of every member of the church.

They have set a good example and it would be well if other congregations would follow it.

BOOK WRITTEN CONCERNING LIFE OF LATE REV. H. WILSON

"One of God's Best," is the title of a book which has been written concerning the life of the late Rev. Henry Wilson, D.D., who died some time ago in New York. He was a native of Otonabee township and was well known in Peterborough.

Earlier chapters of the book have been written by Miss Madele Wilson, his daughter, and contain a very full and graphic picture of his early life and ministry and the stirring scenes connected with his first contact with the Salvation Army, and his ultimate separation from his bishop and church in Kingston, leading ultimately to his translation to St. George's, New York. Five chapters have been contributed by Rev. A. B. Simpson, giving a sketch of Dr. Wilson's connection with the Christian and Missionary Alliance, with the Gospel Tabernacle, with the work among the children and with foreign missions, closing with a brief characteristic sketch of Henry Wilson as a man. Several striking tributes contributed by those who best knew him, have been compiled in a closing chapter. The book contains many admirable photographs. It is by no means a mere dry record of facts and dates, but has many striking incidents, anecdotes, and touches of light and shade make it a most readable volumn as well as a precious memorial of one who was so widely and deservedly popular.

BRIDGENORTH MAN CHARGED WITH STABBING COMPANION

On Saturday Night While the Two Were Driving Home—A Jack-knife the Weapon—Both Men Had Been Drinking.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of a Bridgenorth man on the charges of stabbing his companion, also a resident of that village. The affray occurred on the highway on Saturday night at a swamp about a mile this side of Bridgenorth, while the two were driving home. It is said both had been drinking.

Dr. Scott dressed the wounds of the injured man, who was stabbed three or four times about the head with a jack knife. His injuries are of a very serious character. The charge against the man who did the stabbing will be heard in County Police Court before County Police Magistrate Edmison.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Letting Him Off Easy.

"Before I agree to undertake your defence," said the eminent criminal lawyer who had been called in, "you will have to be perfectly frank with me and tell me the whole truth. Did you embezzle the £20,000 you are accused of having taken?"

"Yes, sir," replied the accused man. "I'll not attempt to conceal the fact from you. I stole every penny of it."

"How much of it have you left?"

"It's all gone but about £10."

"Young man," said the eminent lawyer, putting on his gloves, "you'd better plead guilty and throw yourself on the mercy of the court."

"I'll do it if you say so, sir. What are you going to charge me for the advice?"

"Ten pounds."

Prompt.

Two young men once wrote a joint humorous production—at least they thought it was humorous—and sent it to Life. They did not see each other for twenty-four hours.

When they met joint author No. 1 remarked to joint author No. 2:

"Since writing that thing I've thought of some awfully funny twists that we might have put in it. Too bad we sent it away so hurriedly. I should have liked to make certain changes and additions."

With a sardonic grin joint author No. 2 put his hand in his pocket, produced an envelope addressed to himself and drew therefrom the manuscript of the joint production.

"Here it is," he said. "It has just come back. Make all the changes you want."

"Black Michael."

Not because of dark deeds, but on account of his dark complexion, beard and hair, has Viscount St. Aldwyn—better known, perhaps, as Sir Michael Hicks-Beach—who has been appointed chairman of the royal commission on the Land Transfer Acts, thus been termed. The viscount is one of the most kind-hearted of men, in spite of an air of habitual sternness, which was apt to frighten his younger colleagues when holding office. The following story illustrates this. When Chancellor of the Exchequer he once had occasion to reduce in grade for a serious offence one of the messengers. Three years later Sir Michael was going out of office. A day or two before he surrendered his seals the messenger sought an interview, and explained with some hesitancy that if Sir Michael left office and allowed his decision to remain unaltered he would suffer a lifelong punishment. Would Sir Michael stretch a point in his favor? After replying to a few terse questions the man left. Next day he was reinstated in his old position, the bad mark against his name was removed, and Sir Michael made it clear to the permanent officials that it was his wish that the messenger's lapse should in no way stand against his future advancement.

DR. FERNOW'S WARNING.

Ontario Cannot Afford to Disregard Her Timber Wealth.

"Some morning you may wake up and find your tax list has changed its aspect," was the warning Prof. Fernow gave, speaking of the timber resources of Ontario at the Toronto Canadian Club a short time ago. The forests had been drawn upon to lighten the tax bill, the golden goose was very near its finish, he declared, and other resources must be drawn upon to make good the deficiency.

He had read in the papers that the fires had done no damage because they had only run over old slash. This was where the Government had failed to realize their responsibility. The forest fires were destroying the young growth and preventing the recuperation of the lands for future wood cuts. It was a disgrace that in spite of the large expenditure for this purpose they could not cope with the evil. There was either carelessness or deplorable mismanagement. There was a lack of moral — evident also among those who contributed to such waste.

The Ontario Government was proud to be able to say that in the limits there were ten to twelve billion feet of white pine. But this was only four years' supply of the United States' consumption.

In the timber area of British Columbia, he estimated 30,000,000,000 feet, but as the United States consumption was 40,000,000,000 a year this only represented ten years' consumption.

He was glad to see the Ontario Government had begun in a small way to encourage the reforesting of waste farm lands.

"There is more poor forest growth in Canada than you have any idea of —tree-weeds in profusion," he said, speaking of the intractability of the Laurential rock, which decayed but slowly, and gave no soil for tree growth.

"Hemlock is the skim milk of the woods," was another remark. Balsam was a much better pulp wood than spruce, but it did not float so well and could not be got out without railway development.

Natural philosophy must come to the aid of the student in interpreting the reports of explorers on the timber resources observed. Reports only existed where someone had gone in a canoe. Nothing was known of the country behind the railway route, and the question arose whether he was an optimist or a pessimist.

Fifty per cent. of the timber lands was burned area, burned over and again. The rest was not commercially available in the north, the rivers flowing in the wrong direction.

CHOOSING THE HAINS' JURY SIX HAVE BEEN SELECTED

Trial Has Commenced at Flushing.

What Plea of Defence May be For Brother of Annis' Slayer.

Flushing, N.Y., Dec. 15.—When court adjourned last night, after two long sessions consumed in wearisome examinations of talesmen, six jurors sat in the jury box competent to try Thornton J. Hains, a short story writer, on charges of being an accessory to the killing of Wm. E. Annis, an editor, shot down at the Bayside Yacht Club last summer by Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., of the U. S. army.

Difficulties of securing a jury because of opinions formed of the case were apparent in the examination of talesmen, and Justice Crane last night directed a new panel of 100 talesmen to be drawn and a night session to be held. Justice Crane hopes that the trial may be concluded by the end of the week.

Interrogations of talesmen by Hains' counsel indicate that the defence will be based principally on the proposition that Thornton Hains, fearing that his brother's life was in jeopardy from the crowd at the clubhouse before the shooting of Annis, drew his revolver and held the crowd back. His act was one of defence and not of offence, according to his counsel.

John F. McIntyre, of counsel for Hains, announced last night that Hains would take the witness stand in his own defence. He will likely tell of those events at Fort Hamilton which led up to the separation of Capt. Hains and his wife, and to the tragedy at the Bayside Yacht Club. Mr. McIntyre will offer in evidene the alleged confession made by Mrs. Claudia Hains to her husband.

Thornton J. Hains took a lively interest in the examination of talesmen yesterday and frequently chatted and smiled with his counsel over some of the answers of prospective jurors.

After the adjournment of court he was manacled to a deputy sheriff and taken in an automobile to the Long Island jail. Gen. Peter Hains and Mrs. Hains, father and mother of the defendant, returned to New York following the afternoon session of court.

Frank Twichell, of Denver, Colo., T. Haggarty.

Miss Kennedy, as Gail Hadleigh, an Undergraduate.

The Partello Stock Company is always welcome to Peterborough. When they were here last year they made a splendid impression on account of being so much superior to any repertoire company ever seen here. Last night the company produced "The College Girl," a play in which the cast was seen to great advantage on the opening night of last season and the presentation this year was even more finished than the one first seen here. Miss Alice Kennedy and Jack Westerman, the favorites of the play, were again seen in the piece and were given cordial receptions.

The scenes were very effective, especially the one in the old tower in the last act. The general equipment of the Partello Stock Company is much better than the other repertoire organizations and last night's presentation was thoroughly satisfacliterary night
tory in every respect and was given the unstinted applause of the large audience.

Between the acts Jack Westerman sang in an entertaining manner and as an encore gave a pathetic recitation in which a "wharf rat" figured as the little hero. His work was excellent and he was enthusiastically recalled. "Reynalda" made a big impression in her fascinating electrical dances.

It is quite a safe prophecy to say that the company will play to splendid business all week.

LINCH-PIN OF THE EMPIRE

H. J. Mackinder in London Speech Says That Canada May Withdraw.

London, Dec. 15.—H. J. Mackinder, addressing the Compatriots' Club yesterday, said the tendency of the younger generation in Canada was towards independence, though they hardly realized the fact at the moment. There was a strong feeling almost throughout the Dominion against annexation with the United States, but there existed also a standing temptation to give that power commercial terms which must end in political union. If such a coalition were formed it would arouse European hostility, a hostility not active, perhaps, but still real. In self-defence the coalition would be compelled to take over the command of the ocean, and the powers of the Far East, instead of looking to Britain, would look to America. Could Britain, in such circumstances, retain India and South Africa? As Lord Milner said, the Dutch would be loyal for reasons of policy, not sentiment. If Canada parted from Britain the empire would end, and the attraction for the Dutch would disappear.

NO CHANCE FOR THE DYNAMITARDS

Friends of Authors of Welland Outrage Seek Pardon.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—The reports that a number of Irishmen in Chicago have started a movement to ask Sir Wilfrid Laurier to intercede with the Governor-General to pardon the three Irishmen, Karl Dollman, John Nolan and John Walsh, who were given life sentences in Kingston for conspiracy to blow up the Welland Canal at Thorold in 1900, were brought to the attention of the Canadian authorities yesterday.

No hope was held out that the appeal would be granted, if only on the ground that in the appeal opportunity is taken to argue that the three convicts were "victims of the secret service system of Great Britain," and to allege that the men in question were "pigeons" of British detectives. This is treason and felony.

Dollman, whose real name is kept a secret by the officers of the crown, was leader of the clan in St. Louis, Chicago and Kansas City, which was identified with the conspiracy. The attempt, as is well known, failed.

STAY OF PROCEEDINGS WAS GRANTED BY JUSTICE BRITTON

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Dec. 15—Mr. Justice Britton this morning granted a stay of proceedings in the West Peterborough election petition pending the final decision on the preliminary objection. He also extended the time for the taking of proceedings by either party including the filing of a cross petition if the present petition is maintained.

COL. H. S. GREENWOOD OF SOUTH AFRICA HERE TO-DAY

Col. H. S. Greenwood of Johannesburg, South Africa, is in the city today, registered at the Hotel National. He is being greeted by his many friends here. The Review in conversation with Col. Greenwood learned that he di not intend to return to South Africa but in future will reside in Canada. He arrived in Boston, Mass., about two weeks ago, having been a passenger on the steamship "Cymric."

Col. Greenwood left here in the latter part of 1899, and during his stay in South Africa resided in Johannesburg. He had been home twice since leaving there.

He arrived in the city this morning and will leave again to-morrow for Toronto. He will be present at the complimentary banquet to Col. Miller this evening

ANOTHER YOUNG MAN HAS BEEN PLACED ON BLACK-LIST

A young man, whose only weakness apparently, is for liquor, was placed on the blacklist this morning by His Worship Magistrate Dumble. He appeared in the police court today.

P. C. Meagher testified to the prisoner being addicted to the use of intoxicating drink. Last evening he was picked up insensible at the corner of George and Simcoe streets. He was a good worker when he was not drinking.

On the evidence His Worship ordered that he be placed on the blacklist. The papers will be gotten out at once.

SECRET SERVICE

Detectives Are After the Smugglers.

Said to be Gang of Them Near Chippewa--Arrests Are Expected.

Niagara Falls, Dec. 15.—The secret service men in the employ of the Canadian and United States Governments are on the trail of a gang of Chinese smugglers who are said to be operating between Chippewa and La Salle.

The detectives have just discovered that a party of six Chinamen and two Americans narrowly escaped being swept over the Falls one night last week when the engine of a gasoline launch which was conveying them to the United States failed and the party were nearly carried to death.

Another smuggler on shore at Chippewa heard their cries and in another launch went out and towed the disable boat to the shore, where the Chinese shipped in the efficient launch and landed at La Salle. The authorities say they will make important arrests in the next few days.

A COMBINE OF THE PACKERS

Capitalists Said to be Consolidating Western Plants.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Whether there will be a new corporation consolidating the packing plants of Western Canada, as reported from Winnipeg Sunday, could not be confirmed here yesterday, although it was ascertained that a secret meeting of men said to be interested in such an enterprise was being held.

Those participating in the conference were said to be R. M. MacLeod, a capitalist of Winnipeg; A. W. Anderson, and J. Herbert Anderson of Spokane, Wash.; E. C. McDonald, assistant Attorney-General of Washington; O. W. McConnell, Attorney-General of Montana, and Albert Galen of Helena, Mont. It was said that only one of the conferees is directly interested in the cattle industry. J. H. Anderson, said to be a promoter, said: "It will be impossible to say anything of the proceedings as yet, and it is probable that nothing whatever will be made public. I cannot say, you know, what is the nature of the conference."

BETTING ON THE MARATHON

Dorando is Favored by Local Plungers --- Race Causes Interest Here

A lot of local interest is being shown in the Marathon race at Madison Square Gardens to-night, between Longboat and Dorando. Considerable betting is going on in local circles. So far as can be learned, no very substantial wagers have been made.

Dorando appears to be a slight favorite, partly on account of the fact that he is such a demon indoors and partly owing to the rumors of Longboat not being in the pink of condition.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL CLOSED F OR THE TERM

On account of the continued prevalence of scarlet fever in the northern part of the city, the Board of Education have deemed it wise to close the Queen Alexandra school for the balance of the present term.

Through fear of contagion, a large percentage of the pupils has been kept at home during the past few days and as the school is disorganized on this account, and as the school term ends within a week, it was thought wise to be on the safe side and to close the school.

When school re-opens in January it is hoped that the epidemic will have disappeared since the fever is of a very mild type

INVOICES SHOULD ACCOMPANY PRESENTS FOR UNITED STATES

At the local office of the Dominion Express Company it is said that many people are causing trouble for themselves and friends by neglecting to furnish at least three or four copies of invoices with presents being sent to the United States. To avoid delay and trouble these invoices should be furnished with every parcel going out of the country as demanded by the Government.

It is pointed out that persons should not wait until the last few days before Christmas to send presents, as there is always more or less delay in delivering during the heaviest part of the holiday rush. To insure rapid service parcels should be sent at once. Parcels should always be wrapped in strong paper and bound with heavy twine. The addresses should also be written legibly in the left hand corner.

VENEZUELANS ARE EXCITED OVER SEIZURE OF VESSEL

HINDUS WILL NOT LEAVE

Col. Swayne of British Honduras, Accepts His Defeat.

Vancouver, Dec. 15.—Col. Swayne, governor of British Honduras, came to the conclusion yesterday, that there is no chance of taking British Columbia Hindus to Honduras. He will leave for the east in a few days.

He is very strongly of opinion that even indigents should not be deported because of the bad effect the move would have on the unrest in India.

Col. Swayne will on his return to Ottawa enter into negotiations with the Dominion Government for an extension of the Elder-Dempster Steamship Co.'s service between St. John, N.B., south as far as Belise, capital of Honduras. Great quantities of fruit will be brought north as return cargoes. Flour and pork can be sent from Canada.

WILL SEE PLAY IN LINDSAY

Several Local Boys to Attend Presentation of "All the Comforts of Home"

Judging from the satisfactory rehearsals "All the Comforts of Home" will be given a splendid product on in Lindsay where it will be given by amateurs of that town on the 17th. A number of local boys intend going to Lindsay to see the play.

Mr. Irving Beers, the director of the piece, is much pleased with the progress that has been made by the company and writes that he has been fortunate in securing such a good cast

Somewhat of a Sensation in Caracas.

Acting President Gomez Says Country is in State of Defence.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 13, via Port of Spain, Dec. 15.—The news of the capture of the Venezuelan coast guard ship Alexis by the Dutch cruiser Gelderland on Saturday reached Caracas yesterday morning. A big crowd at once assembled in the Plaza Bolivar and demonstrated in support of the Government. A decree issued by acting President Gomez places the republic in a state of defence. The acting President tells of the seizure of the Alexis and continues:

"I consider these acts a true invasion of Venezuelan territory and an aggression against the Venezuelan Government. They constitute a grave offence. The national sovereignty is threatened and the territorial integrity, honor and dignity of the fatherland is in danger.

"I decree the nation in a state of defence, and consequently the Executive assumes and will exercise the extraordinary faculties conferred upon him by the Venezuelan constitution."

The news that the republic had been placed in a state of national defence against Holland ran through the city like wildfire, and in a few moments there was an enormous crowd in front of the Yellow House, the executive mansion, to greet acting President Gomez. Gomez made his way across the plaza to the Yellow House and was received with enthusiasm. The Yellow House was crowded with a numerous assemblage of the most distinguished citizens of Caracas.

Speeches were made demanding that all political prisoners be set at liberty and that the existing Government monopolies be abolished. Threatened danger from without had a double effect on the people; they demanded measures of protection, but at the same time they insisted upon the termination of one of the most unpopular courses of the Castro Administration, the maintenance of Government monopolies in the necessities of life.

Foreign Minister Paul made a speech in reply for the acting President. He exhorted the people to trust Gomez to solve the difficult problems confronting Venezuela to-day and prayed them to help him carry his burden of tremendous responsibility.

Meanwhile a crowd of citizens, including a large number of students, went to the office of El Constitutional, the organ of President Castro, and indulged in a counter-demonstration. The feelings of this crowd were plainly hostile to Castro and to the steps taken by Gomez. A pitched battle ensued between the employes of the paper and the crowd on the streets. Many shots were exchanged, and the fighting lasted for five minutes. Several men were wounded and one has since died. The police were summoned and appeared on the scene armed with rifles. The crowd then dispersed.

CANDIDATES ARE SCARCE

Municipal Politics in Peterboro of a Mild Nature so Far

Although nomination day is a week from Monday, municipal matters in Peterborough remain quiet. It is stated that Mayor Rush will have opposition for the mayoralty but who the dark horse is cannot be ascertained. There seems to be a dearth of aldermanic candidates although the names of two or three citizens are being mentioned in this connection.

Mr T. F. Matthews will seek re-election as Water Commissioner and so far there is no talk of opposition. No new candidates have yet been mentioned for the Board of Education.

HEALER SAVED BY THE POLICE

Macomb, Ill., Dec. 15.—Declaring at a meeting Sunday night that the late President McKinley was an anarchist, that he had turned more people loose to prey upon society than any man in the world, and that the assassination of McKinley was all right except that it did not happen soon enough, the self-styled "Divine Healer" Schlatter, only escaped personal violence from a mob through intervention of the police.

The officers escorted Schlatter to an hotel and to the first train out of town, followed by citizens threatening to do him violence if he did not leave at once. Schlatter went to Quincy, Ill.

MANY ACCIDENTS IN UNITED STATES

Washington, Dec. 15.—Between 30,000 and 35,000 deaths and 2,000,000 injured is the accident record in the United States during the past year among workingmen, according to the Bureau of Labor.

The most exposed factory class are the workers in iron and steel. Fatal accidents among electricians and electric linemen and coal miners are declared to be excessive, while railway trainmen were killed in the proportion of 7.46 deaths per 1,000 employes.

Greensboro, N.C., Dec. 15.—Dr. John M. Danzier of Hendersonville, N.C., a lifelong friend of the humorist, Bill Nye, has placed an order for a large block of rough granite to be placed as a monument at Nye's grave at "Buck Shoals."

Prince Regent's Position.

Pekin, Dec. 15.—Statutes fixing the official status of Prince Chun the Regent were published yesterday. The prince is given an annual salary of 150,000 taels, about $105,000, and is made commander-in-chief of both the land and sea forces of the empire.

The edict provides also that a palace be built for him near the site of the late Dowager's winter residence.

Teddy, Jr., a Major.

Waterbury, Conn., Dec. 15.—Governor-elect George L. Lilley announced yesterday the appointment of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., as an aide-de-camp on his staff, with the rank of major.

Theodore is now living at Thompsonville, where he is engaged in learning the carpet making business at a large manufactory in that village.

Perjury Charged.

Brockville, Dec. 15.—Patrick Brady surrendered himself in the county judge's Criminal Court yesterday and pleaded not guilty to a charge of perjury, alleged to have been committed in taking the oath to vote at the Dominion election in Brockville on Oct. 26. He was admitted to bail.

Militia Service Saved Him.

St. Catharines, Dec. 15.—J. Doyle, who last week confessed to an extensive raid of chicken coops, was yesterday let go by Judge Carman on suspended sentence. The leniency was the result of Doyle's long service in the old Nineteenth Regiment.

To Fix Up Old Fort Niagara.

St. Catharines, Dec. 15.—It is announced that the Dominion Government will erect two concrete breakwaters to protect the ramparts of old Fort Mississagua at Camp Niagara, cannon will be replaced and the approaches to the place repaired.

Kingston, Dec. 15.—Samuel Stevenson, guard in Rockwood Asylum, who was struck on the head by an insane patient, with a hammer, is dead, aged 47.

Aid to Education.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—Lord Grey delivered quite an important speech last evening before the Montreal Technical Institute.

His Excellency regretted that the British North American Act prevented the Federal Government from coming in aid of higher education, as can be done under the English constitution.

He also said that a forward step would no doubt be made at the Imperial Educational Congress to be held in London during the summer of 1911, as he believed that some steps would then be taken so that the educationalists of the different states of the empire may be brought into closer touch the one with the other for the advancement of education generally, and especially higher education.

Defaulter Gets Respite.

North Bay, Dec. 15.—At the High Court of Justice, which opened here yesterday before Justice Teetzel, the case of William Martin, Jr., charged with embezzlement of funds belonging to the Town of North Bay, while acting as tax collector came up.

Justice Britton's decision was read in court yesterday afternoon, and was to the effect that Martin may be allowed his liberty under bail of $10,000 to appear at the autumn assizes in North Bay in 1909 for sentence.

Burns His Millions.

London, Dec. 15.—A special despatch from St. Petersburg to The Daily Mail relates that dying Moscow millionaire, name Petroff, has his whole fortune withdrawn from the banks and the bank notes brought to the sick room. They were then piled before him and set on fire.

Petroff summoned his relatives and showed them the ashes, congratulating them on having escaped the evil of wealth.

NATURE A VERY SKILFUL PHYSICIAN

Puts Up Her Medicines in Most Tempting Form.

Have you ever tasted anything more delicious than the fresh, ripe, luscious fruits? These are Nature's medicines.

A regular diet without fruit is positively dangerous, for the system soon gets clogged with waste matter and the blood poisoned. Fruit juices stir up Bowels, Kidneys and Skin, making them work vigorously to throw off the dead tissue and indigestible food which, if retained, soon poison the blood and cause Indigestion, Headaches, Rheumatism, Neuralgia and a host of other distressing troubles.

But there is a quicker way to stimulate the organs to do their work properly. Take one or two "Fruit-a-tives" tablets every night, besides eating some fresh fruit every day. "Fruit-a-tives" combine the medicinal properties—many times intensified—of oranges, apples, prunes and figs, with the best tonics and internal disinfectants added.

Their action on Bowels, Liver, Kidneys and Skin is as natural as Nature's own, but quicker and more effective. Sold by all dealers—25c. for trial box—50c. for regular size — 6 boxes for $2.50. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, DEC. 15, 1908.

WORSE AND WORSE

As was stated last week the customs income for November was one million and a quarter less than in November, 1907. Full returns show the following shortages in all departments of the revenue;—

Decrease in Customs...	$1 251,067
Decrease in Excise...	49 327
Decrease in Post Office receipts...	2 489
Decrease in miscellaneous...	63 349
Total decrease...	1 536,659
Total revenue November, 1908...	7 867,968
Total for 8 months 1907...	66,662,427
Total for 8 months 1908...	55,115,227
Decrease 8 months...	11 547,200
Increased expenditure 8 months...	9 334,410
Change for the worse... ...	20 881,610

Or at the rate of $31 322,415 a year.

With this state of affairs we look for a corresponding increase of debt and find the following;—

Increase in November, 1908...	$3 263,144
Increase in past twelve months...	35,720,390

So the debt is growing pretty steadily at the rate of $3,000,000 a month.

In twelve months the bonds payable in England have increased by over $21,000,000, and temporary loans in that country over $13,000,000. Mr. Fielding will be spending his Christmas holidays attending to these loans and making more.

FOR FARMERS

The most important and most fascinating of all Prof. Biffen's experiments in the laboratories of Cambridge University, England, concern production of varieties of wheat immune to prevalent pests. In all countries the most serious enemy of the farmer is rust. In the bad rust year of 1891 the loss due to this cause in Prussia alone was calculated at over $20,000,000, while a well known authority estimates that the average loss from rust to the wheat crops of the world would not be covered by $100,000,000.

No prophylactic against the disease has been discovered and it is recognized that the only way to avoid it is to make use of varieties which are naturally immune. Unfortunately the few such varieties that exist are in other respects poor and unprofitable to grow.

Prof. Biffen began his experiments by crossing a variety peculiarly subject to the attacks of yellow rust with an immune variety. The hybrids produced were all severely attacked by rust. In the following year such seed as could be collected from these plants was sown. The greater number of the resulting plants were much rusted, but some were entirely free from the disease, though growing up in the closest contact with their rusty brethren. It was found on counting that the immune plants formed almost exactly a quarter of the total number.

In other words, the experiment proved susceptibility and immunity to be a pair of Mendelian characters, and consequently within the control of the breeder to combine with other characters according as he pleased. The fact that resistance to yellow rust is a unit character exhibiting Mendelian inheritance makes it a simple matter to transfer it to wheats which are in every way desirable except for their susceptibility to rust.

From knowledge gained through his experiments, Prof. Biffen has been able to build up wheats combining the large yield and excellent straw of the best English varieties with the strength of the foreign grain and at the same time quite immune to yellow rust. During the present year several acres of such wheat coming true to type were grown on the Cambridge University Experimental Farm and when the quantity is sufficient to be put upon the market there is no reason to doubt its exerting a considerable influence on the agricultural outlook.—Harper's Magazine.

THE ELECTION PROTESTS

The Montreal Gazette.

There are indications in the news reports of the day that a considerable number of the protests entered in the courts against members returned to the House of Commons at the recent elections will never be brought to trial. This does not promise well. What is even less satisfactory is that newspapers assuming to represent or lead public opinion express themselves in a way that must be discouraging to any who may have undertaken the trouble and cost of exposing and punishing corrupt practices. The "what is the use" plea is altogether in the interests of the successful politician who has won an election somehow, and does not want a scrutiny of his methods. It is not in the interests of clean elections or clean administration and it is opposed in the most direct way to the interest of an Opposition party. Men who have been honest in desiring that the standard of electoral purity should be raised can only regret the incidents that have recently occurred to create the impression that representatives of the two parties have been in communication with each other with the view of forgiving each other's sins on the lines of a horse swap. They will more regret anything occurring after the entry of a petition which will indicate that it has been withdrawn by collusion. The effect of all such deals will be to create the impression that one party is as bad as the other in the matter of corrupting the electors when the opportunity offers, and would probably be as bad as the other in its administration of the nations affairs. Those who advocate more stringent election laws in the hope of improving a situation that is a disgrace to Canada only partly comprehend the situation. The present laws seem to be stronger than the public will to enforce them. The country needs new laws less than it needs a new conscience.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Sheffield choristers say we have a twang and—we have.

"Have you made all your Christmas presents?".

"Yes," she replied.

"What did she mean?"

London, Dec. 13—The Prince and Princess of Wales invited Hon W. S. Fielding to lunch on Saturday.

If misery loves company as has been popularly supposed for some time, then the Emperor Bill will see it in Mr. Roosevelt who has just been publicly rebuked by Congress, the rebuke going on record, for his message on the interference of Congress in the secret service.

The remuneration of physicians originally consisted of presents, but at the time of Hippocrates payment in money was already customary. Physicians received also public praise, the 'crown of honor,' the freedom of the city, the privilege of eating at the King's table. Physicians employed by the State received a yearly salary, as high as $2000 in some instances. Rich people would pay enormous sums for a successful treatment and a case is recorded in which $200,000 was paid.—New York Medical Journal.

CAMP SHERWOOD ELECTS OFFICERS

Ten New Members Were Installed at Last Night's Meeting

There was a most encouraging attendance at the meeting of Sherwood Forest Camp No. 50, last night at which the election of officers took place. As an evidence of the progress being made by the local camp ten new members were initiated at last night's meeting.

The installation of the officers elected will take place the second Monday in January. They were chosen as follows;

POC—Wm Aitcheson.
CC—A N Jones.
Advisory Lieutenant —A E Bartlett.
Banker—Jas Kyle.
Clerk—A A Haskill.
Ass' Clerk—Geo Armstrong.
Escort—F D Fitzgerald.
Watchman—T. Medd.
Sentry—Wm Taylor.
Managers—W U Copperwaite, W J. Johnston, Jas Bellegham.

The apartments of Speaker Sutherland of the Saskatchewan Legislature were robbed.

Domenico Capia, an Italian, was fined $20 for selling liquor without a license in Guelph.

INTERESTING MEETINGS OF FARMERS' INSTITUTE HELD AT LAKEFIELD

The dairy cow, the horse, poultry raising and fruit growing were the subjects of practical discussion at the meetings of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute held at Lakefield on the afternoon and evening of Thursday, Dec. 10th. There was a large attendance, particularly at the evening meeting. From the interest that was taken in the questions discussed it was evident that the farmers of that locality are anxious to know all that is practicable for application on the farm. In addition to the addresses much valuable information was brought out in the questions that were put to the speakers and in the latters' replies. At the afternoon meeting the chair was occupied by the president of the Institute, Mr J. N. Telford, and at the evening meeting, by Reeve Moore, of Lakefield.

THE DAIRY COW.

The first topic discussed was "The Dairy Cow, Her Summer Feed and Winter Care." This was handled ably by Mr. W. F. Kydd, of Simcoe, a well-known and most acceptable Institute speaker. He pointed out that the subject is a most important one to Ontario. One of the greatest industries of the province is dairying. To make the business profitable our farmers must keep profitable cows but there are more cows that are not profitable than those that are. To show the difference in the value of cows Mr. Kydd referred to a report of the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington that one-third of the cows of that country are kept at a loss, one-third pay their way and one-third are kept at a profit. Experiments in Wisconsin show that some cows are worth at least four times as much as others in the same stable or in the same neighborhood. A certain dairy paper in Ontario sent a man to a section of the province to make an investigation along similar lines. He estimated the cost of production in 20 farms in one locality and offset it with the returns received for the milk, which was supplied to the same cheese factory. This investigation showed that most cows are kept at a great loss.

The average cow gives only 3000 lbs. of milk a year. As no man can keep a cow for less that $30 a year, there is no profit in this. In Denmark a test of 438 herds showed an average per cow of 7000 lbs. a year. This indicates that there is something wrong in Ontario.

Our farmers should weigh each cow's milk to determine whether she is worth keeping or not. Some may say that this requires too much time and labour. This is not so. It only takes one-quarter of a minute each time for each cow. The testing must be continued throughout the year. It is the cow that gives an average flow of milk for ten months out of the year that makes the money and not the one that gives a large flow for a short time and then falls off to almost nothing for the rest of the year.

To have good cows, breed from the best. Select the best performers and raise heifers from those. Cows have as much influence on the progeny as the sire if the breeding is just as strong. Use bulls that have pedigrees that are unbroken for ancestors.

In respect to the question, "Which is the best breed?" Mr. Kydd said that there is no best breed. Each one is the best for a particular purpose and for certain environments. When choosing the farmer must know what he wants his cow to do. As the district around Lakefield goes in more or less strictly for dairying and particularly for for the production of milk and cheese factories Mr. Kydd stated that the Holstein and the Ayrshire were the two best breeds for the purpose. If the farmer's land is level and he has lots of good pasture he probably would have better results from the Holstein; if hilly, and rocky where the cows have to hustle for their summer feed the Ayrshire would prove most profitable.

Some breeders lay great stress upon the conformation of the dairy cow, but Mr. Kydd said that there is no sure test of the milking qualities of a cow except by milking her and testing for butterfat. In conformation there are a few points that should be considered in all dairy cows. They should have a big heart girth, with the ribs sprung well, but not flattened at the back. The skin should not be hard or papery, but intermediate and mellow. The milk veins should be twisted and they extend as far forward as possible. Large milk wells are not necessary, if the veins branch profusely and and have many small wells. There should be a good nervous system to aid in the manufacture of lots of food. This is indicated by the links of the back bone being long, plenty of width between the ribs and good length of tail. These things mean a big spinal column, with a tremendous quantity of nerves coming from the brain.

"There would be more good cows in this province if they were better fed," said Mr. Kydd. "It pays to pasture in some districts, but not in others. In sections where the climate is dry in the seasons of drouth and on small farms, green crops should be grown for feeding in summer." In Mr. Kydd's practice, he cuts first in spring fall wheat that was sown the previous autumn, next peas and oats from successive plantings and later, corn and clover. Summer silage is an important feed. Have a silo for this that is rather narrow so that not too much silage is exposed to the air at one time.

Mr. Kydd advised having the stable light and with a temperature in the winter that will not go down to freezing. It should be well ventilated. Keep the cows clean; use a brush and comb if it can't be done otherwise. Have salt in front of the cows all the time, because some cows use more than others. Water once a day in winter. Turn the cows out at the warmest part of the day and give them water that is freshly drawn from the well. Where it is practicable and possible, it is better to have the water in the stable.

FRUIT GROWING.

Some general remarks on fruit-growing were made by Mr. A. H. Cutting, of the Canadian Dairyman and Farming World, Peterborough. He pointed out that this publication is anxious to aid the farmer in the care of his orchard as well as in general farming and dairying. Mr. Cutting said that most of the orchards in this country could be made to give three or four times present profits by giving them more attention in the matters of cultivation, fertilizating, pruning and spraying. There are too many orchards in sod, which rob the trees of moisture and plant food and which harbors insects and vermin. Intelligent and regular pruning would do much to bring these orchards into a greater state of productiveness. Spraying is the exception and not the rule in this country. This is essential to the production of fruit of high quality. Codling moth, bud moth, oyster-shell scale and many other insects are ruining many of the trees.

Apple scab and other fungous diseases also are prevalent. While each orchard pest requires special treatment at a particular time, most of them can be controlled by spraying four times with Bordeaux mixture and Paris green; first, in spring before the buds begin to swell; second, when the buds begin to break open; third, immediately after the blossoms fall; fourth, 10 days to two weeks later.

In reply to a question asking for the best varieties of red raspberries, Mr. Cutting recommended Marlboro for early, Cuthbert and Herbert for general crop, the latter being particularly valuable for cold localities. In respect to a similar question on strawberries, the speaker stated that there is no best variety. Some standard sorts do well in some localities and not in others. Owing to local conditions, some varieties that yield well on one farm often prove of little value on farms adjoining. Williams is the great commercial berry of the province. Clyde is excellent for light soils and in dry seasons. Warfield is one of the best for canning, but requires moist ground. There are hundreds of others. When selecting, the farmer should choose those that have done best in his own neighborhood with conditions similar to his own.

THE BROOD MARE.

The afternoon meeting was concluded by Mr. Kydd with a short talk on the brood mare and her foal. The brood mare should have plenty of exercise almost up to time of foaling. When the foal comes, the mare should be kept quiet for two weeks at least before again working. She should foal in the stable in a box stall and not in the open field. There is less danger of trouble by the former method. Mr. Kydd also gave some general instructions on the feeding and care of mare and offspring.

THE STATUS OF THE FARMER.

At the evening meeting Mr. D. Hughes-Charles said that there is too much talk about the boys leaving the farm. He said that this should not be, that the farmer is as well off as the man in the city. He referred to the difference between city and farm life. The physician requires years of experience and study; they have nasty drives and often hard times. The lawyer must study and practice for years before receiving much remunerative returns; he has an unsavory reputation.

Store keepers work early and late and have to give lots of credit which oftentimes means much loss. Banking is not what it is cracked up to be; many farmers put their sons there because they think that they can do nothing else. The clergyman's life is not a bed of roses; no man should enter this vocation without feeling himself "called." These are only a few instances.

The ideal life is on the farm. Conditions there are constantly improving. The farmers are the backbone of the country. They must be fond of their work and take pride in it. The large house on the farm is a mistake. It means too much work for the women. Every farm home should have a library of agricultural books. Farmers labor too much because some of them do not put enough brains into their work. They have the brains and the brawn. It requires only application to make the most of them.

Barns and stables should be clean and well lighted. Cleanliness and tidiness is a part of the ideal farm. Have stock of the best. Included in this should be one or more combination horses for riding and driving. The girls and boys should ride more. Farmers should keep cattle that pay, not cows that give only 2,000 or 3,000 lbs. of milk a year. Young farmers should think wisely and think long before deciding to go to the town or city. In conclusion, Mr. Hughes-Charles wisely said that most retired farmers are "tired" farmers.

POULTRY RAISING.

The subject of an interesting address by Mrs. Colin Campbell, of Windsor, was "Poultry Raising. Is it a profitable or a losing business?" In theory, many persons consider poultry raising a gold mine, but in practice, it is not always so. Successful poultry keeping depends upon the industry and ability of the person who undertakes it. No one should go into it unless interested.

The building for the poultry should be situated some distance from the others and on a dry site and well drained. There should be no trees nearer the building than 20 feet and these should be on the south side. Keep it in winter at about freezing point, free from draughts and dampness. Give a little more warmth at night. Do this by using burlap curtains in front of the roosts, which should be on the level. Hang the curtain on a wire at the ceiling so that it may be pulled to one side during the day. Have it extend across the pen and deep enough to go two inches below the dropping board. Keep the floor clean if wooden. A dirt floor is probably the best. Put on four inches of cinders, beaten down, then three or four inches of gravel and some straw or chaff on top. Have a dust box in one corner. The best breeds for farmers are Rocks, Wyandottes and Orpingtons.

If the object is to secure eggs in winter, make the conditions as near as possible similar to those of summer. Give green food or substitutes such as roots and cabbages. Hang these on nails high enough to cause the fowls to jump for it so as to give them exercise. Keep the birds busy. Give meat but not decayed food. The best grain is wheat. Barley and oats come next respectively, but they have too much hull. These three make a good mixture. Feed some bran and shorts also. Feed the grain in the litter on the floor. Have grit and broken oyster shells available. The heaviest ration feed should be given at night and a mash in the morning. Mrs. Campbell said that she realized $1.25 per hen last year at her own poultry yards.

DROP STITCHES.

An interesting talk was given by Mr. Kydd on "Dropped Stitches." He said that Canadians do not appreciate their country sufficiently. The Province of Ontario is the seed bed of everything in agriculture and live stock. The great prairie country of the west, with its enormous grazing tracts, is a wonderful part of the Dominion. British Columbia is a coming province. The Maritime Provinces and Quebec gave a history to be proud of.

The farmers of Ontario lack in co-operation. It means more money in all lines of agricultural endeavor, particularly in fruit growing. In respect to the latter, it affords a greater range of markets. The growers can grow the same varieties for that market. They can grow low-headed trees which saves labor. The can pack uniformly and get the big prices. Mr. Kydd referred to the success of the co-operative fruit growers' association in Norfold County, which has 152 members. Potato growing should be carried on co-operatively to get carloads that are uniform in variety.

Regarding the question of the boys leaving the farm, Mr. Kyd stated that many farmers are not treating their sons fairly. The boys should be paid so much money so as to give them a feeling of independence. The daughters are not treated properly in this respect. Mr. Kydd advised our young farmers to take a one or a two years' course at some agricultural college and then return to the farm with higher ideals and newer methods to practise.

Mr. E. M. Elliott, of Peterborough, in a short address, remarked that farming is one of the most intricate of all occupations. Compared with banking, mining, business and so forth, agriculture is supreme. The speaker said that there should be more farmers in our legislatures and parliaments.

At the evening meeting a number of musical selections were enjoyed. These included a male chorus and quartette and a number of instrumental selections. The Women's Institute held an interesting meeting in the afternoon and entertained the visitors by serving refreshments between the two meetings.

YOU CAN CURE CATARRH

J. H. Taylor, 54 Bond St., Toronto, Breathed Hyomei and Cured a Long Standing Case of Chronic Catarrh That Defied All Other Remedies. Also Toronto and New York Specialists.

Without taking a drop of medicine into the stomach, J H Taylor, 54 Bond street, Toronto, tells how the distressing troubles of catarrh were overcome by simply inhaling Hyomei air. It's the history of tens of thousands similar cases on record, proving that Hyomei can be depended upon to cure Catarrh, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Croup. It has no equal for any distress of the breathing organs:

Mr. Taylor says: "Some years ago while on a hunting trip in Northern Canada, I contracted a severe cold that settled in my head and finally affected my throat. It rapidly developed into catarrh and caused a miserable throat weakness. My head would become clogged during the night and there was a catarrhal dropping from the nose into the throat. Many days I had been unable to breathe other than through my mouth and the constant hawking and spitting was almost unbearable. I had been treated by the best throat specialists here and in New York, but nothing benefitted my condition. I obtained Hyomei at a drug store and soon found relief, the throat dropping ceased and my head began to clear. I continued with Hyomei for six weeks and after that time I was well in every detail. There has been no return of the trouble since, and I feel grateful in speaking well of Hyomei, as it cured me when all else failed."

Mrs. Laura McQuoid of Toronto, is applying for a divorce from her husband, Wm McQuoid, of Colborne.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

The Cable Conference.

London, Dec. 15.—The question of the reduction of cable rates between Great Britain and Canada will be taken up in earnest early next spring, when accredited representatives of the Governments of the two countries will meet and convass the subject thoroughly.

Schooner Wrecked.

Halifax, Dec. 15.—The schooner Laura Victoria, from Mabou, N.S., for Georgetown, P.E.I., coal laden, went ashore Saturday at the entrance to Murray Harbor, and will be a total wreck. The captain and crew of ten were rescued with difficulty.

Stratford Church Dedicated.

Stratford, Dec. 15.—The magnificent new church of Zion Lutheran congregation, which was erected at a cost of $18,000 was formally dedicated Sunday. Rev. Mr. Hamfeldt and Rev. Mr. Stempfler of Toledo, Ohio; Rev. Mr. Conkle, Guelph; Rev. Mr. Gruhn, New Hamburg, and Rev. E. Hahn, Wellesley, assisted in the dedication. Rev. Dr. Gandier, principal of Knox College, preached the anniversary sermon at Knox Church.

Owe Ten Millions.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 15.—Declaring that David R. Francis, Murray Carleton, James Campbell, Judge Henry Priest, Brown Bros. of New York, and other stockholders of the St. Louis Transit Co. owe that corporation more than $10,000,000, as the result of the sale of the company's common stock in 1899, J. Brooks Johnson applies to the Circuit Court for a receiver for the company.

"Black Hand" Vengeance.

Johnstown, Pa., Dec. 15.—Following the receipt of threatening Black Hand letters, John Onelli and Antonia Rogers were attacked and terribly injured at Hastings, Pa., late Sunday night. Onelli was stabbed in the spine, causing paralysis, and Rodgers' eye was gouged out with a knife. Three Italians were arrested and identified.

Greater Toronto.

Toronto, Dec. 5.—East Toronto with a population of 7,000, Deer Park with 4,000, and East Wychwood join the greater city to-day.

The City Council yesterday consented to the annexation of West Toronto with 12,336 population, Bracondale and Wychwood with about 7,000 population.

Of all the populous suburbs only North Toronto remains outside the limits.

Greater Toronto has 338,813 people, and is growing at the average rate of 14,000 yearly. In ten years it will be a city of half a million.

Power Bylaw Delayed.

Stratford, Dec. 15.—Contrary to expectations the City Council did not pass the bylaw providing for the signing of the Niagara power contract last night. The commission will be communicated with to-day relative to cost of publication of same, and another meeting will be held Thursday night.

At the regular meeting of the public school board last night the salary schedule for teachers was revised, giving the teachers a general increase.

Mackenzie King Starts.

He is en route to Pekin to attend, as one of the British delegates, the international conference, which will consider means for the suppression of the opium traffic. He is accompanied by F. W. Giddens, his private secretary.

Graft Enquiry Begun.

Port Arthur, Dec. 15.—The civic investigation into the charges of malfeasance in connection with the operation of franchises commenced yesterday. Charges were payment of undue commissions on purchase of a motor generator and two street cars. Solicitor Keefer conducted the enquiry before Judge O'Leary.

Action on Arrears of Taxes.

Regina, Sask., Dec. 15.—Forfeiture proceedings are to be taken by the Government to-day against all land for which local improvement taxes have not been paid. Notice was issued to all secretary-treasurers yesterday, stating that they must not accept arrears of payment after to-day. A large amount of land in the country will be affected by this decision.

Posthumus Title.

Pekin, Dec. 15.—An edict was issued Sunday conferring upon the late Dowager Empress Tszu Hsi An the posthumus title of "Filial and Admirable Empress of the Seabens, Equal and Bright in Practicing Holiness."

The edict orders that special ceremonies be carried out in connection with the conferring of the title.

Just Hanging Round.

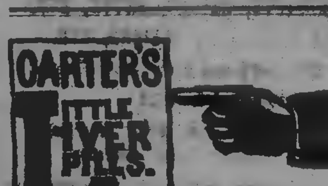
Ottawa, Dec. 15.—William Sloan, M.P. for Comox-Atlin, who arrived in the city yesterday morning, had a conference yesterday afternoon with Ralph Smith, M.P. for Nanaimo, and Hon. William Templeman. There is no change in the situation regarding the portfolio of Inland Revenue.

Instructor Reinstated.

Kingston, Dec. 15.—Inspector Dawson has concluded his investigation of the opium smuggling operations at the penitentiary. No decision has been given, but it is understood that the instructor, who has been under suspension, will be reinstated.

Marine Enquiry Wednesday.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—The Marine enquiry will not open here until Wednesday owing to the unprepared state of the Exchequer Court room.



CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head

ACHE is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Cattle Lower, Hogs Steady at Buffalo.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—London cables for cattle are steady at 12½c to 13¾c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10¼c to 10¾c per lb.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Dec. 14.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were large—105 carloads, as follows: 2115 cattle, 22 hogs, 690 sheep and 17 calves.

Exporters.

There were a few loads of exporters reported as selling at $5 to $5.50 per cwt., but we are inclined to think they were bought for the Christmas market of the Dominion. Bulls sold at $3.75 to $4.25.

Butchers.

Choice Christmas cattle sold at from $5 to $5.60, with a few picked, prime lots at $5.75 to $6. Loads of good heifers and steers, $4.75 to $5; medium to good, $4 to $4.50; common, $3.50 to $3.75; cows, $3 to $4; canners, $1.50 to $3.50.

Milkers and Springers.

A few milkers and springers sold at $35 to $55 each.

Veal Calves.

A limited number of veal calves sold at $3 to $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

About 700 sheep and lambs were on sale. Lambs were firm, selling at $5.25 to $5.55 per cwt.; sheep, $3.25 to $3.40 per cwt.

Hogs.

Gunns, Limited, reported selects at $6, fed and watered at the market, and $5.75 to drovers, f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 14.—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Dec. 12 were 3418 cattle, 1213 sheep and lambs, 8219 hogs and 277 calves. The offerings for local consumption this morning amounted to 2158 cattle, 900 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs and 204 calves.

Altho the supply of cattle was much larger than a week ago yet the undertone to the market was strong and prices for ordinary stock showed an advance of ¼c per lb. The quality of the stock of feed was all that could be desired by both local and out-of-town buyers for the Christmas trade, there being some extra choice beeves, which brought fancy prices. The demand was active for all top quality grades and a brisk trade was wone in the morning, but the common and inferior cattle moved rather slowly, of which the offerings were smaller than usual. Messrs. Johnston and Bessner, one of ourleading wholesale butcher firms, bought two extra choice stall-fed cows, weighing 3375 pounds, at 6c per lb. Two others, weighing 3270 pounds, at 5¾c, and five calves, weighing 2175 pounds, at 6c. Mr. William Masterman of the Masterman Packing Company, was on the market as usual, and operated freely in cattle and hogs. There was also a number of buyers from Ottawa and Quebec, who bought a number of carloads of choice cattle and lambs. On the whole the trade was very satisfactory to all concerned. Ordinary choice cattle sold at 5¼c to 5½c; good, at 4½c to 5c; fair, at 3¾c to 4¼c; common, at 2½c to 3¾c, and inferior, at 1½c to 2¼c per pound.

A much stronger feeling prevailed in the market for lambs, on account of the continued small offerings and prices scored a further advance of ¼c per lb. The demand was good from local and outside buyers and an active trade was done, with sales of choice lots at 5¾c to 6c, and good at 5¼c to 5½c per lb. There is no change in the condition of the market for sheep, prices being firmly maintained under a fair demand and small supply, and sales of choice stock were made at 4c, and culls, at 3½c to 3¾c per lb. The offerings of calves were not large, but the quality of the stock was something extra and in consequence the demand was good and higher prices than usual were paid. Some extra choice stock sold at 5¾c to 6c and good at 4¾c to 5c per lb.

There were no new developments in the live hog situation. Receipts were larger than they have been of late, for which the demand was good and prices ruled firm, with sales of selected lots at $6.60 to $6.75 per cwt., off cars. Cable advices received on Canadian bacon last week were weak and noted a further decline in prices of 1s to 4s per cwt., but this fact seems to have but little influence on the local market these days.

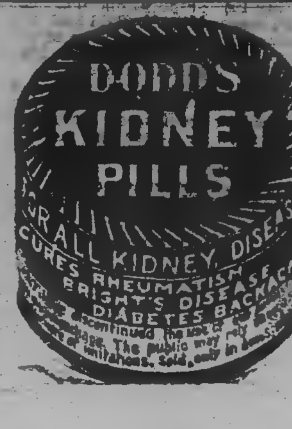
East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 14.—Cattle—Receipts, 2800 head; active and 15c to 25c lower; prime steers, $6.50 to $7; shipping, $5.50 to $6.25; butchers', $5 to $6; heifers, $4.50 to $5.30; cows, $3.50 to $5; bulls, $3 to $4.25.

Veals—Receipts, 400 head; active and steady, $7 to $10.

Hogs—Receipts, 17,000 head; fairly active and steady; heavy, $5.95 to $6; mixed, $5.85 to $5.90; yorkers, $5.40 to $5.90; pigs, $4 to $5.75; roughs, $5.25 to $5.50; stags, $4 to $4.75; dairies, $5.40 to $5.80.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 14,000 head; sheep, slow; lambs, active; lambs, $5 to $7.50; yearlings, $5.75 to $6; wethers, $4.50



MAY DIVERT GRAIN TRAFFIC TO PACIFIC

President Hayes of Grand Trunk Pacific Says He Will Do it With His Low Grades—One Engine Over Rockies—Expects to Have Line Open to Prince Rupert in Autumn of 1911—Short Way to the Orient.

Montreal, Dec. 14—In an interview here C. M. Hays, President of the Grand Trunk Pacific which is financed by Messrs Rothschild in London and Speyer Brothers in New York gives an account of his observations during a tour of inspection which took him to Prince Rupert, the western terminal of the new Canadian line.

In answers to questions Mr. Hays said,

"We are doing very well, indeed. The various contractors are in good spirits and well abreast of their dates. Indeed the financial disaster in New York a year ago was for us a blessing in disguise. Large numbers of men have come north seeking work. Labor is abundant and is more productive at lower wages. Already our trains are running regularly over the whole section 660 miles west of Winnipeg into Alberta. The newly arrived settlers have harvested a great wheat crop—great both in quantity and in quality, greater still for the price it is bringing. At our Pacific terminal, Prince Rupert, from which I returned this week, good progress is being made with the grading of the first hundred miles east, and I see no reason to doubt that by the autumn of 1911 our first train will break through to tide water passing from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

High Cost and Low Grades.

Asked about alleged "generous expenditures," on the road Mr Hays replied

"A number of amiable and glib gentlemen hunting seats in the Dominion parliament have been talking about the matter on the stump. The Canadian voter has replied to them. The Dominion Government is as you know, our partner in the enterprise, and to denounce Ministers for reckless extravagance is all right and proper from the viewpoint of an opposition But our expenditures have not been excessive nor beyond the measure of our obligations to the Government and the community.

"'Bear in mind, please, that railroads are not now built as the earlier transcontinental roads were built, up hill, down dale, on an unballasted roadbed of mud Such economic methods were permissible when there were a mere handful of ranchmen and trappers to serve, and when the promoters' objective was first of all to earn the land grant on which they issued their bonds. What we require today and what the travelling public means to have is a first class roadbed with such low gradients and wide curvatures that our trains can be run at very high speeds with perfect safety

"We carry our road from Winnipeg over the Rockies to Prince Rupert with a maximum gradient of 21 feet to the mile going west and 26 to the mile going east. The immense economy in hauling freights with gradients so remarkable, every railway man put two thousand tons of freight into must recognize. We shall be able to Prince Rupert from Winnipeg behind a single engine.

"Of the seven great railroad systems which today cross the Rockies and reach the Pacific, the Union Pacific with grades of 116 feet eastbound, and 105 west bound, comes nearest to us. I will tabulate for you the grades of our six competitors and the dynamics of an engine on each;

Railroad.	Max. Grade.	Tractive Resistance in Pounds Per Ton.	Gross Capacity of Engine in Tons
Grand Trunk Pacific	26	14	2,041
Great Northern	116	50	572
Northern Pacific	116	50	572
Union Pacific	116	50	572
Santa Fe	185	76	376
Canadian Pacific	237	96	298

"In other words, the same engine could haul up the maximum grade of the Grand Trunk Pacific nearly four times more freight in a train than either the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, or Union Pacific, over five times more than on the Santa Fe, and about seven times more than can be hauled up grade on the Canadian Pacific. These are very remarkable figures, I am aware, and I accept the responsibility for putting them on record. You can read in these figures the reason for our so-called 'generous expenditures' The interest on the cost of such a line will be returned to us ten times over in the economy of our operations and in the increased safety of our passengers.

"We expect that our easy gradients which are due not only or chiefly to our 'generous expenditures,' but to our possession of the Yellow Head Pass through the Rockies, will in a few years twist around a great portion of the wheat export trade of the Northwest and with the opening of the Panama Canal in 1914 send wheat to Europe—let alone to Asia—by way of the Pacific."

Mr. Hays proceeded;

Divert Wheat Traffic to Pacific.

"At present the wheat crop is either hurried to the ports on the great lakes, Duluth, Fort William, and Chicago, during the few weeks between threshing and the closing of lake navigation in November or it is held up for six months in elevators at a considerable cost, or again, it is carried through to the Eastern seaboard in winter, when the St Lawrence route is closed by ice, the long haul through heavy snows makes the operation difficult, costly and even disastrous both for the railway and to the farmer. West bound from Saskatchewan and Alberta to Prince Rupert the grades are easy; there is very little snow in winter, so that when the Panama Canal opens in six years, I look to see Prince Rupert one of the very great grain ports of the world. I have more than once ventured the prediction that in my lifetime we shall haul to the Pacific as much grain as we shall haul to Atlantic."

"The volume of traffic," said he, "coming out of the new Northwest, if we may judge from the way settlers are already swarming in, will throw far more business upon our existing lines than they can possibly handle. The present cultivated area is but six million acres, a mere patch this on a farm of three hundred million acres. As yet we have but scratched the surface. We shall require very shortly to do what the Canadian Pacific is already doing in Manitoba, that is, double track our road to enable us to handle the traffic. Thus the diversion of a large portion of the far western wheat trade will advantage every section of our road; it will even enable us to give settlers much lower rates, because we shall even up our loads, sending full cars both east and west instead of only east. While we send cattle, grain, and minerals west to Prince Rupert, we shall haul back east the coal and the lumber which the settlers on that three hundred million acre farm need.

"'When Prince Rupert has been connected with Sydney across the Pacific by a good line of steamships — and that will come soon—the connection will have been completed of the two very finest harbors in the British Empire. So at least a friend of mine assures me, who has recently seen both. He even gives the palm to Prince Rupert. Our route cuts off to the Far East—say Yokohama — 1600 miles from New York, compared with the San Francisco route, and 500 miles over the Vancouver route, and the saving of two or three days will often decide the choice. The climate of the place is neither hot in summer nor cold in winter; the mercury rarely, if ever, goes to zero. We shall sell the town site of Prince Rupert to the public next spring, probably in May. We own three-quarters and the Government of British Columbia one-quarter.

"Already there are a couple of very comfortable hotels, a weekly newspaper, The Empire, and some two thousand people. I believe that town will in its early and rapid growth outstrip anything thus far on the Pacific. It is a back door to a great continent. Vancouver to rock its cradle had some 50,000,000 of people. Prince Rupert has 10,000,000. Today Canada's people instead of emigrating across the southern border are being recruited by daily additions from south of the line."

ZAM-BUK AS A CURE FOR PILES

Impressive Cures of Women Sufferers---Our Readers Should Note These Cases.

Wherever there is suffering from piles, Zam-Buk should be applied. There are lots of reasons for this, but one of the best is that in practically all cases of piles where the use of Zam-Buk is persevered with complete cure —not mere relief —is the result.

Mrs. Wm Hughes, of 253 Hochelaga street, Hochelaga, Montreal says, "I suffered from blind, itching, and protruding piles for years. Sometimes they were so bad that I could hardly bear to move about. The inflammation, the burning smarting pain, the throbbing, the aching, the overpowering feelings of dulness and dark despair which this ailment brings, the shooting spasms of agony —all were so terrible that only sufferers from this awful ailment can understand."

Bad as the case was, Zam-Buk triumphed, and Mrs. Hughes suffers no longer. It needed a little perseverance with Zam-Buk certainly, but in the end it cured.

Mrs E. Boxall, of Scott street, St. Thomas, says; "For months without cessation I endured great pain from bleeding piles. For as many months I tried everything which I thought would give me ease, but in the end, dispirited and still suffering, I gave in.'

Then it was she heard of Zam-Buk, and she adds: "Although I feared Zam-Buk would be like the ordinary remedies —useless—I am glad it was not. It rapidly gave me relief, and after a time cured me completely. I would like to have all sufferers from piles know what a grand thing Zam-Buk is."

So one could go on quoting case after case, and it is by working such cures that Zam-Buk has earned for itself its great reputation.

Now if you suffer from this terribly painful ailment just be guided by the foregoing cases.

For internal piles melt a little Zam-Buk and thoroughly soak a wad, made of clean but old linen. Then apply to the part. If the piles are external, application of Zam-Buk is still more simple. Do it upon retiring. Next morning you will be well satisfied.

Zam-Buk is a cure also for cold-sores, and chapped cracked hands, ulcers, festering sores, blood poisoning, eczema, bad leg, ring worm, scalp sores, burns, scalds, and all skin diseases and injuries.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50 cents a box, or may be obtained post free from Zam-Buk Co. Toronto, for price; 3 boxes for $1.25. You are warned, however, against cheap and dangerous imitations sometimes offered as being "just as good."

THE BOARD OF TRADE SHOULD CALL AN EMERGENCY MEETING

The Review would suggest an ca meeting of the Board of Trade consider the desirability of wait on Parliament in January for t purpose of securing a proper deg of protection for the woollen mai facturing trade. The following count of the collapse of the gr Montreal Woollen Mills Co., tal from the Montreal Witness in ad tion to the general and alarming decline of Canadian woollen manufactories ought to rouse Peterborough and other manufacturing centres to immediate action. Peterborough has or has had a fine asset in the Auburn Woollen Mills, which have been kept going of late years wholly through the energy and ability of Mr. Kendrey in changing to what the lay observer would call "sidelines," from the regular trade. Sooner or later the same cause that has submerged 110 woollen factories of various sorts in Canada will drive the remaining few out of business. The case of the Montreal Company is alarming, to say the least. It might be wise for the city to take some interest in this matter;

"After carefully considering the situation for several months the management of the Montreal Woollen Mills Company, has decided to close its mills, as it is impossible to operate successfully under the existing tariff conditions, and it will go into voluntary liquidation.

The company was formed about 30 years ago with a capital of $200,000, and was favorably situated for economical production, the machinery being operated by water power. The company was engaged in the production of overcoatings, beavers, blankets, worsteds and tweeds, and have quite an extensive plant, including twelve sets cards, 69 broad looms, 3,408 spindles and a dyehouse. The officers of the company are Mr. R. J. Gault, president; Mr. J. Horsfall, managing director; Mr. J. H. Horsfall, Montreal sales agent; and Mr. H. W. Horsfall, secretary-treasurer. The closing down of the mills will throw a good many hands out of work, although they have been running light for some time.

In discussing the decision of the management to close the mills, Mr. Horsfall said that it was the result of the low tariff or more properly speaking, the preference given to British Isles woollen goods.

"I may tell you frankly," said he, "that the Montreal Woollen Mills Company, under existing tariff regulations on woollens, cannot compete against English competition. In the first place, wages are higher in Canada than in the Mother Country, and in the second place we cannot manufacture as cheaply there as they do in England. However, I am not complaining only the management regrets that it is unable to keep the mills running so as to give work to full dred eces, each. very, that esent ad in e will hop." en is- ncing their decision;

"It is with deep regret that we beg to announce to the trade our decision to liquidate our business of manufacturing woollens. We are compelled to this course of action by the realization of the fact, that we cannot, under the existing conditions, hope to operate our mills profitably. We consequently desire to inform you that we will only execute repeat orders for such goods as we may have the requisite raw material for, up to Dec. 31, when we discontinue advance orders and only deliver stock goods, and orders already booked. We have at present a large stock of manufactured goods, which we will be pleased to show the trade at clearing prices."—The Witness.

The following from "Fibre and Fabric," will be found informing also;

AN OBJECT LESSON.

"In the inquiry department of this paper, on page 11, will be found a communication from a subscriber in Montreal, who calls attention to the depressed condition of Canadian manufacturing, as a result of the low tariff on English made goods. It appears from this communication that if there is no change in the tariff at the next Parliament meeting, the firm he is with and certain others "will shut down altogether as it is of no use for them to go on any longer." This party is now looking for a mill in the United States.

MILL WORKERS AND THE TARIFF.

"It is not surprising that the mill workers, those who actually do the hard work in the mills, are manifesting unusual interest in the hearings on the tariff which have been held before the Ways and Means Committee of Congress. Fibre and Fabric is in a position to know what the sentiment is among overseers, second hands and the mill help generally, its relation with them being closer than that of any other publication in the United States; and it can state unqualifiedly that at no time in the history of tariff legislation have the mill help been so pronouncedly in favor of protection as they are at the present time. They know from sad experience what the effect are of low tariff rates, and now that the industry has passed through a period of depression and is getting upon its feet again, they do not desire to have it given another blow, which will mean that they will be thrown out of work."

MOTION TO SET ASIDE SERVICE OF PROTEST SUBSTITUTIONALLY

Heard at Osgoode Hall Yesterday—Mr. Geo. H. Watson K.C., for the Respondent and Mr. J. E. Jones for Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., Solicitor for the Petitioner.

The following account of the motion to set aside the protest in West Peterborough election is taken from the Toronto World. It will be observed that the court reserved judgment in order to look into the cases adduced by both sides the respondent seeking to show that the service of the protest as made was insufficient and the petitioner seeking to show that the court had no legal right to hear the present motion to set aside:

"The fight to be made by Hon. J. R. Stratton to block the trial of the protest against his election for the federal division of West Peterborough entered on a new stage at Osgoode Hall yesterday afternoon. This was under the summary Election Trials Act. Mr. Justice Britton presided.

G. H. Watson, K.C., and J. Grayson Smith appeared for Mr. Stratton who was also present.

Mr. Watson stated that while he had filed ten preliminary objections to the protest, he proposed to take up the eighth which argued that no service in accordance with the act had been made. The order made on December 2nd by the court authorizing the service on a substitute, was void, as the proper procedure in case there was legal difficulty in reaching Mr. Stratton was to have applied for an extension of time for service. If reasonable efforts to reach the respondent then failed an application for an order of substitution would have been regular. He had filed an affidavit by Mr. Stratton, which showed that no reasonable effort at personal service had been made.

NO ATTEMPT TO EVADE.

Mr. Stratton had been at Toronto and Peterborough a great part of the time and in Toronto at least half a dozen days on which service could have been made. Under such circumstances the service must be personal or the writ becomes of no effect. The error was definite, clear cut and fatal. This was established in the Montmagny judgment by the Supreme Court.

Counsel set forth that this was the time to raise the legality of the alleged service. He asked that he be allowed to put Mr. Stratton in the witness box when E. Jones, counsel for the petitioner, J. H. Burnham, could cross-examine him.

Mr. Jones objected that such a proceeding was irregular and was not a proper suggestion from a litigant who was attempting to nullify proceedings on the ground of irregularity. Moreover, the affidavit and the proposed examination of Mr. Stratton were without notice to the petitioner.

"Perhaps you will concede there was no personal service?" suggested Justice Britton.

"I conceive it to be my duty to concede nothing," replied Mr. Jones. "If he intends to rely on sheer technicalities he must be met by them."

Mr. Watson closed by moving for an order quashing the protest. By failing to serve Mr. Stratton personally, the petitioners "for reasons best known to themselves have," Mr. Watson concluded, "allowed the case to fall."

Somebody's choosing flowers for motion to set aside 222

PETITIONER AGGRESSSIVE

J. E. Jones, for the petitioner was equally positive and aggressive. The respondent, he said, had abandoned six or seven of his preliminary objections, and now sprung the plea of lack of personal service upon Mr Stratton. This was insufficiently specified in their notice of objection. It was not covered by the mere mention of the term insufficiency of service. The specific nature of the insufficiency must be given. If they meant personal service it was necessary to say that, but they purposely refrained from stating that because they knew that Mr. Stratton would then have been personally served within 24 hours. Counsel for the responden appeared before the court after serving them with a deceptive notice. Was the court going to encourage that sort of deception. It was dishonest with the court. It was an attempt to jolly from day to day.

The order granted for substitutional service on Dec. 2, was valid. Under this order service had been regularly made on Roland Glover. It had evidently reached Mr Stratton as he was present to answer it.

Under Sec. 19 of the act under which the respondent raised his objections there was no authority for the procedure of the respondent's counsel.

Judge Britton said that Mr Jones was entitled to an adjournment to examine the affidavit. The latter declined to accept this on the ground that the affidavit could not be introduced under the notice of objections served upon them.

Justice Britton said; "I will look into the cases."

Mr. Watson made another application for permission to place Mr Stratton in the box but was not allowed to do so. He turned smilingly to Mr. Jones, and, holding out his hand, said, "Perhaps you have the order of Dec 2, with you."

Mr. Jones snapped his hand bag with the words:

"I have nothing."

"My learned friend has nothing," said Mr. Watson.

The court then adjourned. —Toronto World.

PHILOMATHEANS HAVE A DEBATE

Inter-Form Contest on an Interesting Subject --- Students Have a Fine Meeting

The regular meeting of the Philomathean Society was held on December 14th, in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate. The large number of pupils present, testified that the preceding meetings had been a success.

A fine programme was given, one of the best this season. The minutes were read and approved. Then followed a piano solo by A. Primeau, which was rendered in fine style and was enjoyed by everyone present.

The most important feature of the programme, was the debate, "Resolved, that Australia is more advantageous to the incoming settler than South Africa." The debate was between Form 3A and 3B. As the debate was an interform one, the debaters put forth their best efforts. Form 3A had the affirmative, which was taken by Miss K. Leary and K. Corkery and the negative was rather an unusual one, as it dealt with countries with which we are not acquainted. Both sides spoke well, and showed careful preparation. The judges, A. Primeau, Miss N. Reid and Miss G. Sanderson, decided in favor of the negative. Thus Form 3B had the victory and rejoiced accordingly.

Miss C. Jauyes then gave a vocal solo, followed by an excellent humorous reading by Howard Armstrong.

Mr. Petit criticized the meeting, but was unable to find much to criticize in favor him.

The meeting was closed by the singing of the national anthem. —Com.

CRYSTAL THANKS THE PUBLIC OF PETERBOROUGH

For Their Kind and Constant Patronage — Theatorium Enlarged and Improved

To the Public of Peterborough City and County:

The management of the "Crystal" which after a year and a half of operation, has just undergone enlargement and improvement, desires to thank the public for its kind and constant patronage.

We promised at the outset that that this entertainment would be maintained under conditions that would invite the confidence of the most refined and scrupulous and we are greatly gratified to realize that it has come to be recognized as a place of innocent recreation where ladies can attend or send their children for an hour's amusement which they know beforehand will be of a clean and wholesome character.

The patronage of the families of Peterborough which has been constant and growing as they have had experience of what the "Crystal" offers them is a source of pride, which we shall always endeavor to observe.

We have taken pains to secure the best results attainable in the moving picture art from the capitals of Europe and the public of Peterborough may always and confidently rely upon the best that is procurable in this kind of entertainment, conducted as is our chief aim, upon lines that will instruct and amuse and yet not offend the most fastidious taste.

With an enlarged seating capacity and new daily attractions we desire to wish our patrons one and all, and particularly the little ones, "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

W. A. EDWARDS,
Proprietor.

SOCIAL EVENING AT KNOX CHURCH

Young People's Society Have Pleasant Entertainment--Rev. Dr. McKay Next Monday

After devotional exercises Mr. Parker took the chair at last night's meeting of Knox church Young People's Society. Miss Jesse Miller was called upon for a solo, which caused continued applause. Mrs. Sherwood gave several gramaphone selections that were thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. Joe Mercier rendered in an able manner a song which was well received by the listeners.

The ladies waited on those present with refreshments which brought the evening to a close. Miss Thompson deserves great credit for such an excellent meeting.

Next Monday, December 21st, the Rev. Dr. McKay will speak on "China its Uplifting Forces." Everyone should take this opportunity to hear him as he has just returned from China.—Com.

ENTERTAINMENT WAS REPEATED

By the Pupils of the Separate Schools--A Successful Programme

A grand entertainment by the pupils of the Separate schools of the city, which was given on Friday, was repeated at St. Peter's Hall last night before a thoroughly appreciative audience. The hall was well filled, and the programme was a clever one. In the operatta "A Beautiful Assault" given by the boys of St. Peter's school, the principal parts were taken by Vincent McCabe, as mayor and Earl Tooley as the office boy. Both acquitted themselves to special advantage. The other characters in the operatta were postmen, firemen, policemen, cadets and the band. The band provided good entertainment playing two selections.

There was no more enjoyable feature on the programme than "A Christmas Idyl," a cantatta by the girls of the Sacred Heart school. Miss Marie O'Dette as "Trixie," and Miss Aileen Melloy as "Peggy," distinguished themselves in the principal characters.

The sailor chorus by the boys of the Sacred Heart school was given an excellent reception.

Master Ewart O'Shea danced the Sword Dance skillfully. Two little boys, Joe Clancy and Frank Galvin, pleased the audience with their duet, "A Boy's Wealth."

LITERARY NIGHT AT ST. JOHN'S

A Pleasant Evening Under the Auspices of A. Y. P. A.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. John's church held a most successful meeting last evening in the school room. The entertainment took the form of a literary evening. Familiar quotations were matched and put together for one contest, which was won by Mr S. W. Caniff, the consolation prize going to Mr N. Armstrong. The advertisement contest was won by Miss Hazel Deane, consolation by Miss Linda Hall. The book guessing contest was awarded to Miss R Crawford, and the consolation went to Miss Crowe.

Misses McCaw and McKee rendered a piano duet in a very pleasing manner. Mrs R J. Devey gave a very entertaining reading, and Messrs. McLaren and Redgrove presented a dialogue.

The Tulip Craze.

About the middle of the seventeenth century the tulip became known in Germany, and a scientist named Gesner gives the first description of his flower. First only the yellow variety was known, and then other colors were produced by crossing. The Dutch, particularly the citizens of Haarlem, produced the most wonderful varieties of this flower and obtained enormous prices for them.

In 1634 the trade in tulips assumed a peculiar turn. It degenerated into a sort of a game of chance, so that in 1673 the authorities felt called upon to interfere and to issue edits against extravagance in tulips, as they formerly had against trains and laces. This interference would seem to be justified if one reads that in 1606 a single flower of this sort, called the Viceori, was paid for with two cargoes of wheat, four cargoes of rye, four fat oxen, eight fat hogs, twelve fat sheep, two casks of wine, four barrels of beer, two tons of butter, 1,000 pounds of cheese, a complete bed, a suit of clothing and a silver tankard.

Another bulb, the Semper Augustus, was paid for with 4,600 gold guilders and a coach with a double team of horses. In Haarlem the tulip craze reached its height in the decade from 1630 to 1640, when a price of 12,000 gold guilders (about $9,000 American money) is recorded for a single bulb.

His Own Cup of Tea.

There is one man at least in New York who has satisfactorily solved the problem of getting a cup of tea to his liking, no matter where he may be.

Ordered by his physician to quit coffee, he discovered that nothing could be more uncertain as to quality and making than restaurant tea. Then his wife came to the rescue with a birthday gift. Now when he sits down to luncheon he orders a pot of boiling water. Then from an inside coat pocket he produces a small green canton flannel bag and a little package with the fragrant aroma of Flowery Pekoe. From the bag he conjures a teaspoon fashioned on the principle of his wife's tea ball. A generous pinch of tightly curled leaves from the package, a click of the spoon's perforated lid, and he dips it into the water and glances over the menu for his favorite luncheon dish. A few seconds and the tea is made, the spoon lifted out for use later. Coffee is forgotten, and the midday meal is a feast with a piping hot "bowl of tea," made just right, to add a finishing touch.—New York Post.

A Waterways Commission.

St. John, Dec. 15.—A. P. Barnhill, one of the best known lawyers in New Brunswick, and John Keefe, a prominent merchant, have been named by the Federal Government to represent Canada on an international commission, which will deal with the matters of obstructions on the St. John River. Their counsel will be Hon. H. A. McKeown, lately Attorney-General, and Hon. W. P. Jones, formerly solicitor-General of New Brunswick.

Hurrah For Eve!

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCullough of Evanston, the only woman justice of the peace in the United States, in a woman suffrage address Sunday denounced Adam as a loafer, painted Eve as the mother of all arts and science and declared that the history of the human race showed that woman was the originator of most of the good things of the world for which man now takes credit.

Women Evades Trial.

Belleville, Dec. 15.—The County Court broke up abruptly yesterday morning. Mrs. Annie J. Day, charged with aiding and abetting Wm. Day, her husband, did not appear, and the announcement was made that she had disappeared some days ago. Her bail, furnished by her father, Hubbard Perry, a wealthy farmer, was estreated. The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty against Fox.

King at Buckingham.

London, Dec. 15.—King Edward arrived yesterday in London, greatly improved in health. He held an investiture at Buckingham Palace, during which he walked briskly about the rooms, and conversed freely and animatedly with those present.

Upon the advice of his physician, the King has given up his visit to Lord Burton in Derbyshire, because of the inclement weather, and returns to Brighton to-day.

SPORTING NEWS

BULLETINS HERE TO-NIGHT OF DORANDO-LONGBOAT RACE

One of the most important athletic events of the age will be held to-night at Madison Square Gardens, New York, when Pietro Dorando, champion of Italy, and Tom Longboat, considered the ablest distance man in America, will meet in a race that will be exactly the same distance as the celebrated Marathon run at the Olympic games in England.

A great deal of Dorando money is being placed in New York. This is due in a large measure to the Italians of the metropolis and surrounding parts heavily backing their fellow-countryman. From the standpoint of the Italians in America the race is the most important athletic affair in history, and the sons of Italy are greatly excited over it. In sporting centres and in the more remote places also in Canada it is attracting great interest. Continental sportsmen are also displaying a lively interest in the race.

The starting gun will be fired by Floyd McFarlane, the American bicycle racer, at nine o'clock.

Bulletins of the result at the end of every five miles will be received at the Oriental up to fifteen miles and after that distance for every mile.

MAHMOUT WON DECISIVE BOUT FROM FRED BEELL

Before 1500 people Yussif Mahmout defeated Fred Beel, the rival of Gotch, in two straight falls in 28 minutes and 38 minutes, securing each on a scissors hold with which he is an adept.

The big Turk gave a spectacular exhibition of catch as catch can wrestling and was clearly superior to Beel, although his lighter and lightning fast opponent made a very clever resistance. The bout was an exciting one to witness and the big audience was on its feet most of the time.

Mahmout is the hero of the hour in Chicago and the fans in the Windy City are eagerly anticipating this proposed match with Frank Gotch. From the way he triumphed over Yankee Rogers and Tom Jenkins it is generally thought that the champion would be kept extraordinarily busy to secure a victory over the strong and clever Turk.

Mahmout's style of wrestling is quite original to a great extent. He is very quick, always on the aggressive and seems to have an unlimited amount of endurance. He is regarded as one of the greatest catch as catch can wrestlers that ever battled on a mat.

TURF CLUB MATINEE WILL BE HELD CHRISTMAS DAY

The date of the matinee of the Peterborough Turf Club at the Driving Park has been changed from December 24th to December 25th. The officers of the Turf Club decided Christmas day would be the better one of the two.

An added feature of the matinee will be a three-cornered stallion race between Prince Hal, Bourbon Brook and Queen's Baron. A side wager of $25 will be raced for.

THE TWO CLASSES.

Class B—(1-2 mile heats, 3 in 5) Black Prince, Baby Teeth, Herkland, Teddy Keswick, Mac Brino, Harry Mack, Black Cloud, Lady Black, Lulu Chimes, Queen Bourbon, Guy Wilkes, Miss Keswick, Bay Prince, Farmer Boy, Lou Keswick, Brown Gyp, (Jim Dandy).

Class A—(mile heats 3 in 5) Harry Direct, Lady Gothard, Holland Boy, Billy C., Black Prince, Patterson, Muriel Wilkes Grey Guy, Queen's Baron (Harry K., Adolph.

B.A.C. TOOK TWO OUT OF THREE FROM THE GRAYS

The Grays broke their hoodoo last night in the ten pin series at the Y.M.C. winning their first game of the season when they finished five pins up on the BAC. in the second contest of their league fixture. They lost the first and last games only after the stoutest kind of an argument. In fact, the work of both teams was of surprisingly high order and strengthens the belief that when a few more games are played the best of them will have to extend themselves to the limit to beat the second division teams. Both teams were over the four hundred mark in every game their scores comparing favorably with any that have been made since the league opened.

Bruce had top score for the evening but Fred McFadden was fighting for the honor all the time and finished only seven pins behind the leader, while Jack Sullivan was close up.

Tonight there will be a battle royal when the Belmonts and Bankers come together in the first game of a double header. The Belmonts feel that they should be at the top and they will realize their ambition by taking three straights, tonight. The Bankers can lose two and still remain in first place, but they are confident that they will not lose many.

In the second game the Iroquois and Frontenacs come together and this game should prove equally as interesting as its predecessor.

Last night's scores follow:

STRATHCONAS PROVE EASY

For Whitcroft's Team — Were Whitewashed by Score of 21-0

Edmonton, Dec. 11.—The Edmonton Stanley Cup Challenger team defeated Strathcona in the Thistle rink here to-night by the score of 21—0. The Edmonton men all showed up in good form and had very little strenuous opposition. Joe Hall was the chief goal getter. The Strathcona men were afraid of him, though he played a clean game. Pitrie was the chief goal getter, and McNamara and Whitcroft did good work. The team is very fast. It will play Strathcona again Tuesday and leaves for the East on Wednesday night.

BASKETBALL

The intermediate basketball team of the local Y.M.C.A. will hold their last practice this evening for the Peterborough game to be held there to-morrow evening. All players are requested to be present.

The practice put on them last week by Mr. Eaddie, was somewhat heavy, but the youngsters can certainly handle the pigskin through the heavy practice.—Lindsay Free Press.

A Practical Statesman.

Mr. "Lulu" Harcourt, who is now the proud possessor of a two-months-old son and heir, has been said to have two hobbies—gold-tipped cigarettes and ventilating the House of Commons. He is one of the famous quartette whose political success goes to prove that political heredity is no myth, sharing this honor with Mr. Austen Chamberlain, Mr. Winston Churchill, and Mr. Herbert Gladstone.

Mr. Harcourt is, above all, a practical Minister. The story is told how, on one occasion, he donned a suit of blue overalls, and crawled through a dirty manhole high up in the roof of St. Stephen's in order to see for himself the working of some particular portion of the ventilating apparatus of the House.

He is an enthusiastic breeder of retrievers and spaniels, and entered no fewer than thirteen dogs at the recent Kennel Club Show.

Fox In Hospital.

During August more than 1,400 "patients" received treatment at Our Dumb Friends' League's animal hospital, Pimlico, London, Eng., making a total since Jan. 1 of 9,195. There are now in the "wards" ten horses, seven donkeys, fifteen dogs, twenty cats, four birds, one fox, one monkey and one squirrel.

CRIMES FOR INSURANCE.

Quebec Supplies One of the Most Brutal In History.

If ever a volume were written revealing the real stories behind the most hideous murder cases on record, those crimes committed with the object of obtaining insurance money would afford the most terrible, yet fascinating, reading.

There was the case of Cordelia Viau, wife and murderess of Isadore Poirier, a scheming woman who lived in the Province of Quebec. Isadore Poirier was a contractor and builder in a small way. He married Cordelia Viau, the handsome, intelligent daughter of a farmer in the neighborhood of his home. They had no children. For some time they lived happily, but at length the woman showed aversion and contempt for her husband.

She was a masterful woman. Poirier, on the other hand, was a man of very common mould. His nature was not likely to make his wife admire or respect him, but he was too obstinate to yield to her domination. The woman turned her affection to a man named Sam Parslow, who was a carpenter working for her husband, and who was even less strong-minded than Poirier. The relations between the two soon became a scandal in the quiet village, not less so because the woman was the organist of the village church, while the carpenter was a member of the choir.

The husband went to California for a time, and while there was written to by the cure of his old parish, to either come home soon or order his wife to go out and join him. Poirier, like the simple-minded man he was, sent the priest's letter to his wife with some words expressive of his perfect confidence in her. Eventually, however, he resumed his old business at home, and the carpenter, who had temporarily left the village, was again re-employed by the trustful builder.

But the wreck of his home and the change of fortune on the part of his wife were too much even for a man of the character of Poirier. He took to drink to assist him in forgetting his sorrows. His wife, seizing the opportunity thus presented, made the fact of his drunkenness an excuse for her contempt and aversion. The real tragedy then commenced. Poirier's life was insured for $2,000 by his wife, who, in taking out the policy, had it made clear to her that the money would be paid at her husband's death, even though that death were the result of accident or wilful murder. The unfortunate husband's will was made, naming madame as the sole beneficiary, and from that time Poirier was doomed.

One Sunday evening the husband, who had been drinking, was left at home while his wife and Parslow were at their places in church, assisting in carrying on the services. After vespers Parslow drove off to Poirier's and went into the house. The woman was seen to come out of the house and drive away by herself. Next morning the alarm was raised by the wife, who declared that she had not been able to get into her own house.

When the place was broken into the body of Poirier was discovered with all the evidence about it of a life and death struggle with his murderer, and bearing six knife wounds, three of them so grievous that any one would have caused death. Parslow and the woman were arrested and placed in separate cells, each fearful what the other would say, and each making an effort to exculpate himself or herself, thereby incriminating the other. It transpired that, although Parslow actually committed the murder, it needed the presence of the woman and her determined will to nerve the poor wretch to strike the fatal blow.

Surveyor and Bear.

A few scratches scarcely healed are the souvenirs J. M. Bates carries of his adventures with a grizzly bear recently in the Yukon.

Mr. Bates was an assistant of Mr Craig of the Interior Department at Ottawa, who had charge of a Canadian survey party engaged all the season in locating a portion of the international boundary line. While descending the Glacier at the head of the valley, Bates jumped across a crevice, heard a growl and was startled for a moment to see a huge grizzly looking down at him from an ice hummock fifty feet above.

He threw away his fifty pound pack and instruments as he made a dash down the steep mountain. The bear scrambled after him and for several minutes the chase proved lively. On reaching a steeper descent, Mr. Bates slid, uncertain as to whether he would finally fall into a canyon. Down, down for hundreds of feet, he rolled, with the fierce animal on his trail. Almost stunned he landed in a snow bank that broke the steep descent. Before he could recover his breath, however, the grizzly was upon him. Ten feet separated him from a horrible fate. Bates started to pump lead from his automatic revolver. Five shots did he fire before the animal, after mauling him, was killed.

A Boundary Question.

Charles J. R. Bethune, barrister, of Ottawa, has been in Fredericton, N.B., recently getting information for the Dominion Government regarding the boundary dispute between Canada and the United States. In 1892 the boundary along the Maine and New Brunswick border was all agreed to, with the exception of a strip of about eight or nine miles on the St. Croix river, including Mark's Island, consisting of two or three acres. This land is not important for its value to either country, except in the matter of fishing rights. The land was granted as a British possession years ago.

Law of the Wilds.

Along the main trails in Alaska in the winter, cabins are occasionally encountered in which there is no occupant, and on entering the traveler may wrap himself in the blankets which are found on the bunks and light the fire to keep himself warm. The only obligation that is placed upon him as a reward for the hospitality of some unknown benefactor is that he shall leave dry wood for the next prospector.

Middlesex county council presented Warden Graham with a gold watch and chain.

INDIGNITIES TO PARLIAMENT.

Recent Suffragette Episode Not the First Intrusion In History.

Mrs. Travers Symons's recent escapade in the British House of Commons, has beaten all previous records, but there have been many incidents classed, according to May's "Parliamentary Practice," as "indignities offered to the character or proceedings of Parliament." Among such is the case, recorded by Stow, in his Survey, of "one Robinson, a lewd fellow, and a skinner," who "had the confidence to sit in the House all day, though no member." Robinson, who was guilty of this intrusion in 1584, remained for some little time in the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms, "and so, it seems, was dismissed." Nearly three centuries later two strangers were discovered in the division lobby while a division was in progress. They, however, unlike Robinson and Mrs. Travers Symons, seem to have been deprived of their little niche of immortality, and were merely hustled quietly out without any notoriety at all. On another occasion a stranger deluged the House with pamphlets, but the Sergeant merely had him removed by a constable and then set free. Quite recently Mr. Joseph Andrews, elected for the Barkston Ash division of Yorkshire during the declining days of Mr. Balfour's Ministry, had the misfortune to be defeated at the general election that followed before he was able to take his seat. Determined, however to taste the joy of privileges that had been so near to him, he took possession of a seat on the assembling of a new Parliament. This "stranger," however, left without any intervention on the part of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

The Arrested British M.P.

Mr. Will Thorne, the Socialist M.P. of the British Parliament, who has been remanded on a charge of having incited the unemployed to rush the bakers' shops, is a man of giant build and splendid physique. His parents were brickmakers, both of them working in the brick yards, though their net earnings only amounted to a few shillings a week. The future M.P. never had a days schooling in his life, for he was sent to work quite early, and for many years was familiar with the keenest hardships of poverty. He educated himself entirely by night study, amongst other things teaching himself to write and read. It must be admitted that he is one of the hardest workers in Parliament, for he leaves home at half-past eight in the morning, and is seldom or never within his house again till one o'clock the morning following. He takes no exercise whatever except that provided for him in going to and from his work. As a speaker he is fluent, and when, as he terms it, he has "his eye in," he hurls out his words like shots from a maxim with a telling power not often found in one who has risen from such a humble position.

Nero as an Art Lover.

One fact redeems to a certain extent the memory of an emperor whose name is held in abhorrence by young students of history. The fact is that, whenever excavations have been made in grounds known to have belonged to Nero, some genuine work of a Greek master has been sure to come to light. In other words, the only chance we have left of discovering lost masterpieces is to follow in the footsteps of Nero and search whatever building or site is known to have been inhabited by him—whether the golden house at Rome or the hunting box at Sublaqueum or the sea cottage at Antium.

Born in the last named place on Dec. 15, A. D. 37, he seems to have been possessed of a double nature, one half of which was kind, generous, poetic, artistic, musical, while the other was unspeakably depraved. Nothing could show better this contrast in his personality than a comparison between two portrait busts, still extant, the first taken soon after his accession to the throne, while still guiltless of dissipation, the other after a few years of shocking decadence and depravity. The account given by Suetonius of the first period of his career is quite charming. The youth appears to have been devoted, body and soul, to sport and art rather than to the ruling of the empire. —Rodolfo Lanciani in Putnam's and the Reader.

The Road to Success.

John G. Johnson, Philadelphia's famous lawyer, was talking in the smoking room of a liner about work.

"In my youth," said Mr. Johnson, "I was ambitious—ambitious in an aimless and desultory way. In early youth, of course, one understands neither life nor oneself.

"An aged millionaire questioned me one day good humoredly.

"'You are ambitious?' he said.

"'I am,' I agreed.

"'Why,' said the millionaire, 'do you want to rise?'

"'So that I can do as I like,' I answered.

"The millionaire smiled and shook his head.

"'Ah, my boy,' he said, 'it is only when we do as we don't like that we succeed.'"—New York Times.

New Bells Blessed.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—The blessing of two bells in St. Patrick's Church yesterday constituted a very interesting function. La Charlotte, a bell weighing 2,260 pounds, cast in Whitechapel in 1774, for Notre Dame de Montreal, and removed to St. Patrick's in 1840, broken and recast and now to be replaced in the belfry, was blessed amid appropriate ceremonies. Then a second bell, the Holy Name, weighing 1,096 pounds, was also dedicated in the evening. Bishop Casey of St. John, N.B., and Dr. D. J. O'Sullivan of Vermont were the two chief figures at the ceremony.

CORNS CURED IN 24 HOURS

GRAND TRUNK SURVEYING NEW GRAIN LINE TO LAKE PORTS

Survey Now Being Made of Route Picked Out to Port Hope—Will Avoid the High Grades.

The Lindsay Free Press says:—A gentleman well acquainted with railway matters gave a Free Press reporter some interesting and semi-official information to-day.

To shorten and make the grain traffic more profitable the local management of the Grand Trunk Railway System find it necessary to build a new line to the Ontario lake ports, such as Port Hope and Cobourg, the G.T.R. grain centres.

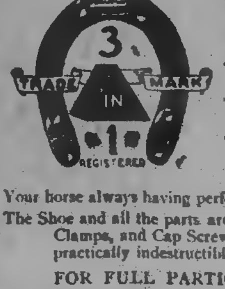
For the past few months quiet work of the surveyors has been constantly going on, and at last they have struck a fine piece of land for track building, as far as Reaboro Junction, it being quite level and heavy land.

The surveyors have run their lines from above the round-house, across the flat land lying there towards the House of Refuge, then again eastward towards the brick yards, then across country to Reaboro.

By taking this what one might call a roundabout way, the company has escaped the many steep and dangerous grades which the east-bound trains encounter, and have found that although the track is long and somewhat zig-zag, it will pay much better by escaping the before mentioned grades.

The local branch of the company has been greatly rushed in the grain seasons of the year, there being large and heavy trains bound for the east from the Georgian Bay and Lake Simcoe ports, such as Orillia, Barrie and Allandale, along Lake Simcoe, and Midland and Collingwood, on Georgian Bay. These trains have to come through the local branch.

From the town to Lorneville, to escape the grades which had been so costly to the company in the past years, the company found it necessary to build a large line west of the town. The new line, although short, only going as far as Lorneville Junction, has greatly paid the company, and from this the company officials has found it necessary to continue the run to Port Hope and Cobourg in the near route mentioned.



A FEW ADVANTAGES OF THE DIAMOND CALK HORSE SHOE

It saves time—it saves money—it saves your horse.

The Calk being adjustable, the shoe has not got to be removed to be re-sharpened.

The Calk being made of case hardened steel and being triangular, having three sharp edges, it has been tested out to more than equal nine ordinary re-sharpened shoes.

The Shoe and all the parts are made of the best material. The Fittings, that is the Calks, Clamps, and Cap Screws, are renewable at a very small cost, while the Shoe itself is practically indestructible.

REMARKABLY GOOD ADDRESSES AT THE EVENING MEETING

Mrs. Campbell and Mr. Kydd Speakers at Ennismore—Under Auspices of West Peterboro Farmers' Institute

The people of Ennismore evidently realize the importance of the annual meetings of instruction held under the auspices of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute. Last night 450 persons were in attendance at the town hall to hear the addresses of Mr. W. F. Kydd, of Simcoe, on "Drop Stitches" and of Mrs. Colin Campbell, of Windsor, on "The Housekeeper; her Importance to the state," along with the remarks of other speakers whose names were not on the programme. Both speakers handled their subjects in a very intelligent and interesting manner, and their addresses besides being of great value on account of the many rational points and suggestions brought out, were most entertainingly and pleasingly expressed. It is doubtful if two more acceptable speakers than Mrs. Campbell and Mr. Kydd ever addressed an Institute meeting in that district. Both have a perfectly clear understanding of the matters they deal with, and not only do they impart invaluable advice, but are pleasing and attractive in their delivery.

Mr. D Hughes Charles was another and judging from the enthusiastic greeting he always gets from Ennismore audiences is very popular in that township. While his speech was impromptu it was an excellent one, and contained a great deal of splendid information, much of which was endorsed by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, priest of Ennismore, who approved heartily of the addresses and spoke in high terms of the object of the Farmers' Institute and the commendable and enlightening work it was accomplishing.

Mr. J N Telford, President of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute, was in the chair and presided in his usual happy manner. Mr. Wm. Collins, the progressive secretary, also occupied a place on the platform.

Mr. Telford welcomed the large audience and assured them of the pleasure he had in renewing acquaintances. He introduced Mr. Kydd as the first speaker of the evening.

DROP STITCHES.

Mr. Kydd's "Drop Stitches" was given in an original and pithy way and the address was reasonable and convincing. As the programme was to be a long one, he was somewhat brief but during the comparatively short space he spoke, he said a great deal and told of many drop stitches in the farmer's web of management.

Among other drop stitches Mr. Kydd stated that a farmer who was not a member of the Farmers' Institute had, in his opinion, a drop stitch in his web of management. He spoke of the small membership fee of 25 cents and the big supply of useful Government books that was given to every member. In this literature there might often be expositions of the very questions on which a member might want enlightenment.

ACCOUNTS SHOULD BE KEPT.

The next drop stitch taken up was the habit of farmers not keeping accounts. The farmer should keep accounts in just as business-like a way as merchants and other business men. It is most interesting and besides the man keeping it knows exactly where he stands and can thus regulate his expenditures.

The main thing about a farm was to have nothing on it that didn't give a profit. If the speaker were asked what was the most necessary thing to do away with in agricultural life, he would say cows. From recent statistics obtained from the United States it was shown that one-third paid their way, one-third were kept without profit and on the other third there was a profit made. It has been said that the average cow of Ontario gave 3,000 pounds of milk a year. A cow giving only this amount of milk annually was kept at a loss.

LEAVING THE FARM.

We are all the time reading and hearing about the boys and girls leaving the farm. Was it the fathers' or boys' fault that the boys were leaving the farm? It was probably the fault of both, but more particularly the fathers as they should know better.

Mr. Kydd related a couple of amusing anecdotes to bear out his contention in this latter respect. He emphatically suggested that the farmer did not give his son enough liberty of thought and action.

The boys were not given enough independence, and under the restrictions could not be blamed for wanting to leave the farm.

On the other hand the boys were often too anxious to leave the farm for the opera houses, big stores and glitter of the city. The great expense of living in the city was explained and that it was a difficult thing to get a reasonably good salary there. On the farm one was sure of a pretty good living, sure of lots of clothing and plenty to eat and many young men in the big cities would get little this winter that was not provided by charity.

LACK OF ENTHUSIASM.

There was a great lack of enthusiasm among farmers. They were not proud enough of their professions and farming was indeed a profession. In this age of keen competition it took an able man to be a successful farmer. There was the construction of great buildings and of ocean greyhounds. This was nothing compared with the work of farmers in raising horses, cattle, sheep and other live stock. This was one matter over which farmers had no absolute control. The farmer who had been successful in raising fine live stock, developing superior seeds and of making these accomplishments in the era of agriculture, was accomplishing something greater than the designers of the beautiful buildings and fast boats.

The young men on the farm and the young girls should be able to go to the city—the young man in his fine clothes, and the young lady in her silk dress. Until they could do this there was something radically wrong with the farmers of Canada.

MRS. COLIN CAMPBELL

Mrs Colin Campbell was the next speaker, and her topic was "The Householder." The speaker had heard women boast of their daughters never having been in the kitchen. How, under such conditions, could the important work of homemaking attain to the importance to which it was entitled.

At schools girls who really had an innate love of housekeeping and home-making, were given instruction which tend to draw them away from the work of housekeeping, rather than to it.

IMPORTANCE OF DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

Domestic Science is organized knowledge of all that pertains to the home. And this is the age of the home.

One subject in Domestic Science was the process of ventilation. We might live for days without food, but we couldn't live for five minutes without air. It is particularly necessary that we have an abundance of air in our bedrooms, where we spend one-third of our lives.

VENTILATION.

Some imagine that night air is injurious to the health, while in reality it was as fine as that of the day. Some people had an idea that cold air alone is pure air. But that is not the case, for cold air may be just as impure as hot air. Our houses should be abundantly supplied with pure air.

It must be remembered that any causes of foul air must not be tolerated for a moment. A vase of decayed flowers, a decayed cabbage in the cellar, were sources of impurities. Medical men tell us that the prevalence of consumption was due to lack of sanitary precautions in the past. Well water, too, should be pure. A physician who examined some wells in New York State, said ninety per cent. of the wells in the state were impure owing to the fact that they were improperly covered. And the speaker said, wells on the farm were too often located between the house and the barnyard, thus allowing liquid impurities to percolate through.

Mrs. Campbell spoke strongly in favour of domestic science and hoped that many from the Ennismore district would attend some of the fine schools of Domestic Science in Toronto.

It was a well known fact that the simplest and easiest prepared food was the most nutritious. Women waste their energy in preparing elaborate meals, and become so tired that they are not able to join in the bright conversation which should be a feature of all meals in the household.

In the matter of dress, simplicity should prevail, and would save tired eyes and tired fingers.

VALUE OF RECREATION.

The speaker thought that women should be taught to rest. Recreation was necessary. Amid much laughter she stated that this advice was not applicable to the men.

The attendance of women at Woman's Institute monthly meetings was a means of providing a change and recreation.

To Be Continued.

ORGANIZING TRACK AND FIELD CLUB AT Y. M. C. A.

Preliminary Arrangements Made at Meeting Last Night—Another Meeting Called for Thursday Night.

Last night a very enthusiastic meeting was held in the YMCA for the purpose of forming a track and field club.

Mr C. E. Sisson acted as chairman and made a few remarks on the necessity of such a club. He pointed out that in the past very little has been done to promote athletics in this city, and very little encouragement was given to men who showed signs of developing into good athletes. He also said there was plenty of material to work on, and there was no reason why Peterborough YMCA could not produce some champions on the track and field. Some of the best athletes of the city are members of the YMCA, as was shown by the recent Harriers' meet and the Examiner road race, and no doubt a strong club could be formed.

It was unanimously decided to form a club in the interests of athletics, and the club would be called the Y.M.CA. Track and Field Club.

On account of the short notice that was given of the meeting for last night, it was decided that another meeting would be held on Thursday evening of this week at 7.30 p.m. for the election of officers for the year.

The physical committee wish it understood that every member of the YMCA. who is interested in athletics is cordially invited to attend the organization meeting on Thursday, and help by their presence and interest to foster this particular branch of sport.

VOL. LVII., No. 141. | PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1908 | TEN CENTS PER WEEK

C. N. R. IS SPREADING OUT BIG EXPANSION EXPECTED

Another Line Has Been Purchased.

First Step Towards Securing the Wisconsin Central---Deal Closed at Toronto.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 16.—The sale on Monday of the Duluth, Rainy River, and Winnipeg Railway to the Canadian Northern, the deal being closed at Toronto, is believed to be the first step toward the acquisition of the Wisconsin Central Railway by the Canadian Northern.

For the last several months it has been generally reported in Milwaukee, where the Wisconsin Central had its home until lately, that the Wisconsin road was wanted by two railroads and also by the Steel Trust. The Canadian Pacific was said to be after the road, but to have changed its plans to provide for the taking over of the Chicago Great Western. The Canadian Northern, the rival road, which frequently acts through Fernald & Co. of Boston, who swung the purchase of the Wisconsin Central to the Bradford interests of Cincinnati, was said to be negotiating for control of the trans-Wisconsin.

The Chicago terminal contract of the Wisconsin Central was said to be one of the objects of the Canadian lines, which needed a Chicago entrance to feed their northwestern lines. The Canadian Northern report, however, was discredited by the fact that the Canadian road had no inlet to Duluth. The purchase of the Duluth-Winnipeg road, however, gives the Canadian Northern connection with the Wisconsin Central at Duluth and by the purchase of the Wisconsin almost an air line to Chicago.

George J. Gould, at the last Wisconsin Central meeting, became a director of the line, and it is said here, though without definite knowledge, that in him the men controlling the Canadian Northern have already a friend on the Wisconsin Central directorate. The purchase of the Wisconsin Central by the Canadian Northern, however, is rather a Wall Street deal than an outright purchase.

SAYS THAT COAL WON'T LAST LONG

New York, Dec. 16.—That the entire coal supply of the Pennsylvania coal fields will be exhausted in 84 years was a prediction yesterday by Prof. William Griffith, a mining expert of Scranton, Pa., at the hearing of the Government suit against the anthracite coal-carrying roads for allegel illegal combination in restraint of trade.

Prof. Griffith estimated the total available supply of anthracite for shipment in 1908 at 2,229,201,659 tons, and said that at the present rate of consumption the supply would be used up in 1992.

NORWOOD PIONEER

Death of Wm. H. Stephenson, One of the Leading Citizens of East Peterboro'

Special to the Review.

Norwood, December 15— Another of Norwood's pioneer residents, has passed over to the great majority in the person of Mr Wm H. Stephenson. Born in Ireland 69 years ago, he came to Norwood at the age of fifteen with his brother the late James Setphenson of Asphodel.

He attended the first class in the Norwood High School. After completing his education he entered the employ of the late James Foley, general merchant and afterwards worked as clerk in the store of the late Thos. Buck. He subsequently entered business on his own account and at one time owned considerable property in the business portion of the village. His store was situated where Mr J. L Squire's store now is. He continued in business until only a short time before his demise.

He wast wice married. His first wife was Miss Rebecca Harper, sister of Mr. James Harper of Norwood, who died over twenty years ago. His second wife Miss Lucy Knapp survives him. Two sons and three daughters by his first wife survive him.

The late Mr Stephenson always took a lively interest in the affairs of the village and also in this adopted country. In politics he was a lifelong Conservative. He contested the East riding of Peterborough unsuccessfully against the late Thos. Blezard.

He was reeve of the village for several years and for over twenty years he was a member of the Norwood Board of Education. He also was clerk of the township of Asphodel for severa. years.

The funeral, under Masonic auspices, will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

Meeting To-night

The regular meeting of Peterborough Tent No. 59, KOTM, will be held tonight in the Foresters' hall, George street. The election of officers will take place.

HAINS JURY IS COMPLETED

Two Days Work on Selecting Talesmen at Flushing Trial.

Flushing, N.Y., Dec. 16.—Completion of a jury to try Thornton J. Hains as a principal in the killing of William E. Annis by Capt. Peter Hains, at the Bayside Yacht Club last summer, was effected yesterday and to-day the state will present its case. Six jurors were chosen Monday, the 12th juror taking his seat shortly before six o'clock last night, when adjournment was taken until to-day.

A feature of the trial will be a tank of water and a model float and catboat in miniature replica of the scene of the shooting, which will be placed on a table in front of the witness stand and iron manikens, representing the principals in the affair, will be moved about in the marine theatre to illustrate actions and positions taken in the tragedy by Hains and the witnesses.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The body of Chief of Police Biggy of San Francisco, drowned Nov. 30, was found yesterday.

The city of Kingston will open a quarry to provide work for the unemployed during the winter.

A water tank for 100,000 gallons on the roof of the I.C.R. roundhouse at St. John, N.B., collapsed on Sunday night.

Scotland Yard knows nothing of A. W. Malone, chief of police at Simcoe, who claims to have had service with the Metropolitan Police, London.

The Croziers, father and son, were taken to Toronto yesterday, the son going to the Central Prison and the father continuing east to Kingston. Their parting was most pitiful.

Frontenac County may now go ahead with its good roads scheme. The Government has approved the plans for 104 miles, to cost $160,000, of which the Government pays one-third.

EXTRA HANDS AT THE POST OFFICE

Two Men Were Put on To-day---Carriers Carry Big Loads

The Christmas rush has started at the post office. The postmen's burdens are becoming heavier and the post office is a scene of unusual activity.

Two extra men were put on at the post office today, Messrs Frank O'Connor and James O'Brien. They will assist in handling the mails until the rush is over.

Some of the carriers think that their force should be augmented while the rush is on.

HIGHLY HONORED BY OFFICERS OF THE 57TH REGIMENT, P. R.

Lt. Col. Miller Retiring Officer in Command Banquetted and Presented With a Gold Watch at the Mess Rooms Last Night—Great Appreciation of a Long and Splendid Service.

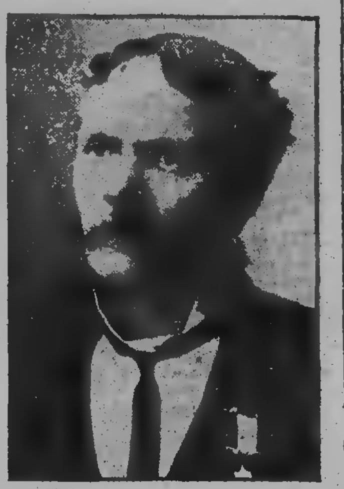
It is only fitting, in view of his long and efficient service with the 57th Regimenttal Rangers, that the retiring officer in command, Lieut.-Col. Miller, should be so highly honored as he was last night by his brother officers of the regiment. Last night at the officers' mess at the drill hall he was presented with a beautiful gold watch as a tangible expression of affection and appreciation, and was referred to in the highest terms by the numerous speakers of the evening. It is quite probable that the guest of honor was not aware of the depth of the sincere regret occasioned by his retirement from active command, until he listened to the heartfelt expressions last night of his fellow-officers, although he must have learned by their attitude towards him and their unvarying respect for him that they looked to him with esteem and confidence.

Surgeon-Major Halliday acted as toastmaster at the banquet, and the presentation was made by Major A. Stevenson. After the presentation had been made Col. Miller bespoke his gratitude in a splendidly expressed speech, and said he would always hold dear his association with the 57th regiment and would in future attend its drills as in the past and take an active interest in the welfare of the regiment.

During the evening the occasion was brightened by songs, recitations and anecdotes told in humorous vein.

The first toast was the one to the King and was honored in the hearty manner one would expect from a gathering in which the military spirit was so strong.

"Our Guest," the important toast of the evening, was very happily proposed by Col. Stevenson.



LIEUT.-COL. MILLER.

OUR GUEST.

For over a year, Col. Stevenson said, the presentation and banquet to Col. Miller had been delayed, because the holding of it looked too much like marking the severing of Col. Miller's connection with the regiment. The officers didn't want Col. Miller to separate himself from the regiment, but desired his presence on every mess night. Col. Miller's worth was thoroughly appreciated, and he had many fine characteristics other than his qualities as a military man. All drank the health of the guest, and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and "See Him Smiling." During the course of his remarks Col. Stevenson made the presentation.

COL. MILLER'S RESPONDS.

Col. Miller thanked his brother officers and said that as long as he lived he wanted to see the 57th drill. He was proud of the militia force of Canada and proud of the 57th regiment and the loyalty it shown The Col. said he couldn't branch out into a speech so great were his overwhelming feelings. During the three years he had commanded the regiment he had received splendid support from his fellow officers. They had shown themselves to be officers and gentlemen. He had taken a great interest in the service all the time he had been in it since 1861. Was there anything that drew men together clos-

NO MEETING OF CANADIAN CLUB WILL BE HELD UNTIL NEW YEAR

There will be no meeting of the Canadian Club this month, but the committee will endeavor to have a speaker for one early in January. Mr. E. L. Goodwill, the secretary of the club, has been in communication with several speakers but none were able to give an evening in December.

It was the intention to have a meeting this week but the idea had to be given up owing to the inability to secure a suitable man to address the Club.

EGGS WILL BE SCARCE IN PETERBORO' BEFORE LONG

Inquiry was made at the local market to-day as to the scarcity of eggs. While it was learned that the supply was limited, the egg famine that is being felt in some parts of Western Ontario has not threatened Peterborough as yet.

Last Saturday the extremely necessary household supply sold at from 27 to 30 cents per dozen. A well known farmer this morning in conversation with the Review, prophesied that before long eggs would likely advance to 35 cents.

The only reason attributed for the scarcity is that the eggs are not in the country.

SAID TO BE GOING IN AND OUT OF A QUARANTINED HOUSE

Residents of Ashburnham are complainin gabout the way in which inmates of a certaiin house that is under quarantine for scarlet fever are allowed to go in and out of the place as they please. It is said that members of the family go out among people and take no precaution to prevent the contagion from spreading. If such is the case the medical health officer should look into the matter.

EMMA BARRED AT SPOKANE

Could Not Secure a Hall to Expound Fiery Doctrines and Moved On.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 16.—Emma Goldman, recognized queen of the reds, who, with Ben. L. Reilman, self-styled "king of tramps," is making a tour of the world, could not obtain a hall, church or storeroom in Spokane to expounds the fiery doctrine, and left for Puget Sound.

Emma Over Boundary.

Vancouver, Dec. 16.—At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon federal immigration officials allowed Emma Goldman to cross the boundary line at Blaine, having first ascertained, however, that the American officials would take her back to Washington State at any time she wished to go.

PHONOGRAPH AS A WITNESS

Pittsburg, Dec. 16.—Through the testimony of a phonograph record, C. A. Rumstay was yesterday held for trial on a charge of assault and battery. The complaint was made by John E. Hinds on behalf of his wife.

Hinds declared that the screams of his wife were recorded on a blank record that had been placed in the machine to reproduce a piano solo which a lady friend of hers was playing.

The record was admitted as evidence. It is remarkably clear and the voices can be easily distinguished.

ONE OF THE FIRST MEMBERS OF OLD RIFLE COMPANY DEAD

Death of Mr. John Irwin, Caretaker of Post Office Occurred at 11 O'clock To-day—A Life-Long Resident of This City — Funeral on Friday.

The news of the death of Mr. John Irwin, one of the best known and most highly respected residents of Peterborough, came as a great shock to his numerous acquaintances. His demise was quite unexpected as he was up and around attending to his duties at the Post Office until last Friday when he caught a cold. It developed into pneumonia which was the cause of his death. He passed away at 11 o'clock this morning.

The deceased was seventy-four years of age and was practically all his life a resident of Peterborough. When only six weeks old he came with his parents from Ireland and settled in Peterborough. His wife predeceased him just seven months ago today.

For many years the late Mr Irwin was prominent in military affairs in this city, having been one of the first members of the old rifle company. On the formation of the 57th regiment he was Color Sergeant in the first company. He was afterwards made Sergeant Major.

At the opening of the Post Office in 1888 he was made caretaker and was occupying that position at the time of his death. He was widely known and highly esteemed by all who knew him.

Three sons and two daughters are left to mourn his loss. The sons are, Messrs. Fred, Robert and John of Peterborough and the daughters are Mrs James Lillico and Mrs Denick also residing here.

Three brothers, Messrs Wm of this city, Alex of Bobcaygeon, and Robt. of Sault Ste Marie and two sisters, Mrs James Purdy of Bobcaygeon, and Mrs Eyers, of Lindsay also survive him.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

HORSE SAT DOWN ON P. O. STEPS

A horse attached to a cutter, did a circus stunt in front of the post office this morning. He commenced backing up and landed in a sitting position on the steps. No damage was done, however.

A COSTLY MONTREAL FIRE AT BIRKS CO.'S BUILDING

Headquarters of Great Jewelry Firm.

One of Montreal's Finest Buildings--Six Girls and Baby Rescued With Difficulty.

Montreal, Dec. 16.—A disastrous fire broke out yesterday afternoon in the Birks' building at the corner of St. Catherine street and Phillips square, the estimated damage being in the vicinity of $100,000.

The building occupies a whole block in the heart of the uptown retail section, and is one of the largest and finest buildings in Montreal. Henry Birks & Sons, the well-known jewelers, occupied the ground floor, and the top story, while Notman, the photographers, occupy a portion of the building.

The fight with the flames was a spectacular one, six employes, all girls, having to be removed from the windows by the firemen, while the little baby of the janitor was carried through the dense smoke.

The fire started in Birks' mail order room and considerable damage was done to the stock by water and smoke.

The insurance, including the building, machinery, stock, etc., was over half a million dollars. This amount is insured in all the companies doing business all over the Dominion. The Royal Insurance Co. carries $50,000, which is the largest amount carried by any one company. The Queen carries $30,000 and the Phoenix of London $45,000. In fact the balance is spread over in amounts of from $5,000 to $40,000 amongst the London and Lancashire, the Northern Union, and Union Assurance Co., the North British Mercantile, the Liverpool, London and Globe, the British America, the Globe, the Alliance, the Phoenix of Brooklyn and the Guardian.

Mr. Notman, when seen last evening, estimates his loss at about $20,000, all of which is covered by insurance.

The history of the firm of H. Birks & Sons is the history of the last half century of Montreal's mercantile life. From a very small beginning the Messrs. Birks opened the present store, which is the finest in Canada and the largest jewelry establishment in America, the floor space being considerably in excess of the famous Tiffany store which is the pride of New York. It is 90 by 200 or 18,000 square feet in all.

The firm has branches in Ottawa, Winnipeg, Vancouver, the Montreal establishment employing 500 hands.

The tenants of the Birks' building were: W. Notman & Sons, Dr. J. M. Jack, Dr. A. D. Angus, the White Dental Manufacturing Co., Ernest A. Cleveland, Waring & Gillies, Limited; Drs. Hamilton and Mathewson, the Carter Crume Co., Limited; Miss E. Christie, dressmaker; J. C. Nichol, J. R. Ferguson, C. M. Morgan, dentist; J. B. Morrison, dentist; H. Ross Matews, dentist; Peter Brown, dentist; A. W. Robinson, civil engnieer; W. J. and A. E. Giles, dentists; Wm. Lamb, caretaker, and X. Stuts, tailor.

CARRIE IN THE COLD

Little Sympathy for Kansas Whirlwind in the City of Glasgow.

London, Dec. 16.—The English prohibitionists have decided not to associate themselves with Carrie Nation, ostensibly because she confines her action to saloons, while they aim at the whole drink traffic, from the manufacture downwards, but actually because they fear the risks her tactics involve.

Mrs. Carrie Nation arrived at Glasgow Monday to carry on her usual campaign against intemperance, cigarette smoking and other things of which she does not approve. She was greeted by 3,000 persons, most of them hostile, whose hooting made the cheers of her supporters inaudible.

Her first assault was on a hotel adjoining the railway station, where, hurrying to the bar, she accosted a barmaid with, "You're going to hell."

The barmaid's reply is not recorded.

As the crowd continued to increase and was evidently in a mischievous humor, Carrie went to her rooms at a temperance hotel and kept herself secluded from those she knew were not supporters of her antics. Her business was postponed until later.

THE KING IN CORDIAL MOOD

London, Dec. 16.—King Edward left here for Brighton yesterday, his appearance indicating that he had practically recovered from his recent attack of influenza. He will remain at the seaside resort until about Dec. 21 when he goes to Sandringham for the holidays. By that time he expects to have fully regained his health.

As he boarded the train yesterday, His Majesty chatted pleasantly with the railroad officials on the platform and cordially acknowledge the salutations of his fellow passengers.

His eye was bright, his step brisk, and he gave every indication of rapid convalescence.

THE LATEST CABLE AND TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Another Montreal Jewel Robbery.

Montreal, Dec. 16.—A robbery even more daring than that perpetrated opposite the central police station last Friday night, when $1,400 worth of diamonds were stolen, was pulled off last night when, right under the nose of a policeman standing at the busy corner of Craig and Bleury streets, three young fellows smashed the window of Cohen & Co. and made off with a pair of diamond ear-rings valued at $900.

One of the men was captured. The other two got away with the jewels.

Law Holds Toronto Men.

Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 16.—Thos. Oleson, one of the owners of the Canadian Packing Co. of Toronto, which has a branch in this city, known as the Huron Packing Co., was arrested here by immigration officers, charged with having brought eleven men here from Toronto to work in the local plant. He is charged with bringing contract labor into the country.

The local plant has been shut down for some time. The laborers are detained.

Earl Grey, Patron.

Montreal, Dec. 16.—Earl Grey notified the winter carnival committee last night that he would give his patronage to the winter carnival to be held in February, and would attend with his suite in person. This practically assures the success of the carnival. Half the necessary money has been subscribed. The event is to be the largest ever held in Canada.

Killed Felling Tree.

Clinton, Dec. 16.—While felling a tree Donald McKenzie, on the Lake Shore road, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon. The tree split and bounded back, killing him instantly. He was a married man, about 45 years of age, and has a family of three children.

Ontario Power Pipe Line.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 16.—The Ontario Power Co. is preparing plans for the construction of a new pipe line to increase its capacity of electric power by 65,000 horse-power. Work will be commenced early in the spring.

The work is made necessary to handle the contract with the Hydro-Electric Commission. The tunnel will be of steel, lined with concrete and be 30 feet in diameter and three-quarters of a million dollars. With the new line the company will be able to develop 180,000 horse-power.

Rockefeller's Huge Gift.

Cleveland, Dec. 16.—John D. Rockefeller says he is unable to understand why the newspapers are directing attention to his proposed establishment of a $50,000,000 fund for the education of orientals in the Far East.

"It will take years to obtain the necessary legislation to accomplish the ends attributed to me, and it is much too early to make a public announcement at this time," he said.

Jealous Republics.

Rio Janiero, Dec. 16.—The relations existing between Brazil and the Argentine are distinctly strained as a result of the jealousy over the alleged activities of each country in the matter of increasing its naval force.

The incident of the official telegrams said to have been intercepted and published by an ex-Cabinet Minister of the Argentine's adds to the ill-feeling, which shows no signs of decreasing.

France Buys Railways.

Montreal, Dec. 16.—Lt. Col. Frank Meighen, who has just returned from Europe, declares that state ownership of railways is fast becoming a reality in France, as the Government of the republic, believing in the policy of state-owned roads, is rapidly buying up all the railways in the country.

Russia's Oil Supply.

New York, Dec. 16.—Vice-President John D. Archbold, active head of the Standard Oil Co., testifying yesterday in the Government suit for the dissolution of that corporation, said that the supply of oil in this country was steadily decreasing, while it was steadily increasing in Russia.

Indian Team For Bisley.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—The secretary of the Dominion Rifle Association has a letter from India asking how much it cost Canada to send a team to Bisley. The Indian Government want to send a team from the various presidencies and states. The information is being forwarded.

To Drill For Oil at Welland.

Welland, Ont., Dec. 16.—The Provincial National Gas and Fuel Co. has paid $10,000 for a lease of 5,000 acres of marsh land south of here, and will prospect for oil and gas. They are preparing to drill a well to a depth of 3,300 feet.

Broker Mills Remanded.

Welland, Dec. 16.—John F. Mills, broker, of this place, arrested in Toronto Monday, charged with fraud, was remanded until the 21st inst., without any evidence being offered.

Temperance People Get Set-Back.

Winnipeg, Dec. 16.—So far as evident at midnight last night the local option campaign gives the temperance people a set back relatively three to two. Kildonan reverted to the "wets," the severity of the provisions permitting search for liquor undoubtedly influencing the electors.

Louise, the late Hon. Thos. Greenway's county, which retained local option through years of hard campaigning, has also gone over to the enemy, and in Winchester the result is open to doubt, but favoring the dispensers.

Bishop's Sermon Causes Trouble.

North Bay, Dec. 16.—French-Canadian members of the Church of St. Mary-on-the-Lake at North Bay, are declared indignant over remarks made by Bishop Scollard in the course of his sermon Sunday morning, when he rebuked several prominent French-Canadian members of the congregation and, it is alleged, made statements which, they declare, might have a tendency to injure their business. One man is said to contemplate action for $25,000 damages.

Cage the Dangerous Ones.

Kingston, Dec. 16.—The coroner's inquest, sitting to enquire into the death of Samuel Stevenson, the asylum keeper struck on the head with a hammer in the hands of Albert Benn, a patient, recommended that the Government should provide a suitable place for the care of patients with marked homicidal tendencies, and that in the meantime they should not be allowed to mingle with other clases of patients, as is now permitted.

Ik Marvel Dead.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 16.—Donald Grant Mitchell, 84 years old, the well-known author, who wrote under the nom de plume of "Ik Marvel," died at his home, "Marvel Wood," in Edgewood, a suburb of this city, last night. His illness dates to August last, when he suffered an attack of acute indigestion. At the bedside were seven of his children, including his daughter, Mrs. Walter Hart of Rye, New York.

Plea For Mining School.

Kingston, Dec. 16.—The School of Mining is to send a deputation to Toronto to ask the Government to add another building here for mining chemistry and minerology. The school has outgrown its present quarters.

Doctor Gets Life Sentence.

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 16.—Dr. Thos. Birdsong, slayer last week of Dr. A. B. Pitts, a prominent physician of Hazelhurst, yesterday entered a plea of guilty in accordance with an agreement between counsel and was given a life sentence in the penitentiary.

Petition In Bankruptcy.

New York, Dec. 16.—A petition in bankruptcy against Patrick J. Kieran, the missing president of the Fidelity Funding Co., was filed in the Federal Court here yesterday. The petition is based on three claims, aggregating about $3,500.

Fire at the Falls.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 16.—Fire yesterday morning did $1,000 damage to the house of Joshua Johnson, on Peer street. Mr. Johnson claims it was of incendiary origin.

Sixteen Hunters Killed.

Augusta, Me., Dec. 16.—Sixteen accidental deaths may fairly be charged to the big game hunting season in Maine, which closed last night.

Cost of Making Steel.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 16.—A large fund of information regarding the cost of making steel was given the House ways and means committee yesterday by Charles M. Schwab of New York. He indicated that the present cost of manufactured pig iron is $14 a ton, as compared with $8 a ton in 1899; while the cost of steel rails to-day is $21.50 a ton, as compared with $12 a ton nine years ago.

Egg Famine In London.

London, Ont., Dec. 16.—Farmers on the local market yesterday morning asked 40 cents a dozen for eggs, and offered but a limited supply at that. This is the highest price that has ever been asked for eggs in the history of the city.

THE C. T'S REFUSAL

The refusal of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association to admit women to membership is supposed to be founded upon a difficulty with regard to the fraternal benefits of the Association. But the information vouchsafed on that point was not copious to say the least. Had the travellers not wished to admit women they could have pointed out to them the proper course for them to adopt in arriving at the same and end object as that attained by themselves. At this moment a blunt unexplained refusal sounds and looks bad. It will be ascribed to fear of competition. Women are waking up to what they consider their rights and liberties and unless it can be fairly demonstrated that they have no such rights and liberties the way must not be blocked to them by specious explanations or doubtful promises. Unless we are making a very erroneous forecast the coming year will develop rapidly in the direction of the establishment of woman's personal equality with a man before not only the law of the land, but also before the law of custom, the interpretation put upon Scripture and generally.

FAITH AND WORKS

In teaching the human mind to grapple with the problems of science and philosophy the basic principles of both are made the first, last and sole consideration. To generalise correctly is the aim of thought. The idea of calling aloud to listening humanity for money as if money was a part of philosophy or science or of the teachings of either would produce laughter in a college lecture-room. It would be a self-contradiction. So it is we take it, with religion. Christianity or the Gospel of Christ is the highest form of what? Realism? Certainly not, but of Idealism. The Heaven of Christ is "a house not made with hands." The temple of the Most High is not that of money-changers. The taunt of the realist that the idealized Christian could not live very long on his idealism is simply to say that the sacrifice of Christ upon the cross was as a business transaction, below par. It was, however, a sacrifice for an Idea. Hence when we hear of men and women making gifts and sacrifices in a lowly spirit, laying as it were their earthly treasures at the foot of a cross, we see in them a true reflection of the Divine IDEA. The Christ upon the Cross raised to the loftiest pinnacle of our religious imagination and sane conception is what saves and raises men and women and makes of them occasionally, martyrs and saints. Many so-called Christians have helped to brutalise Christianity by their determination to have a voice in the making of Heaven. Heaven is not the seat of a democratic form of government. There is but One Will there. They are not trying to save up to God, but are trying to make Him live down to them.

Hedonism is allied to, but is not identical with Christianity since while Christ is beautiful He is beautiful because He is good. So ought it to be with us. Once more we venture to say that the road to Heaven and Heavenly conceptions lies not through the stomach or the pocket. Some of our best men and holiest women supply us with examples of what we mean. They are not the product of the meeting-house or the soup-kitchen and yet who bring us more of earthly joy and benefit? What is it that above all distinguishes them? We have heard recently of some splendid gifts made in silence and in the true spirit. At this season they help us poor mortals to realize the true meaning of a still greater gift. The glory of the terrestrial is one thing and the glory of the celestial another, so we are told. Let us remember it.

The apartments of Speaker Sutherland of the Saskatchewan Legislature were robbed.

EDITORIAL NOTES

In response to further inquiries we repeat that the Returning Officer for West Peterborough returned Mr. Stratton as elected by 333 majority.

Mr. Hughes-Charles is reported to have said at a farmers' institute meeting that a lawyer has an unsavory reputation. Wait until the lawyer gets after the banker.

The banquet tendered last evening at the Armouries to Lt.-Col. J. Wesley Miller, late commanding officer of the 57th Regiment, was in every way a fitting testimony to the long and meritorious record and high character of the guest of the evening.

An American suffragette has called Adam a loafer. That is all very well but both Adam and Eve were told to "move on." The opinion seems to be gaining ground that women have the idea that they "can knock the stuffin'" out of men, in what Artemus Ward's Joe Stackpole called a "fair stand-up fight." Is this a struggle for Equality or Supremacy?

INVALUABLE INFORMATION FOR BREEDERS OF HORSES

Mr. F. W. Kydd's Address at Farmers Institute Meeting at Ennismore—Thoroughly Practical and Very Clearly Expressed—A Talk of Real Worth.

Mr. W. F. Kydd, of Simcoe, has an address which is modestly styled, "Am I raising the most profitable horse," and the lucid and explanatory way in which he treats the subject is a revelation. He spoke on it at the afternoon meeting of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute at Ennismore on Wednesday and even to the layman let alone the farmers among whom the horse has a place of great importance his talk was absorbing and his explanations full and clear. Those who heard Mr. Kydd, listened to a practical masterpiece for what he said was of real worth and the information imparted was of unmistakeable value. It was generally voted by Mr. Kydd's auditors that the address was the ablest they had ever heard on the subject discussed. While some of the principal points are expressed below to fully appreciate the address, one would have to hear as given by Mr Kydd, for many of the incidental details brought up during the questioning by the listeners were very instructive.

Mr J. N. Telford, president of the Institute, was in the chair.

THE HORSE TO RAISE.

The question of the most profitable horse to raise was the first one that came up for consideration.

It costs $100, it could be safely said to raise a colt until it was four years of age. Now would the average horse of that age, the kind of animal generally reared on the farm, sell for that much money. Generally it would not.

Mr. Kydd is apparently no lover of bronchos as a horse, for agricultural purposes and he spoke of them as "rubbish" and deprecated the bringing of them to Eastern Canada.

It was admitted that the kind of horse which was spoken of above as being raised on the farm would not bring $100. Considering that it took that much to raise the horse from a foal until it was four years of age it would be disposed of at a loss.

At a low average of $210. So it was affirmed that horse raising gone in for intelligently was a profitable business and paid just as well as any other department of farming.

As soon as a farmer gets a good mare, the first time he is offered a good price he takes the money and away it goes to the city. And what had he left at home? The poor broken down mare that was not fit to breed from.

Speaking of the stallion, Mr Kydd told of the great mistake of breeding to a cheap stallion as more money was lost in the stock than in what was saved in the service.

BE WARY OF "IMPORTEDS"

The speaker wished to warn young breeders against the word "imported." It only meant that the horse to which the term was applied, was brought from another country into this, and the British breeders often disposed of "importeds" because they were too inferior to the those worked on the farm as geldings.

Mr. Kydd here gave his further reasons why he thought the draft horse, generally speaking, was the most profitable one to raise. If a lighter and higher class horse received a blemish when a colt, it practically clipped the selling price in two. This could not be said of the draft horse, which was for utility rather than mere show.

And then the draft horse was more docile and easier to break. But it was a good thing that there were lots of farmers who did not raise draft horses for the users of carriage horses must have their demands met.

"But for goodness' sake get off that general purpose horse."

The use to which the general purpose horse is put was described. No horse used in the field for hard work could be expected to be of any use for road purposes. But there was some object in raising a horse of medium weight that could be used in the cities for carriage or express purposes. Horses of this class brought a good figure when sold and the call for them was good.

WHAT THOROUGHBRED MEANS

There was great stress put on the word "thoroughbred." But what did thoroughbred really mean? It simply meant a runner. That was the only horse that was entitled to be called a thoroughbred.

Speaking of light horses, Mr Kydd gave very valuable information as to the breeding to get the most desirable carriage horse.

TOO MANY DRAUGHT BREEDS

There were five breeds of draught horses in this country; the Clyde, Shire, Suffolk, Punch and Belgium. And there were too many. There was too much breeding of a brood mare to different kinds of stallions.

Which is the most profitable draught horse to raise, the farmer would ask. The answer was the one that would be the most profitable to value. Farmers were advised to stick to the breed and the type, as much as possible. Suppose a mare was three parts Clydesdale such a mare should be bred to a pure bred Clydesdale. That would be improving the type.

STRONG POINTS AND DEFECTS.

To the young man who knew little of the defects of horses, the speaker had something to say. He brought out the different defects and strong points of a horse using a well outlined chart figure to do so.

The head denoted the disposition of the animal. The horse with the big broad forehead and mild eyes was of a good disposition. The horse with the narrow forehead and eye sunk back in its head was of a mean disposition and had little intelligence. It was hard to break and hard to manage.

THE FOOT

After the head came the feet of a horse. In the first place the foot should not be too small in proportion to the body. A foot like that possessed by a mule was a drawback. A horse's foot should flare a little to allow for the weight to rest upon it. And a horse's foot does expand a little when the horse stands on it.

What does a blacksmith do with the frog of a horse's foot usually? Pares off a big chunk the first thing he does. The frog does not need paring except when it is diseased. It heals itself naturally and if a superfluous loose piece is showing, it can be cut off with a jack knife. The speaker wished it to be understood that he did not want to be unnecessarily severe with the blacksmith. A separate chart was used to explain the function of the parts of the foot. The foot was the most important part of a horse's anatomy.

The blacksmith used the rasp too freely on the outside of a horse's foot. It was an easy matter to do too much rasping for who could tell where the skin ceased and the hoof began.

For who could tell where the skin ceased and the hoof began? Rasping opened the pores on the horses foot too much. Mr. Kydd advocated working horses as much as possible without shoes.

Side bones were very common among horses. Side bones were the cartilages in a horse's foot that came to the top of the hoof turned to bone. The disease should not be confused with ringbone. A horse buyer once told the speaker that at least 50 per cent. of the draught horses in Canada had side-bones. Two of the principal causes were high caulked shoes and heredity.

SLOPING PASTERN BEST.

The horse market demanded a sloping pastern. Two sketches showed to advantage a sloping and straight pastern. There is a great give to the sloping pastern and little or none to the straight.

A ringbone was two bones joined together, thus forming one. There must be an enlargement in the joint. Ringbone was due to various causes, principally from strains or twists. At the junction of bones a cartilage. That becomes broken or bruised. As a rule dissolution takes place until the cartilage is thoroughly eaten away. Cement from other bones was sent out to knit the fracture. When that ran away a lump was formed which indicated that the bones were either knit or in the process of knitting. The blemish was quite hereditary.

Round bones and flat bones in a horse's leg were often spoken of. The bones in horses' legs were alike and although horses had round and flat legs this was due to the tendons attached to the bone and not to the bone itself. The flat legged horse was the better one. The round legged horse was meaty legged whereas the leg should be all bone and muscle.

An important joint was the hock joint. The hock is liable to spavins and other diseases. The different diseases of the hock with their causes and treatments were explained.

POINTS FOR BUYERS.

A horse should be plentifously muscled in its legs and loins. In buying a horse the buyer should see the horse in action going straight from him and coming straight towards him. The animal should be straight legged in front and toot out slightly behind.

If the hoof turned in or out on the front legs the gait would either be one in which the horse would interfere or throw out the forelegs according to the defective hoof conformation.

LOOKING AFTER THE FOAL.

The question of foals was next taken up. A mare would produce a much better foal when she received exercise than when she didn't. It was well to let the mare rest up thoroughly after the foal was born. The speaker believed that the proper place for a foal to be born was in a box stall, and not in a field, where there was danger of the foal being injured or killed in a ditch or hollow as it was trying to get to its feet. A mare with a foal should not be shod, as the danger to the foal would be less if the dam were unshod, in case, for instance, she might accidentally step on it.

The first winter is the most important one in a horse's life. Every care to the proper nourishment and attention to the foal should be taken during the first winter. Bran and oats should be fed and the foal should be given plenty of exercise.

The temperature of the stable should be comfortably warm at night in winter, but not so hot that the foal would be in danger of catching cold when out exercising in the barnyard in the daytime.

President Telford spoke of Mr. Kydd's address as the ablest one on the subject he had ever listened to.

Mr. Hughes-Charles spoke for a few moments. He said that although the percheron did not meet with favor in all sections it was a useful breed in demand by fire departments and circuses and good sellers. He advised young men to go into the raising of saddle and light horses. The rich class wanted them and in spite of the automobiles the horse would never be supplanted in the Anglo Saxon race. Mr. Charles put the audience in good humor by concluding his address with a pointed story.

Mr. Collins, the secretary of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute concluded the session with a brief address. He spoke of the pleasure and profit obtained from the yearly Institute meeting.

CHEESE FACTORY AT WESTWOOD

Interesting Addresses at Annual Meeting—Year's Business Satisfactory

The annual meeting of Westwood cheese factory was held in the town hall, Westwood on the afternoon of Tuesday, December 1st. Very interesting addresses were delivered by Messrs. Ward, Barr and Whitley, on the different branches of dairying and cheesemaking.

The following is a statement of the business done for the season of 1908.

Amount of milk delivered at the factory 1,906,101 lbs, from which were made 169,674 lbs of cheese.

Number of lbs milk required to make a pound of cheese, 11.23.

Total value of milk per standard, $32.64.

Value per standard to patrons after paying all expenses $26.95.

The four patrons sending the greatest amount of milk were;

Fred Warner, 81,542 lbs.
J C Breckenridge, 55,970 lbs.
J J Breckenridge, 49,001 lbs.
John Lancaster, 48,257 lbs.

And the average for each of the 63 patrons was 26,111 lbs. or a little over 8 1-2 standards.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Last Boat of Season.

Port Dalhousie, Dec. 16.—Word was received yesterday that the steamer Rosedale would arrive at the canal about Thursday evening with a part cargo of wheat for Hamilton. She is discharging part of her load at Sarnia. She will be the last boat to come through the canal this season.

Jail, Without Fine, If——

Montreal, Dec. 16.—Civic bylaw 108 is such that if the theatrical managers are convicted for last Sunday's performances they may have to go to jail. There is no option of fine provided for.

Seven Sailors Drowned.

St. Pierre, Miq., Dec. 16.—Seven members of the crew of the French warship Admiral Aube, who started for the shore Monday night are missing, and it is thought all were drowned.

Huge Revenue From Tobacco.

Paris, Dec. 16.—The French nation last year consumed $100,000,000 worth of tobacco, upon which the Government made a profit of $75,000,000.

Water Commission Ahead.

London, Ont., Dec. 16.—The net profits of the water commission this year were $61,809. Of this amount $30,397 was applied to sinking fund, leaving $31,409 to be turned over to the city. This is $17,000 in excess of the estimated net receipts. There will be no overdraft this year for the City Council.

No Reduction In Brockville.

Brockville, Dec. 16.—At the last meeting of the Town Council last night the Brockville Ministerial Association asked for a reduction in the number of liquor licenses from 9 to 6.

It was deemed advisable to pass the matter on to the incoming council.

Castro In Berlin.

Berlin, Dec. 16.—President Castro of Venezuela, who arrived in this city Monday night from Paris, called yesterday morning on Chancellor Von Buelow and Foreign Secretary Von Schoen, leaving his cards.

Port Arthur Still Open.

Port Arthur, Dec. 16.—The steamer Moore arrived yesterday afternoon from Duluth with passengers and freight and will clear at daylight. She is scheduled to make three more trips to the end of December.

The tug Whalen leaves to-day to pick up light house keepers along the north shore.

Noise Fiend Still Free.

New York, Dec. 16.—Because the anti-noise ordinance bylaw adopted by the board of aldermen in response to persistent popular clamor does not contain sufficient stringent provisions for the curbing of the evil, Mayor McClellan vetoed it yesterday afternoon.

The ordinance contained provisions relating to flat wheels, loose trucks, and other evils, but did not mention other sources of constant annoyance, such as the carting of steel girders, etc., through the streets.

Favor Australian Navy.

London, Dec. 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At the annual meeting of the Empire League Council hope was expressed that negotiations between the British Government and Australia would result in the acceptance of Premier Deakin's proposals for the formation of an Australian navy. The Duke of Devonshire expressed satisfaction with the progress of the league, especially in Canada.

London Times Apologizes.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—Hon. S. N. Parent, chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission, received yesterday morning a cable stating that The London Times in response to complaints entered by the commission, has published a retraction of published reports reflecting on the integrity of the commission.

Perley Denies It.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—George H. Perley, M.P. for Argenteuil, says he knows nothing about the story which comes from Montreal to the effect that he is one of the four Conservatives who have formed a pool to finance the protests filed in Toronto against certain Liberal members of Parliament, Sir Wilfrid Laurier included.

Kitchener's Little Way.

Lord Kitchener will never overtake all the stories told of him, but in the absence of contradiction, the world will no doubt accept the latest addition to the series. A local official wanted military protection against what he considered to be the danger of an Indian rising, and travelled all the way to Simla to lay before the commander-in-chief the state of affairs in his district, and to urge that troops should be sent to support the civil arm. Lord Kitchener declined to do anything of the sort. "But, my dear sir, do you realize that I may be murdered in my bed one night?" expostulated the official. Kitchener eyed him over for a minute, and then said coldly, "Well, what of it?"

The Queen's Favorites.

Queen Alexandra, probably the best respected and most universally loved Queen-Consort the world has ever seen, once upon a time made some most interesting confessions as to her personal preferences. Her favorite king, for instance—Edward VII., of course, excluded!—is Richard Cœur de Lion; her queen, Dagmar of Denmark; her poet, Shakespeare; her painter, Rubens; her writer, Dickens. Of all colors she prefers sky-blue, and of all flowers, as a not unnatural consequence, the forget-me-not. Her favorite name is, of course, Edward; her favorite dish, Yorkshire pudding; her favorite spot, England.

A CITY IN EMBRYO.

Prince Rupert In the Making Presents Interesting Sights to Settlers.

Prince Rupert is an interesting specimen of a metropolis in the making. To-day it is nothing more than a small group of wooden houses, with footpaths for streets and planks for pavements, but in the near future it will become possibly the most important city on the Pacific coast. It is one day nearer the Atlantic coast, and 500 miles nearer Japan, than Vancouver, and the railway which links it with the east passes through the greatest wheat-growing country in the world.

In appearance the future metropolis of the Northwest is an uneven, rather hilly tract of 2,000 acres, cleared of timber. A large harbor, equal to any on the Pacific coast, and a dock a quarter of a mile long, and accommodating the deepest draught vessels, will be constructed. There are already here a branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, a customs office, postoffice, and a provincial police station, all of them, save the bank, being accommodated in tents.

There are, of course, no streets, and horses cannot be used. Narrow footpaths covered with planks are laid through the principal highways. A small tramway line has been constructed for hauling freight up from the steamship quay, and at the other end of this tram line is the hotel. Curiously enough, the usual famine prices do not prevail in Prince Rupert. Some time ago lodgings were advertised for 25 cents a night, but now the sign is displayed "Lodgings free." The hotel proprietor has a large restaurant, and he sells three meals for a dollar, with a bed for the night thrown in.

The hotel is a large, plain structure, divided into compartments, each containing six bunks, and opening into a broad passage. The only stipulation is that visitors must furnish their own blankets.

The construction of the railway is proceeding steadily, and laborers are badly needed. Owing to the prevailing bad weather and low wages—$2.50 a day—it is difficult to secure workmen. Considering that the men must pay $1 a day for board, and that sometimes they cannot work more than two or three days a week, they cannot be blamed for not enthusing over the prospect. The laborers must pay a provincial tax of $3, and a hospital fee of $2, which sums are deducted from their wages.

The soil is excellent, and grass grows plentifully in the open spaces in the town. A small stream empties into the harbor, up which the salmon have been running in enormous numbers, so that in places it is impossible to throw a hook and line into the water without catching one. Trout are also very plentiful, and deer are quite numerous.

Indians Prospering.

Mr. F. H. Paget, assistant accountant of the Department of Indian Affairs at Ottawa, who has been on an extensive trip of investigation into the Indian reserves in the West, reports that he found the Indians to be in a very prosperous condition. Contrary to what had been stated, the Indians were not decreasing in population, but the birth-rate far exceeded the deaths. They are commencing to farm on a large scale, and are doing as well as the white men. They nearly all have large herds of cattle, and they are growing a great deal of grain. Some of the Indians got remarkable crops, the average going 35 to 40 bushels per acre, and one even got as fruitful a crop as 48 bushels to the acre. Another had 24,000 bushels off 600 acres. In a year or two the Indians on the Blood reserve will have 10,000 head of stock. It is the finest reserve in the Dominion. The Blackfoot reserve comes next, and is situated east of Calgary. There the Indians have excellent coal mines, and supply the settlers with their coal.

A Thrilling Experience.

Traveling on truck cars of dynamite, at a rate of more than 100 miles an hour, and with certain death as their expected destination, four men in the employ of the steamer Nipigon stuck to their posts a few days ago and were thrown yards away when the cars collided with others at the bottom of an incline.

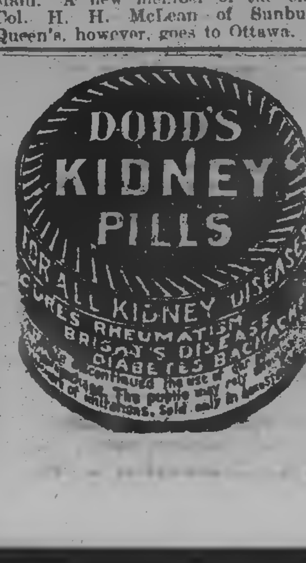
That the men were not blown to atoms was due to the fact that the dynamite was frozen, a condition unknown to the four men on board. The crates were reduced to kindling wood, and hundreds of sticks of dynamite, one of which would have meant certain death, were thrown in every direction.

The captain of a tug on which the dynamite was to be loaded saw the hundreds of pounds of explosives bearing down upon him, and, although he signalled for full speed ahead, felt there was no hope for either crew or boat.

Paterson Dean of House.

As a result of the changes made by the Federal elections, the seniority of the House now runs about as follows: Hon. Wm. Paterson, 1872; Hon. John Haggart, 1872; Sir Wilfrid Laurier, 1874; Sir Frederick Borden, 1874; Dr. Sproule, 1878; Hon. Geo. E. Foster, 1878; Geo. Taylor, 1882; David Henderson, 1888; Dr. Reid, 1891; Col Hughes, 1892; W. F. Maclean, 1892.

The elections eliminated two of "the Macleans" from Parliament, M. Y. McLean, South Huron; W. F. Maclean, South York, and A. K. Maclean, Lunenburg, are back; but Dr. P. D. McLean of Centre York and Angus McLean of P.E.I., are amongst the slain. A new member of the clan, Col. H. H. McLean of Sunbury, Queen's, however, goes to Ottawa.



HONORED BY 57th OFFICERS

er than a red coat. He would never forget the service he had seen under Col. J. Z. Rogers, who sat at his right.

He could not find words to express his great thanks for the gift his fellow officers had presented him with, not only for the value of the gift but on account of the spirit in which it was given.

Capt. Cluxton sang "O Canada," in fine voice. Capt. Walker expressed his warm regard for Lieut.-Col. Miller, and ended his remarks with a very humorous recitation.

SISTER REGIMENTS.

Major Halliday proposed the toast of the sister corps, coupling with them the names of Lt.-Col. H. C. Rogers and Capt. Langfeldt. Lt.-Col. H. C. Rogers gave an interesting account of military affairs in the county of Peterborough. Col. Rogers spoke at some length, and his address was closely followed by the officers assembled.

He had much pleasure in endorsing the sentiments expressed concerning Lieut.-Col. Miller.

Hon. Capt. Langfeldt, Chaplain of the 3rd Dragoons, also replied to the toast. He was particularly enhanced with the kind treatment he had met with at the annual camp of the 57th, at which he had the honor to be chaplain in the absence of Major Davidson. The officers were gathered to pay honor to Col. Miller as a man respected by soldiers and civilians alike. He had remarked the greatness of Col. Miller's nature, and any regiment might be proud of having such an officer.

Capt. Cluxton sang that popular song, "Girls," and all joined in the refrain.

THE COMPOSITE REGIMENT.

The toast was placed on the list, said Major Clegg probably in honor of the guest of the evening, as he was the commander of the composite regiment during the past year. Major Clegg took opportunity to speak of the advantage of the composite regiment and of the splendid representation of the 57th battalion in the regiment.

Like the preceding speakers he referred to the general esteem in which Col. Miller was held and of his long connection with military matters and his high place as an authority on affairs military.

Capt. Watt gave a most acceptable rendition of "The Minstrel Boy."

COL. GREENWOOD SPEAKS.

Col. Stevenson wanted all to fill up their glasses to one of the best representatives Canada had ever sent to South Africa. He had done admirable service there.

Col. Greenwood was very pleased to be back to Peterborough once more. He went out from Peterborough, and for that reason regarded it in a way as his home. Col Greenwood interested his listeners very much with a short account of recent South African military history. He was glad to meet Col Miller again, and appreciated very much the kindness shown in asking him to be present. He wished the 57th every prosperity.

At the request of the company Col. Miller recited "Glencoe."

"The Press" was the next toast, and was replied to by Messrs. F. H. Dobbin and F. D. Craig.

OTHER TOASTS.

Major Hayes added to what had been said concerning the position that Col. Miller held in the respect and affection of the officers of the 57th and the townspeople in general.

Col. H. C. Rogers then sang an old ballad, in which the officers heartily joined.

The toast to "The Babies of the Regiment" brought responses from Lieut. Cameron, Lieut. Rackham and Lieut. Carruthers.

Major Hayes proposed the toast to the quartermaster.

The old Quartermaster Major Langford spoke in reminiscent mood and was followed by Captain Eastwood, the present quartermaster.

Mr L. M Hayes sang an old song, with a rollicking chorus which was contagiously caught up by the others in attendance. "Auld Lang Syne" and the vocal and march number, "The Bold McIntyre" concluded the evening's entertainment.

"God Save the King" was in order and then the dispersal took place after handshaking and a cordial exchange of greetings.

Mr. Thos Hooper acted as caterer in his usual efficient way and in itself is sufficient praise for the ample and varied offerings on the banquet table.

The 57th Regimental Band played several well chosen selections from their position in the drill shed. The band kindly volunteered their services for the occasion.

INSCRIPTION.

The following inscription was neatly engraved on the inside of the watch with which Col. Miller was presented;

"Presented by the officers of the 57th Regiment, P. R. to Lieutenant-Colonel Miller, December 15th."

In the middle of the inner case, which bore the inscription, was the regimental coat of arms.

THE GUESTS.

The following were in attendance at the banquet given as the names were taken down and are not in order of rank.

Lt.-Col. Halliday; Major J C Davidson chaplain; Major Clegg; Capt W A Clarke; Lieut A G Carruthers; Lt W R O'Higgins; Capt R T Hounsell; Lt J M Gemmell; Lt H J Fairweather of the 74th regiment; Capt R F McWilliams; Capt V Eastwood; Major W Langford; Lt-Col H S Greenwood; Major L M Hayes; Capt W Harold Cluxton; Lt. A M Merritt; Lt. J W Kelly; Mr F H Dobbin; Hon Captain E A Langfeldt, Chaplain 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons; Lt-Col J. Z Rogers; Lt-Col. Miller; Lt-Col A. Stevenson; Lt-Col. H C Rogers; Lt. Rackham; Lt. Dr Eastwood, Lt G S Cameron; Lt T. E. Hodgson; Lt. Jas D Clarke; Lt. M Comstock, Capt R M. Watt.

Middlesex county council presented Warden Graham with a gold watch and chain.

IT WORKED A CURE.

Anecdote of an English Doctor of the Last Century

Of the eminent physicians of England during the early part of the last century not one was more justly celebrated than Dr. Sydenham. Of the anecdotes of his medical experience, related by himself the following is worth telling:

For a long time the doctor had been consulted by a gentleman of wealth and leisure who was persistent in his demands for medical help, who took all the medicines prescribed, but who did not appear to improve. At length Dr. Sydenham said to him:

"Sir I have done all I can. If you would be thoroughly cured you must consult Dr. Robinson at Inverness, in Scotland. He is exceedingly clever in such diseases as yours, and if I give you a letter to him I can assure you he will give you relief."

It was a long journey from London away to the extreme north of Scotland, but the patient had plenty of leisure. He had money enough, he had good horses and carriages, and, above all, he was anxious to be cured. So away he went.

But, arrived at Inverness after a laborious jaunt of fully three weeks, he searched for Dr. Robinson in vain. He could find no such doctor. And, what was more, he was credibly informed that such a doctor had never lived there. The patient bottled up his wrath, had his horses harnessed and their heads turned homeward, and the distance, which had occupied him three weeks in going, he covered in ten days on his return. Upon reaching London he made at once for the house of Dr. Sydenham, upon whom he burst like a whirlwind.

"Ha, Sir George! I am glad to see you, and to see you looking so well."

"But no thanks to you, you graceless rascal! Why did you so deceive me?"

"Deceive you, Sir George?"

"Yes. You told me I should find Dr. Robinson, and you knew there was no such man there. Now, what is your excuse? What is your explanation?"

"Sir George, answer me. Are you not better now than you have been before for years? In short, are you not entirely recovered from that old malady?"

The baronet thought a little and was forced to confess that such was the case.

"That, sir, is my excuse; that my explanation," returned the physician frankly. "I knew that a journey into the highlands of Scotland would cure you, and I took the only means in my power to send you off. Had I told you the truth you would not have gone. But to see Dr. Robinson you were willing to venture. So, Sir George, let us bless Dr. Robinson."

And Sir George surrendered.—London Tit-Bits.

THE HOOK

The common way of speaking is to use slang.

The man who acts little makes a big mistake.

Somehow honesty manages to parade in public frequently.

The miser is in a happy frame of mind when surrounded by gold.

The Dominion Commercial Traveller's Association has rejected the proposition to allow women to become members of the Association. As "the gift of gab" is one of the essentials of a travelling man, the latter evidently fear such serious competition as the feminine sellers would offer.

STARTLING STATEMENT

It's Statements Like That of H. Heyman, Kingston, Ont., That is Making Mi-o-na World Famous for Obstinate Stomach Complaints.

Mr. H. Heyman, 132 Colborne street, Kingston, Ont. says; "Miona is worth its weight in gold as a remedy to quickly cure long standing cases of dyspepsia. For years I had suffered with my stomach and could find no cure nor even relief. I could not eat anything as it would sour and form gas on my stomach that had a pressure on the heart. Heavy pains would come around my sides and pit of my stomach. I was unable to sleep for this and there was nothing to relieve my miserable condition. I was weak and languid and would feel as tired in the morning, as on going to bed and perspiration would break out all over my body. I would be so weak from vomiting that I would fall to my knees. My head would ache and spells of dizziness would leave me unable to see. Doctors had termed the trouble gastritis, but failed to benefit me. I tried Miona, which I procured at a drug store on the advice of a friend which has cured me when all else failed. I am sound and well and feel grateful to Miona, for my present health."

It's the known results obtained by Miona that places it far and away above all other remedies and confirms Wm Madill in offering to refund the money if Miona fails to cure stomach trouble. 50 cents a box. Relief in twenty-four hours.

On a warrant issued four and a half years ago Francis Leach was remanded at Tottenham, England, charged with obtaining credit for a roll-top desk by fraud.

A motor omnibus belonging to the London Omnibus Co. when travelling along the Commercial road knocked down and killed a little boy on his way to school.

FRENCH-CANADIAN MEMBERS MAY SUE BISHOP SCOLLARD

Allege That Bishop Scollard Virtually Incited a Boycott Against Them—Trouble Blamed on Racial Strife —French Association Formed and Will Start New Church.

North Bay, Dec. 15.—French-Canadian members of the Church of St. Mary-on-the-Lake at North Bay are very indignant over certain remarks made by Bishop Scollard in the course of his sermon Sunday morning, when he publicly rebuked several prominent French-Canadian members of the congregation, and, it is alleged, made statements which would have a tendency to injure the business of those affected.

A prominent French-Canadian merchant stated to your correspondent that a portion of his Lordship's sermon was directed at him, and his business and its location were discussed in such a way that there could not be a shadow of a doubt as to who was meant, and the statements made from the pulpit were such as to incite a boycott on him in a business way. He stated that it was his intention to institute an action for damages against Bishop Scollard for $25,000, and that the sermon would probably result in other actions.

A physician and a contractor were among the others feeling aggrieved by the remarks of the bishop.

IS TRACED BACK.

Sunday's sermon is the outcome of trouble which occurred in the church during the summer, when the French-Canadian members of the congregation claimed to have been insulted by being denied the privilege of having the St. Jean Baptiste mass sung in the church.

The relation between the English and French-speaking members of the congregation has been strained for some time, and the latter demand that a church be instituted for their use where they can have the services in French.

A FRENCH ASSOCIATION.

Since the trouble in the summer over the St. Jean Baptiste mass an association has been formed by the French-Canadian people of the town with a membership of several hundred and the outcome will no doubt be that a separate congregation will be formed.

WHEN WILL WOMEN CEASE TO WEAR HATS AT THEATRES?

Edior of the Review.
Peterborough, Dec 15, '08

Dear Sir,—

When will women learn that they are making nuisances of themselves by wearing hats in theatres! Of course there is no law to prevent them doing so, except the universal law of courtesy which should be generally respected in civilized communities If the woman who keeps on her hat during a performance imagines that that the hat or herself is coming in for any admiration she is indeed laboring under a hallucination. For the greatest annoyance is caused by her thoughtlessness or vanity, as the case may be.

I attended the Grand Opera House last night and my vision was obscured by a hat which assumed the proportions of a small garden at first and then seemed to expand into a veritable stage setting. I exclaimed "hats" in a subdued tone once or twice but it had no effect and instead of seeing the play to advantage I seemed only to get glances at the players now and then. I considered my 50 cents poorly invested and yet I heard people say it was a good show.

In my opinion there is something radically wrong with the manners of a woman who keeps her hat on at a theatrical performance.

Yours truly,
ONE OF THE AUDIENCE.

MISS LILLIAN RUSSELL TALKS ABOUT DRESS

The Wonderful Gowns of the Well-known Actress—Miss Russell Prefers American Dressmakers.

Because Lillian Russell is conceded to be the most beautiful woman on the American stage, women look to her as an authority upon sartorial matters also. She is one of the best dressed women in public life. She possesses an intuitive faculty for correct dress and for her to wear a gown is to establish the mode.

Being blonde and decidedly fair Miss Russell chooses the shades which are friendly to the blonde. Therefore, soft pinks or blues and white are the ruling colors in her dresses. Of styles she leans to the fabrics that are described as "clinging," and the softer the material the better. This accounts for the preponderance of chiffons or crepe de chenes or lustrous silks or satins of light weight in a Russell toilette. She has a clearly defined idea of her wants, and the harmony of colors is second nature with her.

If Miss Russell sees a style or a detail of a smart Parisian dress, she is not loth to adapt it, and, having a genius for presenting new effects, she employs these hints with the best possible result. This is why there is a distinctive individuality about the Russell gowns. Her initiative is ordinarily sufficient, but she goes farther and grooming is a combination of art and science with her. This is how she maintains her reputation for smart dresses and is the envy of her women friends.

Miss Russell explained in detail recently how she gets the sartorial effects she does; She said;

"I can be better suited with clothes made in America than in Paris, but I did not say, as I have been quoted, that all American made clothing is better than garments of French manufacture.

"The average woman in America does not go abroad; therefore she has not the advantage of seeing everything in the way of the latest and the most beautiful things in Paris, but must depend absolutely upon her dressmaker and the department stores for what she gets. If she has natural taste of her own, it is very easy for her to have the best of everything in this country. But the women who go abroad and buy some of their gowns over there, know exactly what the styles are; and in general what they want, so that they can, with the assistance of a clever American dressmaker, have things even more exclusive than those you get from Paris.

"French designers only send a number of models to this country, and each store gets exactly the same models. We have dressmakers over here—I will mention the name of mine —Messrs Hitchins and Balcom, for example, who go abroad and get all the very best models. Nobody, however, can get exclusive designs from Paris. They must take just the same The French dressmakers send men over here to learn the taste of the American women. They make a certain set of models for the American taste Then, after all the buyers have gone home, another set of styles comes out, entirely for the exclusive use of the French women. Americans cannot get these gowns unless they are living in Paris all the year round.

"I met a gentleman on the steamer who told me that he was sent to New York from a large designing house in Paris to find out what the tastes of the American women were in order to make styles for them — not for Parisiennes.

"Now as to the making of gowns. Of course, the French designers are ahead, because they have, first of all materials, laces and ideas. They lead the world in styles. The French dressmakers have details that are overlooked oftentimes by American dressmakers, such as little sleeve and neck finishes and dainty trimmings; but the general designs are the same. The making of dresses is very much better in America than in France, except with hand made things. In that they have the advantage, because labor is so very cheap; but I have never bought in Paris, any gowns that have not had to be re-made when I came home. My dressmakers always have to sew them all over again, they are so badly sewn. Before I sailed I had gowns made here. They were so beautiful that people asked me where I got them and were surprised that I had got them in America.

"Before making my new costume for 'Wildfire,' I saw everything in Paris and so did my dressmakers. Together we designed our exclusive costumes, as handsome as anything that can be made in Paris, with the advantage of having seen all the new ideas.

"My first act dress is an afternoon gown, with a skirt of white Liberty satin and a Directoire coat of white embroidery and Irish lace. The high neck and long sleeves are of tucked white net, edged with baby Irish. The skirt is the new Directoire model, very clinging and with a pointed train. It sounds simple but the lines are the whole gown. The automobile hat is of yellow straw of the mushroom shape, with a four-yard long chiffon veil, hand painted with rose colors on the edge, draped straight across the hat and held down with three large pink roses across the front. I also wear a large rose on the coat. The automobile coat with this is of heavy white satin with very wide white silk braid and tassels, made in the short Directoire shape With this costume I wear a very high white suede boot, buttoned with flat pearl buttons.

"My second act gown is also an afternoon dress. It is a Directoire gown of light blue satin, very short-waisted; with a perfectly plain tight-fitting, clinging skirt. It is made like a Princess, the blue satin coming up very high, under the arms. The very high collar and very long sleeves are of white tucked mousseline de soie. Over that is a Sapphire blue chiffon Directoire coat, which comes almost altogether in front, cutting away into a tunic shaped back. It has a short sleeve, The entire coat, which is absolutely transparent, is embroidered in all shades of blue. It is held in with a small Directoire belt of gold, which finishes each side of the front just above the waist line with a large ornament. With this dress is worn black satin high boots and a large, severe, black satin sailor hat, on the Directoire shape, with a large bunch of white aigrettes in front.

"My third act costume is an evening gown of white checked satin on the Greek model. The skirt and bodice are all in one, with no waist line perfectly straight up and down and very tight-fitting around the hips; pointed train and decollete. The neck and long sleeves are of embroidered silver net. Around this is a tunic of amethyst colored chiffon embroidered with silver acorns; this tunic reaches entirely around the body, hanging perfectly straight down from the front It is banded in with two bands of silver embroidery and amethyst jewels and around the foot of the skirt is embroidered silver acorns. With this gown I wear pearls and in my hair, dressed in the Greek fashion, I wear two bands of pearls.

A SPLENDID CONCERT AT KNOX CHURCH

Held Last Evening Under the Auspices of the Managers---A Large Audience---The Programme

One of the best entertainments that has taken place in the city for some time was that provided last evening by the managers of Knox church who achieved another success in providing a high class concert. The event was a very enjoyable one, each member being greeted with great applause and in many instances those contributing were repeatedly recalled. The talent was the best that could be provided in Peterborough and everyone who were fortunate enough to be present last night went away more than pleased with the entertainment.

Space will not permit of a lengthy comment on the members individually but each are equally deserving of the highest praise and the managers are to be congratulated on the excellent programme they provided and the splendid success that attended them in their efforts.

The hall was well filled. The chairman of the evening was Dr D. Malcolm McCulloch who, after a few introductory remarks, announced the following numbers:

PART I

Selection —"Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son.' by the Glee Club.
Vocal solo—Mr N Greenhalgh
Quartette— Messrs Walton, Biggs Zepp and Black.
Violin solo—Dr Park.
Vocal trio— "John Schmoker," — Messrs Common, Thompson and Common.
Vocal solo—Mr John Crane.
Vocal quartette— Messrs Walton, Biggs, Zepp and Black.
Song—Mr Coleman.

PART II

Selection— "The Bells of St Michael's Tower," Glee Club.
Selection on the bagpipes— Mr T S. McKay.
Vocal solo—Miss Helen Davies.
Violin solo—Dr Park.
Humorous sketch — Mr Greenhalgh.

On behalf of the managers the chairman thanked those who contributed to the programme and also the audience for their attendance.

The singing of the National Anthem brought a delightful evening to a close.

THE DEATH OF MR. A. A. STEWART

Otonabee Loses One of its Most Highly Respected Residents

Otonabee township lost one of its most highly respected residents this morning in the death of Mr. Alexander A. Stewart, who passed away at his home, lot 13, concession 17. He was sixty-one years of age and had suffered for several months from liver trouble. The late Mr Stewart, was born in Otonabee township and had resided there all his life. He was a member of the Presbyterian church and attended St Paul's church, Peterborough, until services were commenced at the Stewart Settlement. He was held in the highest esteem by a large number of friends and his death will be deeply mourned.

Mr. Stewart is survived by his wife, three sons, Melville, Livingstone and Dalton, and two daughters, Clara and Blanche, all residing at home. One brother, Mr Wm J. Stewart, of Otonabee, and one sister, Mrs J. Saunders of Romaine street, Peterborough, also survive.

The funeral services will be conducted at the house at 1.30 o'clock on Friday afternoon by Rev D A McKenzie, of Centreville and Rev C H Coon of Peterborough. Interment will be made in Little Lake cemetery.

AN ADDRESS ON "FISHING"

Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's Met --- Will Have Hockey Team in Church League

At the regular meeting of the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church last evening it was decided to place a team in the church hockey league. Mr. Mortimer Johnston was elected manager and Mr. Ernest Reid, the president of the Guild, will represent St. Andrew's church at the league meetings. The athletic committee is composed of Messrs. Thos. Donaldson, Norman Rae and George McDonald.

During the evening Mr. Cornish gave an interesting and instructive address on "Fishing," giving a graphic description of his study in the scientific station at Cansox, N.S. Mr. Cornish has promised to give another evening to the discussion of the methods of deep sea fishing.

CUPID HAS BEEN SLOW THIS MONTH

Cupid has apparently been off his joo in Peterborough during the month of December. There have only been three marriages registered at the city clerk's office up to the present time which is considerably below the average for the corresponding period in previous months.

It is said that there will be several pretty weddings in the city during Christmas week.

DANDRUFF CURED IN TWO WEEKS OR MONEY BACK

The above is the guarantee W. Madill, the druggist is offering for Parisian Sage, the greatest of all hair restorers.

If you have dandruff, take advantage of this offer and kill the little dandruff germs that will surely steal your hair from you if allowed to continue to persistently burrow into the hair roots.

Parisian Sage is also guaranteed to stop falling hair and itching of the scalp.

Don't accept any substitute from any druggist. Parisian Sage is the original prescription of one of the world's greatest scientists, and is manufactured only in America by Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Fort Erie, Ont.

Parisian Sage is an exhilarating and pleasant hair dressing; it is not sticky or greasy, and it makes the hair soft, beautiful and luxuriant.

Price is 50 cents a bottle from W. Madill, druggist, Peterborough, or by express, all charges prepaid, by Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE W.F.M.S. OF ST. ANDREW'S

Was Held Yesterday Afternoon—Address by Rev. Robt. Pogue ---Officers Elected

The annual meeting of the WFMS of St. Andrew's church was held yesterday afternoon when a large number of ladies were present. Reports of the various branches of the WFMS were read and showed that much good work had been done, a substantial sum of money having been raised for the support of missions.

The president, of the society, Mrs. J G Potter, presided and conducted the opening devotional exercises. Mrs Sills presented the secretary's report, Mrs. Langford, that of the Young Ladies' Mission Band and Miss Bea Potter that of the Willing Workers. All the reports were interesting and showed progress during the year.

Rev Robt. Pogue, of St. Paul's church, gave a very forceful discourse on "The Great Commission," urging upon each one the obligations resting upon them to send the Gospel to every nation.

The officers elected were as follows;

Pres, Mrs J. G Potter.
Vice-pres, Mrs Geo Kerr.
2nd Vice-Pres, Mrs Wm Fowler.
Secretary, Mrs R Lees.
Asst. Sec, Mrs Sills.
Treasurer, Miss L Rae.
Literature Sec, Mrs Jas Gerrard.
Asst. Literature Secretary, Mrs F. Atkinson.
Organist, Miss B Lundy.
Executive committee, Mrs Thos. Brightman, Mrs J Jamieson, Mrs Richardson, Mrs Johns, Mrs Rankin and Mrs Stevens.
Clothing committee, Mrs George Laing.

FRANK GOTCH MAY WRESTLE IN MONTREAL

Frank Gotch is expected back in America about the beginning of the New Year and the promoters who look after his interests on this side of the Atlantic are booking him from February on. The Canadian Athletic Club has made an offer to engage the champion for a ten-day period, which, if it goes through, will bring Gotch to Montreal some time at the end of February or the beginning of March.

During the Christmas holidays Eugene Tremblay and Raoul de Rouen are to go on tour for two weeks, matches now being arranged for them in Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis, St. Paul, Des Moines and Sioux City.

It has been suggested that the Canadian athletic meet be held in Peterborough in connection with the Y.M.C.A. Track and Field Club, if that body is carried through to successful organization and there is every reason to believe it will be.

SPORTING NEWS

ABOUT SPORTING REPORTS

The Review is desirous of publishing all the happenings in the local realm of sport. There are many events which happen and which are of interest that are not recorded for the reason that they are not brought in or telephoned to the office.

The hockey season will open soon and games will be played in all sections of the city. The Review would consider it a favor if announcement and reports of these games were communicated to the sporting department. None are too unimportant for publication and will be given space on the sporting page. This applies also to all other branches of local sport.

The news will be read with interest by the public and will give your team or club desirable recognition and publicity. Don't forget about it. The telephone No. is 1-8-9.

SPLENDID FIELD AND REAL NECESSITY FOR A Y.M.C.A. TRACK AND FIELD CLUB

The Track and Field Club which is to be formed in connection with the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. is just the organization that has been wanted for some time. From all indications the club will be a most successful one and should have a large membership from the start.

One meeting has been held at which a general discussion of matters relative to the welfare of the club, was held and another one will take place on Thursday evening at 7.30. Every member of the association interested in athletics is asked to be present as the election of officers will take place and the constitution will probably be drawn up.

The suggesters of the moment had a splendid object in view, when they thought of forming a Y.M.C.A. Track and Field Club. The idea is not only to promote track and field athletics for meets to be carried out here, but also to have the club represented in the Dunlop Trophy competition held annually in Toronto.

Among the members of the Y.M.C.A. there are some excellent men in track and field athletics and a club could be formed that would do an incalculable amount of good for the promotion of these important branches of sport.

BASKETBALL

The Montreal Star says.

The Peterborough YMCA. Brownies, who are to play the Central YMCA senior team on New Year's Eve have a great reputation up West, they hold the championship of the Peterborough YMCA. and have held the junior championship of Canada, also the intermediate.

This year they have with them an old Westmount player Dougie Sutherland, who, when he played on the Westmount team was a great player. This season in Peterborough the Brownies have been in the habit of giving their opponents fifteen or more points to start with and then trimming them by a comfortable margin. The Central Y. team are putting up a good game this season so that the game on New Year's Eve should be a good one. Arrangements are being made for a big crowd in the Central gymnasium and judging by the way the tickets are going there will be.

LONGBOAT WAS VICTORIOUS PACE WAS A KILLING ONE

Dorando Collapsed in Third Lap of 26th Mile—Eleven Thousand Present at Madison Square Gardens.

New York, Dec. 16.—As on that memorable occasion of his first Olympic, Dorando Pietri collapsed within sight of the goal last night, and Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian runner, who had been led by a yard or more nearly all the way, won the Marathon race at Madison Square Garden last night.

The race was hard-fought from start to finish, and kept the thousands of spectators in wild excitement. At twenty-five miles Dorando was leading by two yards. A moment before Longboat had made a remarkable spurt and put himself on an even footing with the little Italian. Dorando immediately regained first position, and the men were fighting it out in the twenty-sixth mile, with Dorando in the lead, but visibly weaker. The chances of Longboat appeared to improve in the second and third laps. In the fourth lap, while the crowd was crying itself hoarse, both men slackened perceptibly. Then suddenly Dorando staggered and dropped, Longboat finishing alone. His time for the distance of twenty-six miles 385 yards was 2.45.05 2-5.

The Marathon fever drew a gathering of over 11,000 persons to the Garden, and many men and women were fighting for admission at 9 o'clock, when the race was scheduled to begin.

By order of the fire department, the doors of the Garden were closed as the race started. The four or five thousand persons who had been unable to obtain admission, though many of them were ticket-holders, created so much disturbance that police reserves were sent to the scene. These finally restored order.

The race started at 9.11 o'clock. Longboat won the toss and took the pole position. Dorando jumped into the lead and set a steady pace, with the Indian a few feet back. Both were running easily, but at a good clip.

The first mile was made in 5.14 1-2, Dorondo leading by two yards.

Longboat took the lead early in the third mile, but held it for three laps only, Dorando letting out a link in his speed and running around the Canadian. Dorando then continued in the lead, and at the finish of the tenth mile was running at a steady, fast gait, two wards ahead of his opponent. The time for the ten miles was 58 minutes 57 seconds, which is 1 minute 9 2-5 seconds faster than the time made in the Hayes-Dorando race for the distance.

Longboat showed signs of fatigue in the seventeenth mile, but kept on doggedly within striking distance of the Indian. In the twentieth mile Longboat shot ahead and dropped into a natural lope, which kept him in the lead for five yards. Then Dorando, amid wild cheers, forged ahead. In the second lap of the twenty-fourth mile Dorando regained his advantage. Both men moved more slowly and showed weariness. In the beginning of the twenty-sixth mile Longboat sprinted, and the Italian went to the rear. In the middle of the mile, and when a quarter of a lap behind, Dorando fell to the track, and it was necessary to pick him up and carry him to his dressing-room.

WRESTLING

The Montreal Gazette says;—Lundin, the big Swede, has been selected to meet Raoul de Rouen there next Friday night in the last match of the 1908 season at Sohmer Park. Wrestling will be discontinued from next Friday to January 15th, over the holiday period. Lundin has appeared here a number of times and is considered one of the best Graeco-Roman wrestlers in America. Last time, when against Cazeaux, he was not in good shape, and went on the mat with his arm bandaged, being forced to quit before the match was finished. He is now said to be fit and is expected to give the immense Frenchman a hard bout.

A publicity department for Western Canada will be established by the Canadian Pacific.

ANNUAL MEETING OF GOLF CLUB

Past Year a Most Satisfactory One--Directors Elected

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, was held yesterday in the Bank of Montreal chambers and was a most satisfactory one.

The reports of the different officers show the affairs of the company to be in good condition and a feeling of satisfaction at the result of the past season prevaded the gathering.

On the ballot for the election of directors the following were declared elected; Messrs Robt Neill, W. H. Denham, S. H. Medd, F. D. Kerr and T. F. Matthews.

The shareholders' meeting then adjourned and the directors decided to postpone the election of officers till their next meeting.

BANKERS PUT IT ON BELMONTS

Iroquois Won From Frontenacs---P. B. C. Tournament

The genuine surprise of the bowling season was sprung last night in the league series at the P.B.C. when the Bankers took three straights from the Belmonts and thus greatly strengthened their hold on the leadership. All three games were close right up to the finish and they were generally decided on the last frame.

Ferguson was high man for the evening, Wareham being the next, 30 pins away, with Barber just a single pin below the Belmont man.

In the second game of the double-header the Iroquois took two from the Frontenacs after losing the first contest to their opponents. Barrett made his first appearance with the Frontenacs as did also Clair Gutterson and both new comers fought it out for high honors only four pins separating them at the finish, Barrett having the advantage, running up a score of 442, tieing with Martin of the Iroquois.

There will be no league game to-night, but to-morrow night the Midgets and Pacifics come together. The Lockworks and Examiner B. play on Friday and the Examiner A. and Hutchinson's world renowned trio on Saturday.

A CITY LEAGUE MEETING AT Y

To-night at 8 O'clock--Election of New Secretary

A meeting of the city league will be held to-night at eight o'clock. It is the intention to elect a new secretary to-night to succeed B. T. Huston, who is leaving the city shortly. The constitution of the league will also be revised.

THEATRICAL

Partello Stock Co.

The Partello Stock Co. presented another excellent play "Sunshine and Tempest," before a large audience at the Grand Opera House last night. Splendid acting was done by every member of the company and each one was given an enthusiastic reception. The play had a judicious mingling of heart interest and comedy and the scenic investure and other effects were everything that could be desired. The specialties were of a high standard. To-night the company will present a New England comedy drama, "The Postmaster's Daughter." It should draw a bumper house.

HE USED TACT.

A Successful Man's Story of the Way He Won Wealth.

"The late Ira D. Sankey," said a Brooklyn clergyman, "attributed a part of his success to tact—to the faculty of pleasing people. He used to tell a story in illustration of tact's great power.

"Mr. Sankey, according to the tale, met on the street one day a man he hadn't seen for two years.

"'Why,' said the man, 'how well you're looking, Sankey!'

"'You, too, are looking well,' said Mr. Sankey. 'And two years ago you were quite out at the elbow, while now you are clothed in purple and fine linen. Come home to dinner with me, won't you?'

"'Gladly,' said the other, and they went to dine.

"During dinner Mr. Sankey's guest talked agreeably of his 120 horsepower racer, his wife's limousine and his daughter's husband, the earl. It developed, in fact, that he was a multimillionaire.

"'And yet two years ago,' Mr. Sankey said, 'you were as poor as a church mouse. Tell me, how did you manage it?'

"'By means of tact,' replied the guest. 'I suddenly took to being tactful, and the results were marvelous. I never neglected on meeting an acquaintance to say, "How well you are looking!" The acquaintance would be tremendously pleased. He would invite me home to dinner, he would introduce me to all his influential friends and he would give me valuable tips and pointers. Naturally I soon became rich, very rich, rich enough to retire.'

"Then the guest looked at his watch and rose.

"'But I really must be going,' he said. 'Thank you, my dear Sankey, for an excellent dinner. Goodby. How well you're looking!'"

Settled It Themselves.

In western China European travelers recently found a simple method of settling disputes. One of them writes: "While we called the midday halt at Tachade, we asked the villagers concerning some new graves which we noticed in a field close by. They answered, 'Our head man and two others were killed three months ago in a feud with a village higher up the hills.' 'Is it settled now?' 'Yes.' 'Did you report the matter to Laowo?' 'No. What would have been the use? We just settled the matter ourselves.' 'How?' 'Oh, we killed eight of the other party.'"

The Apple of Discord.

At the marriage of Thetis and Peleus, where all the gods and goddesses met together, Discord threw on the table a "golden apple" for "the most beautiful." Juno, Minerva and Venus put in their separate claims and, not being able to settle the point, referred the matter to Paris, who gave judgment to Venus. This brought on him the vengeance of Juno and Minerva, to whose skill is attributed the fall of Troy.

The MOUNTAIN PRINCESS.

By JEROME SPRAGUE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Far up on the mountain Leslie heard her singing, and he smiled as he recognized a song that he had taught her.

She was still singing as she danced down the broad aisles of the forest toward a little stream where he was fishing.

"You look like a dryad," Leslie said, "in that gray green gown, but dryads don't sing songs from the latest musical comedy."

"It's a pretty song," she said gravely, "and I should like to see the comedy."

"If you will let me take you to town you can see everything," he informed her.

She laughed. "That's the seventh time in seven days that you have asked me to marry you. And I will always tell you that I am wedded to the mountains."

"You are wedded to an idea. You think that you can be happy all your life living up here, but you can't."

"You think I should be happier with you?"

"I know it," he said eagerly.

She shook her head.

"But I shouldn't be free. Here I am mistress of my own domain. There is no one but old Aunt Dolly and Uncle Fred to consider, and as long as they have a comfortable fireside and the magazines and novels that I order from town they are content. And my servants are the mountain people. For the rest, I have the birds and the bees and the butterflies."

Leslie's eyes twinkled. "And how long have you lived alone with the birds and the butterflies?"

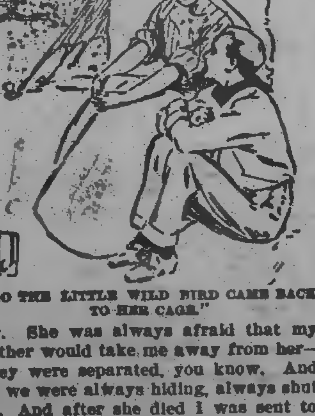
"Since May," she told him.

"And now it is October. What of the winter days that are coming, when the birds fly south and the butterflies die and the bees lie close in the hollow trees?"

"Then there will be the beauty of the dead forests and the snow on the mountain side and the winter skies and the freedom."

He smiled at her. "That means so much to you—freedom."

She nodded. "If you had known my life as a child. Mother was so unhappy. She was always afraid that my father would take me away from her—they were separated, you know. And so we were always hiding, always shut in. And after she died I was sent to a school in a big city and lived all of my girlhood behind high walls.



"SO THE LITTLE WILD BIRD CAME BACK TO HER CAGE."

"When I became my own mistress I bought a bungalow out here, and because I had lived always under strict rules I said that I would live without any—that I would not even enter the bondage of matrimony—and until you came I was as free as a bird."

"And now you are not free?" He put the question eagerly.

Her grave eyes met his steadily. "No," she said; "you—you have made me question. I am very happy when I am with you, fishing or learning songs or hearing you tell of your travels. And sometimes it seems to me that is the greater happiness.

"But when I am alone I think of the city where you would take me and that you would have a right to say whether I should go or come, and I feel as if I were again behind high walls."

Her eyes were dark with a queer kind of terror.

"Poor little wild bird," said Leslie tenderly; "they kept you caged too long."

He made her sit down beside him while he led the conversation cheerfully into other channels, and after a time he taught her more songs, and their voices rang out melodiously in the still October air. And all about them was the glory of autumnal coloring, the red and gold and green of the mountain side, with a sapphire sky above.

And when their song was finished Leslie said, "Tomorrow I am going home."

She caught her breath quickly. "Tomorrow?"

"Yes; at half past 10 at night. Will you wave me farewell?"

"You go by the river road?"

"Yes."

"I will be on my porch," she promised. "You can see me in the moonlight."

He took her hand and for a moment stood looking down at her. Then he said softly: "I shall not try to tell you how hard it is for me to go without some hope. Perhaps some day you will feel differently."

Again the frightened look came into her eyes. "No—no. If you knew how unhappy my mother was—my father was cruel"—

He dropped her hands. "And you think," he began, "that I might be?"

"Oh, no, no!" she protested. "But you would have the right to say what I should do. You would be—my master."

"Little child," he commanded, "look at me."

And when her eyes met his wonderingly he said slowly: "Love like mine asks nothing but your happiness. As my wife you would be free, for, after all, that woman is the freest who lives within the circle of her husband's love."

But she shook her head. "I can't feel that way," she murmured. "I wish I could."

The next night as Leslie's horse picked its way carefully down the winding road it reared a little when a white figure came out of the bushes.

"I couldn't bear to wave goodby so far away," the girl faltered as he dismounted and stood beside her. Her face was very pale in the moonlight, and her hair shone like gold. "And then there is something that I want to say."

A light came into his eyes as he bent over her. "Tell me," he whispered.

"I love you," she said simply, but shook her head at his eager exclamation. "But I cannot marry you—not now. It would not be right—not while I have this fear of the city. But I want to ask if—if—some day I feel differently—if I should send for you—would you come?"

"From the ends of the earth," he declared. "But if it could only be now, dear heart."

The tears were on her cheeks. "I can't promise," she sobbed. "Something seems to hold me back. But I could not let you go without telling you that I cared."

All that winter Leslie waited for his summons, so secure was he in her ultimate need of him. But the winter passed and the spring, and the summer came again and the fall, and once more the woods were red and gold and green, and still he had heard nothing from her.

And one day he said to himself: "I must go to her. Surely if she loves me she will say 'Yes.'"

It was raining as he ascended the mountain, and the leaves were sodden under the horse's feet. Fear seemed to clutch at his heart as he came to the bungalow, where a single spot of light shone out through the gathering darkness.

He crept to the window and gazed in and saw her sitting before her big fire alone, a little wasted figure in a white gown.

It seemed as if his heart stopped beating as he hurried through the hall and came into the room where she sat.

"Dear," he said, and she stood up, with a little cry, and then his arms were about her, and she was sobbing wildly.

"Then why didn't you send for me?" he demanded.

"Because I couldn't ask you to marry me when I was ill and ugly, when I would not when I was well, could I?" she asked. "I took cold last winter, and then there was pneumonia, and now they keep me shut in. All summer and all the spring and fall I have watched from the windows. I knew if you came you would set me free, but I couldn't write and burden you with my woes."

"In sickness and in health," he quoted—"isn't that what they say in the marriage service, dear? And now listen. You are to get well at once. We will go to the desert, and we will live in the sunshine, and we will start tomorrow."

She smiled up at him. "How good it seems," she said, "to hear you say it so masterfully! If you knew how I have longed for some one to carry me off."

And a month later as she sat in front of her tent on the dry plain and the wind ruffled her hair and brought the pink of returning health to her cheeks her husband said, "So the little wild bird came back to her cage."

She shook her head and reached out her hand to him. "Ah, no," she said, and her voice thrilled with the wonder of her happiness. "Ah, no, but the little wild bird found her mate."

English as She Is Uttered.

"What is the cabbage?" inquired the departing patron, who wished to go to the railway station from the hotel.

"What's the what?" exclaimed the clerk, losing his clutch on the perfect English he usually handed over the counter.

"What's the cabbage? I said."

"I know you did, but I do not quite get your meaning."

"Oh, you don't? You know what cabbage is, don't you?"

"I guess I've seen enough of it to know. I used to live in the suburbs of Chicago."

"Well, what is it from here to the depot?"

"I suppose it is just what it is everywhere else—that is, a vegetable which"—

The departing patron interrupted with violence.

"Aw, say," he protested, "you ought to be plowed under or fertilized or something. Cabbage is cab fare, ain't it?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

A THRILLING VOYAGE.

Crew of British Schooner Spent Four Days Near Death.

How the schooner Mystery took her crew of six as near to death for four days and nights as any man could be and live was narrated by her captain recently, on his rescue and landing after the wreck.

"In all my experience of the sea I have seldom felt so near death," said Captain Dean. "We loaded a cargo of dried codfish at Merchantman's Bay, Labrador, and sailed on Sept. 14 for Gibraltar. Though the Mystery was built over thirty years ago, she was a good sailer, and had weathered many storms.

"We were only a few hours out when a tremendous gale set in, and continued with increasing violence day after day. The sea was mountainous, and tossed the schooner about like a cork, now high on the crest, now plunged in the trough. The decks were continually a-wash; great seas broke over her, and we all had many narrow escapes of being swept into the sea as we crawled about on our duties.

"For four days we battled against the gales; our craft creaked and strained, but we hoped she would remain tight till the gale abated. On the fourth day, however, the schooner strained so that she sprang a bad leak, and the next thing we learned was that there was three feet of water in the hold, rising steadily.

"All hands manned the pumps and toiled at them desperately, without ceasing, day and night, for the best part of a week. Had we rested we should have gone under, and even with the efforts that utterly exhausted us the water gained.

"No help was in sight on the tumbling ocean, and at last we began to despair. In a last attempt to save the ship we threw the cargo overboard, yet with the decks only two inches above the water we were forced to look death in the face.

"We had abandoned hope, when at the last moment, we sighted a steamer. We made frantic efforts to attract her attention, but she held on her course without seeing us.

"Such a sight compelled despair, but life is dear, and we toiled anew at the pumps of the poor old staggering wreck. Our two boats and most of the rigging were gone.

"For twenty-four hours longer we worked like slaves with the grip of death upon us. And then, just as physical exhaustion was conquering us at last, we saw a large vessel rapidly bearing down. She turned out to be the German Lloyd liner Main, commanded by Captain Jansen, from New York for Bremen. Our decks were then flush with the sea, and we had scarcely strength to keep ourselves from being washed overboard. The heavy gale was still raging, but a lifeboat was launched from the liner, and they rescued us, with much difficulty and danger. It was not easy to believe, as we stood safe on the big ship's deck, that we were still alive."

"Truscott's Folly."

The election of Sir George Wyatt Truscott as Lord Mayor of London for next year calls to mind the fact that his father, Sir Francis Truscott, who was Lord Mayor in 1879, was responsible for the Griffin that marks the site of Temple Bar. The heraldic beast, which, when set up, was the object of much derision, was popularly known as "Truscott's Folly"—an appellation long forgotten. The new Lord Mayor, like genial Sir William Treloar, has a soft place in his heart for the young. In August of this year a lad of 18 years, who had absconded with nearly $1,000 belonging to his employers, was brought before him at the Mansion House. In the course of the evidence it transpired that, although only receiving a weekly wage of $5, large sums in cash passed through his hands daily. Sir George, after inquiries about his character, sentenced the young fellow to only six weeks' in the second division.

Sir George is no lover of the man who cannot hold his tongue, and on one occasion imposed an extra fine upon a cabman for his garrulity. The man was accused of having turned to the right, instead of the left, when driving out of Liverpool Street station, London—a regulation with which all drivers are expected to comply. The defendant urged that he did not understand this regulation, and did not know what he was supposed to do. But he pleaded his cause too lengthily and too frequently. "Five shillings and costs," said Sir George, in giving judgment, "for talking so much. If you had not talked so much, I would not have fined you so much."

Philanthropy.

"No," said the bishop of Oklahoma, a wise and broad man who had seen much and suffered much; "I make it a rule to perform marriage ceremonies free. I have no desire to profit by other people's mistakes."—Puck.

HOW THE DOCTOR WON.

By JEANNETTE S. BENTON.

The office boy heard the doctor in the annex and went out. Her face was buried in a basin of water, and the formaldehyde bottle stood open.

"How's the smallpox?" he asked.

"Bad," she replied, emerging rosy from the towel. "Is any one waiting?"

"No one now but Mr. Doane Aldrich. Been three or four, but they got tired waiting."

"Very well. Tell him I will be there in a minute."

As the boy closed the door she walked to the mirror and regarded herself attentively, spraying violet water over her hands and hair.

"I wish I had some powder," she murmured. "I am afraid I look blowzy."

To the tall young man in the reception room she looked discouragingly cool and unperturbed as he arose at her entrance.

"It is a little matter, doctor," he explained. "I have just been transferred to the Y mine, and they have smallpox down there, so I suppose it is necessary to be vaccinated."

"It certainly is if you haven't been lately. Things are in bad shape at the Y. I have put in the whole afternoon there. There's a good deal of smallpox and more dissatisfaction. I suppose the dissatisfaction is what sent you there."

"I suppose so. What's at the bottom of the trouble anyway?"

"Sickening hovels and the company store. If you can get the company to do anything before those people murder you as its nearest representative you will be doing good work. However, come into the office, and I will vaccinate you."

He followed her in.

"This is the first time I ever came here as a subject," he remarked.

He bared his arm and looked dubiously at its white surface.

How could she be a doctor? Still, he had sometimes wished he could be sick a week or two. It would be such a good chance to see her every day. What was she going to do with that razor looking little knife? It had been so long since he was vaccinated he had forgotten all about it. Did she jab the stuff in at the end of that? If she was going to jab he wished she would and stop that scratching.

He watched the scratching knife, fascinated. Suddenly it began to describe erratic circles in his vision.

Dr. Richie felt his arm relaxing under her grasp. With a movement as quiet as it was quick she eased his stalwart body to the floor, then loosened his collar and dashed a little water in his face.

He opened his eyes slowly.

"Oh, I say," he gasped, "what's the matter?"

The doctor stood a little way off regarding him with professional gravity.

"I was vaccinating you, and you fainted," she explained. "You will be all right in a moment."

He got rather uncertainly to his feet and leaned against a convenient case of drawers.

"Good Lord!" he groaned. "What do you think of me? I hope you don't think it was because it hurt. I don't know what it was. I was watching that little knife; then I was here on the floor. Please finish the job," he concluded irritably. "I'll try to stand up under it."

As she adjusted the small bandage he thought savagely:

"If I should lift you off your feet, my sweet doctor, and kiss that diabolical dimple you might at least respect my muscle. How can a fellow make love to a woman doctor anyway?" Aloud he said, "Thank you, doctor," rather abruptly, hurried into his coat, settled with the office boy and got away with all speed.

The doctor strolled to the window and watched him go striding off, his big shoulders squared.

"Poor old fellow!" she said softly.

Then she flushed and smiled in a way that little befitted a member of the medical profession.

"He is bashful and stupid, too," she pouted.

Doane Aldrich squared his shoulders against his troubles often that winter. His recognized powers as a pacificator seemed to have signally failed.

One day he swung into the cart as the doctor was trotting home.

"See here," he said. "I must talk with you. I don't know what to do with those people. Heaven knows they have reason enough to be sore, and I am helpless. Of course they can't realize that, but the company pays no attention to my representations. I am the nearest thing the poor brutes have to hate, and they hate me well. Tomorrow I have got to discharge McGuire and Kearney"—

The doctor interrupted: "That means a strike, to begin with. Then Kate McGuire and Dilsey Kearney—why, they would as soon have a riot as enough to eat."

"But what can I do? The men have come on the shift twice within a week drunk and quarrelsome. Overlook it and they will all get drunk and"—

"Raise hades," gently suggested the doctor. Then her face grew mischievous. "Don't you think you had better follow your predecessor's example and throw it up?" she suggested.

He looked at her with decided sternness.

"I suppose that was about the opinion you entertained of me. Excuse me. There is a man I want to see." And Mr. Aldrich had checked the horse enough to depart.

It was cold, with a driving mist, when the doctor drove up to her gate several evenings later.

"Poor Bess!" she said to the panting horse. "Tired, aren't you?"

A small, tattered boy came down the road, running wearily, as though nearly spent.

"Oh, Miss Doctor," he shrilled, "wait!"

His face shone pale through the dirt. As he came up she recognized the pit boss' boy.

"Ma sent me to tell you to do somethin' quick. Kate an' Dilsey is out with a lot of wimin, an' they are runnin' wild. Mr. Aldrich went down with the new shift. Pa told him he better watch things on top, but he thought pa needed help. Now they are goin' to git hold of the shaft house an' when Mr. Aldrich comes up with the new men either drop the cage or rock 'em."

The doctor's face had grown white as the boy talked.

"The shift will come up at 6?" she asked.

The boy nodded.

"Come into the house. You must be dried and fed. I will telephone the police, but Bess and I will get there half an hour ahead of them. Heaven knows what we will do, but we will do something or die!" she half whispered.

"Now, go, Bess!" she cried as she sprang into the buggy.

As she approached the little town she could hear a swelling din of discordant voices. She dashed through an alley and came out in the street in front of the shaft house. The women were sweeping around the corner just below her, fifteen or twenty of them. Their tossing arms and distorted faces held her a second fascinated. Then her brown eyes brightened mischievously, and she wheeled the horse and cart directly in front of the howling crowd.

"Kate McGuire!" she called, pointing an accusing whip at her. Their momentum carried them nearly to the cart. Then, as they could not conveniently climb it and the "darlin' docthor" was a person to respect anyway, they stopped.

"What do you mean," she demanded sternly, "yelling around in this cold rain? What do you think it will do for your neuralgia? You will be crazy with it. Your cheek is all swelled up now, and your eye looks as though you had broken a blood vessel. I knew a woman once"—her voice grew deeply impressive—"whose eye burst, and she didn't expose herself the way you are doing either. And you, too, Dilsey, just nicely over the smallpox—do you know what you will have? You will have a relapse!"

She fairly hurled the word at her, and Dilsey received it with a moan of terror.

"Holy mother, docthor!" she wailed. "Do it be fatal?"

Kate had shut her mouth and was whining softly, cuddling her face in her damp shawl. She turned reproachfully to the women behind her.

"The docthor's right. This do be a sorry night for poor wimin cratures to be out in, an' ye ought to be ashamed, me head's crazy already wid the pain."

She came close to the buggy.

"Docthor, dear, do be givin' me somethin'!" she entreated.

"How many of you have vaccinations that you'll be taking cold in? And you, Jerusha—I thought you told me you couldn't speak a loud word?"

"No more I can," croaked Jerusha hoarsely.

"Go home, every one of you!" she waved imperiously. "You ought to be ashamed, running around like a lot of lunatics. I'll come around presently and give you something for that neuralgia, Kate, and you a dose, too, Dilsey."

Five minutes later there wasn't a woman in sight save the doctor.

"Poor old girl!" she said, loosening up the harness. "I nearly killed you, didn't I?"

There was a sound of hurrying feet, and Mr. Aldrich came in breathlessly.

"Are you safe?" he cried.

She gave him one quick glance, her white chin and red lips set with becoming gravity.

"I think I am," she replied, with a mild note of inquiry. "Do you feel dangerous?"

He strode up to her and looked down into the provoking face.

"A man who faints when he is vaccinated is a fit subject to be saved from a mob of women, isn't he?" he questioned. "Don't think I don't realize how serious it was. I know you probably saved me from a very unpleasant death, but I wish you hadn't."

He searched her face an instant, then suddenly drew her to him and kissed almost roughly the derisive dimple that was flaunting at him.

"I have been tempted a hundred times," he said defiantly.

"And you were too—too stupid to—er—fall!"

Draughts as an Education.

There is no game extant which so admirably combines educational and recreative features or which is in every way so well adapted for a popular and profitable amusement among refined and appreciative classes as draughts. Its influences are of an elevating character. It not only teaches, but practically enforces, the necessity of patience and perseverance, courage and courtesy, self reliance and self control. The game is also peculiarly and self evidently worthy of paternal encouragement, as a knowledge of its incomparable beauties will destroy the taste for demoralizing games of chance.—Exchange.

Wheat For Mexico.

It seems strange that a consumer in Mexico should look to Alberta for wheat, with the whole of the Western States lying between. Special significance, therefore, seems to attach to such news items as this dispatch from Lethbridge: "The Taylor Milling Co. has received an order for ten cars of Alberta red wheat from Mexico."

The wheat grown in the Canadian West must be earning a widespread reputation for quality.

Fire in Kitchen of Bessie Butler—Superintendent Says $50 Damage

At eight o'clock last night a fire broke out in the kitchen of the "Bessie Butler" at the wharf at Lakefield. It was rumored that the loss was a large one, but Superintendent McClellan, of the Trent Canal, told the Review to-day that the damage would likely amount to only $50. The boat is now laid up for the winter, and was just about to be placed in winter quarters when the blaze occurred.

THE LATEST NEWS FROM NORWOOD AND VICINITY

Factory Employee Victim of an Accident—Death of the Mother of a Peterborough Man—Improvements to School.

Norwood, Dec. 15.—Mr. Daniel Rogers, employed in the John Finlay & Son hub factory, met with a painful though not serious accident yesterday while attending to his duties. Mr. Rogers was up a ladder oiling the shafting, when the ladder toppled over and he was percipitated to the hard floor beneath him. The fall resulted in a severe shaking up.

Death entered the happy home of Mr. Frank Parker on Saturday evening last and bereft him of his beloved wife, Eliza Rork, aged 62 years. Deceased was born in Dummer and was married to Mr. Parker 16 years ago. A few years ago they purchased from Mr. John Baskin their present comfortable home on the Hastings road near the village of Norwood. Four brothers and three sisters survive her, viz., Messrs. Thomas Rork, of the Customs Department, Peterborough; John, of Wisconsin; Richard, of Michigan, Wm., of New York State; Mrs. Saunders of Michigan; Mrs. J. Wigmore, of Alberta, and Mrs. Wigmore, of Norwood. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon at 2.30 to the Norwood cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Jas. Andrews, Richard Patterson, George Gardiner, Jas. Marks, Robert Ferguson and Donald McNaughton.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beavis, manager and matron of the House of Refuge Lakefield, were in Norwood on Monday attending the funeral of their esteemed friend, Mrs. Parker.

Miss O'Shea, of Asphodel, had a successful auction sale on Tuesday afternoon of this week. All farm stock and implements were disposed of at good prices. Auctioneer John Haggart of Peterborough, wielded the hammer. Mr. Wm. O'Shea, an old Norwood boy but now of Peterborough, looked after the financial end of the sale, assisted by Mr. W. A. Richardson of Norwood, as checker.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held on Monday evening. The members present were Messrs. James L. Squire chairman; Waters, Cuffe, Harrison, Anderson, Drain, Doherty and Elliott.

Mr. R. Lees, P.S.I., was present, and addressed the Board urging upon them the importance of certain requirements set forth in his report. Several sets of books were required for supplementary reading. The school was in urgent need of new blackboards and a proper system of ventilation. After careful consideration the Board decided to make the necessary improvements and to put metallic ceilings on two of the rooms. The ventilation was to be looked into and the probable cost ascertained.

Mr. Cuffe, chairman of the Supply Committee, pointed out that certain equipment was required for the High School so that our school should rank in the approved list. It was decided to procure what was needed consisting of certain maps and charts, globes and drawing models, and some apparatus for the science department to the extent of approximately $1.00. It was decided to give the principals of the schools the privilege of closing the schools on Friday evening, Dec. 18th.

The following accounts were passed;—Corporation of Norwood share of auditing books and printing to Board of Education, $11.00; Norwood Register, printing and ads., $9.00; C. J. Searight, 12 stools at 60c., $7.20; secretary, postage, 1908, $2.45; W. H. Tucker, supplies, $37.50; T. J. Rahal, repairs etc., $118.90.

Board adjourned.

Mrs. Spencer is visiting at the home of Mr. Ira Cumming.

Mr. Wm. Shea, of Peterborough, was in town on Tuesday.

Mrs. Walter Fowlds of Hastings, was in town on Tuesday.

Miss Kathleen Graham, of Hastings, was in ton on Tuesday.

Mrs. J. Stewart, of High Bluff, Man., is visiting her daughter, Miss Beatrice Stewart, Peterborough street.

Mr. Herb Stevenson of Chicago, Miss Olive Stevenson and Mrs. Mullin, of Montreal, are at home attending the funeral of their father, the late W. H. Stevenson.

Miss Regina Fry, of Peterborough, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Fry.

Mrs. T. Devitt and son, Allan, of Manitoba, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Patterson, King street.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Beavis, of Lakefield, were in town on Monday.

THE ASSOCIATED CHARITIES ESTABLISH CENTRAL BUREAU

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—One of the great problems our city has to face each winter is the finding of employment for the large number of men who flock in from all over the province, and who very often are not in a position to advertise or pay the usual fee to the regular employment office for the securing of work.

To meet this situation the Associated charities of Toronto has decided to open up a free labor bureau, both to employer and employee, and thus make it a simple matter for both to be acquainted with each other's needs.

To make this as largely provincial as possible it would require a considerable amount of money to advertise in the various newspapers, and yet we feel that unless we have the sympathy of the press we will not accomplish much. We have therefore decided to ask the editors of the different papers to assist us by giving space to the enclosed item. Should the scheme commend itself as one likely to help in some degree towards th assisting of the unemployed, by putting them in a position to help themselves, we would further request that the press, in its editorial column, urge employers of labor to endeavor to provide employment in winter months for this class of men, even though it should not be as remunerative as at other seasons of the year. We believe in the principle of making employment the basis of relief, and thus preserve the self-respect of our citizens; and, further, it is recognized that an unemployed workman if left to himself is prone to become unemployable.

We therefore appeal to manufacturers, employers of labor and farmers to assist us in this good work.

Hoping to have your hearty co-operation, I am,

Sincerely yours,
SAMUEL ARNOLD.
Secretary.

TO EMPLOYERS OF LABOR.

In order to relieve the intense situation of the unemployed of this province, who seem to gather in the larger centres during the early winter months, it has been decided by the Associated Charities to open a free employment bureau in Toronto. This appeal is being sent broadcast through the province to the manufacturers, farmers and all people who employ labor to co-operate in this work; and it is earnestly hoped that anyone needing help of any kind, skilled or unskilled, will apply direct to the "Toronto Free Employment Bureau," 71 Victoria street.

The Bureau already has hundreds of capable men willing to undertake work of any kind that may be offered them, who prefer work rather than charity.

The help of the people in this district will considerably lessen the necessity of appeals being made for large sums of money to be used for charity.

TO HELP IN THE GREAT WORK OF RESCUING CONSUMPTIVES

Toronto, Dec. 12, '08.

Dear ——

A request of the National Sanitarium Association asking the order to interest members in the sale of Christmas stamps, was, after consultation with the executive, considered and approved.

The object of this Christmas stamp campaign is to raise money for the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives which has cared for a large number of patients from all parts of Canada, a large proportion of them being treated entirely free of cost. No patient has ever been refused admission to this hospital because of his or her inability to pay, and because of this fact it is felt that a liberal response should be made from the various Circles appealed to. There are no other institutions in Canada except those conducted by the National Sanitarium Association where patients suffering from Tuberculosis are treated free, and as perhaps you may be aware, the hospitals in the various cities throughout Canada refuse to receive consumptive in the public wards.

The Muskoka Free Hospital has accommodation for 75 patients. Many more applications are received than there is accommodation for. What occurs in such a case is the applicant's name is put on the waiting list and is admitted as soon as there is a vacant bed.

It is the intention to devote the money raised from the sale of the stamps to increase accommodation for needy patients, and thus admit applicants more promptly.

Will you interest all the members of our Order in placing these stamps on sale to the best advantage wherever it is possible to do so, especially in the larger stores where good work can be accomplished by getting a girl in the uniform of a trained nurse to take charge; supplementing this, a committee of ladies should be formed to take the matter in hand.

In addition to having them on sale in stores, would you be good enough to urge the merchants to use the stamp on every letter and package going out of their places of business. Splendid results have been secured in Denmark and elsewhere in a similar campaign waged last year by interesting the school children. Will you lay this matter before the principals and teachers of your schools, and furnish them with full particulars.

It would be very helpful to secure the aid of the newspapers and request them to give you reading notices, explaining the use to which the funds so raised will be applied.

A commission of 15c on each dollar's worth of stamps sold may be allowed school children and stores, if deemed desirable.

I am sending a supply of stamps to the leader of your society which I hope you will use every effort to dispose of, and if further supplies of stamps are required they may be had together with circulars and illustrated show cards, from Mr J. S. Robertson, Secretary Treasurer, National Sanitarium Association, 347 King St. West, Toronto, upon receipt of a letter or telegram.

The committee feels that every member of our Order should take the keenest interest in furthering the use and sale of the Christmas stamps and in this way render much needed assistance to a most worthy cause.

Do not hesitate to write or telegraph for a further supply of stamps if you can use them to advantage.

Believe me,
Yours sincerely, HN
M. S. SAVAGE,
Ontario Provincial Secretary.

The King's Daughters have received a supply of stamps for any who wish to secure them.

PROMINENT HOSPITALS SAY

PE-RU-NA IS EFFICIENT

IN RELIEVING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES.

SISTERS OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD, MONTREAL.

HOSPITALS ALL OVER THE CONTINENT FIND PE-RU-NA VALUABLE IN TREATING ALL CATARRHAL DISEASES

CATARRH of the respiratory organs is a common ailment in Canada for at least two thirds of the year.

This condition is no doubt caused by the long, severe winters experienced in this part of the continent.

Therefore, when Peruna was discovered by Canadian people to be a reliable remedy for these catarrhal diseases, it at once became a popular medicine, not only among individuals and in families, but in the great hospitals, where it was used as a preventative and relief in hundreds of cases.

These institutions do not hesitate to give their endorsement of the remedy which has been so helpful in the treatment of their poor and sick.

Among these institutions is that of the Sisters of Good Shepherd, who gave the following endorsement:

The Peruna Company,
Columbus, Ohio,

Having used Peruna for the past few months, for our sick and poor, we are happy to say that it has given us great satisfaction.

The Sisters of the Good Shepherd,
August 20, 1903.
Montreal.

After a continued use of the remedy, this institution has found no reason to change its good opinion of the remedy and expresses its satisfaction in the following terms:

Montreal, Nov. 7, 1903.

We found Peruna a relief in several cases.

We can say it is a good tonic and we are very thankful.

Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

When catarrh once fastens itself upon the system it becomes an obstinate disease to eradicate.

A systemic remedy—one that reaches every internal organ of the body—is an absolute necessity.

Peruna is just such a remedy. It searches out the cause of the disease, healing and strengthening the mucous membranes, and thus giving Nature an opportunity to perform her part of the restorative process.

One of the many hospitals which have found Peruna of value in treating old and obstinate cases of catarrh is the Hospital St. John, who write, as follows:

"We are happy to tell you that your Peruna has given us satisfaction. Three patients have tried it, one 68 years old, Renoui Dupuis, afflicted with catarrh, is much relieved, more than he has been for a number of years.

"A young girl, 15 years old, had an obstinate cough, which half a bottle of Peruna caused to disappear.

"As to myself, two bottles have convinced me that Peruna is magnificent as a tonic.

"Before the treatment I could not walk for a quarter of an hour without experiencing much fatigue. Now I can walk a mile easily.

"Through these three cases we desire to make known to the public the efficiency of your remedy."

Hospital St. John, of St. Johns,
Province of Quebec.

A later letter received from the same institution reads as follows:

"Three weeks ago I wrote to tell you how satisfactory we found Peruna. We recommend it highly for colds, coughs, catarrh and neuralgia.

"I have used it myself as a tonic with the best results, taken as directed, half a teaspoonful every half hour."

Mrs. Etta Booker, Dundurn, Sask., N. W. T., Canada, writes:

"I suffered with pelvic catarrh until I wrote to Dr. Hartman, and after taking treatment as he advised, I can say I am now cured of this most trying affliction, for which I am truly thankful. I think Peruna the best medicine for catarrh. I never felt better in my life than I do at present."

Peruna not only promptly relieves coughs and colds in their first stages, but is equally prompt and efficient for catarrhal diseases in the chronic stage.

Of course, it is only reasonable to suppose that a great deal less medicine will be necessary to cure a slight attack of catarrh than would be required to relieve the ailment after it had been allowed to become chronic.

Ask your Druggist for a Free Peruna Almanac for 1909.

Damage Done in Vacant Store at Corner of George and Edinburgh Streets

Considerable damage was done in the vacant store at the corner of George and Edinburgh street on Monday night. Some parties passing by late at night got out of the vehicle in which they were riding and smashed a window in the store and getting inside upset a counter and did some other damage.

A gentleman who resides in the neighborhood heard the noise and looking out of his window saw what was going on.

MARINE INQUIRY AT OTTAWA AFFAIRS OF ONE OFFICIAL

A Government Employee Got $500.

Work Was Executed Without Contract--Difference Between Tenders and Disbursements.

Ottawa, Dec. 17.—While there was no conclusive evidence of wrong-doing brought out in evidence at the Marine Department enquiry by Judge Cassels here yesterday, counsel for the commission seemed to regard some of the statements made with considerable suspicion.

Much of the attention of the commission was devoted to a payment of $500 to Commander Spain by the late Frank Polson of the Polson Iron Works, Toronto. Mr. Spain said that he had received this money for the purpose of investment in real estate in British Columbia, but not having so invested it he returned it in bills to Mr. Polson.

J. B. Miller, principal owner of the Polson Iron Works, swore that there was nothing in the books of the company to show that this money had been refunded.

Mr. Watson, K.C., got witness to say that he always tried to be careful in business matters, and then asked him if that were so why he could not explain various entries in the books of several checks drawn chargeable to cash. Mr. Miller said that was Mr. Polson's end of the business. He trusted him in such matters. If the money was returned to Mr. Polson he might have used it for expenses without entering it.

The examination then switched to the tender for the construction of the Government protective boat Vigilant, which was built to replace the Petrel in Lake Erie waters. The tender was for $124,000 as against $86,000 put in by the Bertram Engine Co. Mr. Miller declared that the Bertram tender was for a smaller boat, and the specifications were different. A search through the records of the Department revealed the fact that the Bertram Co.'s specifications had been returned after the Polson tender had been accepted.

Mr. Watson thereupon got the permission of the commissioner to telegraph to the manager of the Bertram Iron Works to come to Ottawa and bring the specifications with him.

Mr. Watson elicited the fact that repairs by the Polson Iron Works to the Petrel had been executed without contract. These ran to about $20,000.

"Would you care to say what profits were charged on the labor of the men employed?" asked Mr. Watson.

"No."

"Outside of good work, what gratuities were given?" interrogated the judge.

"It may be that some were given, but not many."

"You could shorten matters by saying what gratuities were given the employes of the Marine Department," pursued the judge.

"I don't know that they got a cent. If anything of that kind was done, it was done by Mr. Polson," declared Mr. Miller.

The charges for repairs to the steamer Aberdeen were then taken up. Mr. Watson wanted to know why the original tenders called for an expenditure of only $17,000, while the accounts showed that $45,423 had been paid. Mr. Miller explained that the original tenders did not include everything, and there was some confusion in the orders. The company during the last three years had done business with the Department to the extent of $296,000. It had lost money on a good deal of the work, and would not average a fair profit.

R. O. MacKay of Hamilton, whose steamer Golspie had been chartered to take supplies to the lighthouses, was asked why $7,500 was paid for the service when he had offered the boat for $5,800.

Mr. MacKay said the tender had referred to a smaller boat. The work had been got for him by Mr. Zimmerman, M.P.

Several others were examined, but owing to the lack of books there was nothing conclusive.

LOCAL OPTION IN MANITOBA

Temperance and Liquor Factions Are Both Claiming Victory.

Winnipeg, Dec. 17.—Both the temperance and the liquor forces are claiming a victory as a result of the vote on local option on Tuesday. Local option carried in five places; was sustained in six, repealed in one and defeated in 70, as follows:

Carried, with following majorities: Emerson 1, Roblin 11, Winchester 60, Hamiota 123, Minitonas 20.

Repealed: In Kildonan by a majority of 68.

Defeated, majorities: Morris 27, Selkirk 6, Carberry 35, Russell 3, Municipality of Louise 32, Westbourne 28, Franklin 55.

Sustained, majorities: North Norfolk 6, Edward (large majority), Pipestone 250, Odanah 19, Swan River 18, South Norfolk 16.

In Selkirk the temperance people claim there was wholesale impersonation, there being a large resident vote there. In Emerson, on the other hand, the liquor people assert two Americans voted for local option which gave the law its majority of one. They will demand a recount.

A great many more contests that had been planned by the temperance people were knocked out by the court on a technicality.

FATHER HAND APPOINTED TO BISHOPRIC

London, Ont., Dec. 17.—A report was current yesterday that Rev. Father Hand of Toronto had been appointed to the bishopric of London, in succession to Archbishop McEvay.

The report was stated in authoritative Roman Catholic quarters to be premature. At St. Paul's rectory, Toronto, it was stated that Rev. Father Hand would be back next week for Christmas. Until his return no definite information was available.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Postmaster-General, will arrive in New York on Saturday from Great Britain, and is expected to proceed at once to the capital.

John Bruce Woodward, a student at the state university, died at his home at Maysville, Ky., as the result of the bursting of a blood vessel in his lung while he was blowing into a lung-testing machine.

The monument to the Irish dead, the immigrants buried at Grosse Isle, will be erected there about the end of July or August next. It will take the form of a Celtic Cross suitably inscribed to the nameless dead. The A. O. H. will hold big ceremonies in connection with the event.

A TRIP TO THE HOLY LAND AS TOLD BY PETERBOROUGH MAN

Mr. T. F. Matthews Tells of an Interesting Journey---First Part of the Trip Described---Something About Spain and Gibraltar.

The Review has been fortunate in securing for publication the address on the trip to the Holy Land, given by Mr. T. F. Matthews, before the Epworth League of George street Methodist church on Monday evening, Dec. 14th. The first instalment appears to-day and will be read with deep interest.

I have been prevailed upon by a member of your League to give a short account of a trip to the Orient, which I took early this year, accompanied by my wife and three other young ladies of Peterborough. I shall attempt to do so, and to take you with me on a portion, at least, of a most interesting journey.

We left New York early in February, on a bitter cold morning, and for the first few days we experienced rough, cold and altogether disagreeable weather, but as we approached the other side it became much warmer, and you can readily understand, much more pleasant.

We sighted the Madiera Islands on the morning of St. Valentine's Day, and sailed alongside the largest one for several hours in the early morning. On the slopes we could see comfortable looking white cottages nestled in vineyards and fields of sugar cane. Funchal, the capital, is situated at the southern end of the largest island, 600 miles south-west of Gibraltar. It is the capital of the Portuegese province, comprising all of the islands. As our ship came to anchor, it was immediately surrounded with small boats containing articles for sale, the owners of which were anxious to get on deck, and diving men and boys in somewhat scanty clothing, who clamored for pieces of silver to be thrown into the water, and which they always recovered. On landing, we were immediately struck with the beauty of the place, and the manner of transportation.

The city is built on the steep sides of a mountain, and the streets are all paved with cobble stones. The cabs are provided with runners instead of wheels, and are drawn by oxen. The driver walks or jogs along beside it, and when in his opinion, it is "drawing hard" he throws down an oil soaked cloth for the runners to pass over. As we passed along the streets, whether in cabs, tramcar, or on foot, happy looking children threw flowers at us, hoping that we would throw back pennies in return. We went up the mountain on a cog wheel railway, and after lunching in a beautiful garden overlooking the sea, surrounded by roses, camelias, lilies, rhodendrums and the beautiful beauginvillia, we came down the mountain by what is known as the "Toboggan Slide." An uneven path about eight or ten foot wide, paved with cobble stones. Each wicker basket sled holds two persons and is guided by two men, who run or hang on behind for the distance of two miles, and who carry the sled up the mountain on their heads or backs. In the evening we went to the Casino, where a ball was given, which was lavishly decorated for the occasion. The roulette tables seemed to be well occupied. I could say much more of this beautiful spot, which we were loath to leave, but I must hasten on.

Our next stop was at Cadiz, in Spain, at one time, one of the principal cities of the world, now an important seaport for the south-west portion of Spain. I had expected to see a dirty seaport city, instead found a fairly clean and inviting city. Driving through the streets, we were impressed by the smart, tidy appearance of the women. They have beautiful hair, and know how to show it off. Each wore a lace mantilla instead of a hat.

Among the interesting places visited was Los Capuchinos, formerly a convent, now a church. It was here that Murillo fell from the scaffold while painting the "Marriage of St. Catherine."

The train service in Spain is not the very best, but we left in very comfortable cars by special train for Seville. Immediately outside of the city, we passed extensive salt beds, where the sea water is evaporated, and the salt piled up in the shape of small pyramids to dry. The cacti hedges along each side of the railway, and dividing the fields, were new to us, and I am sure, very effective. Certainly, I would not care to climb over

OTTOMAN EMPIRE

New Parliament Meets To-day—Sultan Will Ride Through Streets.

Constantinople, Dec. 17.—Turkey makes her bow as a full-fledged constitutional monarchy to-day, when the new Ottoman Parliament holds its first session.

This assembly was provided for in the constitution granted by Sultan Abdul Hamid last July, and is the first body of its kind to meet in the empire for over thirty years. The life of its only predecessor was brief, but hopes are entertained for the success of the new-comer.

To-day has been proclaimed a general holiday in honor of the Parliament, and the city is doing its best to observe the occasion fittingly. The decorations are quite unprecedented, and most of the population is in the streets eagerly discussing the prospects of the new regime. Practically every regiment in the Constantinople garrison will line the route under arms, when the Sultan drives to open the assembly, while school children, stationed at vantage points along the way, will sing the hymn of liberty as the imperial cortege passes.

Congratulatory addresses have been received by the new Parliament from both the British Parliament and the Russian Douma.

P.C. NEWHALL WILL BRING RATTRAY TO CITY TO-NIGHT

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Dec. 16— William Rattray was arrested by Detective Guthrie at his home in Dovercourt road today on a warrant from Peterborough, charging him with the theft of $600. He will be taken back for trial to-morrow.

Rattray was in Peterborough all summer playing baseball. He left here in September, absconding it is said, with $600 belonging to Mr Martin Connor, proprietor of the City hotel.

Mr Connor had drawn the above sum from the bank early one afternoon and before evening it mysteriously disappeared. That same night Rattray went to Toronto.

P. C. Newhall left this morning for the city and will return this evening on the local with the prisoner.

DOUMA'S PRESIDENT QUITS BIG EXCITEMENT CAUSED

St. Petersburg, Dec. 17.—During the course of an exciting session of the Douma yesterday afternoon Nikolai A. Khomyakoff, the president of the Douma, quitted the chamber and wrote his resignation.

Scenes of excitement arose over the discussion in the House of the Government bill to grant a credit of $500,000 for the benefit of the employes of the prison administration, who were victims of outrages while on duty or their families if the employes were killed. The Socialists and Laborites hotly denounced the administration and the inquisitorial torturing methods applied to political prisoners.

Deputy Bosanoff, in a specially violent speech, asserted that as a result of the rigorous rule 60 per cent. of these prisoners developed consumption.

The Rightest deputies angrily protested against this, whereupon M. Rosanoff declared that the Rightists possessed less honor than Russian convicts on the eve of execution.

President Khomyakoff in response to a stampede on the part of the offended deputies, called upon M. Rosanoff to withdraw this expression, M. Rosanoff did so to the satisfaction of the president of the Douma, but the Rightists quitted the House in a body and went to the president's room, where they insisted that M. Rosanoff must apologize. Thereupon M. Khomyakoff wrote his resignation and left a chairman, Prince Volkonsky, in charge of the Douma. The credit was finally adopted.

A LUNATIC'S VICTIM DIES AT TORONTO

Toronto, Dec. 17.—William Bolton, the aged foreman of the Mimico Asylum farm, who was attacked with a pitchfork by a lunatic on Wednesday, died at 6 o'clock last night.

Mr. Bolton was 80 years of age, and had been employed in connection with the institution for twenty years. He is survived by a daughter.

Shannon, the crazed man who assaulted deceased, has been moved from the farm cottage to the refractory cottage of the main institution, and will be transferred to the criminal ward of the Hamilton Asylum.

ADVISES HASTE WITH TARIFF

Writer in Standard Advises Britain to Hurry Up.

London, Dec. 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A writer described as "One of the Captains of Canadian Industry" wrote The Standard as follows:

"There has been enough delay; Canada has had enough of Little England temporizing. If Britain has not within a year a Government-prepared reciprocity or preferential tariff, my firm belief is that Canada will decide to play her own business game. Once that is started, alas for poor sentiment and the prospect of a really solid united empire."

The Standard says it is only a partner, the leading oversea nation within the empire that Canada can reap the full harvest she has laboriously sewn to retain her individuality and develop on national lines.

Harry Symons, K. C., Toronto, writes the press suggesting that the Barbadoes, and possibly the whole West Indies, should unite with Canada. The suggestion is viewed with considerable interest.

AGAINST HOLLAND

Venezuela Said to Have Declared War — Report Reaches Washington

United Press Despatch.

Washington, Dec. 17— Venezuela has declared war against Holland according to advices received at the State Department today.

This news is contained in a despatch from Secretary Paxton Hibbin, secretary of the legation at Bogota, Colombia. He states that the Colombian Minister of Foreign Affairs has received the following telegram from Caracas dated December 14. "In view of the blockade established and the capture by the blockade of a Venezuelan vessel the head of the government at Venezuela after assuming extraordinary powers for the defence of the country has declared a state of war."

A Mob Sweeps Through Caracas.

Pillaged Homes of the Venezeulan President---Newspaper Was Ransacked.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 14, via Willemstad, Curacao, Dec. 17.—The people of Caracas arose yesterday against President Castro.

An infuriated mob, unhindered by the police, swept through the city, wrecking the property of his closest friends. The people rounded up all the statues and pictures of President Castro from the clubs and other semi-public buildings and burnt them with rejoicing on the Plaza Bolivar.

No official act deposing Castro from the Presidency of Venezuela has yet been taken, but such a step is expected any moment.

The first building to be attacked and looted was that of the lottery monopoly. The offices of the state enterprise that has enriched itself at the expense of the people were ransacked and pillaged.

The crowd then moved to the printing office of El Constitutional, the organ of President Castro, of which Gumersindo Rivas is editor, and pillaged it completely.

It was after one o'clock by the time the crowd had gotten thus far in its depredations. It lacked leadership, and paused in default of other fields for its destruction energies. It was then that a detachment of troops was called out for duty on the city's streets, and acting President Gomes issued a manifesto prohibiting further manifestations. These measures had the desired end, for the mob quieted down and dispersed, while the city was placed under martial law. To-day the city is quiet and business is normal, but further disorders and rioting are expected to-morrow at the funeral of Maracano Rojas, one of the men killed in yesterday's fighting. There have been no demonstrations against the Netherlands, in spite of that country's warlike attitude. They have all been directed against President Castro and acting President Gomez.

VOTING ON THE POWER BY-LAWS

Seventeen Western Ontario Towns Will Vote on January 4th.

Toronto, Dec. 17.—Seventeen municipalities will vote on the electric power bylaw on Jan. 4. These are situated in western Ontario.

Hon. Adam Beck and A. F. Lobb have been touring in this district and pointing out the facts which render the present an opportune moment for the adoption in the west of a cheap power policy. An option on the construction of an additional 193 miles of transmission line at the contract rates submitted by F. M. McGuigan, is chief of these.

At least 5,000 horse-power will be required if the 17 centres vote in the affirmative.

Windsor, Walkerville, Chatham, Kingsville and Leamington are some of the principal places.

In Chatham there is some opposition from those interested in the natural gas plant but it is not generally considered that the gas interests would suffer.

LOCAL OPTION AT HAVELOCK

Two Public Meetings Have Been Held in Interest of the Movement.

The local option committee at Havelock are working away energetically. Two public meetings have already been held in the opera house, one addressed by Rev. Mr Kettlewell, Field-Secretary of the Dominion Alliance, and by the resident ministers. The secretary clearly explained the local option law, showing the difference between it and the Dunkin and Scott Acts and its superiority to both. The other meeting was addressed by Mrs. Owen Hitchcox. This talented lady quickly won the sympathies of the large audience and held its attention by her eloquence and ability for an hour and a half. Her manner of address is very pleasant and unassuming. Rev J G. Potter, of Peterborough also gave a brief but telling address on the abolition of the bar and suppression of the treating system.—Com.

WOMAN SHOOTS HER ASSAILANT

Hamilton, Dec. 17.—There was another shooting affray yesterday afternoon amongst foreigners, and Kata Kataranin, an Austrian woman, who keeps a boarding-house at 408 North Hughson street, was locked up on the charge of shooting at Hurnash Gaskbasvitch, a boarder, with intent to kill. The boarder secured the warrant. When he appeared at police headquarters he displayed two bullet holes in his clothing. One bullet grazed his shoulder and another his side. The side of his face was blackened with powder. The woman cannot speak English, but when an interpreter was secured she told him that the boarder had attempted to assault her in the absence of her husband and the shooting was done in self-defence while she was struggling with her assailant.

THE U. S. TREATY

The treaty recently arranged between Japan and the United States, demonstrates the common sense of two great peoples in the face of difficulties, to a surprising degree. Seeing what was likely to eventuate upon and about the Pacific if the warlike talk of Americans and Japanese was to continue both nations agreed to come to what might be termed a friendly understanding concerning the government of the basin of the Pacific. Had the same quiet good sense been observed on certain other historic occasions instead of millions and millions of debt and millions of waste to say nothing of the awful sacrifice of lives there would be a smiling land and a smiling happier people.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Globe on saw-offs;—"The whole business is wrong and disgusting."

"Englishmen generally speaking are very well satisfied with the unwritten, but nowadays strictly observed law, that members of the government shall have no active participation in business."

"The Standard of the Empire," is the new imperial journal published in London, Eng., devoted to imperial news. It is more than a rival of the Overseas Mail and is a bulky addition to journalistic literature. It does not belie its name maintaining so far at least a standard worth noting.

"Both parties are equally bound to let no guilty man escape, and as there is at present no practical means of purifying our abominable election practices, but the action of the opposing parties, these owe it to the country to spare no guilty opponent and to protect no guilty ally."—The Montreal Witness.

Mrs. Ethel Snowden says that Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst the leader of the Suffragettes, had the reputation in her youth of being the most beautiful woman in England. She is also able and courageous. When she was left a widow, with four small children, she went into business, made a success of it and gave all her children a university education. It is no wonder that they stand by their mother in her campaign for equal suffrage. Mrs Pankhurst has lately sold her house and her business and devoted the proceeds to the suffrage work. She is now serving a term of three months in prison on a charge of "inciting to riot," because she and others got out hand bills inviting the public to come and help "rush the House of Commons."

The Duke of Connaught is telling an amusing story of his recent visit of inspection to Egypt. While he was in Cairo he went for a stroll one morning and on his way back to his quarters he came face to face with an old Englishman wearing the ribbon of the Indian Mutiny on his breast. The Duke stopped and spoke to the man about the military service for some little time. Presently the man said, not knowing of course, to whom he was speaking, "Are you in the army yourself, then, sir." The Duke smiled and admitted that he was. "Getting on all right," was the next question. The Duke smiled again and said that he had not much to grumble at on the whole, though perhaps he was not doing quite so well as he could wish. "No, and you never will, my boy," was the surprising retort of the veteran. "What you want in the army today is either brains or a tremendous amount of influence behind you. You take my tip, old chap, and chuck it."

AN EXTRAORDINARY LETTER FROM MR. W. T. R. PRESTON

Mr. W. T. R. Preston, for many years organizer of the Liberal party in Ontario afterwards provincial librarian, and afterwards, for a brief space in the days of the Liberal Administration in Ontario, organizer again, afterwards immigration commissioner for Canada in England, and latterly in the trade commissioner's service of Canada at Yokohama, Japan, has issued an "apologia pro vita sua." Mr. Preston is the worm who turns; he declines to be held responsible for all the sins which the Laurier Administration has made him the scapegoat. He is burning his bridges behind him and expects to be back in Canada soon. In the communication which follows he charges the Mail and Empire with "unfairness" but the context will show that any charge of unfairness must be with the party that it is well known he served faithfully in the dark days of its history.

TEXT OF THE LETTER.

The text of the letter, which is dated Nov. 25, is as follows:—

To the Editor of the Mail and Empire:

Sir,—I am favoured with a number of clippings from your columns during the recent campaign in which very pointed references are made to myself.

For over twenty-five years my name has been introduced into election campaigns in Canada, and during that long period I have had to run the gauntlet of personalities forming such an essential feature of Canadian politics.

It is more than ten years since I accepted a position in the public service and since then I have not been a resident of Canada, nevertheless my personality is apparently not forgotten.

NOT THE LEADING FIGURE.

I submit that I am not entitled to the attention which you and your confreres bestow upon me. Offences are unfairly laid to my charge for political purposes, many of them hoary with age before I hear about them.

One of these is the West Elgin election frauds. Allow me to say that I was not in Ontario when these these charges were made public, and on my return to Canada some months afterwards I challenged your political associates to produce evidence connecting me with illegal or corrupt practices in that election. I offered to withdraw from public and official life if evidence of the most trifling improper act could be produced. The subject was then fresh in the public mind and my own friends would very properly have sacrificed me had I been guilty. If any evidence was ever possible it surely could have been secured then.

Subsequently a Royal Commission including an eminent judge who had enjoyed the confidence of the Conservative party was appointed to investigate all matters connected with that election. The unanimous report of the commission completely vindicated my honour.

I might also add that occupants of positions of trust and responsibility in Canada to-day are well aware that my particular friends and myself were absolutely innocent of that wrong-doing in any of the elections.

NORTH ATLANTIC TRADING COMPANY.

Insinuations about the North Atlantic Trading Company and my European emigration wrok are still indulged in.

Upon that subject allow me to say that before I accepted an official position in London my attention was directed to some of the outside difficulties to be encountered in carrying on emigration work on that side of the Atlantic but they were trifling in comparison to those that had to be met within our own official circles.

In the first place I was not wanted in London. For twenty years the High Commissioner's office had controlled the emigration policy in Great Britain and Europe. The results had been very disappointing. When it ha become known that the Government intended sending a Canadian to London with a view of discovering a solution of the emigration problem, a recommendation was made to Ottawa for the appointment of an official to take charge of emigration work. In the draft of this letters words to the effect "at a salary not to exceed twelve hundred 'dollars'" were inserted by the secretary of the office, so as to limit an appointment to that of a minor clerk who would be subordinate to the officials in London, and who would not be likely to disturb the staus quo.

I had not been in London long before I realised that my presence was not desired. I was told more than once in the office that I might as well return to Canada because nothing could be suggested that had not already been tried and, therefore, no greater success could be looked for in the future.

INITIATED EUROPEAN POLICY.

When I commenced to direct attention to Canada through the British press I was informed that I was informed that I must not do that officially, nor was I to take the liberty of addressing the press from the Canadian Government offices. Notwithstanding this, however, I continued on the course that I ha laid out and eventually received peremptory orders to stop it altogether. I then replied that I would "leave for Canada and would let the Canadian people know the reasons for my return." After that there was no further interference in my communications to the press.

As to the North Atlantic Trading Company, I cheerfully accept the responsibility of recommending this phase of a Continental propoganda to the Department of the Interior. This question was the occasion for frequent conferences with the High Commissioner during the four months that elapsed previous to the visit of Deputy Minister Smart to London for the purpose of conferring with the High Commissioner and myself.

Upon Mr. Smart's arrival the High Commissioner proposed that Mr. Mr. Smart and myself should visit him in Scotland where opportunities would be afforded to quietly discuss the question.

Finally, a morning was devoted to this matter in Lord Strathcona's library at Glencoe, those present being Lord Strathcona, Mr. Smart and myself. Upon every phase of the question, including the necessity for the secrecy of the personnel of the proposed company, there was unanimity. The details of a recommendation to the Dominion Government, to be subsequently submitted to the Continental people for their acceptance, were agreed upon. At the request of Lord Strathcona and Mr. Smart I prepared a formal minute of the proposed arrangement, and in doing so I used Lord Strathcona's private notepaper.

On the completion of the memorandum Mr. Smart inserted a few words in his own handwriting. Lord Strathcona also slightly altered the phraseology in some places in his handwriting. The memorandum was then placed on the official files of the High Commissioner's office.

This document, with interlineations and corrections in the handwriting of Lord Strathcona and Mr. Smart, was at Lord Strathcona's suggestion embodied in an official letter from me to the High Commissioner, and was included verbatim and literaum in a letter from Lord Strathcona to the Minister of the Interior, and because of the basis of an arrangement or contract that was eventually made between the department and the North Atlantic Trading Company.

When the correspondence from the High Commissioner's office was produced at the House of Commons Committee, this minute or memorandum in the handwriting of the High Commissioner, Mr. Smart and myself, or a copy of it, was not among those official papers.

On my return to London in May, 1906, I asked Lord Strathcona why this document had not been sent to Ottawa with the correspondence that had been ordered by Parliament, as I thought the production of that paper would have removed serious misconceptions on all sides. Lord Strathcona admitted that he recollected the meeting at Glencoe and the memorandum in my hand-writing to which he had made clerical alterations, but he assured me that he did not know what had become of the paper.

As to my alleged personal connection with the North Atlantic Trading Company, you presume to accept the "belief" of some one who wrote to me stating that he "supposed this was one of my gold mines." You might also state that within twenty-four hours of the receipt of that letter I forwarded it to Sir Wilfrid Laurier asking for protection from such insults. You quote a certain person's supposition upon whose statement, let alone belief, I am sure you would not hang a dog, and you would object to convict any friend upon similar evidence.

POORER THAN WHEN HE LEFT.

I have been in the Government service for a number of years, and I certainly do not want to introduce into this controversy my strictly private affairs. I may say, however, that I have no extravagant habits, yet I am poorer than when I left Toronto to accept a position in the public service of Canada more than ten years ago.

Perhaps you will say the fault is mine, inasmuch as the Government has paid me a good salary, and that I "have lived well on the country." In living abroad personal expenses were incurred which I could not honestly charge to the Government, and yet they would not have been necessary had I not been on official business.

I have no hesitation, however, in saying that for every dollar that my services have cost, Canada has received a hundred-fold in return.

There are more than half a million people in Canada to-day directly through my personal and untiring efforts, who would not be there if I had settled down to the red-tape of the London Government office, or if I had failed to overcome official obstacles which were thrown in my way.

I will not say that no one else could have done as well, but I am justly entitled to claim that I succeeded in a particular work at which every one else failed. I never acted on my own initiative without my Minister's approval, and in none of my official work did I depart to the slightest extent from departmental instructions.

MR. OLIVER SAID "STAY!"

As to your suggestion that the Government sent me to Japan with a view to getting me out of the road, allow me to say that the last conversation I had with a member of the Government before I left for the Far East was with the present Minister of the Interior in London. Mr. Oliver expressed his desire that I should remain at Charing Cross. I gave the Minister my reasons verbally, why I did not feel justified in acceding to his request, and afterwards put them in the form of an official letter to Ottawa.

It was well known that Mr. Oliver was not particularly friendly to me; but he had an opportunity of perusing documents in London that the officials had failed to show him at Ottawa, resulting in changing his view. He gave me the evidence of his honest change of opinion by asking me not to proceed to Japan, but to continue as head of the emigration work in London. In order to assure me of his sincerity he expressed the hope that I would immediately follow him to Canada, as he was sure that the Cabinet would insist upon his wishes being carried out. I could ask for no better vindication of my emigration work.

The suggestion that I was transferred to Japan lest I should reveal secrets that would be discreditable to my old party leaders is as unfair to me as it is to those whose confidence I have enjoyed for so many years. It implies treachery and a dishonorable knowledge on my part—to both of which there is not the slightest foundation.

AGAINST JAPAN IMMIGRATION.

As to the charge that on my arrival in Japan I encouraged Japanese emigration to Canada, this is equally untrue. It was from me that the Government learned that Japanese were being taken to Canada under contract, and practically all the information that was revealed by the Royal Commission was simply corroborative of details that I had previously sent to Canada.

I never arranged for or took part in any election work on Sunday in my life, and I hope that this oft-repeated slander will now be allowed burial, without hope of resurrection. It had long since ceased to bear even the appearance of the lamented Nicholas Flood Davin's original Parliamentary joke.

THE H. H. COOK OFFER.

Leaders of the Liberal party, both the living and the dead, knew that during the years in which I was an active politics I always opposed the corrupt use of moneys in elections, and in this cause I had their loyal support. More than once I refused to allow money to be used in that way, or return it to the generous and enthusiastic donors or refused to accept it. Once in a desperate and enthusiastic mood in company with a prominent friend we endeavored to get a particular subscription, part of which would probably have gone in that direction, and I am not sorry that we failed. If we had succeeded your charges about me doing objectionable work for the Liberal party might be true.

In making this claim for fairness, I am writing as one man may write to another without loss of dignity. This is not penned in a spirit of miserere micordia. In Canada your fairness may or may not have influenced the public, but elsewhere, if it has not done so to a serious extent, it is not because your unfair criticism have not followed me to three continents. If I had deserved such treatment, I might say that "my punishment is greater than I can bear"; but my own sense of rectitude has assisted my indifference to your personal attacks during so many years absence from Canada.

WHY HE MAKES APPEAL.

Apart from everything else, I have children, grandchildren, family connections and friends, and my good name is as precious to them as good repute can possibly be to anyone else. In public and in private I have endeavored to live so as to leave to my family and my friends a name and a reputation that they shall have no occasion to be ashamed of. In every position that I have occupied of any nature whatever, I have never been other than faithful and true to the interests entrusted to my charge.

For more than twenty-five years I have been under the flash of light of Canadian criticism. I have not been allowed to hide my light under a bushel, I have been allowed to take an important share in populating the great West with industrious settlers. I have been permitted to take that part in promoting the prosperity of my own country, and I challenge any one to produce evidence of a single, discreditable act in my political, official or private life.

I have tried to be brief. The space that this may occupy is trifling in comparison to the columns that have been used in unfair personal criticism. To me this whole question has not merely a personal bearing, as it has been made a subject of public interest far beyond the boundaries of Canada.

Yours very truly,

W. T. R. PRESTON.

OF INTEREST

An important discovery for those who dabbled in the prehistoric was made last month by men employed constructing the tunnel under the bay. The story has just come out.

Thirty-seven feet below the bottom of the clay, or 73 feet below water level, a stratum of blue clay was uncovered by which were plainly discernable over one hundred moccasined footprints. The prints headed towards the city and varied from a slight depression to two inches deep. At the same level near the footprints a piece of interglacial wood, some 12 inches long, was also found.

The find is vouched for by W. H. Cross, 21 Oak street, and William Oxford, 64 Deloe street.

Prof. Coleman of Toronto University, an expert on geology, said;

"If the statements of these men are true, and there is no reason to doubt them, and the prints were in the blue clay, it is the most important find of the inter-glacial period ever made on the American continent.

"Wood and charcoal have been found.

"These prints would date back from fifty to one hundred thousand years ago.

"If, instead of being in hard blue clay, these marks are in shale, they will not be human footprints, but will be the marks of something else. For the time when the shale was laid down was before the advent of man in this world, and the only animal found was a fish. Man is estimated to have been only some 150,000 years on this earth.

"Unless a man is a trained geologist he cannot tell the difference between hard blue clay and shale.

"Toronto has experienced two glacial periods. Between the two periods—that is, in the inter-glacial period, Lake Ontario was a much smaller lake than it is now, and the bottom of the bay was above water.

"During that time the land was so tilted that the water from Georgian Bay flowed directly to Lake Ontario. This stream is called the Laurentian River. It was on a delta of blue clay brought down by this river that the prints were made.

"These prints were probably dried in the sun and then a new strata of blue clay was laid over them.

"In that time it was warm here—about like Ohio. Then came the second glacial period, which tilted the land like it is at present. The water from Georgian Bay and Lake Superior began to come down through Lake Erie, like it does at present. Lake Ontario became greater in area, and the water rose to its present level."—Toronto World.

SCALPING.

Indian Tradition That Tells the Origin of the Custom.

According to the Indian tradition, scalping arose in this wise:

Hundreds, perhaps thousands, of years ago, when all the Indians in the world were of one tribe and under one chief, there arose a dispute in the tribe as to who should succeed the old chief, who had just died without issue. There were two principal aspirants to the honor, each having a considerable following. The dispute finally ended with strife and war, and for the first time in the history was "brothers' blood shed by brothers."

The chief of one of the factions had a beautiful daughter, and one of the bravest warriors was a suitor for her hand. Her father consented to the match on one condition—that the young brave should journey to the camp of the enemy, many miles away through the deep snow, kill the chief, his rival, and return with some unmistakable token of his death. In spite of the snow and the distance, the young man immediately set out on his journey and, after lying in ambush for several days, finally entered the camp, boldly attacked the chief in his tent, slew him and cut off his head.

Next morning the murder was discovered, and the tribe set off in hot pursuit. Little by little they gained upon the fleeing warrior, who in his anxiety to elude his pursuers cast away all his impediments, to his very clothing, retaining only his stone knife and the trophy which was to win him his bride.

His pursuers gained rapidly until finally so near did they come he could hear them on his trail. His grewsome burden grew heavier and heavier, and as a last resort he whipped out his knife, stripped the scalp from the head of the dead man and, thus lightened of his load, reached his own camp in safety, presented to his chief the token of his prowess and was wed, amid great rejoicing, to the damsel of his choice.

From thenceforth he was permitted to wear an eagle's feather in his cap, and to this day the eagle's feather remains the sign of the successful warrior, the number he displays depending upon the number of scalps he has taken.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Kent Farmers Plowing.

Chatham, Dec. 17.—The farmers of Dover Township, adjoining this city, are nearly all busily engaged in plowing. The ground is in perfect shape, and entirely free from frost.

This is the first time in many years that the farmers of Kent have been able to indulge in plowing one week before Christmas.

Public School For Mutes.

New York, Dec. 17.—Many city officials yesterday witnessed the dedication of the first public day school for deaf children to be opened in this city, and also many impressive demonstrations of lip reading methods which the school has adopted to the utter exclusion of the old finger-sign system.

Collision on C.P.R.

Richmond, Vt., Dec. 17.—In a head on collision of freight trains near East Richford, on the Canadian Pacific Railroad late yesterday, Orrin Pickle, a fireman, was killed and four other train hands injured. The locomotives were demolished and six cars burned.

Will Have a Grand Time.

London, Dec. 17.—Among the functions with which it is proposed to entertain the press representatives attending the Empire Press Congress will be a visit to Portsmouth, Aldershot camp, both the House of Commons and the House of Lords, banquets by the Government, banquet at Grafton galleries, reception by the Duchess of Sutherland at Stafford House and a visit to Hatfield, the residence of Lord Salisbury.

Sir Thomas Lipton offers a cruise on the yacht Erin and several other functions have been suggested, but are as yet undecided.

Extensive Transfer Thefts.

New York, Dec. 17.—Two office boys of the Metropolitan Street Railway Co. have uncovered a system of wholesale transfer stealing. Two conductors and two boys have been arrested. The company has lost thousands of dollars through the system. Dishonest conductors disposed of transfers by the pad to boy agents, who in turn sold them at two cents or three cents each.

Aeroplane Line an Actuality.

Berlin, Dec. 17.—The German Aerostations Co., which was founded three months ago by three groups of financiers and sportsmen of Berlin, Frankfort and Cassel respectively, has now ordered seven of the Zeppelin airships. Three routes are scheduled, all beginning at Friedrichshafen, and taking in, among other places, Nuremburg, Leipzig, Berlin, Dresden, Strasburg and Hamburg. It is contemplated extending the route to Copenhagen.

Suffocated In Fire.

Quebec, Dec. 17.—C. E. A. Langlois was suffocated by smoke in a fire which damaged his store last evening to the extent of $12,000.

George Johnson, 28 Geneva avenue, was arrested Tuesday, charged with the theft of a sack of coal from M. Green, 160 York street.

Runs With Throat Cut.

Montreal, Dec. 17.—The spectacle was witnessed last night on a crowded thoroughfare, of an Italian running among the Christmas shoppers with his throat cut. He was gashed by a razor in the hands of an unknown assailant. The blood left a trail in the snow and the injured man collapsed within sight of his home.

Robbery or revenge was thought to be the motive. The man was taken to a hospital, and it is thought he will probably die. His assailant has not yet been arrested.

Gordon Gibson Dead.

Toronto, Dec. 17.—Major Macdonald, secretary to the Lieutenant-Governor, Hon. J. M. Gibson, yesterday morning received a message from his honor saying that his son, Gordon Gibson, had died Tuesday evening at Colorado Springs after a prolonged illness. Hon. Mr. Gibson and Mrs. Gibson left last week for Colorado. The deceased was 28 years of age, and was one of four sons, there being also two daughters. The remains will probably be taken to Hamilton for interment.

Suggests a Cure.

New York, Dec. 17.—W. L. M. King, M.P., sailed for England yesterday to attend the international conference on opium to be held at Shanghai, China, beginning on Feb. 1. Mr. King said:

"It is my opinion that the use of opium in a harmful way can only be checked by striking direct at the very root — the raising of poppies to so great an extent as to make possible the spread of their produce as other than a mere medicine."

Treatment Successful.

Albany, Dec. 17.—Three patients died and 301 were discharged out of a total of 477 treated during the fiscal year just closed at the New York State Hospital for Treatment of Incipient Pulmonary Tuberculosis.

Of the 301 patients discharged, many were reported as cured and others as greatly benefited by the treatment.

The average number of patients treated during the year was 158, at a cost of $9.47 per week per capita, and a total for all purposes of $109,017.

Birks' Fire Loss.

Montreal, Dec. 17.—The Birks' fire losses are estimated as follows: Building and fixtures, $50,000; Birks' stock, $10,000; Notman & Sons, $4,000; Miss E. Christie, dressmaker, $2,500; Waring & Gillow, $1,500; Dr. J. B. Morrison, $500; Dr. C. F. Morrison, $250; Montreal Dental Supply Co., $400; Dr. Hamilton, $1,000; Manufacturers' Supply Co., $200; F. X. Stutz, $2,000. Total, $86,350.

A chorus girl of the Majestic Theatre, New York, received $5,000 for a broken leg sustained by falling down a steep staircase.

ORGANIZING WOLF HUNT.

Hundred Hunters Will Try to Wipe Out Pests Again This Year.

Around the Magnetawan river, "the hunters' paradise," wolves have become so numerous that they are now a positibe menace to human safety.

In addition, they kill off more deer in a year than the hunters do, and those facts couple together have made it imperative that something be done at once to exterminate them completely. To accomplish this object a round-up of large proportions is being planned. From sixty to a hundred men, hunters picked from nearly every Ontario city and town that each year sends its quota to the rugged northland, will go up in the early days of January; Indians and other natives of the district who know the country well will captain sections of this determined army, and beaters will be employed to scare the dreaded "yelper" from his retreats out on the open ice, where they will fall an easy prey to the hunters' guns.

The hunters who have been spoken to on the question are most enthusiastic, and arrangements have already been made for the housing of them all. The Government offers a considerable bounty for each wolf head brought in and each man will be able to line his pockets as well as enjoy a hunt, unique in these days in the history of Ontario.

The wolves follow the deer, which come down from the north in the spring to feed and breed in the lower country, and when the cold weather comes again retreat to the hardwood ridges in the more northern districts. They prey upon them continually, and hunters say emphatically that one she wolf kills off many times the number of deer that a hunter does, because there is nothing else for the timber wolf to live on in the winter season. It is to these districts the men will go, and if enthusiasm and determination count for anything the numbers of the scourges will be decreased considerably during the coming season.

THE BEAK WAS DUMB.

Windsor's Magistrate Met a Bigamist Who Was Not Ashamed.

Police Magistrate Bartlett of Windsor, Ont., who has announced that he will soon retire, has probably served longer in that capacity than any other magistrate in the province. Windsor is not a town to be envied, in the matter of affording an asylum "just across the river" for breakers of Uncle Sam's laws. It has an English name, but is one of the least Saxon towns in Canada. The "colonies" of Huns, Poles, Roumanians, to say nothing of a large African settlement, lend a high-colored aspect to the assembly before the magistrate. Many have been the curious cases before that canny Scot, James Bartlett, and prominent among the cases are those of bigamy, resulting from certain foreigners' confused notions regarding the marriage laws.

A dusky gentleman, who proclaimed himself as a native of South America, once came before Magistrate Bartlett on a bigamy charge, and it was revealed in the course of cross-examination that the prisoner had played the insignificant role of bridegroom in six different states of the union, not to mention a fashionable wedding in Windsor.

"You'll go to jail, sir," said the man in authority, giving as severe a sentence as he could.

"And when," said the amiable gentleman, "shall I be allowed to marry once more?" The magistrate, for once in court experience, was speechless.

Sir Henri Joly.

Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, whose death occurred recently, was one of the most courtly figures left remaining in this humdrum commercial world of ours. Of gentle birth and breeding, he brought even into the political arena the aristocratic bearing and demeanor which so distinguished his private life. While he had many opponents, he never had an enemy in his public life, for he would not injure any man in act or deed. A Protestant in religion, he became Premier of the French-Catholic province of Canada, and while he retained the position but a short time, the deceased gentleman ever held a warm place in the hearts of the French Catholics of Quebec. He was repeatedly elected in Lotbiniere, where there are not, at the most, more than a dozen Protestant voters, and he was elected to the Commons from Portneuf, where there are hardly a hundred Protestant electors. Broad-minded, courteous, well-informed and gentle by nature, he was indeed a pleasant companion, a respected and loved leader, though his leadership lacked vigor, and he leaves behind him universal regret among all who knew and admired his gentle qualities.

Perils of Navigation.

Warnings to seamen during the past few days with regard to a derelict floating in the direct track of Atlantic liners follow on the cautions that are frequently issued with reference to icebergs. Still more sensational was the obstacle encountered not long ago by the steamer Fiona, near Sydney Heads. A huge fish, in shape like a sunfish, made its way into the bracket of the port propeller and disabled the port engine. A boat was lowered to ascertain what had caused the obstruction, but it was found impossible to disentangle the fish until the vessel reached the harbor, which she managed to do by using the starboard engine only. The fish, essentially matter out of place, was then hauled on board, and it is said to have turned the scale at two tons. There still remain chances that defy the most accurate charting and the longest experience.

A Busy Advertiser.

The enterprise of the advertiser in the new Elk City on Montreal river knows no limits, but there are no printing presses yet up on the frontier. Thus, the pioneer shoemaker of Elk City strikes out along the trail and nails a cardboard sign to a tree, which announces that "Jack Blundell, shoemaker from Cobalt, is now in Elk Lake carrying on same business. Charges moderate."

The S.P.C.A. will again offer prizes for essays to be written by students in the public, parochial and private schools in Buffalo.

HOW TO CURE A HEADACHE

To attempt to cure a headache by taking a "headache powder," is like trying to stop a leak in the roof by putting a pan under the dripping water. Chronic headaches are caused by poisoned blood. The blood is poisoned by tissue waste, undigested food and other impurities remaining too long in the system. These poisons are not promptly eliminated because of sick liver, bowels, skin or kidneys.

If the bowels do not move regularly—if there is pain in the back showing kidney trouble—if the skin is sallow or disfigured with pimples—it shows clearly what is causing the headaches.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure headaches because they cure the cause of headaches. "Fruit-a-tives" act directly on the three great eliminating organs—bowels, kidneys and skin. "Fruit-a-tives" keep the system free of poisons.

"Fruit-a-tives" come in two sizes—25c and 50c. If your dealer does not have them write to Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

NATIONAL AND COMPREHENSIVE IN SCOPE

The 1908 Christmas Number of "The Farmer's Advocate and Home Magazine," while maintaining a broad catholicity of outlook, strikes a dominant national note. Articles of general interest from the pens of leading Canadian authorities treat a pleasing variety of topics in a comprehensive manner. Dr. B. E. Fernow, of the University of Toronto, in a sweeping survey of the timber situation in Canada, impresses the farmers' interest in forestry. By way of index to this prominent feature, the front cover represents a beautiful woodland scene, executed in the tri-color process. The pages are replete with particularly pleasing illustrations, a liberal proportion of which have been printed in double-tone ink, producing a rich, soft sepia effect. Subscribers to "The Farmer's Advocate" are presented with this number in lieu of a regular issue. To non-subscribers, the price is 50 cents per copy. New subscribers will receive it as a premium while the supply lasts. Address the WILLIAM WELD CO., Limited, London, Ont.

A TRIP TO THE HOLY LAND

them. The train stopped a number of times, and the guard, after warning everybody, would pass down the platform the full length of the train, ringing a hand bell, and after all this fuss, the train would start in perhaps five or seven minutes. The farm land in Spain is held by extensive land owners, the laborers cottages are clustered around that of the overseer, and they appear to work in the fields in gangs of from eight to twelve, and with very primitive implements.

Our short visit to Seville was full of interest. This is said to be the finest residential city of Spain. Even in Germany, it is a common saying "God gives to his favorites a house in Seville."

The cathedral here, considered by many to be the finest in Christendom, to us was the chief attraction. It took 104 years to build, from 1402 to 1506, and contains many priceless paintings, perhaps the most famous being Murillo's "St. Anthony of Padua's Vision of the Holy Child." Many of you will remember the sensation of a few years ago when it was discovered that the figure of St. Anthony had been cut out, and afterwards found in Chicago, where it was purchased by Mr. Pierpont Morgan, and restored to its original place. Here also is the tomb of Columbus. Here is also the famous Giralda Tower, formerly the Prayer Tower of a Moorish Mosque. Seville is still noted for its exhibitions of the cruel sport of bull fighting, and for its manufacture of beautiful laces, and is the fourth largest city in Spain.

We had an early start in the morning for Granada, the journey occupying from seven a.m. until five p.m. We passed through many orange groves, and as we approached Granada, through groves of olive and almond trees. On arrival, we immediately drove to our hotel, the Washington Irving, first through Old Granada, with its squalid buildings, then through New Granada, up to date in every respect, with fine stores and public buildings, then up the hill by a winding road flanked on each side by large elms planted in 1812 by order of the Duke of Wellington, while beside the roadway ran streams of water formed by the melted snows of the Sierra Nevada.

The hotel was comfortable, and after a good dinner, I walked out with a guide for a look at the stately ruins by moonlight. In a very dramatic manner, he described the exit of Boabdil, the last of the Moorish kings, and the entrance of King Ferdinand in January 1492. The legend is that on the withdrawal of Boabdil, he turned in his saddle, when about to pass through the mountains, to take a last look at the beautiful city he had lost, and tears filled his eyes.

His unflinching mother, Aisha, rebuked him with the words "Weep not like a woman for what you could not defend like a man."

We spent the following day in and about the Alhambra, the European stronghold of the ancient Moorish kings. We stood on the spot where Queen Isabella received Columbus on his return after discovering America. We passed through many courts, including the celebrated Court of the Lions, where a large marble basin is supported by twelve lions. Through the Court of Ambassadors, where was held the last council of Boabdil to consider the surrender of Granada, through the ancient baths, where are openings for hot, cold and perfumed waters, with galleries for musicians, and reclining rooms for bathers. At the Cartuza Monastery we saw treasures of marble and chests made of cedar, ivory, mother of pearl, and tortoise shell, and gruesome pictures of martyrs.

AT GIBRALTAR.

Our first view of Gibraltar was from the train, and as we approached it looked to be a huge lion in a crouching attitude. We arrived too late to get admittance into the fortifications, so had to content ourselves by looking at the outside, and by driving through the gates, that are closed between sunset and sunrise, to the strip of neutral ground with a row of British sentry boxes on one side, and a similar row of Spanish on the other. As we sailed out of the harbor at midnight in the light of a full moon, and looked on this magnificent fortress guarding the entrance to the Mediterranean we were forced to say that we were proud of the fact that we belonged to an Empire which commanded the respect of all other nations.

AT ALGIERS.

The day spent in Algiers was full of interest, for here were the headquarters for centuries, of the Pirates that infested the North African Coast. They claimed "they were friends of the sea, and enemies of all those who sail upon it." One hundred years ago, the pirates held the whole of the civilized world in terror, and exacted tribute from every nation. It is estimated that over 600,000 Christian people have suffered the nameless horrors of Algerian bondage of whom a very small proportion ever escaped or were ransomed.

AT MALTA.

Another sail over the blue waters of the Mediterranean brought us to Malta. The ship's whistle blew as we passed the bay, where St. Paul was shipwrecked, when on his way as a captive for trial at Rome. As a fortress, Malta is about as formidable as Gibraltar, and much more useful as a coaling station and navl base. This island was granted to the Knights of St. John in the year 1530, taken by Napoleon in 1798, and surrendered to England in 1800. Napoleon took from the Church of St. John tons of gold and silver, but overlooked the solid silver gates and railing, for a quick-witted priest had painted them black. This church contains the tombs of many Grand Masters of the Order, and there we saw the original keys of Jerusalem, Acre and Rhodes. In the Chapel of Bones, we saw the skulls and bones of 2,000 soldiers who fell in the great siege of 1565, all built up in design around the walls. It is stated that every morning about 6000 goats are driven into the city to provide the inhabitants with milk. They are tied in the various restaurants, and when a cup of coffee is required, the milk is put direct from the animal into the cup. The ladies present will no doubt take it for granted that a considerable portion of the time of some of our party was spent in the lace stores, for which Valetta is also famous

THEATRICAL

THE POSTMASTER'S DAUGHTER.

The Partello Stock Company put on another interesting play last night, "The Postmaster's Daughter." Miss Kennedy as Irma Bertlette gave a splendid reading of the name role, and Jack Westerman was ludicrous to the point of absurdity, both in make-up and action as "Nick Carter," a heartbreaker." Herbert Griffin has a good presence and did excellent work as Arthur Boardman, in love with the postmaster's daughter.

The specialties of Jack Westerman and the electrical dances won the appreciation of the audience. To-night "The Girl of Eagle Ranch" a captivating drama of the west, will be the attraction.

A Servant Girls' Union will soon be formed in Chicago.

Amateurs in Lindsay

"All the Comforts of Home," is being presented in Lindsay tonight. Some local boys are attending the production.

BUSY AT THE POST OFFICE

Christmas Rush in the Money Order Department Now on

The usual Christmas rush in the money order branch of the post office is on in full strength now, and will continue during the holiday season. The staff has been increased by two members and the work is carried on after the regular hours. The bulk of money going out is very large the greater part of it going to the United Kingdom. Then comes France Italy, Belgium and Austria, the former citizens of which countries are remembering their friends in the Christmas season.

HOW THE CITIES ARE TAXED

The lowest is Guelph, which has a large revenue from its public utilities; the next is Peterborough, $8.53; third, Fort William, helped by its utilities, $9.20; and then comes Kingston $9.33, with Port Arthur in good fifth, $9.84.

Chatham leads the cities of Ontario in the matter of taxation. Its rate is 36.4 mills on the dollar, and its collection per head $17.89. In Toronto where values are higher, the rate is twenty-two mills on the dollar and the payment per head, $14.94. Ottawa which is regarded as so progressive, a municipality has a rate of 23.9 mills on the dollar and collects $14.1? per head.

Belleville is among the higher rated cities with 27.9 mills on the dollar, and a levy per head of $11.80, Brantford with a population about the size of that in Kingston has a rate of 22.6 mills on the dollar an a tax per head of $12.37.

The study of these municipal statistics is very interesting. It indicates that all the places which have paved streets and other permanent improvements are paying for them in higher taxation, and the people are not apparently complaining very much.

Paved streets and permanent walks are expensive at the time but in the long run they are the cheaper, and they make for the progress of the city. —The Whig.

DAY TO AVOID CHRISTMAS RUSH

Suggested That Cheap Rate Should be Offered by Railways

A local merchant has made a suggestion for the establishment of a special shopping day on which the railways would offer low rates for excursions from the towns and villages adjacent to Peterborough. By such a day the villages living nearby would take advantage of much of the congestion of the Christmas shopping could be saved.

TO DISCUSS THE MONEY BY-LAWS

Special Meeting of Board of Trade on Monday Night.

On Monday night next a special Meeting of the Board of Trade will be held to consider the money by-laws to be submitted to the ratepayers of Peterborough in January. The by-laws have to do with the expenditure of over $100,000 and it is important that they should be fully explained in order that the ratepayers may vote intelligently. The meeting is called for eight o'clock sharp and there should be a large attendance.

ROBBED FARMER

T. Davidson of Manvers, Robbed by His Hired Man—Ingratitude.

Lindsay, Dec. 15.—This afternoon Mr. T. Davidson, of Manvers township, came into town in search of a farm hand who had recently been in his employ, and who decamped today, but not until after he had stolen the sum of $25.00.

The young man had recently been talking of returning to the old country, and it was thought by his employer that he would probably make his way to Lindsay.

The facts in connection with the case have been placed in the hands of Chief Vincent, who is leaving no stone unturned in his efforts to locate the man.

The alleged thief is about 19 years of age, and has lately been in the employ of Mr. Dan Wynn, of Emily. On Saturday when Mr. Davidson came to Lindsay he met the young man, who begged of him to give him some money as he was in destitute circumstances. Mr. Davidson gave him some change, and in the evening took compassion on him and brought him to his home.

This morning Mr. Davidson locked his house and went away on business. When he returned at 12 o'clock he was surprised to find the residence broken into and the thought dawned upon him that a robbery had been committed. On searching the pockets of his clothes he found that the sum of $25.00 had been extracted therefrom. Suspicion strongly pointed towards the young man upon whom Mr. Davidson had recently dispensed kindness and solicitude, but he could not be found in the locality.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

Editor of the Review
Peterborough, Dec 16, '08

Dear Sir,—In your issue of the 14th there appears a letter purporting to be written by Mayor Rush in reply to my letter re the management of the city finances. The Mayor undertakes to say that my statements are "misleading," and that I misrepresent the conditions. Let us see who is trying to mislead.

I said there would be a deficit on the current account of $15,000 which would require an additional taxation next year of 2 mills to get square. The Mayor says there are uncollected taxes and other items which will wipe out this deficit. But if the Mayor wants credit for the amounts which came in after the close of the year he must take out the similar receipts at the beginning of this year and this he has not done. Who is trying to mislead. If the adjustments at the end of this year are equal to those of last year and surely the Mayor will not lay claim to having left dragging behind a greater account than that most incapable mayor of 1907 the figures I have given will be exactly correct. If they are less much the worse for the present Mayor. If we are $7000 ahead at the beginning of the year and $8000 behind when all accounts are closed after the year are we not $15,000 behind on the year's business.

But the Mayor says that this year's council has spent so much more on the streets to give employment. Has anyone seen any improvement in the care of the streets. Is there anything to show for 50 per cent increase in the expenditures. True, there has been more work done with the road-roller but that is the very work which gives least employment for the money spent. True, the Mayor who, because of the false cries upon which he was elected, began with a policy of economy, has found that sewers and sidewalks and crossings and drains have to be built, but the Mayor knows perfectly well that the cost of these work is not charged to the current account at all, and has nothing whatever to do with the question of the deficit. Who is trying to mislead? What really happened was that the Board of Works finding the work to do, went ahead to do it while the Mayor, whose duties surely include the oversight of the relations of the departments of the city's work fell asleep till the Board was jerked up in August with the notice that their appropriations for the whole year was practically exhausted. Perhaps the Mayor would like to take credit for reducing the wages of the men while maintaining or increasing the salaries. Probably he would say that the men's cost of living has decreased but they haven't heard of it yet.

I have had to trespass so much on your space to explain the Mayor's "misleading" statements that I shall have to deal with the sale of the debentures tomorrow. I shall mention but one other thing. There appeared in the Review a letter signed Critis. I have only to say that I do not answer a cad who writes a personal attack anonymously.

Yours faithfully,
R F McWILLIAMS.

SPORTING NEWS

ABOUT SPORTING REPORTS

The Review is desirous of publishing all the happenings in the local realm of sport. There are many events which happen and which are of interest that are not recorded for the reason that they are not brought in or telephoned to the office.

The hockey season will open soon and games will be played in all sections of the city. The Review would consider it a favor if announcement and reports of these games were communicated to the sporting department. None are too unimportant for publication and will be given space on the sporting page. This applies also to all other branches of local sport.

The news will be read with interest by the public and will give your team or club desirable recognition and publicity. Don't forget about it. The telephone No. is 1-6-9.

Y.M.C.A. TRACK AND FIELD CLUB ORGANIZES TO-NIGHT

To-night at 7.30 p.m. the track and field club will meet in Y.M.C.A. parlors for the election of officers for the coming year. A club of this kind is what is needed at the Y. to promote and control athletic track and field events. From present indications there will be a large attendance at the meeting to-night and the club will get away to a good start.

Every member of the Y.M.C.A. who is interested in athletics is cordially invited to attend this meeting and offer any suggestions that will make this club a success.

CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE LOOKED AFTER SEVERAL MATTERS

There are now six teams in the Senior City League. Lakefield and the Belmonts have both entered, and the Y.M.C.A. team withdrew. The second meeting for the season was held last night when all the teams were represented and several matters of business were put through.

Secretary B. T. Huston put in his resignation as he is leaving the city at the end of the year. He will be much missed in the city league as he has been a good official. His successor will be picked by the executive and introduced at the next meeting on December 22th.

The secretary read the minutes of the last meeting, which were adopted. President C. G. Graham presided.

Since the last meeting of the league Lakefield has applied for membership and have paid their $2.

The Belmonts also applied for admission and were taken in.

This makes a total of seven teams including the Y.M.C.A. The Y.M.C.A., however, will withdraw, so there will be six teams.

An amendment was moved to allow all players who had not played intermediate hockey prior to the season of 1907-08 to play in the league this year.

This amendment caused much discussion, but was not carried.

A proposition was made by the Junior City League as follows:— That the senior league give each of the junior teams twenty tickets to sell at 50 cents each, and give half the money to the Rink Company and half to the city league. Then the senior league engage the rink for the whole of one Thursday evening instead of from eight to ten o'clock.

The proposition was accepted.

A motion was carried that the ex-president, Fred. Clarke, be made a life member of the city league.

On motion it was decided that all amendments to the constitution in future be brought up at the annual meeting, and that at least ten days' notice must be given the secretary.

It was moved that in future in the event of a protest the representatives of the two clubs interested be not allowed to vote.—Carried.

The schedule will be drawn up the first Monday after Christmas, Dec. 28th.

WALKING

A letter has been received announcing a handicap walking race between Hoagland and Hubbell, of Erie. A short time ago Hoagland defeated Hubbell in an even race at ten miles, winning by a small margin. He will give Hubbell a lap handicap in five miles. The race takes place to-day.

COLLEGIATE ECHOES

The Collegiate Echoes, published by the Philomathean Society of the Collegiate Institute, has again made its appearance. The December number is perhaps the best that has been issued since the publication started four years ago. The cover design is exceedingly attractive and the reading matter is of more than ordinary interest. There is a complete report of the opening of the new Collegiate, several well-written editorials, breezy corridor cullings, and several other interesting articles. Cuts of the new Collegiate and of Messrs. H. R. H. Kenner, C. Fessenden and Robert Fair are also published.

SCARLET FEVER.

A Scourge of White Races In All Ages and Countries.

Now that smallpox, thanks to compulsory vaccination, has become a rarity in civilized communities, scarlet fever steps forward as the worst of the eruptive diseases of childhood. It is a malady of enormous antiquity. Thucydides, writing nearly 500 years before the beginning of our era, called it a heritage from the remote past. It has scourged the white races in all ages and all countries, and the physicians of all schools have leveled their heaviest artillery upon it. Yet it remains a puzzle unsolved and an enemy unconquered even today. We are in doubt as to its cause, and there is no drug or antitoxin that will cure it. But despite all this the death rate from scarlet fever is steadily declining, and we may expect it to decline more and more as the years go by. The reason for this, I take it, lies in the fact that the modern doctor is a great deal more sparing with pills and powders than his predecessor and a great deal more lavish with water, air and antiseptics. In the old days it was customary to dose scarlet fever patients with all sorts of violent remedies in staggering quantities, and as a result many of them died. Today medicines are but minor auxiliaries in the sickroom, and both doctor and nurse devote their main energies to preventing a spread of the infection.—Delineator.

A MENTAL FRENZY.

Some of the Things a Man Saw In Delirium Tremens.

Charles Roman gives a record of his own experiences as a victim of delirium tremens. It is a remarkable psychological document, comparing favorably in interest and as a piece of writing with De Quincey's "Confessions of an Opium Eater." Following is a brief extract which gives some suggestions of the things the patient saw:

"Up to this point the zoological visitations had been intermittent. During the next few days, however, I saw all that I could stand. I saw such prehistoric creatures as exist nowhere except in museums. I saw rats as they marched past my door or flew through my windows or floated in my tub. Elephants strode in and out with lumbering steps and swaying trunks. At times they seated themselves and taunted me with their thunderous bellows or their ear splitting screeches. They flaunted their snouts high in the air and guffawed. Monkeys jumped from limb to limb in the trees outside my room. Snakes of all colors, of all descriptions, reptiles with fantastic figures upon their backs and with eyes of sapphire or ruby or of milk white marble, wriggled upon the floor or crept in or out of heretofore unseen crevices in the walls and dropped into the water in my tub. They swam around and around me, squirming under me, with their tongues darting in and out with ferocious activity. Giraffes craned their necks around the doorways or through the windows, chickens roosted over my head and cackled, dogs and wolves ran around the room barking and snapping, pigeons flew from one corner to another and cooed. Lions I heard roaring, and tigers I saw while they opened their mouths, like huge cats, in silent, angry disapproval, licking their whiskers and wetting their paws softly and daintily—this and far more.

"I saw crocodiles in droves. Fat, scaly, glistening beasts they were, with frothy, foaming jaws, long, sweeping tails, crouching upon or creeping along the foot of my bathtub or my bed and grinding their yellow teeth in gluttonous anger as they contemplated me, their prey. I saw the reeking, slippery body of a crocodile slide into the water of my tub. Then as I shrank in breathless horror to escape I saw his greedy, slimy eyes arise to the surface, with his cold, foul chin flush with mine. His icy beak touched my cheek. The hot vapor from his lungs seared my flesh. I turned as cold as ice and trembled like a leaf in a storm.

THE GUILLOTINE.

It Was Not Invented by the Man Whose Name It Bears.

In a book published by Hector Fleischman in Germany the story of the origin of the instrument of execution which was named for Dr. Guillotin in the days of the reign of terror is flatly denied. "There is no truth in the story, so long believed," he says, "that the genial old physician invented the machine which was named for him and by means of which he is said to have lost his life shortly after its adoption. Guillotin, in keeping with the spirit of his time, proposed on Oct. 10, 1789, that all offenders, regardless of their birth or station, should be dealt with alike by the law, and six months later he proposed to the government that convicted murderers should be beheaded by means of a simple apparatus. The mechanism of which he and no one else had any idea at that time was spoken of as the 'simple apparatus' by the humorists of the day, and the phrase was used to make its proposer ridiculous, so that when a machine finally was adopted the wits of the time named it guillotine. The government, evidently recognizing the value of the suggestion, asked one Antoine Louis, a surgeon at the Salpetriere, to devise a machine and later gave a similar order to a carpenter by the name of Guidon, who offered to construct an instrument for decapitation for 5,660 livres. This was considered too high a price, and the contract was given to a German cabinetmaker by the name of Tobias Schmidt, who received 824 livres for the accepted model in 1792. Schmidt made guillotines for all the provinces, and the industry brought him a moderate fortune, which he proceeded to squander in Paris, while Dr. Guillotin, who never had anything to do with the making of a machine which bore his name, continued to practice his profession quietly and unostentatiously in Paris until he died there on March 26, 1814."

PAYING FOR A MEAL.

It Was Worth About a Shilling to Pick Those Bones.

Colonel Ebenezer Sproat of Revolutionary fame was born and bred in Middleboro, Mass. He was always fond of a joke and was quick to seize an opportunity to indulge his propensity, as the following incident illustrates. His father, also a Colonel Sproat, kept a tavern. One day while Ebenezer was at home on a furlough three private soldiers, on their return from the seat of war, called for a cold luncheon.

Mrs. Sproat set on the table some bread and cheese with the remnants of the family dinner, which her son thought rather scanty fare for hungry men. He felt a little vexed that the defenders of the country were not more bountifully supplied. The soldiers, after satisfying their appetites, asked him how much they should pay. Ebenezer said he would ask his mother. He found her in the kitchen.

"Mother," he said, "how much is it worth to pick those bones?"

"About a shilling, I guess," she answered.

The young officer returned to the soldiers and, taking from the barroom till 3 shillings and smiling genially upon them, gave each man one and with good wishes sent them on their way. Mrs. Sproat soon after came in and asked Ebenezer what he had done with the money for the soldiers' dinner.

In apparent amazement he exclaimed: "Money! Did I not ask you what it was worth to pick those bones, and you said a shilling? I thought it little enough, for the bones were pretty bare, and I handed the men the money from the till, and they are gone."

Mrs. Sproat could not find heart to reprove her favorite son for this misinterpretation of her words, and then she, too, loved a joke, and so, after an instant's glum look, she laughed and said it was all right.

Had Seen Them All Before.

Once while James Whitcomb Riley was visiting a town where he was booked to give a reading a committee called to take him in a carriage over the city. In acknowledging the compliment he said:

"I'll go with you, gentlemen, provided you promise that you will not show me the new courthouse, the new town hall, the new bridge, the new school building and the new jail, for I've seen them all a hundred times in as many towns, and they invariably wear me out before the time arrives for the curtain to rise on the evening entertainment."

Influence of Mountains.

The influence of the mountain is pure and holy, giving strength and simplicity, encouraging the older virtues, discouraging the newer vices. In the hill men of Wales we see this clearly enough. Go where you will among the wilder and more mountainous parts of Wales and you will find that rare independence and self reliance which are not marred by a curiously defiant discourtesy. You find there those that are truly "nature's gentlemen."—London Standard.

A Good Reason.

One day Mary was found standing on a chair in front of the mirror, gazing at her pretty image.

"Why are you looking in the glass, darling?" asked her mother.

"'Cause I like the look of me," was the frank reply.

Ungallant.

"Officer, I appeal for protection. A man is following me and attempting to make love to me."

"Begorry. Oi've been lookin' for an escaped lunatic. Where is he?"—Kansas City Times.

THE MISSISSIPPI.

An Explanation of How Water Can Run Uphill.

Can water run uphill? It would be a legitimate answer to this question perhaps to cite the flow of water through a siphon, its capillary action as in a lamp wick or its upward course when drunk by an animal. The inquiry should be made more explicit. Can a river in its natural channel, open to the air, run uphill? Impossible as this seems, it is an established fact. In truth, every river flowing toward the equator for a sufficient distance runs uphill.

The mouth of the Mississippi is three miles higher than its source—that is, Minnesota, where the Mississippi rises, is three miles nearer the centre of the earth than is the Gulf of Mexico. In the reason for this difference in level will be found the explanation of the river's uphill flow.

As every schoolboy will tell us, the earth is a ball flattened at the poles. This flattening, while comparatively insignificant, is still sufficient to make the polar diameter twenty-eight miles shorter than the equatorial diameter. In other words, the north and the south pole are fourteen miles nearer the earth's centre than is the equator.

Now, the distance from the north pole to the equator, measured along the earth's surface, is 6,000 miles, and the distance from the source to the mouth of the Mississippi is about 1,500 miles, or one-fourth of 6,000. If, therefore, there is a difference in level of fourteen miles between the north pole and the equator there will be a difference in level between the source of the Mississippi and its mouth of one-fourth of fourteen miles, or three and one-half miles.

But the territory watered by the Mississippi has been elevated somewhat by the action of volcanic or similar forces, and the actual excess in height of the river's mouth is reduced to three miles.

How is it possible for the river thus to run uphill?

When, long ago, the sun had thrown the earth from its surface like a drop of water from a swiftly turning wheel, our globe became a huge ball of molten rock, itself swiftly revolving in space. As it gradually cooled it shrank, and by shrinking its velocity increased, just as a stone tied to a string and twirled about a boy's finger revolves more rapidly as the string winds about the finger.

When the centrifugal force had so increased as to exceed gravitation a huge mass shot off from the earth's equator and became the moon. Still the centrifugal force retained ample power to expand the equator and to retain it in this form until cold and rigid.

Nor has this force yet abated. As it drew toward the equator the earth's material when plastic, it still continues to attract in the same direction all the fluids on the earth's surface. In this way gravitation is partially overcome, and the Mississippi river flows steadily up its three mile hill to the Mexican gulf.

The Solomon Islanders.

The cruiser Cambrian, which recently brought to Sydney news of the exciting adventures of Jack London and his wife among the Solomon Island cannibals, has been on special duty in those islands with the object of capturing the murderers of Captain Mackenzie, who was hacked to death by the islanders at Langa Langa lagoon, near Biena. The captain of the Cambrian sent a message to the chief of the bush tribe implicated, demanding the surrender of the murderers, and offering a reward of $100. The chief, so far from complying with this request, replied that his men would be very glad to meet a British force and fight and eat them. When, however, a party of 75 marines with their officers proceeded inland the tribesmen made a bee-line for the interior. A long search for them proved fruitless, and, after burning four villages, destroying the yam harvest, and killing all the pigs, the party returned to the ship.

"Faded Oysters."

"Faded oysters," said a dealer, "are freshened up by dipping them into what in the trade is known as the 'tank,' which is filled with a salty mixture which freshens them slightly. They are then placed on shells again and put into the window. A running stream of water has a marvellous effect upon oysters, fattening them to almost three times their size in a few days. Thin, starving bivalves which left alone would never be sold can be made to look quite large by this process. Oysters can also be improved by being kept in a sandy floored cellar. A blanket is laid over them, and this is daily sprinkled with sea water and oatmeal. The fish will live for a long time this way in cool weather and grow nice and corpulent. The flavor is also greatly improved."

A Youthful Experiment.

Little Clara, aged three, was always asking for dried apples. Her mother, fearing this diet might lead to harm, told her of a boy who had eaten dried apples which swelled in his stomach and caused his death. Clara was much impressed, but the temptation was strong, and one day, when she had been absent for a time, the piping voice called triumphantly from the room where the strings of apples hung, "Muvver, I ain't dead yet!"

Milk-Fed Racehorse Shot.

The milk-fed thoroughbred Azote, which ran unsuccessfully in the Derby this year, broke its leg during an obstacle race at St. Rouen recently and had to be shot. Azote ran six times, and his best performance in a race was to finish fourth.

LET EVERY WELL-WISHER ATTEND ANNUAL MEETING OF CHILDREN'S AID TO-MORROW

The great work of this society, the guardian of neglected and dependent children, of abandoned waifs, of deserted little ones and of all who can, by virtue of its wide-extending sympathy, be brought within the shelter of its arms, goes on increasing from year to year. Its organization while voluntary is complete, but while it has earned subsidies from the city, the county and the government it would fall far short of its mission of mercy if the charitable public did not attend its meetings and minister to its wants. Over 100 cases of a more or less serious nature have been dealt with by the local society during the past year. The annual meeting takes place to-morrow in the Council Chamber at 4 o'clock. Let there be a record attendance. It is the one way in which people can show that they are interested in the work and ready and willing to support morally and financially this great undertaking and those who conduct it. A few cases will serve as examples of the work done. A family in the north country is broken up with illness and brutality. Three little children are taken by the society, sheltered and provided for. Two young boys who had been convicted of burglary and thieving were taken care of and put in a way of what appears to be and what experience indicates will be successful reformation. Two criminals are thus transformed into good citizens. It is always the same. It is a record of distress relieved, poverty provided for, morality preserved, the young protected, criminality reduced. Be sure and attend.

DEATH OF MEMBER OF FIRST ORANGE LODGE IN CANADA

Yesterday marked the demise of one of the oldest adherents of Orangeism in the province when the death occurred at the residence of his son, Mr. N A. Howard Moore, 191 King St, of William H. Moore, 89 years of age. The late Mr. Moore has been failing for some time and during the past year he has been very feeble and his The late Mr Moore has been in a very feeble state of health lately and his death was not unexpected. He passed away yesterday morning at 6 o'clock.

His family, which is one of the oldest in this part of Canada in which they settled and his father was a pioneer of the township of Clarendon in the county of Wright, Quebec province. The Moore family colonized the four townships opposite Ottawa owning property where the city of Hull and the town of Aylmer now stand.

Deceased took a deep interest in military matters and was Sergeant-Major at the Garrison Artillery, Gananoque, at the time of the Fenian raid.

In Orange affairs he was particularly active and was an Orangeman since he was seventeen years of age making him 72 years a staunch supporter of the memory and principles of King William. He joined the first Orange lodge formed in Canada which was organized in Clarendon in the first part of the century among the Moore family.

Mr. Moore was for many years superintendent of slides at Ottawa and was in business in Ottawa and Gananoque and was well known throughout that section of the country.

In religion he was a member of the Church of England.

He was predeceased by his wife 38 years ago. The surviving family is Mr N A Howard Moore, 191 King street, city; Mrs James Darragh, Ottawa; Mrs Henry Hill, Landsdowne, BC and Wm H Moore, jr, of Vancouver, BC.

The funeral took place this afternoon to the Willow Bank cemetery, Gananoque. Rev Canon Davidson held service at the family residence yesterday afternoon.

MOST DESERVING CASE HELPED BY CHILDREN'S AID

A most deserving case of poverty was brought to the notice of the Children's Aid Society this week and through them the family has been greatly assisted. The father, his wife and three small children reside in Otonabee. Being only a laboring man and out of work the father was unable to provide for his wife and little ones.

The Society were able to secure work for the man and gave the family provisions and clothing.

SOME OF THE SPECIAL FEATURES

Of the Y.W.C.A. Domestic Science Closing Dec. 18.

Friday afternoon, from 4 to 4.30, there will be a demonstration of pillow-lace making.

From 4.30 to 5, an old fashioned spinning-wheel will be in operation.

There will also be Banbury tart making and ice cream making in a toy ice cream freezer by two junior pupils.

A new Krisp Krust pie tin will be demonstrated afternoon and evening.

The Queen's prize pudding will be a feature of the Christmas pudding table. This pudding is made after a receipt which won for Mrs Rorer, among 500 competitors the Queen's prize of 2 guineas.

Receipts will be sold at 10c each.

Kind friends who are loaning exhibits will please send them on Thursday directed "Arts and Crafts" care Miss McCalla, YWCA secretary.

In the Rambodde district in 1877 the first successful attempt was made to produce tea in Ceylon. In 1892 Ceylon Tea was first introduced into Canada by the "Salada" Tea Co. The excellence of this brand is responsible for the commercial success of Ceylon Tea in this country.

SUDDEN DEATH OF A POPULAR YOUNG MAN

Mr. Harold Lovekin Passed Away Early This Morning---Funeral Will Take Place on Saturday

One of Peterborough's popular young men passed away rather unexpectedly this morning at two o'clock in the person of Mr. Edward Harold Lovekin who died at residence of his grandmother, Mrs. Graham, 547 Water street. The deceased had been in failing health for some time, but was never confined to his bed. His death occurred very suddenly and came as a great shock to his wide circle of friends. The news of his demise was received throughout the city with the profoundest regret.

The deceased was 26 years of age and was the son of Mr. Louis Lovekin of Ottawa. He was born in Peterborough and resided here practically all his life. He was a valued member of the Peterborough Cricket Club and of Eko Camp. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him. Until his health failed him he was on the office staff of the Peterborough Light and Power Company.

HAMAN ZACK IS NOT A PEDDLER

Was Charged With Peddling Without a License---Case Dismissed.

Haman Zack, a Jew, was charged with peddling without a license, at the police court this morning. He appeared before City Clerk Armstrong who presided in the absence of Magistrate Dumble. He pleaded not guilty. He said that he had never peddled. People came to his boarding-house and bought his goods.

His brother was a peddlar and held a peddlar's license.

His Worship dismissed him, there being no evidence to warrant imposing a fine.

O'BRIEN INQUEST THIS EVENING

At the City Council Chamber—Enlarged From Last Monday

The inquest into the death of Edward O'Brien of Douro, will be resumed this evening at the city council chambers.

Deceased came to his death on the Norwood Road on Saturday night while driving home with two companions who claim they have no knowledge of the cause. Their evidence will be heard at tonight's session.

The inquest was opened at Lane and Eano's undertaking rooms on Monday and enlarged until this evening.

LADIES' TRUE BLUE LODGE

Was Formed Last Night---District Organizer Ketcheson Presided

The Ladies' True Blue Association added another lodge to their rapidly increasing number last evening, when the new lodge was organized for ladies in the city.

Bro. M. E. Ketcheson, District Organizer, presided over the meeting. The ladies took a deep interest in the Blue and White degrees, and this, together with punctuality, and so large a number the new lodge has every reason to expect a rapid and prosperous growth. They also chose a very suitable name. It will be known as Search Light No. 7, and the future nights of meeting will be decided later. Owing to the hall being so well occupied with other societies it could not be definitely decided. Watch Tower Lodge No. 217, had several members present and assisted in the different parts of the organization programme.

During the intermission following the Blue Degree the members enjoyed a repast of choice fruits. The White Degree was conferred on the new members and the election of officers was taken up. Quite an interest centred in the choice of a Worshipful Mistress, and several nominations were offered. The ballot proved favorable to Sister E. Bell, whom it is expected will perform her duties in a creditable manner as Worshipful Mistress of a new lodge of the L.T.B. Association. There was also great interest shown in the election of Deputy Mistress and Sister M. Pickens had the honor of this office conferred upon her.

The choice of the lodge for Recording Secretary was another office keenly contested and was finally decided in favor of Sister Carr.

The members thinking the hour quite late, the District Organizer declared an adjournment to meet again at an early date when the election and installation of officers will be completed, and the Scarlet Degree, which always causes such an interest in new as well as old members will be conferred.

The full list of officers will be published after the next meeting.

New Turkish Parliament Opened.

Sultan Drives Through Streets---Opening of Assembly a Solemn Affair.

Constantinople, Dec. 18.—A new constitutional government was inaugurated yesterday with every sign of success. Brilliant weather favored the ceremonies attending the opening of the new Parliament, which was elected under the constitution promulgated by the Sultan last July and everything passed off without the slightest disorder.

Any fear that the Sultan may have had as to the temper of his subjects was dispelled by the ample display of whole-hearted enthusiasm. The fact that the Sultan came out openly to meet his people on this auspicious occasion has gone a long way towards removing the effects of past evils, which have been attributed to the palace rule while the grand vizier, Kiam II. Pasha, who insisted upon His Majesty coming by the road which passes through the European quarter of Pera and Stamboul, thus bringing the sovereign into contact with the masses, instead, as suggested by the timid-hearted, of proceeding by water, has shown his great wisdom and has by this move secured further success in the consolidation of the constitutional regime.

The opening of the Parliament was characterized by much solemnity. Two hundred deputies and senators, with the chiefs of various religious communities, a large number of other state dignitaries and ministers and the heads of the diplomatic missions, were present. With the exception of the Sultan's six sons, in the box adjoining the imperial box, no other princes were present.

From Congress to Parliament.

Washington, Dec. 18.—A resolution directing that best wishes and congratulations be sent to the newly-convened Parliament of Turkey was agreed to by both Houses of Congress.

SMELTERS FOR CANADA

New Company Will Fight Trust in Canada, U.S. and Mexico.

New York, Dec. 18.—Official announcement is made that a large smelting and refining company is organizing, the object of which is to build smelters in this country, Canada and Mexico.

It will be backed by some of the strongest interests in the financial world, and among the directors, it is understood, will be men high up in the Amalgamated Copper Co. and the United States Steel Corporation. One of these will be William Rockefeller. Dr. L. D. Ricketts of the Greene Cananea Copper Co. and Mr. Matheson of the Anaconda Smelter have been in the city in connection with the organization of the company.

The new company will cater to the metal and mining trade of Canada, Mexico, Utah, Colorado, Michigan and Montana, and will build smelters in this territory, and possibly Arizona. Its capital will be $25,000,000. It will compete with the Smelters' trust.

A large number of mining experts and legal representatives of the Cole-Ryan properties have been in the city for the last few days, perfecting plans of organization. The names of the interests identified with the new company will be made public within a short time.

"A JEALOUS WIFE" THIS EVENING

Justin Adam's Latest Play Will be Given by Partello Stock Co.---Company Continues to Please

The Partello Stock Company continues in its presentation of interesting and well interpreted performances and thoroughly pleased a large audience last night with "The Girl From Eagle Ranch." The play is a natural drama of the west and effectively introduces many attractive characters. The different parts were capably handled the most taking portrayal being given by Miss Kennedy, who is a clever and versatile actress and shows ability much above that of the average repertoire star.

Tonight's play is one that has been expectantly awaited during the week. It is "A Jealous Wife," to the production of which special care has been given by the management. The author is Justin Adams, who wrote "The College Girl," which the company gave the first night of its season here. "A Jealous Wife," is said to be even better than the clever college play and is considered the strongest dramatic work from the pen of Mr. Adams, whose successes are innumerable. Wherever it has been seen it has met with unanimous approval.

A VICTORY FOR THE SCOTT ACT

St. John, N.B., Dec. 18.—The plebiscite in Westmoreland County yesterday resulted in a victory for the Scott Act by 1,100 majority, 350 greater than the Scott Act majority of last year.

The campaign was the hardest fought ever known in the Maritime Provinces, ministers from all over the country flocking into Moncton and immediate towns to carry on the struggle against the liquor men.

Last Sunday special prayers for the cause were offered in most of the churches in the provinces, and the result yesterday is hailed with great delight by the temperance people.

The vote polled was surprisingly large.

HON. WM. HANNA AT KINGSTON

Kingston, Dec. 18.—Hon. W. J. Hanna was the guest of honor last night at Queen's medical banquet. Interviewed by J. B. Walkem, K.C., acting for the widow of Samuel Stevenson, guard killed at Rockwood Asylum by a patient, and several prominent citizens, and asked that the Government do something for the support of the wife and nine children, Stevenson having met death while on duty. Mr. Hanna promised to take the matter up. He inspected the asylum and was entertained by the Frontenac Club.

Witness in Marine Inquiry Says One Man Took Three Thousand Dollar Cheques---Boudreau Says Whole Thing is a Lie.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—A mass of contradictory evidence was presented at the Marine enquiry yesterday.

A sensational story that $3,000 had been given to J. B. A. Boudreau of the Marine Department in Ottawa in connection with payment for the services of the King Edward of the Holliday Brothers steamship line was the feature of the morning session. The story was told by James Holliday, second hand. Though he was the man alleged to have signed the checks he swore he had no recollection of doing it and simply repeated what Van Felsen, a Quebec bank manager, had told him, that he did.

A. B. Van Felsen, who is a nephew of J. U. Gregory, the Marine agent at Quebec, in the afternoon, swore positively that in his office Mr. Holliday had made out three checks for $1,000 each payable to bearer, which he had cashed in other banks and then handed the money over to J. B. A. Boudreau of the Department at Ottawa for himself and others. The money was alleged to be for the passing through of Holliday Bros'. accounts with the Department which amounted to over $30,000.

Mr. Van Felsen stated that in June, 1901, the overdraft of Holliday Bros'. of Halifax at the People's Bank was about $20,000, and the bank would make no further advances. Mr. Holliday had told him the accounts of the firm with the Department amounted to about $32,000, and J. V. Gregory confirmed the amount. This was eventually deposited with a reduction of $2,000 for the King Edward, Mr. Van Felsen said he took the three checks referred to above, between June 4 and June 10 to other banks to get them cashed, as there was not enough money in the People's Bank to Holliday's account to pay the checks. He had no idea where the checks were now. He could not trace them. After Mr. Holliday had gone the transaction seemed so peculiar that he discussed it with Mr. Boudreau. He knew him by sight. As Mr. Boudreau was going out he asked the accountant to mark him well as he might want to identify him later.

"Then you knew you were taking part in a transaction which was not straightforward?" asked G. H. Watson, K.C.

"Yes, sir. I was the go-between," replied Van Felsen.

"When did you see Mr. Boudreau first that day?"

Witness said Mr. Boudreau had called in the morning and introduced himself as an official of the Marine Department of Ottawa, calling about Holliday's account. Before setting it, however, he said certain little things would have to be done, certain sums would have to be paid over.

Mr. Van Felsen said to him this was a hold-up and a shame and asked Boudreau to go to Holliday himself, but Boudreau said that was impossible, as his name could not appear. It had to be done through a third party. After some discussion Boudreau agreed to take $3,000. He told Boudreau he would put the proposition before Holliday and so the official of the Department left to return in the afternoon. Mr. Holliday when approached was excited and indignant. He claimed it a hold-up. His money had been held up long enough. Finally he agreed that perhaps it would be better to pay over the money or his account would be delayed still longer. He wrote the three checks payable to bearer on Van Felsen's suggestion in order that the transaction could not be traced. The money was secured from the Banque Nationale, Quebec Bank, and the Bank of Hochelaga. He got the money without endorsing the checks. Boudreau on getting the money said: "Of course, you know I cannot give you a receipt for this."

Witness then declared that he had been threatened by Boudreau and others over this matter. In Senator Choquette's house Boudreau had called him a liar and a scoundrel. Another man told him he would have to be careful or go to jail.

Asked why he had not made known these things at Quebec, he said Mr. Holliday had asked him not to go to court unless they could find the checks as evidence of the story of the payment. They consulted Hon. Mr. Taschereau and his advice was to keep out of court.

Mr. Watson here remarked that the attendance book in the Department showed Mr. Boudreau to have been in attendance June 5 to June 11, 1905, while witness said he had been in Quebec between June 4 and June 10.

Van Felsen said these were the dates to the best of his knowledge.

J. B. A. Boudreau, assistant accountant of the Marine Department since 1904, said he had no knowledge of these checks signed in the Department for payment. He found, however, by reference that they were made out on June 2, and sent out on June 14 or 15. He denied ever having been in Quebec during June, 1905. He was there about July 10, but not in June. Mr. Van Felsen's statement of what had happened was false from beginning to end. He never got any money whatever from Van Felsen. He claimed the story to be a put up affair. He admitted that he had been in the People's Bank and met Van Felsen, but that was in August.

To this Mr. Van Felsen replied that the bank was closed up in August.

Mr. Boudreau then admitted that there was a possibility he had been mistaken. However, he was certain he had not been there in June.

ABOUT CHRISTMAS TREES

There is quite a demand for Christmas trees in Peterborough at the present time. The evergreen still retains its place as the leading Christmas decoration, in fact, more trees and boughs are being used in Peterborough for decoration purposes than for a long time. Merchants have them in their windows as a means of displaying goods advantageously and many private homes will have "Christmas trees" on Christmas Day.

The majority of evergreens used in Peterborough come from the woods along the Otonabee river towards Rice lake. Farmers bring them to the city and they bring from 25c to $1.00 a piece, according to size. Some people prefer going out to the woods and bringing home their own trees, and when this is done it is not often that they are paid for then.

Thousands of small evergreens are shipped to the United States every year from the province of Quebec. Good prices are realised, balsam trees being most in demand.

TWO "VAGS." WITH TALES OF HARD LUCK TRY TO GET MONEY FROM BANKERS

Fred Cain and James Kerr have been going about the city for the past few days asking alms of the generously disposed persons but last evening their begging operations was brought to a sudden standstill and they were taken into custody by P. C. Adams. They appeared in court this morning charged with vagrancy, and were remanded until Tuesday next.

"We are out of work but not exactly broke," said Cain. "We were working for the Westinghouse Co. of Hamilton, and were laid off, so we came to Peterborough, thinking we would get work at the C.G.E."

They worked their hard luck story overtime and yesterday when they visited the Toronto Bank and Bank of Ottawa and Nova Scotia, their actions became suspicious. They asked for money stating that they had had nothing to eat for some time, and their widowed mothers were dependent upon them. One of them had his arm out of his sleeve so that it would appear as though he had none.

HAINS LOOKED FOR WM. ANNIS

Flushing, N.Y., Dec. 18.—Frederick A. Storm, a real estate dealer, testified yesterday in the trial of Thornton J. Hains, as principal witness with his brother, Capt. Peter S. Hains, in the killing of William E. Annis, that the defendant had enquired as to the whereabouts of Annis shortly before the latter sailed up to the dock where he was shot.

"Thornton Hains stopped talking about real estate and asked me where Annis was," said the witness. "I pointed out Annis' boat, then sailing toward the float." The shooting of Annis followed.

It is upon this statement of Storm the state hinges its contention that the Hains' brothers hunted up Annis for the purpose of killing him, and that the real estate enquiry at the yacht club was a blind.

AGREEMENT IS SATISFACTORY

Mr. John Higgins Will Not Take Action Against the City

It will be remembered that Mr. John Higgins, whose property is adjacent to the Hilliard estate in the north end of the city, threatened the city with a suit for damages if he was not recompensed for damage done his property on account of the corporation laborers digging too near his land in taking out gravel. A committee appointed by the Council visited the place in question and were unable to make a satisfactory agreement with Mr. Higgins. The city is repairing any damage done to Mr. Higgins' property.

LEDGER KEEPER TRANSFERRED

Mr. Norman T. Brown of Local Branch of Bank of Montreal Will Leave for Toronto

Mr. Norman T. Brown, ledger keeper of the local office of the Bank of Montreal, has received notice of his transfer to the main office of the bank in Toronto. Mr. Brown will leave on Monday. He has been in Peterborough for over two years and is quite popular in the city.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE JOHN IRWIN

Took Place This Afternoon---Was Largely Attended

The funeral of the late John Irwin, took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence, over the Post Office, to the Little Lake cemetery. It was largely attended, many prominent citizens turning out to pay their last respects to the memory of a life long resident of Peterborough.

There was a representation from the 57th regiment and the Veterans of '66 also attended in a body. The pall bearers were Col H. C. Rogers, Col Miller, Chief Roszel, and Messrs Jas Stewart and John Sawers and Finch Miller.

The services were conducted by Rev G W Henderson of Charlotte street Methodist church. The floral tributes were beautiful and included a wreath from the Veterans of '66 and a wreath from the children of the deceased.

OUTLINES SCHEME

For a New Regime In Indian Affairs.

People to Have Greater Share in Government of Country--No Constitutional Government.

London, Dec. 18.—Lord Morley, Secretary of State for India, speaking in the House of Lords yesterday afternoon, unfolded a plan for the reform of the governmental administration of India, opening what he described as "a very important chapter in the history of the relations between Great Britain and India."

The Government's proposals were first to increase the membership of both the judicial and the Viceroy's Councils by nomination and election, giving the different classes of the community each its representative; secondly, to repeal the prohibition against the Legislative Council discussing matters of general importance; third, to increase the Executive Councils of Bombay and Madras from two to four members each; fourth, to give the Lieutenant-Governor an Executive Council of two members, and, fifth, to adopt a device to secure an official majority in the Legislative Council.

Lord Morley said he anticipated criticism of this fifth proposal, but he explained that he made no pretension of inaugurating a Parliamentary system in India. What he wanted to do was simply to assign the Indians a greater share in the government of India without divesting the central authority of any of its power.

Checking Indian Unrest.

Calcutta, Dec. 18.—The course adopted recently by the Indian authorities to cause the arrest, swiftly and mysteriously, of all natives suspected of revolutionary activity, is having a good effect on the unrest of the population.

Instead of being deported, the leaders taken into custody are being distributed to the various jails in India. It is reported that the powerful native secret societies are dissolving as a result of the energy displayed by the Government. A delegation of prominent natives supposed to be implicated in the revolutionary movement called on the local commissioner yesterday and were assured of his support.

Another result of the campaign is that the native newspapers are becoming extremely cautious in their comments on the Government.

BANQUET HELD BY THE CHOIR

Charlotte St. Vocalists Have an Enjoyable Time --- Splendid Harmony in the Choir

The choir of Charlotte street church held an enjoyable banquet last night in the Sunday School room of the church. Over fifty were in attendance and enjoyed a splendid repast, a number of good speeches and a fine musical programme.

The banquet showed the splendid spirit of harmony that exists among the members of the choir and the pleasant relations that exist between that body and the other departments of the church.

Mr. Downey was toastmaster and filled the position in a very capable manner. The toast to the King was proposed by Mr. Ridyard and responded to by Mr. Stocker. The National Anthem was also sung.

Canada was proposed by Mr. Lebar and responded to by Mr Skitch. Mr. Stocker sang "O Canada," and "The Maple Leaf Forever," was sung by the company.

Mr H. B Collier proposed the toast to "The Church," and Rev. Mr Henderson responded.

"The Choir," was proposed by Mr. G. Hamner and responded to by Miss Clarry, leader of the choir.

The toast to "The Ladies," was proposed by Mr Ecclestone and responded to by Mr Armstrong.

Mr. James Browne gave a solo, "Maid of Malabar" in fine voice.

An interesting and unique feature was the toast to "The Gentlemen," which was done justice to by Miss Collier and Miss Jackson.

A vocal solo by Master S. Ridyard was well rendered and then came the toast to "Our Guests," which was proposed by Mr Cunningham.

A solo by Mr. Skitch added greatly to the programme.

A vote of thanks was passed to all those who contributed to the success of the banquet.

During the evening the choir was highly eulogized by Rev. Mr. Henderson and several kind references were made to the work of Miss Clarry and Mrs G. B. Hughes.

THE LATEST CABLE AND TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Neighbors Donate Skin.

Windsor, Dec. 18.—John Delisle, a wealthy blacksmith of Anderson Township, was frightfully burned while working at his forge. He fell in a faint and a red-hot iron fell upon him burning the back of the leg from his hip to his foot.

Doctors have succeeded in grafting about 100 pieces of skin on Delisle's limb, and there are good chances of his recovery. The skin was obtained from the victim's family and neighbors, who volunteered the sacrifice.

Montreal Pool-Room Raided.

Montreal, Dec. 18.—The police were congratulating themselves on having closed up about all the pool-rooms in the city, when one was discovered in full blast and doing a rushing business in the rear of a saloon in St. Henri Ward.

When a visit was made by the police a blackboard and telegraph instrument were found and immediately confiscated, putting the proprietor out of business.

Cataract Will Fight Hard.

Brantford, Dec. 18.—The Cataract Power Co. has appointed an organizer here and will place canvassers in every ward next week in an endeavor to defeat the Hydro-Electric power by-law to raise $20,000, in addition to $55,000 voted last year.

The company makes the claim that its offer to the city has been misrepresented to the ratepayers.

Four Years and Lashes.

Deseronto, Dec. 18.—Daniel Bowan was sentenced yesterday to Kingston Penitentiary for four years, and to receive in addition twenty-four lashes, half of them one month after he enters the penitentiary, the other half one month before the expiration of his term, for having carnal intercourse with several small girls from 8 to 12 years of age.

Crown Attorney Takes Action.

Windsor, Dec. 18.—Following the publication of certain statements to which he took exception, J. H. Rodd, crown attorney and law partner of Mayor Wigle, has issued a writ against Ald. Foster, and threatens to enter two other actions.

Ald. Foster is chairman of the finance committee, and alleged that certain debentures had been sold by Mr. Rodd, acting for Wood, Gundy & Co., to Toronto brokerage firms without tenders being asked, and without the matter coming before the finance committee. The debentures were sold at a premium, and Mr. Rodd thinks the city should be congratulated.

To Double Taft's Salary.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Senator Bourne yesterday introduced a bill providing for an increase in the salary of the President of the United States from $50,000 to $100,000, and in the salary of the vice-president from $12,000 to $25,000.

The bill is intended to take effect at the beginning of the next administration.

Laborer Gives to Charity.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—Without any relatives as far as can be learned, John Dancey, a German laborer, living latterly in Hull, has left $12,000 to charity. Among his belongings was found a will bequeathing $12,000, which was in his Hull bank, to Rev. Father Provost of Montreal, to be disbursed for charity purposes under his direction.

Woman Goes Free.

Hamilton, Dec. 18.—Mrs. Kata Kataranin, the Austrian woman who was arrested Wednesday evening on the charge of shooting with intent at Harrish Gaskpatovitch, a boarder, was acquitted in the Police Court yesterday morning, and the boarder was arrested on the charge of aggravated assault.

Attempted Arson and Murder.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 18.—A daring attempt at wholesale murder and arson is reported from Chilliwack.

On Sunday night an attempt was made to wipe out the entire family of Mr. and Mrs. B. Morden of that town and to destroy their home. A huge pile of hay saturated with coal oil was placed in front of the house and a match touched to it. The flames were discovered within a few moments after the fire was started.

Hops Bill Withdrawn.

London, Dec. 18.—The bill introduced by David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, prohibiting the use of hops substitutes in the manufacture of beer, was withdrawn from the House of Commons yesterday afternoon.

This step was a result of the opposition of the ultra free trade Liberals to what they consider the protective character of the measure.

Edmonton's Police Chief.

Montreal, Dec. 18.—A. C. Lancey, for two years superintendent of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Detective Bureau, and formerly connected with the C.P.R. secret service, has been appointed chief of police of Edmonton, Alta. He is succeeded by L. J. Ehlers, formerly manager of the Halifax branch.

Suicide at Thorold.

Thorold, Dec. 18.—John Dougherty, Thorold Township, committed suicide on Tuesday at his boarding-house by shooting himself in the head. He leaves a widow in Buffalo and a son in Hamilton.

Church Gets Damages.

Welland, Dec. 18.—Judge Wells yesterday gave a verdict for $12,362.55 against the town, in favor of the Methodist Church, which was damaged by fire when a road roller broke a gas main.

Oil Ship Burning.

Singapore, Dec. 18.—The first attempt to scuttle the British steamer Kalamee has not been entirely successful. The Kalamee arrived here on Wednesday from New York with fire in her cargo of case oil. The engine-room, the reserve and the reserve holds were flooded yesterday, and No. 2 hold was pierced with a cannon shot to make it possible to flood it.

The oil is burning furiously, and the situation is serious. It is impossible to go close in to the Kalamee because of the danger of an explosion.

Yanks Get Submerged Timber.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Five hundred cords of sunken pine piling, submerged for 80 years in the Rideau River and in the lakes some miles back of Kingston, Canada, has been bought by an American concern, which will raise the timber and take it by boat down the St. Lawrence to Ogdensburg, where it will be made into bleached soda pulp.

Seventy-Five Millions for Armament.

Buenos Ayres, Dec. 18.—The Chamber of Deputies has sanctioned a bill authorizing the Government to spend not exceeding $75,000,000 for armaments. The bill provides for the construction of two large battleships, and authorizes a third if necessary.

Costs of Fleet's Tour.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—The combined salaries of 17,000 ministers for one year would be needed to pay the expenses of the present cruise around the world of the United States fleet, according to Charles H. Beals of the American Peace Society.

Auto Plunges Into River.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 18.—An automobile containing three men dashed into the open draw of the Oneida street bridge early yesterday and went to the bottom of the river, carrying two of the occupants to death.

Stove Causes Serious Fire.

St. Thomas, Dec. 18.—Fire caused about $5,000 to $7,000 damage to G. W. Midgley's clothing store here early yesterday morning. The blaze was started by a stove in a lodge room in the second storey setting fire to the floor and falling through on to the gas meter.

Kingston's Deficit.

Kingston, Dec. 18.—Kingston will end the year with a deficit of $15,000. This is largely due to the extraordinary expenditure of the Board of Health in fighting smallpox, which cost about $12,000.

Year's Long Enough.

Kingston, Dec. 18.—Council may ask the Legislature to let the city go back to electing aldermen annually instead of every three years. It is said that the long term makes aldermen careless.

Templeman Is Silent.

Montreal, Dec. 18.—Hon. William Templeman was here yesterday, but declined to discuss his political future, saying that he was not yet in a position to say anything on the matter.

Killed by Fall Into Sewer.

Welland, Dec. 18.—George Acton was instantly killed yesterday morning by falling into a sewer 20 feet deep, his skull being fractured. He leaves a widow.

Dublin University.

Dublin, Dec. 18.—At a meeting yesterday of the senate of the new university, Very Rev. James H. Walsh, Lord Archbishop of Dublin, was elected chancellor.

Spout of Kettle Through Mouth.

Kingston, Dec. 18.—A child named Wilson, of Arden, fell and jammed the spout of a kettle through the top of its mouth, coming out below the right eye.

THE PANAMA CANAL

The charge is made by the Pulitzer clique who own the New York World that there has been a huge swindle in connection with the taking over of the Panama Canal from the French Government. It is alleged that while the real purchase price was twelve millions of dollars, yet it was stated to be forty millions of dollars and Congress voted that sum accordingly. Where did the eighteen millions go. Or is the whole story a fabrication? Mr. Roosevelt says that it is merely a Pulitzer yarn and we believe him. The amount actually paid to the French Government or its agents can be ascertained and whichever party it justifies in its story will have incontrovertible evidence of the correctness of its statement. It looks at this distance as if it were a sort of scheme of vengeance set up by Pulitzer & Co. to make Mr. Roosevelt's term of office more notable for crookedness than straightness. But Mr. Roosevelt has shown himself to be strong both in honor and in action. "The big stick" is a very necessary element of a police system, presidential or otherwise. The stick is the only thing bad boys dread.

WHAT WE SAID

"In Guelph the Laymen's Missionary Association is taking a hand in the municipal elections. These men have a good idea where missionary effort is most needed."—Hamilton Spectator.

All our exchanges so far as we inter[view] them agree with the simple text above quoted or its equivalent. It will never cease to seem inconsistent, not to say absurd that men who cannot govern their own country according to the simplest principles of honesty in word and deed, should assume to spread abroad blessings which they certainly do not enjoy at home. Crookedness in the conduct of public affairs would be a thing of the past but for the fact that religion is regarded as only a Sabbath day affair. There are it is true, men who worthily represent the churches in this respect, but they are few. The greed and fatuity continues to govern the mass.

DRAMATIC SOCIETIES

"A Dramatic Society would prove of great benefit to the pupils as well as a source of instruction and amusement to outsiders. It would also help to draw and cultivate any dramatic talent which may be buried in our midst, for who knows, among the many fair faces that there is not a future Madame Bernhardt, or a Madame Modjeska. It would, therefore, make us familiar with many good plays, as they have, or ought to have an elevating influence on the mind, we would certainly be benefitted by them and have our enjoyment in good literature heightened."—Collegiate Echoes.

One hour's reading of a play is worth more than a month's wild effort "to put it on." Amateur dramatic societies are not as a rule successful exponents of dramatic art, although they do afford much amusement to those "in it," and sometimes to those looking on. "Acting" has always appeared to us to be what the poet meant when he referred to the last infirmity of noble minds—unless perchance it is the first. It consumes much time and energy that can be expended much better otherwise. Such at least, is our humble opinion after having seen much amateur acting. As a means of diversion for a house-party, it ranks with hide-and-seek and puss-in-the-corner, but as a means of developing appreciation of dramas and dramatic art, we should hesitate to recommend it. We are sorry we cannot agree with the opinions of the fair editor.

THE GLOBE ATTACKED

The Examiner makes a violent attack on the Globe for the latter's severe castigation of its own party leaders for their conduct of the recent election saw-offs. The Globe is right. "Wrong and disgusting," the words used by the Globe are not a whit too strong and apply to both parties. We will not spend our time in backing up the Globe in this affair, because it needs no help however small or however important but we can direct attention to the Examiner's complaint that disingenuous protesters can take advantage of a loosely drawn act which permits of accusations in general terms. The act does no such thing. When the proper time comes in the course of the conduct of the suit, particulars must be given to the member or respondent. All this talk of impropriety on the part of the petitioners is bluff. Any attempt to foist upon the public mind the idea that innocent people are being made victims of foul play may just as well be given up. It would be much more becoming in the Examiner to agree with the Globe's timely fulminations against the prevailing wrong and disgusting rottenness than to seek to perpetuate the methods of the average dark lantern inhabitant of crooked paths and city purlieus by specious proposals.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"What caused that awkward break in the conversation."

"Some one dropped the subject."

The entire province will sympathize with His Honor and Mrs. Gibson in the loss of their eldest son.

Denmark wants an executioner. For some years capital punishment has been unknown there; because all capital sentences have been commuted; but the rapid increase of capital crimes has concluded the government in the belief that this has been a mistake.—Ottawa Citizen.

A young Scotch farmer lived at some distance from his bride-elect. On the eventful day he set off for the station betimes, but he met one friend after another, with the result that he missed his train. Naturally he was very much upset, and bethought himself of the telegraph. This was the message he sent:

"Don't marry till I come.—William."

Patterson, NJ, Dec. 18—If a surgical operation performed in this city proves successful, Cornelious Snyder of Hawthorne Borough, soon will be going around with one of his fingers sewed to the place where his nose used to be. There was a growth on the nose for several years, and about a year ago the greater part of the nose was amputated. This operation was a success. When the patient was informed by physicians that it was possible to replace the nose with a finger, he decided to have the operation performed and it took place in the General Hospital, being performed by Dr. John O McCoy. The operation is reported to have been successful and the upper part of the patient's body has been encased in plaster to insure rigidity. The finger will be amputated at the middle joint one when the wounds are healed, the doctors say, the patient will have as good a nose as could be expected under the circumstances.

We have heard before of the conjunction of the nose and finger but not of the substitution of the one for the other.

TO DISCUSS THE MONEY BY-LAWS

Special Meeting of Board of Trade on Monday Night.

On Monday night next a special Meeting of the Board of Trade will be held to consider the money by-laws to be submitted to the ratepayers of Peterborough in January. The by-laws have to do with the expenditure of over $190,000 and it is important that they should be fully explained in order that the ratepayers may vote intelligently. The meeting is called for eight o'clock sharp and there should be a large attendance.

GOOD HORSEMANSHIP.

An Old Hunter's Illustration of the Gift of "Hands."

Your heart and your head keep up.
Your hands and your knees keep down,
Your knees keep close to your horse's sides
And your elbows to your own.

This old bit of advice for the would be horseman is quoted by a writer in Baily's Magazine and declared to be perennially sound.

He quotes another old hunter on the subject of what he calls "the divine gift of hands" in riding. This old hunter, John Darby, used to attach two pieces of twine to the back of an ordinary chair and draw the same tighter until the chair balanced on its fore or hind legs, according to his own position.

Then when balanced he would keep it, so to speak, on the swing by gently manipulating the twine or reins he held in his hand. A rough pull would, of course, have upset the chair one way, whereas the fact of not checking it in its movements at all would have caused a total loss of control over it in the opposite direction.

"And that," when the exhibition was concluded he would add, "is hands, gentlemen."

Jogging to the covert, continues the writer, you may notice one fine horse, the owner fully equipped, throwing its head up and down like a pump handle, another sweating profusely, although the pace has not exceeded five miles an hour since it left the stable, and a third snorting and prancing about all over the place.

Why is this so? Simply because the rider of neither of them is possessed with the divine gift of "hands."

THE BEE'S STING.

An Ugly Weapon Something Like a Three Bladed Sword.

The bee's sting is made up of three separate lances, each with a barbed edge and each capable of being thrust forward independently of the others.

The central and broader lance has a hollow face furnished at each side with a rail or beading, which runs its whole length. On the back of each of the other two lances there is a longitudinal groove, and into these grooves fit the raised beadings of the central lancet.

Thus the sting is like a sword with three blades—united, but sliding upon one another—the barbed points of which continue to advance alternately into the wound, going ever deeper and deeper of their own malice aforethought after the initial thrust is made. It is a device of war compared to which the explosive bullet is but a clumsy brutality. Yet this is not all.

To make its death dealing powers doubly sure this thorough minded amazon must fill the haft of her triple blade with a subtle poison and so contrive its sliding mechanism that the same impulse which drives the points successively forward drenches the whole weapon with a fatal juice.—From "The Lore of the Honey Bee," by Tickner Edwardes.

The Weather House.

A very ingenious contrivance for foretelling the weather is the old fashioned "weather house," largely made in Switzerland. It is arranged in such a way that two figures act in response to the twisting of a piece of catgut. The material, supported by a wire, controls the movements of a little platform on either end of which is placed a model. Excessive moisture in the air causes the catgut to twist and turn the platform round, so that the man emerges from one of the doors in the front of the house. Reverse conditions of the atmosphere bring about the contraction of the catgut, and the platform swings back, thus bringing the figure of the woman into prominence at her particular door. The making of a weather house is quite an easy matter.

"Spoken English Very Good."

From an advertisement of a Danish hotel: "The hotels charmingly situation, surrounded of a nice garden the good cuisine, the kindly accommodation with moderate charge and good conveyances, with easy occasion for salmon and trout fishing, the ascending of the surrounding mountains has done this place well-known and praised of all travellers. N. B.—The landlord is spoken English very good."—Lahore Civil and Military Gazette.

A Riot of Color.

From the land of the Moros a soldier writes: "A Moro matron passed our quarters this morning wearing a heliotrope jacket, purple trousers with large heart designs worked in yellow, blue and pink embroidery, a red and black sarong, yellow plush slippers and yellow silk mantilla. The lady's maid (old), in modest garb, walked behind, carrying a magenta parasol."

Hobson's Choice.

"There is an egg for breakfast," remarked a landlady to her lodger. "Which do you prefer?"

"Prefer?" repeated the latter. "Where's the preference when you only offer an egg?"

"Why, you can have an egg or—nothing!" was the sharp reply.—London Scraps.

No Fun.

Jester—Of course I expect pay for them. You don't suppose I write these things for fun, do you? Editor (handing back the batch of paragraphs)—Well, if you did, you failed most dismally.

Hogs—Receipts, 3000. No sales; feeling weak.

Huge Coal Fire.

Fort William, Dec. 18.—The most destructive coal fire ever known at the head of the lakes has been in progress for several weeks at the Canadian Pacific coal docks. To save thousands of tons of soft coal the company has resorted to almost every known means without avail. More than a hundred thousand tons are in the pile, and a big gang of shovellers has failed to get at the fire. In a final effort, the company is preparing to put in operation a steam shovel, but it will be weeks, if at all, before the heart of the fire is reached. Spontaneous combustion is responsible.

Veterans Claim Damages.

North Bay, Dec. 18.—Two interesting actions were heard by Justice Teetzel in the High Court of Justice at North Bay this week, and were put over to a Toronto sitting, so that additional witnesses may be examined. Monaghan and Moore v. Ontario Veterans' Association are actions for damages, plaintiffs having selected veterans' land grants on a site afterwards pre-empted by the Ontario Government as the townsite of Matheson.

Gets $1,000 For Ascent.

Kingston, N.Y., Dec. 18.—For her involuntary balloon ascension at the Ellenville Fair, when she was whirled aloft at an aeronautical exhibition through becoming entangled in a dangling rope, a jury in the Supreme Court yesterday awarded Mrs. Mary S. Roper $1,000.

She had sued the Ulster County Agricultural Society for $20,000.

Postmaster Morgan of New York, who was shot by a crank on Nov. 9, returned yesterday to his official duties.

HOW HE SLEPT.

His Experience With a Noisy and Persistent Cuckoo Clock.

Werts recently was presented with an old fashioned clock. That evening he hung it on his bedroom wall, wound it up and after admiring it awhile went to sleep. He was drifting into very pleasant dreams when he was startled.

"Coo-coo, coo-coo!"

Werts sat up with a start, but in an instant recovered his wits and listened to eight more coo-coos with a foolish grin. Then he lay back and went to sleep again.

He had got into a fine doze by the time the thing went off again. This time he didn't grin.

Werts is a light sleeper, and, though he tried to get used to the thing, he gave up after the cuckoo had announced 2 o'clock and got up and stopped the clock.

Next evening Werts junior, who had not seen the clock, went to look at it.

"Why, it's stopped," he said. "What is wrong?"

Werts senior stroked his chin.

"Maybe I didn't wind it this morning," he replied. "Ferd," he continued generously, "if you will promise to wind that clock every morning I'll let you have it for your room."

Werts junior was delighted, and the transfer was made.

At the breakfast table next morning the heir of the house of Werts looked tired and somewhat sheepish, but offered no explanation. After considerable general conversation his father said:

"You look tired. How did you sleep last night?"

Werts junior yawned.

"By the hour," he answered.—Kansas City Times.

Portuguese Cabinet Resigns.

Paris, Dec. 18.—A despatch to The Temps from Lisbon yesterday afternoon says the Portuguese Cabinet has resigned.

French Ship Goes Down.

Sydney, N.S., Dec. 18.—The French schooner Marielline, Capt. Degarette, foundered off Port Moriene Wednesday. The master and crew were saved. The Marielline hails from Bordeaux, France, and was of 242 tons register. She was on a voyage from Cadiz, Spain, to St. Pierre, Miquelon, with a cargo of salt.

The captain and crew reached their boat in the nick of time and saved nothing but what they stood in.

Aged Woman Slays Husband.

New York, Dec. 18.—"He is my husband and I killed him," declared Mrs. Mary Davidson, the grey-haired wife of Christian Davidson, aged 60, captain of the canal boat Shamrock, who was found murdered on board his boat at Corlear's Hook, N.J., yesterday.

A blood-stained capstan bar lay near the body. Empty whisky flasks testified to revelry which had taken place.

Canada's Rhodes' Scholars.

London, Dec. 18.—Canadian Rhodes scholars have gained the following distinctions at Oxford during the year: J. C. Archibald, Quebec, fellowship All Souls' College; C. B. Martin, Beit prize for colonial history, £50 and the Brassey studentship in colonial history, valued at £100; H. J. Rose, Quebec, Passmore Edwards' scholarship, £30, for classical English literature.

British Torpedo Boat Lost.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Dec. 18.—Torpedo boat 059 ran ashore on the rocks while manoeuvring off Bembridge ledge, Isle of Wight, Wednesday night. The crew of 14 had a narrow escape. Two feet of water was in the hold when the Bembridge lifeboat arrived in response to signals. The vessel is a complete wreck.

Five Years For Hold Up.

North Bay, Dec. 18.—Joseph Varone, an Italian, was sentenced by Judge Valin to five years in Kingston Penitentiary for theft. Varone was implicated in the hold-up at Cobalt recently when several Italians coming from the mines were relieved of their savings by a gang of four Italians armed with knives.

Can't Bonus the Mill.

Thorold, Dec. 18.—The new pulp mill being erected at Thorold by American capital, represented by H. B. Eshelman, will have to get along without assistance from the town. Rival local pulp manufacturers object.

Collision In Tunnel.

Port au Prince, Hayti, Dec. 18.—Gen. Antoine was yesterday unanimously elected President of the republic by the Haytian Congress.

A Very Dainty Whim.

Queen Victoria of Spain is credited with having set the "rose fashion," as she has adopted the rose for her favorite flower, and the popular scent is therefore the delicious attar of roses.

There are hundreds of girls in Paris now making up silken roses, which will afterward be perfumed and worn by the women of fashion.

One kind of rose almost approaches silver in tone and is made of sheeny pale pink satin stuffed in its heart with a soft sachet powder.

Wreaths of white roses are worn by the debutante, consisting of a dozen little button roses wired together and made of chiffon or silk. These are only scented by lying in a box in which a sachet has been placed.

The scented pink rose is pinned at the side of the throat. It should nestle in a bed of silver tulle or of silver chiffon and is sprinkled with real attar on its petals.

A diver in New York barely escaped death under water because two air pumpers commenced fighting and forgot him.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head

ACHE is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

The Fair Ground By-law

Editor of the Review:

Dear Sir.—Would you kindly allow me a little space to reply to a letter in your daily of the 10th inst. re "Exhibition Grounds." Now sir, that letter, I hope it is not intentionally misleading but from lack of knowledge of the proposition. The proposition is for the city to buy the Exhibition Grounds and Turf Club Grounds for a park for the south end of the city and allow the Industrial Fair Board to erect suitable buildings, for fair purposes and only to be used by them for exhibition purposes one week in the year for accommodation, and if something like this is not done it will be very difficult for the Fair Board to make their exhibition the success they and all our best citizens wish it to be. As at present our buildings through age are becoming old and dilapedated, and as the present grounds are only under a short lease we do not feel justified in spending large amounts in repairing the old buildings or erecting new ones. Now sir we have a precedent to show that it would be to advantage for the city to purchase the grounds. We will take the city of Toronto and their National Exhibition, acknowledged to be the greatest on the continent. The city owns the Exhibition Grounds and buildings, erected at a very large expense, and in each and every year they are spending enormous sums on new and additional buildings as required, and Toronto people look on this as one of their best investments from a financial standpoint, as the city receives a large dividend every year from the profits of the exhibition directly, to say nothing of the immense business done by the business houses in all lines during the two weeks of the fair.

We hope the electors will take a broad and liberal view of the whole matter and by their votes for the by law instruct the city council to purchase this desirable property for a park and place of recreation for the citizens, at once, while it can be obtained and surely the south end citizens should be given some consideration, as at present they have no park, while all other parts of the city have been provided with splendid parks. At the present time no part of the city is building up as rapidly as the South End.

Yours,
WM. COLLINS,
A Fair Director.

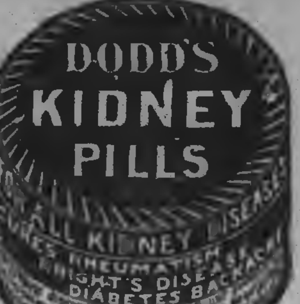
NO PREJUDICE IN QUEBEC OH! NO

"A Strathroy, during the election, Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that his life is devoted to the great task of giving "an equal share of justice and liberality to all men, no matter what may be their race or their religion." But at Saint. Esporitt, his candidate, Mr. Dugas, to his knowledge and without a word of protest from him, said to the electors; "Gentlemen, how can you hesitate between Sir Wilfrid Laurier, a Catholic and a French Canadian, and Mr. Borden, an Englishman and a Protestant." Mr. DuDugas fully understands what the Laurier idea of liberality to all is, and he puts it in practice."

And then,

"La Verite, an advanced clerical organ in Quebec, gives peculiar reasons for opposing Hon. Mr. Weir, as successor to Hon Mr. Gouin in the Premiership of Quebec.

"Not only is the Hon Mr Weir a pure Englishman," La Verite says, "but he is a reformer of the Langlois school."



THE PIGEONS WON.

In Spite of Clipped Wings They Got Back on Time.

The colonel was something of a pigeon fancier and had so much confidence in a certain strain of homers he was making a hobby of that when his friend the major proposed a wager the colonel removed the limit.

"We'll make it a suppuh," said the major. "Yo' black boy will tote a paiah ovah to the cyahs an' ship them to St. Louay, whaah they ah to be libahrated on ahrival. I wagah they ah not back in two days, sah."

The colonel accepted, crated his finest pair and included a note to the express agent with the charges. Meanwhile the major communed with Joe, the colored boy, and after the tendering of a certain half dollar and promises of immunity from the consequences of the colonel's wrath later Joe agreed to clip the pigeons' wings sub rosa.

Two days passed, and the major presented himself duly at the colonel's. The colonel eyed him with suspicious narrowness.

"Have they ahrived?" asked the major gayly.

"They hev, sah," said the colonel, with dignity; "they hev, but those two pidgins, sah, hev the so'est feet I evah saw on a bird, sah."—Browning's Magazine.

BE SURE YOU'RE RIGHT.

Then Take a Long Think and Mind Your Own Business.

The other day a man traveling on a shore line train noticed, protruding from an overhead rack, a dress suit case which he recognized as belonging to a friend. He knew that his friend always got off at the station which they had just passed, and as he was not in the seat the conclusion was inevitable that he had jumped off the train and forgotten it.

The man called the conductor and explained the case to him. After some discussion and a mild protest on the part of the conductor that it wasn't a part of his duty, the suit case was put off at the next station, with instructions to send it back on the first train the other way.

The man, feeling that he had done an able and friendly act, settled down for the rest of his journey.

But not for long. The face of his friend, who had been in the smoker and who happened on that particular afternoon to be going on to New London to attend a dinner party—loomed before him.

The moral of this is, of course, quite evident.

Overboard.

"Overboard" is engraved on a metal label fastened to many articles of paraphernalia seen about the decks of a modern war vessel. It means that the article so marked should be thrown overboard whenever action with an enemy's ship becomes imminent. Alcohol chests, turpentine tanks, paints, spare spars, unnecessary hatches and other articles easily destroyed or splintered by shell fire are thus labeled. The president of Occident college, California, is said to have given the word a new meaning in civil life when he used it to indicate those who are unfit, useless or inapt in the struggle of life. It is a strong word and as such can be appropriately applied to men and things which when a ship must go to battle are not necessary or material to the end desired.—Army and Navy Life.

Her Own Doctor.

A Washington woman recently hired a negress. Going to the kitchen one day, she was amazed to find the negress sitting on the floor, with her hair standing out from her head like a black nimbus. The girl was pulling one curly lock and then another in such a way as to suggest that she had suddenly lost her reason.

"What on earth are you doing, Mary?" gasped the lady of the house.

"Nawthin', ma'am; only I has got a sore throat an' was jest tryin' to find de lock dat would pull mah palate up an' relieve de tickle."

The Fickle Shopper.

"That woman always keeps me guessing," said the grocery clerk as she went out. "I never can tell till the last minute what she is going to buy. Just now she priced the coffee. I gave her the prices—25 cents, 28, 30, 35, 40.

"'Is your twenty-five cent coffee any good?' she asked me.

"'Yes,' said I; 'bang up.'

"'Then,' said she, 'give me a pound of your forty cent, ground fine.'"

Probably Not.

"I hate to be poor. Now, a millionaire can walk right in and order what he wants without bothering about the price."

"He can," stated the weary salesman, "but he seldom does."

Every Morning.

Paul, at the age of four, was asked one morning by his papa, "What is the name of the first meal of the day?"

"Oatmeal," responded little Paul promptly.—Exchange.

An Enigma.

Tommy—Say, papa, I wish you would tell me something. Papa—Well, what is it? Tommy—When you were a little boy, who was my papa?

HER MESSAGE TO SISTER SUE

Mrs. Chatter's Instructions to Hubby Were Long Drawn Out.

"Henry, dear," said little Mrs. Chatter to her husband while he was drawing on his top coat preparing to make the rush for the train that was to take him into the city. "You know our phone isn't working this morning, and I do want to send Sister Sue a message in regard to meeting her this afternoon in the city. Could you, dear, ring Sue up on your phone in the office and give her a message from me? You can as well as not? Thank you, dear. Well, tell her that if it doesn't set in to rain and if Cousin Em doesn't come to take me to ride in her auto this afternoon, as she said she might, but you know how reckless Cousin Em is with her promises, and it wouldn't surprise me if she never thought of it again, but if she should come I don't want to miss the ride, and I'll try to get Sue on the phone by that time and let her know if I go to ride, or if Libbie Brayton doesn't come over to have me help her on that programme we are arranging for the benefit of the day nursery. Tell Sue I will meet her in the waiting room at Ridgeley's at 3, or it may be a quarter after or a quarter before, or if she'd rather have me meet her some place else tell her to try to ring me up and let me know. I guess our phone will be working by that time. Tell her it wasn't working this morning and that is the reason I didn't ring her up, as I said I would, and tell her to try to think to bring me my hatpin and my lace handkerchief that I left when we stayed all night with her Monday night, and ask her if I didn't leave one of my gloves there, and tell her that, after all, I think we'd better meet at some place other than Ridgeley's because that is so far from where we are going, and ask her to try to think to bring me the recipe for that new kind of cake we had at dinner Monday night, for I'd like to try a loaf of it when we have the Brynlys here to dinner Friday. Yes, yes, of course you must get your train, dear. Run along. Only be sure to ring Sue up and tell her that she'd better ring me about noon, and—goodby! Don't forget!—Puck.

Future Peril.

Terrified Passenger (on ocean liner)—Captain, why is the steamer going so slowly and using its searchlight?

Captain—Don't be alasmed, madam. The ship is in no danger. But in a fog like this we are always likely to run into somebody's blooming old balloon and make a nasty mess of it.—Chicago Tribune.

CORONER'S JURY FIND THAT ED. O'BRIEN'S DEATH WAS DUE TO NATURAL CAUSES

Nothing sensational whatever transpired at the inquest last night into the death of Edward O'Brien, of Douro, whose demise on Saturday night while he was returning home appeared somewhat of a mystery in view of the circumstances connected with it being unknown. But the matter was satisfactorily cleared up at the coroner's inquest in the City Council Chamber last night and death was due to purely natural causes. Dr. Young, who performed the postmortem, stated so in giving his evidence.

The hearing of the evidence only occupied about an hour, the principal witnesses being James Smith and John Guerin, the two men who drove home with O'Brien on Saturday night.

John McCormack, the first witness called, testified to having traded horses with O'Brien and Smith. The former worked for Smith. This was on the morning of O'Brien's death.

Dr. Young performed the post mortem examination at Lane and Eano's undertaking rooms on Monday, Dec 14th. The only marks of external injuries were on the face. An artery of the brain was ruptured. The arteries of the brain were found to be inflexible and in such a condition that a sudden rush of blood from the heart would have caused one of them to burst. The rupture of the artery was apparently the cause of death.

John Smith, Indian River was in town Saturday, Dec. 12th, with Mr. O'Brien. When driving home accompanied by O'Brien and Guerin, the horse they had obtained in the trade dropped dead on the road. He and Guerin dragged it off the road and he hitched the other horse up so that they might proceed with the one horse. O'Brien stayed in the sleigh during these operations and suddenly fell forward off the seat. Guerin picked him up and both thought him to be dead. They took him to the home of Mr. J. Corkery and found their surmises were right. O'Brien's brother went to Peterborough and notified Coroner Gray.

Smith was followed by Guerin who corroborated his evidence. Messrs Collins and Corkery, of Otonabee, the former a brother-in-law of O'Brien, who lived near where the sudden death occurred also testified. He assisted in the taking of the body to Corkery's.

The jury returned the verdict after a very short deliberation.

The jury was composed as follows; A. E. Micks, foreman; Archie Campbell, James R. Bell, James Head, John Halpin, Fred Cook, Jos. Hickey, James Marty, J. T. C. Laing, K. G. Lech, J. D. Craig, Wm Hudson, J. W. Carey.

5c ADMISSION FOR CHILDREN TO POULTRY SHOW IN JAN.

The Poultry Association is getting busy now and holding frequent meetings in preparation for its winter show on January 5th, 6th and 7th. A meeting was held last night at the Labor Hall, Simcoe street, Vice-President Paxman in the chair.

Secretary-Treasurer B. T. Huston, who is leaving the city, handed in his resignation and Mr. C. G. Hicks was appointed to the office, Mr. Paxman was chosen as superintendent for the show.

Mr. Harry Lush told of the great success of the show in Guelph. Several exhibitors of birds there would bring them to Peterborough.

It was decided that during the three days of the show children would be admitted at an admission fee of five cents between the hours of four and six o'clock.

There were thirty members in attendance at the meeting and the general discussion was entered into with enthusiasm.

GRANTS FOR PUBLIC SCHOOL LIBRARIES IN THE COUNTY

The County Treasurer has received from the Department of Education notice of the grants to rural schools on account of libraries purchased between July 1st, 1907, and Sept. 30th, 1908. The grant this year amounts to 34 per cent. of the amount expended. That is sections spending $10 receive a grant of $3.40 sections making an expenditure of $20 get $6.80 and others in proportion. The largest grant is $10 and goes to No. 8, Harvey. In addition to this special grant for libraries there is an annual grant of ten per cent. of the total value of the library, which is paid as a part of the grant for equipment. The schools receiving grants for libraries are;—Asphodel, Nos. 1, 5, 6, 7 and 9; Belmont and Methuen Nos. 2, 3, 4, 8 and 10; Burleigh and Anstruther, Nos. 1B, 2B, 1A and 2A; Chandos, Nos. 2, 4, 5, 7 and 8; Douro, Nos. 1, 3, 5, 11 and 12; Dummer, Nos. 2, 4 and 11; Ennismore, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4; Galway, Nos. 4 and 6; Harvey, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8; North Monaghan, Nos. 2 and 3; Otonabee, No. 5; Smith, Nos. 2, 5, 7, 8 and 9.

WORK OF RE-LAYING ROMAINE STREET SEWER SOON TO COMMENCE

The Review has been informed that after the Christmas holidays work will be commenced on the relaying of the Romaine street sewer.

A meeting of the Board of Works will be held this week to make definite arrangements for going ahead with the work. As recommended by City Engineer Hay the sewer will be re-laid with twelve inch pipe. Great care will be exercised in relaying the pipes as it is realized that the sewer must be just right or there will be danger of it not working satisfactorily.

THE BEST OF THE SEASON

Lillian Russell at the Grand Wednesday Dec. 23—Excellent Supporting Company

Lillian Russell will be seen at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening next, December 23rd, in her new racing comedy, "Wildfire." The famous beauty is presented by Joseph Brooks in the play by Messrs George Broadhurst and George V. Hobart, which has just carried her through a wonderful run in New York.

The character she portrays in the new comedy is that of a widow making a hard fight against impending disaster. It is intensely human and the quick appeal of the developing situations is not because of any dramatic effectiveness but of the underlying tug that such a contest when waged with the spirit of such a pretty woman as Miss Russell makes for is sure to give to every heart.

There are three distinct calls upon Miss Russell's powers of impersonation in the different acts and in all she brings an effective comprehension to bear mingled with that remarkable poise and tranquility of spirit for which she is noted. Her playing is illuminating. In dressing the scenes Miss Russell wears three gowns that are of the latest mode.

"Wildfire" is faultlessly staged and its second act has the novelty of aspect and the charm of realism to make it a departure. There is an exterior to introduce it and a beautiful home setting for the frame of the third act which relects the Russell taste.

In her supporting company Miss Russell has the services of players who were gathered about her for their respective fitness to the characters to be portrayed. In the list will be found Frank Sheridan as the trainer, and Wit. Archie, as Bud.

GAVE LECTURE IN HAMILTON

Rev. Dr. Marsh Spoke on the Phenomena of the Solar Surface

On Tuesday last Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, lectured in Hamilton on "The Phenomena of the Solar Surface," before the Hamilton Astronomical Society. The lecture was given before an audience that filled the hall and was under the auspices of the Astronomical Society. The speaker was given a hearty welcome and the audience evidently appreciated the address very much. Mr. G. P. Jenkins, F.R.A.S., was in the chair.

A reorganization of the society was held and on counsel of Dr. Marsh it was decided to become affiliated with the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada.

At the conclusion of Rev. Dr. Marsh's lecture a hearty vote of thanks was tendered him.

Helping the Children

Mr. A. E. Checker, of Belleville, agent of the Children's Aid Society, spent several days in Madoc last week looking after a couple of families who were in destitute circumstances. Two parties were brought before the magistrate. The first one was given over to their grandparents, while the latter ones were allowed to take other quarters with a promise to do better. In each case promises were given that the children would be cared for, and the magistrate gave each one a month's respite to carry out their agreement.—Madoc Review.

SNOWSTORM LASTS FOR MANY HOURS
Started to Snow at Midnight—A Heavy Storm

The city was visited by the first blustering snowstorm to-day. The snow began to fall shortly after twelve o'clock. It was accompanied by a heavy wind and citizens experienced just a slight reminder of the storms of last winter, when blockades were of frequent occurrence and trains were delayed for days.

The snow ploughs were out early this morning and had the streets well cleaned by the time the people were getting around to work. The storm was not heavy enough to cause any delay with the street cars. More snow is just what was needed to make good sleighing.

WRAP YOUR GIFTS DAINTILY

Of late years much more attention is paid to the manner in which one's Christmas gifts are tied up and addressed. It is a well known fact that more pleasure is derived in the receiving of a daintily wrapped parcel than in one that is hastily tied up an despatched without much care.

Nowadays no parcel is really complete without a pretty little holly card with the donor's name put inside. The parcels then the wrappings are sealed with small holly or Santa Claus seals and the address within on a holly label or tag.

There are also several styles of cards, labels, tags and seals, and they are all equally pretty. They are all on sale at the Review office together with many other materials and Xmas gifts.

SPORTING NEWS

ABOUT SPORTING REPORTS

The Review is desirous of publishing all the happenings in the local realm of sport. There are many events which happen and which are of interest that are not recorded for the reason that they are not brought in or telephoned to the office.

The hockey season will open soon and games will be played in all sections of the city. The Review would consider it a favor if announcement and reports of these games were communicated to the sporting department. None are too unimportant for publication and will be given space on the sporting page. This applies also to all other branches of local sport.

The news will be read with interest by the public and will give your team or club desirable recognition and publicity. Don't forget about it.

The telephone No. is 1-8-9.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR Y.M.C.A. TRACK AND FIELD CLUB

Indoor Weekly Programme Arranged—Boys Will Get Into Shape for Hexathelon Contest—Prospects for Summer Discussed.

THE OFFICERS.

Hon. President—J. J. Howden.
Hon. Vice-President—V. Eastwood.
President—C. E. Sason.
Vice-Pres.—J. H. Adams.
Sec.-Treas.—E. Wilson.
Executive—S. W. Collings, P. Wallace, G. Fowler.

The above were the officers that that were elected last night at the second meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Track and Field Club. At a former meeting preliminary details were settled and everything now looks like smooth sailing for the newly-launched athletic association. The curriculum of the Y.M.C.A. physical department is prettty complete now with the Track and Field Club and it should prove one of the strongest branches of Y.M.C.A. sport.

The officers and executive will meet at a future date to draft the constitution of the club. The colors will be blue and white and the committee will selected the monogram.

It was decidedd at the meeting to hold one track and field event every evening at the gymnasium at 7 o'clock, commencing Wednesday, Jan. 6th. This will get the boys in shape for the annual Hexathelon contest of the Canadian Y.M.C.A's. held each April five events being run off in each association competing. The results are forwarded to the C.A.A.U. Comparison of the standing is made and the championship awarded. The local club intends to get into good shape for the contest and are confident of bein gable to make a good showing.

At last night's meeting the prospects for the summer season were talked over and the Y.M.C.A. Track and Field Club is looking forward to a good year.

THE SENIOR CHURCH LEAGUE SCHEDULE WAS DRAWN UP

There were seven teams represented at the meeting of the Church Hockey League last night at the YMCA. Four were senior and three were junior sevens. President N E McWilliams was in the chair and the schedule for the senior division was arranged by the schedule committee. Although they were not represented it is likely that St John's will have a team in the junior series. The teams represented at the meeting were:—

Senior, George street, St. Andrew's, Knox church and Park street.

Junior, Murray street, All Saints' and Knox.

The meeting decided that players in the Mercantile League would be eligible for the Church League.

SENIOR SCHEDULE

The schedule for the senior league was drawn up as follows:

Jan 5—George street vs Knox, 7-8. Knox
Jan 7—Park street vs St Andrew's. 8-9. Park.
Jan 12—Park street vs Knox, 7-8. Knox
Jan 14—St Andrew's vs George St. 8-9 Park.
Jan 19—St Andrew's vs Knox, 7-8. Knox
Jan 21—George street vs Park St. 8-9. Park.
Jan 26—Knox vs George street, 7-8. Park.
Jan 28—St Andrew's vs Park street, 8-9, Knox.
Feb 2—Knox vs Park street, 7-8. Park.
Feb 4—George street vs St Andrew's 8-9. Knox.
Feb 9—Knox vs St Andrew's, 7-8. Park.
Feb 11—Park street vs George St. 8-9. Knox.

FIRST HOCKEY PRACTICE OF THE SEASON LAST NIGHT

A rattling good practice of the hockey team was held at Brock street rink last night. A dozen players or so were out and among the number were some of the old guard.

The practice was held from 7 to 8 on a fast sheet of ice. It was the first one of the season and considering this the boys got around in good fashion. Graham, Wasson, Glover, Parnell, Morgan, Weatherstone, Dobson McMillan and others were in attendance.

Arrangements have been made to have the juniors hold a practice of their own once a week and they will also have some practices with the intermediates.

LOCK WORKS BEAT EXAM. B.

LePlante of Lock Works Had High Average of 175

In the first game of a double-header last night in the [illegible] ten pin league series Examiner B dropped two to the Lock Works while in the second contest Pacifics carried off the honors winning two from the Midgets. The Pacifics are now only a couple of games behind the leaders, while the Iroquois are close behind.

LePlant's bowling was easily the feature of the evening, the Lock Works player running up the highest score of the two contests with an average of 175. McIlroy of the Pacifics was a good second closely followed by Jack Connor, who seems to have struck his old gait.

DelaFosse was high man for the Examiner B, but his team mates were were away of fooler. Lang bowled the first two games for the Lock works, Lashour subceeding him in the third game.

Hayes was far and away the pick of the Midget team, hanging up a total of 484 pins for his three games.

The scores follow.

ST. ANDREW'S FOR CHURCH LEAGUE

Have Formed Hockey Club With M. Johnston Captain

St Andrew's have formed a hockey club and will play in the senior church league. The board of officers will be the executive committee of the Young Men's Club and Messrs Mort Johnston, Captain Donaldson, Hay and McDonald.

St Andrew's have a number of likely players to select their team from.

SIMPSON CAN BEAT DORANDO

Is the Opinion of Tom Longboat—Names Other Canadians Who Can

"It was a cinch all the way," said Longboat after the race, "I was always running easily, and after the fifth mile I knew I had him. I was not in shape, but when he made it an easy pace I knew it was all over. The next time I meet him I will beat him a mile. There are better men in Canada than Dorando, Holmer, Simpson, Wood and Coley are all better men."

PAT McDONOUGH AT FORT WILLIAM

Paddy McDonough has returned to te fhelty and will play for one of the local hockey teams this winter. He has received good offers from both the Fort Williams and Wanderers, but so far he has not decided who he will line up with.

McDonough spent the summer in Chicago, where he captained the Shamrocks, winners of the city lacrosse league.—Fort William Times-Journal.

CURLING SEASON

Was Opened This Afternoon at New Rink—Ice in Excellent Condition.

From now on the curlers will be busy with broom and stone. This afternoon saw the first curling of the season in the fine new rink.

The veteran ice maker, Angus McIntosh, has the ice in splendid condition and the opening of the active season was enthusiastically welcomed by the curlers.

This winter promises to be the greatest one in the history of the game in Peterborough. The membership list is a very large one, and a deep interest is being taken in the game. There will be many New rinks and the veterans are all playing again.

HIAWATHA UP-TO-DATE

This is from the Montreal Star;

Fleet of foot was Hiawatha,
He could shoot an arrow from him
And run forward with such swiftness,
That the shaft would fall behind him.
Fleet of foot was also Longboat.
Who could meet Signor Dorando,
From the land of macaroni,
From the land of organ grinders,
From the land of sweet musicians,
Who adjust piano-organs,
Just beneath our office window,
And tear off the Merry Widow,
Annie Laurie, Daisy Bell, and
Then the tuneful intermezzo
From Mascagni's Rusticana—
All of these and many other
Pleasing little nerve destroyers
Rendered by the gents with earrings,
From the land of Sig. Dorando

Fleet of foot was Mr Longboat,
Who could train on Scotch and soda
(If there wasn't any soda,
He could train on Scotch exclusive)
And in looking o'er the records,
Made by Marathon performers,
Made by English, Dutch, Italian,
Made by Yankee, Greek and German
Made by T Longboat's ancestors,
We arrive at the conclusion,
At the steadfast, strong conclusion
That the great long distance runners,
From the days of Hiawatha
Down to those in this December,
Hadn't anything on Longboat.

Feb 15—Marmora at Havelock.
Feb 17—Stirling at Madoc.

The other districts will arrange their schedules in a few days.

THE RING

Philadelphia, Dec. 17.—Jem Driscoll, of Wales, outpointed Grover Hayes, of Chicago, in their six-round fight at the National Athletic Club last night. In only one round did Hayes make any kind of a showing, and that was in the fourth. In this session the boy who had adopted Philadelphia as his home landed a left and a right flush on his antagonist's jaw and for once the clever little Cardiff fighter was unable to sidestep the ferocious rushes of Hayes. But that was all. In the fifth Driscoll resumed the clever, shadow-like tactics that had worried Grover in the earlier rounds and Hayes could not lay a glove on him.

HOCKEY

Edmonton, Alta., Dec. 17.—Edmonton's Stanley Cup challenge team left here last night on the C.N.R. for Montreal, to prepare for the cup games on December 28th and 30. They were given an enthusiastic send-off and were banqueted by the club executive. The line-up for the Stanley cup games were picked from the following, who have gone east;—Lindsay, Patrick, Pitre, Ross, Miller, Whitcroft, McNamara, Phillips and Deeton. Patrick and Phillips will join the team in Winnipeg.

Edmonton Journal; The only problem now facing the executive in sending a winning team east is the fact that they are still short the necessary expense money by the slight sum of $800. This must be forthcoming if the bunch is to travel to Montreal next Wednesday and get a lock in for the big tinware.

The Midget hockey team was formed as follows:—Carl Halpany, Willie Heaslip, Percy Parrington, Allin Wade, Harry Carr, Bennie Clute, Martin Kenneally.

They will challenge the Rink Rats to a game of hockey.

HOCKEY BOOTS

Our Hockey Boots are now interesting hockey players. We've the best of Hockey Boots—the regulation sort—the only kind that fills the requirement. We have different grades, but every shoe is a correct one.

HAVELOCK TEAM IN LINE AGAIN

Hockey Club Re-organized in Railroad Town—Ball Will be Held to Raise Funds

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Dec. 16.—An enthusiastic meeting of the supporters of hockey was held in the Armstrong House on Monday evening, to form a hockey club to enter the Trent Valley League. The following officers for the ensuing season were elected;—

Hon. President—Mr. D. Carmichael
Hon. Vice-President—Mr. Thomas Bennett.
President—Mr. Ed. Murphy.
1st Vice-President—Mr. H. Roche
2nd Vice-President—Mr. Jas. Fowler.
Secretary—Wm. Bryans.
Treasurer—John Beaver.
Executive Committee—The manager and T. Beaver, K. McKay, Ward Patterson and T. Dineen.
Manager—Mr. George Mathison.

The membership fee was set at 50 cents.

The managers of the rink agreed to allow the use of the ice from 7 to 8 p.m. every evening, except Saturday for hockey practice.

In order to help out the finances of the club it was decidedd to hold a "hockey ball" on Friday evening, Dec. 18th, and the following committewe of management was appointed;—T. P. Lancaster, H. Cameron, H. Mathison, T. Dineen, A. Armstrong, T. Beaver, N. Campbell, Wm. Green, Wm. Rose.

Everyone who wants to help along the club will do well to send along their dollar for the ball or 50 cents for a membership ticket.

The team will get down to business under the management of Mr. Mathison who has had a good deal of experience in hockey in many towns in Ontario and it is hoped that they will be able to make a good showing at their first game at Marmora on January 4th.

SPORTING TALK

Especially for those who have bet on him.

A lot of people are kicking because Tom Flanagan did not give them a tip and allow them to clean up on the betting in the Longboat-Dorando race. The Indian's manager pursued a wise course in not advising Canadians to back the Onondaga. If something had happened Longboat and he had not won and he had been heavily backed the noise of the mourners and knockers could be heard in Italy.

THIS FELLOW A POOR PROPHET

Hear What He Said Before the Longboat Dorando Race

About a week prior to the race the "athletic authority" of the New York Telegraph had this valuable appreciation of the comparative merits of the runners;—

"Longboat will be a mark for the sturdy little Italian. The Indian was a starter in the Marathon race at the Olympic but made a miserable showing and after giving up after going a few miles was driven to the finish in an auto.

"Longboat is not the dangerous man he was two years ago and it's an even bet that he won't finish if he starts in the race for 26 miles with Dorando. The Indian has shot his bolt as a long-distance runner. He has already set up a howl about not being able to get into condition by December 15th the date of the proposed race. Why does he race then? Why do the promoters of the affair permit him to run? Do they think they can 'con' the public into giving up good money to see a man 'race' who acknowledges he is not in condition?"

The same "authority" says; "Shrubb is distinctively a cross-country runner and not at home on a circular track."

A TROPHY FOR THE CURLERS

Handsome Shield for Competition Between Peterboro' and Bobcaygeon

The friendly feeling that has always existed between Peterborough and Bobcaygeon Curling Clubs is this season being put into form of a handsome Trophy presented by Messrs. Fitzgerald and Bottum for competition between the clubs. It is on exhibition at Mr. Bottum's store and is considered a beautiful piece of work. It is a large silver shield on an oval hardwood panel with a silver scroll above the shield. On the upper part of the shield is a figure of a curler delivering a stone, and on the lower part crossed brooms and a stone. Around the engraving are eight small gold shields to receive the names of the winning clubs. It is a trophy that either club may feel proud of holding and will no doubt give rise to many a keen contest of skill and exchange of friendly sport.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

"That revolver again?" asked Musgrave, with a laugh that did not cover the irritation that it was intended to conceal. "It seems to me, Jeanne, that you are always fooling with that murderous looking thing."

"Not always," was the grave response. "For whole weeks it lies in the top drawer, Frank, but once a month I take it out and clean it that it may always be ready and that I may not forget, as though I ever could," she added wildly.

Musgrave shuddered. He disliked the sight of weapons, and there was something sinister in the care with which the girl kept the revolver always in good condition.

It was no pearl handled toy such as a woman might be supposed to carry, but a blue barreled .45 that would "stop" a man with a single shot, the sort of weapon that was meant for men.

It struck a jarring note in the femininity of Jeanne Barthon's personality. It was absurd and yet repelling that the dainty little artist should devote so much time to the care of the black muzzled threat. All about were half finished sketches, bits of French seacoast, ideal heads and fashion drawings in odd confusion, with a handsome toilet over a dressmaker's form in one corner.

Jeanne herself was essentially feminine, a tiny mite of a woman with a coronet of golden hair surmounting a fragile face. She was scarcely five feet tall, and the gun was oddly out of proportion.

Musgrave sank into a chair from which he swept the fashion magazines to the floor and watched the girl with gloomy face.

"Perhaps it will be as well to tell you my secret, Frank," she said at length when the weapon had been oiled and reassembled. "Then you will understand my care and also why I cannot promise to marry you, dear. It is best that you should understand."

"I have no wish to pry into your secrets," he demurred. "They cannot be very important—except your reason for not wanting to marry me. You admit that you are unmarried and free and that you love me. Those are the essentials."

"Unmarried—yes," the girl breathed tensely, "but free—no. It is that I would tell you, dear, so sit that I may not see the horror in your face, and do not speak until I have finished. Sit so," she added as she placed a chair so that it stood directly before her own.

"It is the gun with which some day I am to kill a man," she began, plunging into the middle of her story. "Do not stir until I say that you may. I cannot talk if you interrupt. It is hard enough to tell even so."

"Then don't tell," urged the man. "You never will kill a man. You are afraid even of the dark."

"Of the dark, yes," she admitted softly, "but when the moment of revenge comes I shall shoot to kill, with never a thought of what will follow. They may not kill me, but I will spend years in prison, and all because I have done the justice that men would not do. That is why I may not marry.

"I had a brother once. He was all that I had. Not even cousins had I, and when my Paul went to your Klondike I grieved and grieved, even though he had promised that in one year he would return with millions of francs and I should enter the atelier of the great artist with whom I would study and become famous.

"For a year I had his letters. Then none came. I said that mails were not regular in that far off land, and so I waited almost another year. Then with the little money that I had I sought him, for I knew that evil must have befallen.

"I journeyed across this great land to the frozen north, and there I learned the worst. Paul was dead—killed by his friend, they said—his friend who could shoot him down for the little gold that he had.

"They said it was all an accident. Bah! Men who handle guns do not have accidents. Is it reasonable to tell that one is killed by another by accident? This man said that he was cleaning his revolver and that it went off by itself. They had let him go. He had fled the scene. He came to New York, they said, and he was a lawyer.

"There was a little photograph of him. That I brought with me. Of course he would shave his beard, but I have made other sketches—you have seen them—with the face clean shaven and with the mustache. One mark he had—a great scar across the cheek. It is his brand of Cain. By it I shall know him.

"Now I study art no more. I draw fashions because it pays, and when I am idle I haunt the courts. I look for a lawyer with a great scar, and when I find him this gun shall speak."

Musgrave had risen from the chair, and as she spoke she raised the revolver and pointed it at an imaginary foe. His turning disconcerted her, the gun wavered, there was a report, and the bullet seared Musgrave's arm.

With a cry of horror, the girl sprang to his side.

"I have killed you!" she gasped. "You, my dearest friend, I have shot! It was not for you that the revolver was meant. You were right. I was wrong to keep it. Oh, my dear!"

She sank sobbing beside him, endeavoring to roll up the sleeve and stanch the blood that now trickled in a tiny stream down his arm. Musgrave pushed her from him.

"It was right!" he cried hoarsely. "The shot hit the man for whom it was intended, but you did not aim at the heart. Was your brother Paul Desplaines?"

"That was my mother's name," she explained. "Paul took it so that when he should return Desplaines, the miner, and Barthon, the millionaire, would not be the same. It was childish, but he was but a boy."

"It was common to use other names," said Musgrave harshly. "I was Jack Joyce up there."

"You!" The girl recoiled and half turned to where the revolver lay upon the floor. The studio building was almost deserted, and the sound of the report had brought no inquiry.

"I am the man who shot your brother," continued Musgrave. "It was an accident. I was cleaning my gun while Paul lay in his bunk. I did not see that one cartridge was left in the chamber. I snapped the hammer to see if it was limbered up and—it happened."

Overcome by the horror of the recollection, Musgrave buried his face in his arms for a moment while the girl stood silently by. Her face was ghastly white, the lines drawn and tense, and in the blue eyes was horror unspeakable.

"It was an accident," went on Musgrave after a moment. "The boys understood and let me go. I left the country and came back to New York. I had never liked the law. To escape that profession I went to Alaska. I could draw rather well, and I came back at a time when the northern novels were first coming out and men who could draw Alaskan scenes were in demand.

"I made a success and spent my money looking for Jeanne Desplaines. There is money in the bank that I have kept until I could find her, the money that Paul had helped me earn. I never dreamed that you were she, you are so unlike Paul.

"That picture you have with the scar is misleading. The scar is the result of a photographic error, a defect in the glass. I had some made because the effect was so odd. That is why you did not know me. You looked for the scar. You will not believe that it was an accident. You just said so. Shoot if you will. Take a life for the life I robbed you of."

He rose unsteadily to his feet, stooped and raised the revolver from the floor, handing it to the silent girl.

"Perhaps it would be better if I did it myself," he said bitterly as she made no move to take the proffered weapon. "It will relieve you of all consequences. I will welcome death since now I know that my love is hopeless. I will go to my own studio."

Unsteadily he staggered toward the door. The girl watched until his hand groped for the knob, then, with a sudden revulsion of feeling, she rushed toward him.

"You shall not! You shall not!" she cried passionately. "It was a mistake, Frank. I know now, for did I not shoot you by accident? It was only the good God who turned the bullet aside because he had sent you to make me happy. It was a lesson to me, who had disputed the wisdom of God. It was an accident, dearest, and now that I know that the thought of vengeance and—and prison no longer stand between"—

"You will marry me after what I have told you?" he cried in wonder.

"God is good," she said reverently. "He has taken my brother from me, but he has sent you—in place of Paul," and she suffered him to draw her within the circle of his arms.

Change of Climate Helped.

Some time ago the Virginia state line was altered so as to include a patch of territory heretofore belonging to North Carolina.

A section of the land thus transferred included a tumbledown cabin where dwelt an aged negro woman.

An inquisitive neighbor, calling to see how the negress enjoyed the idea of becoming a Virginian in her old age, began the conversation by asking:

"How is the rheumatism, auntie?"

"Bettah, praise de Lawd!" was the reply.

"And the neuralgia?"

"All gone. Clean depa'ted!"

"And the stiff knee?"

"Frisky as a li' colt!"

"Why, auntie, how on earth do you happen to be so much better all of a sudden?"

"Well, miss," replied the auntie proudly, "Ah always done heah dat Virginny climate's a heap healthiah'n de climate of No'th Ca'lina. Ah reckon dat sho' 'counts fo' ma change fo' de bettah."—Detroit Free Press.

When Bees Beat Troops.

It is on record that a swarm of bees as weapons of war were used not once, but twice, and with the best possible effect. When Themiscyra, in Pontus, was besieged by Lucullus, the Romans employed turrets, built mounds and made huge mines beneath the city. While they were creating the mines the people of Themiscyra dug down through the earth to the mines and cast in upon the Roman workers bears and other wild animals, together with a swarm of bees. History repeated itself in England when the Danes and Norwegians made their attack upon Chester about ten centuries since. The town was held by the Saxons and some Gallic allies, who tried stones and boiling water upon the besiegers without effect. As a last resource they collected all the beehives and upset them into the enemy's camp beneath the city wall. This had the effect of making things "hum," so to speak, and it is recorded that the enemy were so badly stung that they could move neither arms nor legs.

GENESIS OF FEAR.

Gray Cells of Our Brains Stamped With Ancient Terrors.

The average man would sooner face a 200 pound human antagonist than a fifty pound dog which he could choke to death in three minutes. I have seen a charging ram scatter half a dozen men, any one of whom could have mastered the brute in a moment, and not one of whom was in ordinary matters a coward. There are instances on record of men who with their bare hands have held and battled an ugly bull, but it was only the pressure of grim necessity that taught them their powers. Put a man against an animal and the man looks around for weapons or support, whether he needs them or not. There was a time when he did.

For man, today the most lordly of animals, was once well nigh the most humble of them all. He has come up out of a state in which fear was the normal condition of existence—fear of violence, of the dark that gave opportunity for violence, fear of falling, of animals, of being alone. And into the plastic gray cells of our brains are stamped these ancient terrors, a living record of the upward climb of man.

The baby shows this record most clearly. In him the prints of heredity are not yet overlaid by the tracks of use and custom, and therefore in him we may most easily read our past history. He is our ancestor as truly as he is our reincarnation, and his every shrinking gesture and frightened cry are chronicles of the younger world, tales of the age of fear.

They tell of the days when man was not the master of the earth nor even a highly considered citizen of the same, but a runaway subject of the meat eating monarchs, whose scepter was tooth and claw, a humble plebeian in the presence of the horned and hoofed aristocrats of woods and fields. They speak of the nights when our hairy sires crouched in the forks of trees and whimpered softly at the dark—whimpered because the dark held so many enemies, whimpered softly lest those enemies should hear.—Lippincott's.

Bright Prospects.

"My dear," said the banker to his only daughter, "I have noticed a young man attired in a dress suit in the drawing room two or three evenings each week of late. What is his occupation?"

"He is at present unemployed, father," replied the fair girl, a dreamy, faraway look in her big blue eyes, "but he is thinking seriously of accepting a position of life companion to a young lady of means."

An Everyday Suit.

"That Gus is certainly a nifty dresser. He has a suit of clothes for every day in the week."

"Why, he has the same suit on every time I see him!"

"Yep; that's the one."—Cleveland Leader.

Why Saint Nicholas?

By ROBERT DONNELL.

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

WHY is Santa Claus sometimes called St. Nicholas? For the most excellent reason that Nicholas is the real name of the saint. Until comparatively recent years there was no Santa Claus at Christmas time. When the old saint comes down the chimney Dec. 24, Christmas eve, and deposits gifts for the children in the suspended stockings he is just nineteen days behind time, for his true and proper time is Dec. 5, that being the eve of St. Nicholas day. Just how Nicholas got to be the Christmas eve saint is not altogether clear, but those iconoclasts who dig into ancient matters are probing this secret. They have discovered, or claim to have discovered, that the Christmas eve Santa Claus really originated in America, being transported to England from New York.

In the saints' calendar Dec. 6 is St. Nicholas day. Nicholas was bishop of Myra, in Lycia. He is believed to have lived under the Emperors Diocletian and Constantine and is the patron saint of poor maidens, sailors, travelers, merchants and children. Rich maidens, of course, are also quite willing to acknowledge him when he comes along with diamond dog collars, necklaces and tiaras.

Before the great religious reformation the custom of giving presents on St. Nicholas eve was general throughout Christian Europe. When the worship of the saints was abolished the practice died out in England, where for about three centuries St. Nicholas failed to visit households on the evening of Dec. 5 to leave presents for good children. By the way, it should be pointed out that Nicholas was noted even in infancy as a particularly good and pious child. Therefore his visits are not made to bad children—only to those whose parents can vouch for their good behavior during the previous year.

In Austria, Holland and Poland St. Nicholas eve is still observed. Good children get presents, secretly left in their shoes placed upon the hearthstone for the purpose or in their stockings hung from the mantel. When New York was settled by Hollanders the devout Dutchmen brought over to America their religious customs, not forgetting that of St. Nicholas eve. In old New Amsterdam the saint made his visits the night of Dec. 5, St. Nicholas day being celebrated by the settlers as a holiday. In time the Dutch were supplanted by the English, New Amsterdam became New York, and the old St. Nicholas eve gift giving custom was reintroduced into England from New York. But in England the custom of giftmaking on Christmas eve had grown up. There was, however, no Santa Claus ceremony. Gifts were made outright and without secrecy.

When St. Nicholas sailed back to England there was consternation among fond papas and mammas in the tight little isle.

"What! Shall we have two days of gift giving and less than three weeks apart?" they cried.

Thrifty English parents, it is supposed, determined that one day of giving was enough, and so they simply transferred St. Nicholas to Christmas eve.

An average of $100 an hour for his recent 17 hours' fast trip from Chicago to New York was paid by J. Pierpont Morgan.

THEIR EVE OF NOEL

BY Virginia Leilia Wentz

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY HOMER SPRAGUE

"MERCI, monsieur!" cried the concierge as he cheerfully took the silver coin. "A happy Noel, monsieur!"

Lansing Drake entered the little impasse on the broad Avenue du Maine shaking his shoulders, for his back ached. He had been working at the Louvre for five steady hours—till the very last fraction of light held out. Why not? What part had he in the festivities of these happy French people? Was not he one of the homeless ones, separated by the width of an ocean from his family?

In his studio apartment he threw himself on a divan with a pipe and a Journal Amusant. But the Journal was full of allusions to the season, and somehow he sighed. The eve of Noel—Christmas eve! It had been the very best time of the year over there in his dear southern home. What were they doing now? Getting the things ready for the trees, and tying up the wreaths of holly with red ribbon, and hanging a branch of mistle—oh, pshaw, what right had he to think of such things tonight?

A clatter of sabots across the flagstone court—the small daughter of the concierge fetching water from the common tap; from the Boulevard Montparnasse the toot of a St. Philippine du Roule train and then silence. Drake was picking up his paper again when—

The snow lay on the ground;
The stars shone bright—

Ah, it was the quaint old English carol, with its liquid, sweet melody, which he'd learned at his mother's knee, and it was the American girl across the court who was singing it:

When Christ our Lord was born
On Christmas night.

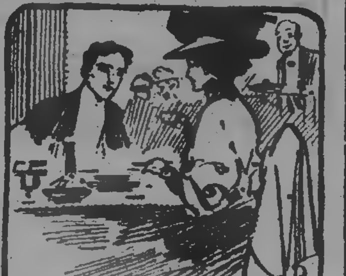
No wonder the tears came to his eyes. That particular carol and that particular girl made up a combination to which he was a bit sensitive if the truth had been dragged from him. Just that very morning he had written home:

"There's a little American girl opposite. I don't even know her name, but the mere sight of her keeps me straight. She's all alone, and she's evidently studying music. As for her singing, she has the most beautiful voice the good God ever saved from a lost violin, a voice to make you pray, little mother, to turn your laughter to tears, to turn your tears to laughter."

From the day when he had first seen her, watering her geraniums on the sill, the window across the court yonder had become a sort of shrine. And at each new glimpse of her an unformed prayer of thanks surged up within him that a creature so lovely had been sent by heaven to keep the word "gentleman" stainless, to make it a thing to strive for and to take a cleanly comfort in.

She was a stranger too. It was a bond between them. Tonight perhaps she was suffering like him from homesickness and loneliness. How soon he could make her forget all that! They could have a revellion of their own and a jolly little supper, laughing together in sheer happiness of a mutual understanding of the Christmas spirit abroad. Unchaperoned? What would they need of a chaperon, they two—two toilers for the sake of art, comrades in arms made equal in rank by the blessed chance of being both strangers in this wonderful old Paris?

There was a moving gleam of something behind the geraniums yonder. The cheesecloth curtains stirred, and then the window was lifted. She threw out some crumbs to some cold looking sparrows. The last rays of the winter sun touched the fine, white parting that separated the burnished waves of hair.



If he only dared speak to her! She might misjudge him before he had a chance to show his intentions. But he would do it. He would seize the moment while this fit of madness lasted and speak to her. In saner mood his courage might be unequal to it. He hurried out of the room and stood, hat in hand, in the court close to her window.

"I am your neighbor across the way, mademoiselle," he said. "It is a month since I first saw you, and I've been wanting to know you so much, so much. I have no means of obtaining an introduction, and at the risk of your displeasure and your scorn I have ventured to speak to you tonight, to tell you how the little Christmas carol you sang just now somehow flew straight to a fellow's heart and made him think of home and all the old familiar joys of the season."

He held out a card. His hand shook a trifle. But the girl did not notice. She was looking at him steadily, after the first start of surprise, the color coming and going in her cheeks. But in her eyes was no fear, no displeasure, rather the expectancy of an explorer who, venturing far, finds the present good, though that to come be unknown.

Presently they went out and hailed a fiacre.

"Where shall it be?" asked Drake. "Laure's? Voisin's? Peter's? No, I have it. Marguery's."

So they drove to Marguery's, and Drake ordered a bouillebaisse (to be quite seasonable) and a langouste mayonnaise and a bird and some sweets.

They had a very jolly little supper indeed and no end of amusement watching the merry looking French people at the tables, all devouring bouillebaisse and other nice things.

"And to think," cried the girl as the clock struck 11, shivering with pretended alarm, "that I'm sitting here at this hour, unchaperoned, in a French restaurant—with a man who hasn't even been conventionally introduced!"

"Don't!" cried Drake abruptly. "Come! We must be going home. It is a bit late."

She was silent while they left Marguery's and hailed a fiacre. Then she broke out in a queer little voice that was low and tremulous:

"I think you must have a sister. You take such good care of a girl."

The fiacre rolled into the glare of an overhead arc light, and he saw her looking at him with a half mysterious, half divine gratitude.

"Please don't do that," he answered in a hushed voice. Something inside him was pounding furiously. Something at his temples beat and throbbed.

"Don't do what?"

"Look like that."

She not only looked like that, but more so.

"Young man, young man," laughed she, with mock warning, "I fear you are wishful of turning a girl's head."

"The Lord be good to me!" he broke out, his pent-up passion of dreams rushing to his lips now that the barrier fell. "Don't you see it's because I—well, I'd hoped to pass the evening without telling you that I love you—that's why I was hurrying you home. I told you a little while ago it was your friendship I wanted. I was wrong."

She made no answer, but stretched out her little gloved hand to him, then drew it back quickly unnoticed, a singular smile on her lips.

"You've known me for a few hours only," he went on in a steady voice, "and I understand what you think of me for speaking like this. If I had known you for years and had waited and had the right to speak and keep your respect"— His steadiness did not carry him to the end of his sentence.

Then she laughed joyously, deliciously.

"You are mistaken," she said. "I have known you for years. I used to chum with your sister Gertrude at school, and you used to come down from your university, and we'd take walks. And we went up to all the meets to see you run, and you used to win. You called her your 'kid sister' and me 'the other kid,' and you kissed me once. You've forgotten the little girl who stood silent in corners and looked at you with wide eyes. But I couldn't forget. I used to have Gertrude write me all about you till she married that missionary and went to live in China. And then I had your photograph—the one in your track suit.

"And just to think for a whole month now you've been living opposite to me, across the court, and I never knew it! Ah, Lanse, I've felt for years you would come to me, and when I saw you tonight my first impulse was to stretch out both hands and be so glad, so glad. At once, though, I saw you'd forgotten, so I determined not to tell you who I was. I wanted you to recall. When I spoke of your having a sister just now I tried to make you recall, but I'm glad you didn't, because it's me, all me, as I am, that you love, and it's so good that way."

A little later through the frosty air the midnight bells of Noel rang out clear. Then at the last, very softly, from a darkened room across the court, Lansing Drake heard a verse of the old Christmas carol he had sung at his mother's knee:

The snow lay on the ground;
The stars shone bright—

He bowed his head in his hands for the great gift that had come to him—

When Christ our Lord was born
On Christmas night.

ARCHBISHOP MAKES PLEA FOR EXERCISE OF CHARITY

The following Christmas pastoral letter has been sent out by His Grace the Archbishop of Toronto to the churches in the diocese:—

Toronto, Dec. 14th, 1908.

Beloved Brethren—The holy and festive season which commemorates God's great gift to the world of a saviour born, in the person of His incarnate Son, appeals to us once more to make proof of our thankfulness in hearty, joyous worship and generous distribution of the gifts which we have so freely received.

In the midst of the plenty which abounds amongst us there will be a great deal of want and suffering during the winter months. Let the message of Christmas proclaiming "good-will towards man," move you to a sympathy unrestricted and outgoing like that of the Father of all, towards those that are in need and necessity, that the poorest may be made partakers of the gladness which fills the homes of the more highly favoured. And in the bestowal of your Christmas bounties forget not the debt you owe to your Spiritual Pastor as bearer and minister to you of the "glad tidings of great joy," let your offertory for his use cheer his heart with the sense that his "labours have not been in vain in the Lord."

With my sincerest prayers that you and your families may enjoy a a truly happy Christmas, full with God's richest blessings, both spiritual and temporal.

Your faithful Friend and Archbishop,

ARTHUR TORONTO.

A TRIP TO THE HOLY LAND AS TOLD BY PETERBOROUGH MAN

The Beautiful City of Athens, and Some Interesting Information About Constantinople---A Visit to Jerusalem, the Holy City

BEAUTIFUL ATHENS.

Our interest quickened as we approached Athens. We expected to land at Phaleron Bay, but as there is no harbor there and the sea was too rough to permit small boats to approach the steamer, we went on to the Bay of Salamis on which is situated Pireus, the seaport of Athens connected with the capital in ancient times by a straight road with high walls on either side, traces of which can still be seen. We went by a modern electric train to Phaleron, then drove by carriage over the remaining four miles to Athens passing a new church erected to commemorate the deliverance of King George from the assassin in 1905. We saw to the east, the mountain of Hymettus, haunted of the Bees and Muses; a little to the north and east, Pentelicon, whose white spots on the green slopes are marble quarries, from which the marble was brought for the building of ancient and modern Athens, while out of modern Athens rises Lycabettus. While all of these points were interesting, our eyes were continually turning to the Acropolis, which we approached by a well kept winding road. We passed through the gateway and up the steep steps between the columns of the Propylaea, an now we are at the very centre of the Athens of Literature, of History, of Statecraft, and of Philosophy.

On the highest spot of the Acropolis stands the Parthenon, even in its ruins the most impressive monument of Ancient Art." At the time of the dedication of the Parthenon in 438 B.C., to the worship of the Virgin Goddess, it was splendid in its sculptors, its fifty foot life size statues, its hundred doric columns, its ninety-two Metopes, and its five hundred and twenty-four feet of frieze, all served to emphasize its glory.

On the north side of the Acropolis is the beautiful Erechtheum, with the famous Porch of the Maidens, the Caryatides. From here we saw, on an opposite elevation, what is called the Prison of Socrates, several ancient barred doorways that lead into rock cut chambers.

We approached Mars Hill by probably the same road taken by St. Paul, then lined on both sides by beautiful statues representing their conception of the various gods, and while standing on top of the hill, we heard one of the ministers with us, read the words of St. Paul which you are all no doubt familiar with, beginning, "Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious, for as I passed by and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this description "To the Unknown God" whom therefore ye ignorantly worship Him declare I unto you."

I do not wish to see anything finer or more beautiful than modern Athens with its private residences, and handsome public buildings. A profitable morning was spent in the Academy of Science. We were particularly interested in the exhibition of money, from the time it was first used in the shape of square bars of iron, about thirty inches long, down to the present. The Greeks claim that their coin, the Drachma (equal to about twenty cents) was named from the noise produced by the iron bars shaken together while being carried along, and to the Greeks is given the credit of first making coins of uniform purity and weight as early as 900 B.C.

I cannot dwell longer on Athens, but our visit to the ruins of the Theatre of Bacchus, the Temple of Jupiter, the Royal Palace, and to the Stadium, recently restored at a cost of about one million dollars, and finally a hurried visit again to the Acropolis were full of intense interest and enjoyment.

Our first view of Constantinople, as we approached on the Sea of Marmora, with the sun shining on the hundreds of domes and minarets will never be forgotten. Here we were delayed for several hours owing to the strictness of the Turkish quarantine regulations and here we first had to produce our passports. Our visit to the city was somewhat disappointing, mainly on account of the filthy condition of the streets and the dogs which infested them. It is said that there are over 30,000 dogs in, and owned by, the city. It is a crime to kick or abuse one. They lie about all day, and during the night they do their best to clear the streets of the refuse thrown out by the householders, for they are the only scavengers. Foremost among the many places visited is Sancta Sophia, the great Church of Constantine and Justinian. On Christmas eve of 637, the Emperor laying aside his crown, entered the completed edifice, saying, "Solomon, I have conquered thee," believing that his church exceeded in beauty and grandeur Solomon's Temple at Jerusalem, and he caused a statue of Solomon in a weeping attitude to be erected on the square outside of the main entrance.

On Sunday, March 1st, we sailed through the Bosphorus to the Black Sea. We had a good view of the summer residences of the Sultan and various members of his family, also of the foreign Ambassadors and wealthy residents of Constantinople.

On a commanding position on the European side of the Bosphorus, a few miles from the city, is Robert College, founded in 1863, which is through its charter, a part of the University of New York. It has been and is doing a transforming work for the young men of the Turkish Empire. As a result, more than two-thirds of the men of affairs in European Turkey, are said to have received their education at Robert College, and I believe that this College is largely responsible for the altered conditions in Turkey, many of the reforms having been put into effect since I was there.

Our ship simply turned around in the Black Sea, repassed Constantinople, through the sea of Marmora, the Dardanelles, and out into the Aegean Sea, stopping at Smyrna, the chief city of Asia Minor. It was most interesting to watch the arrival of camel trains from the interior, laden with fruits, spices, and bales of rugs. The bazaars while not so extensive as Constantinople, were more Oriental, and the few purchases made took considerable time, as bargaining is very necessary in order to get things at their value. From here, a party went to Ephesus, and stood where St. Paul stood for two hours trying to make himself heard against the furious and howling mob, which was at least appeased only by the authority of the town clerk. Here was the place, on Mount Pagus, of the martyrdom of St. Polycarp, the second Bishop of Smyrna, whose last words, when pressed to recant his faith in Christ, have become famous;—"Eighty and six years have I served Him, and He has never done me wrong; how then can I blaspheme my King that saved me."

My first experience in Palestine was at Caifa, the ancient Heife. Our ship came to anchor about a mile from shore, and we had our first trip in an Oriental small boat rowed by Arabs, who chanted a prayer to Allah to the time of their rowing. We ascended Mount Carmel to the cave where it is stated the prophet Elisha sojourned when in that neighborhood. The return to the ship was most exciting. The sea was rough, and we embarked under difficulties. As the boat rose on the swell, it was a case of either jumping from the pier, or of being flung in. The ladies were seized about the waist, and at an opportune moment were passed to an Arab in the boat, who deposited his burden in the bottom very quickly, and without much ceremony. Many were ill on the return to the steamer, but we amused our Arab rowers by chanting with them; it was easy to get onto their tune, and by holding Baksheesh in readiness, we succeeded in making them row hard enough to reach the ship in half an hour. Many in other boats were over an hour in making the passage.

As we approached Joppa, the seaport of Jerusalem and the main gateway into Palestine, my interest quickened, for it was to this part that Hiram, King of Tyre, brought the great cedars of Lebanon for the building of Solomon's Temple at Jerusalem. It was from here that Jonah sailed on that famous voyage, which he concluded in the whale's interior.

On landing my attention was first drawn to the means of transporting the baggage. It was all trunks, suitcases and everything, carried on the backs of the native porters, to the Railway Station, a distance of over a mile. Such loads I had never before seen carried by a human being.

Joppa is a city of about 35,000, and is decidedly Oriental. The costumes we saw might have been Biblical garments. Men were dressed in all shades of white robes, the very poor, in blue, girdled in at the waist, and over it a brown cloak called an "Abba," no doubt the same style as Abraham's. It is made of camel's hair and woven in two pieces. We saw many a colored cloak which might have been Joseph's and one woven in two pieces, as the High Priests or rich Arabs wore. All the native men wore the white turban head dress. Of course, the Turks had to wear the Fez, and around it they might wind their turban. The Bedouins wore a rope of camel's hair around their turban. The Arabs cover their heads always, it does not matter how far up the legs are bare, if they are cold, they put another wrap around the head. In sleeping, and they lie down anywhere, they cover their heads entirely with their "Abbas" leaving their feet quite bare. The women wear a wrap like a sheet thrown over their heads, and held around their faces by one hand, while the Mohammedan women here, and in every country, veil their faces.

Leaving Joppa, by railway, a narrow guage one, passing over the Plains of Sharon, past large orange groves, and through meadows literally covered with the beautiful Rose of Sharon. (The oranges grown on this fertile plain are the very best in the world, and they certainly are a great blessing and boon to all travellers in Palestine, for the whole country is practically devoid of what we would call good drinking water.) We passed by many interesting and historical places, and on leaving the Plains, we entered the country where Samson roamed, and from where he sent the foxes with fire brands tied to their tails, through the crops of the Philistines. Climbing through, and up the hills of Judea, nearly all of them terraced to the top, showing that at one time the whole country was highly cultivated, but it is now barren and treeless. Arriving at Jerusalem shortly after midday, we drove quickly through clouds of dust to our hotel outside the city walls, and close by the Joppa gate.

THE HOLY CITY

The "Holy City" is 33 miles from its port of Jaffa, or Joppa, 15 miles from the Dead Sea, and 18 miles from the Jordan. It lies in the midst of an ill-watered district, once under good government made prosperous by irrigation, now blighted by Turkish possession. Jerusalem is situated on four hills and is 2700 feet above the level of the Mediterranean and on account of the climate is quite a resort for those troubled with asthma and similar maladies.

The modern city, much less extensive than the old, in its best estate is a rough quadrangle surrounded by a very irregular wall built in the 16th century, on the lines of the Crusader's fortifications. It has nominally eight gates, two on each side. One of these, the Golden Gate, is closed. This is the spot where it is said Christ made His triumphal entry into the city, and the Moslems believe that eventually the city will be taken from them by a Christian King, who on a Friday, their Sabbath, will enter through this gate.

The streets are crooked, narrow, ill-made and dirty. As they all contain more or less steps, it is impossible to drive within the walls and it is necessary to go on foot, or on the back of a donkey.

The city is unevenly divided into four districts. The Mohammedan, much the largest, on the northeast, adjoining the original holy places; the Christian, next, on the northwest, where the Church of the Holy Sepulchre; the Armenian, on the southwest and the Jewish on the south-east. It is the capital of an independent Sanjah, or Turkish Administration District, subject immediately to the Government at Constantinople; has an executive and town council, with representation of the great religious divisions. It is the seat of the Roman Catholic, Greek Catholic, and Armenian patriarchs. The population is now about 60,000, of which the Jews number 41,000. The chief occupations of the inhabitants, to inc. appeared to be the manufacture and sale of various articles from olive wood, mother of pearl and timber, and the cooking of unleavened bread and other foods on the street. The fuel used by the poor is the dried dung of camels and donkeys.

C.P.R. HURT THE COMBINE RATE CUTTING IN STATES

An Investigation is Being Made.

Charges Against New York, New Haven and Hartford Line---Worried Other Roads.

New York, Dec. 19.—Investigation of charges of rate-cutting by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, which had been undertaken by a sub-committee of the Trunk Line Association, resulted in a meeting of the sub-committee yesterday, at which, it is understood, the formulation of charges against the New Haven road for alleged violation of the association's rules, was begun.

The basis of the action is the alleged offence of the New Haven road in cutting freight rates by means of certain differential rates now used by the Canadian Pacific Despatch, which for some time past has been building up a through freight route into New York, the New Haven constituting the eastern end of the invading line.

The action of the Trunk Line Association is said in railroad circles to reflect a situation which has given a number of railroads serious concern. It is said that when the Canadian Pacific Despatch through its arrangement with the New York, New Haven & Hartford, began its invasion of local territory, last July, the members of the trunk.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad last night gave out the following statement relative to the Canadian freight rates:

'In the past summer the New Haven road gave its shippers the option of using the differential freight rate to the Canadian Pacific. The object was to open up the territory of the New Haven road to the Canadian Pacific. No present change is contemplated."

SEVEN DAYS TO CROSS WATER

Empress of Britain Had a Hard Voyage.

Halifax, Dec. 19.—The C.P.R. liner Empress of Britain docked at 11 o'clock last night, just seven days from Liverpool.

Capt. Murray reports the roughest trip in his experience. On Wednesday off Grand Bank the ship was compelled to lay too part of the day and only succeeded in steaming 169 miles in 24 hours, whereas under ordinary circumstances she could reel off 400 in that time.

The ventilators, fore and aft, were carried away and deck gear damaged by heavy seas which repeatedly boarded the ship.

TRAVELS IN HER PRIVATE CAR

Miss Lillian Russell Has One for Her Own Personal Use---Has Two Maids

Few actresses today travel in such a sumptuous manner as Miss Lillian Russell, who appears in the great racing comedy, "Wildfire," at the Grand Opera House next Wednesday night. She has her own private car for her own personal use and has two maids in attendance upon her. The car is fitted in a most elaborate style, in fact it has all the conveniences of a palatial home.

Miss Russell travels to and from her car and the theatre in a cab, Mr. R. Gibbs having been given the contract for this work in connection with her visit to Peterborough.

WRECKED ON THE GOODWIN SANDS

Dover, Eng., Dec. 19.—The Swedish steamer Lindholman, 803 tons, went down off Goodwin Sands yesterday morning following a collision with the German steamer Friedricke-Muller, 1,790 tons, from Grimsby, for Stockholm. Eight of the crew of the Lindholman were drowned.

The Goodwin Sands are known to mariners as "The Sailors' Graveyard." They are a series of dangerous shoals about five miles east of Kent, from which they are separated by the Downs. Wrecks there are of more or less frequent occurrence.

SLICK SWINDLER AT BROCKVILLE

Brockville, Dec. 19.—A stranger going under the name of J. T. Jamieson, advertising for salesmen for whom he had good positions, operated a new and novel method of catching the unsuspecting in Brockville.

Several young men applied at his headquarters in a leading hotel. He had jobs for them all, but stipulated that each should accompany him to a bank for the purpose of identifying him so that he might cash checks, purporting that he had a bank account in Montreal.

Three victims nibbled, one of which he caught for a "ten spot." The other two checks were for sums of $25, but the bank managers became suspicious and refused to honor the paper.

It turns out that he has no bank account in Montreal, so a telegram to the police says. There is a warrant for his arrest, but Jamieson has jumped this town.

EXPORT SHIPPING

Forty Cars of Quaker Oats Company's Products Sent Forward This Week

The Quaker Oats Company of this city, has an immense export trade, as was evidenced by a shipment from here this week. Forty cars were sent forward by Canadian Pacific, to Boston, to be forwarded to the Old Country. The shipment was made up of two trains both of which were loaded exclusively with the products of the Quaker Oats Company.

PLAYED CARDS IN THE CHURCH

Young Men Given "Calling Down" by Minister at Bancroft

Bancroft, Dec. 19.—In the Methodist church on Sunday evening, Rev. Mr. Spargo administered a scathing rebuke to the young men who so far forgot themselves on a previous Sunday evening as to play cards in the church during service. It is not likely that they will repeat the offence.

THE CANOPY IS AN ORNAMENT

Adds a Completness to Grand Opera House Front--Designed by Mr. Reg. Turner

A decidedly cosmopolitan tone is lent the Grand Opera House front by the "porte cochere" or canopy which has been placed over the theatre entrance. Surmounting the canopy is a dome of green and white leaded glass. This contains 72 incandescent bulbs and when these are lighted at night the appearance is most attractive.

The structure is of ornamental iron work and the color scheme is all green and white. On plate glass panels at the two sides and front the name of the house is given in attractive gold lettering.

The canopy is supported underneath by two substantial gilt brackets and from above by two massive chains. It was designed by Mr Reg Turner and speaks well for his practical and artistic tastes.

OVER 100 CASES DEALT WITH BY CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

Annual Meeting Held Yesterday---Past Year Reviewed by Secretary---Treasurer's Report Shows Balance on Hand.

The past year has been the best in the history of the Children's Aid Society and more work has been accomplished by them during the last twelve months than ever before. This was shown at the annual meeting of the Society which was held yesterday afternoon at four o'clock in the council chamber.

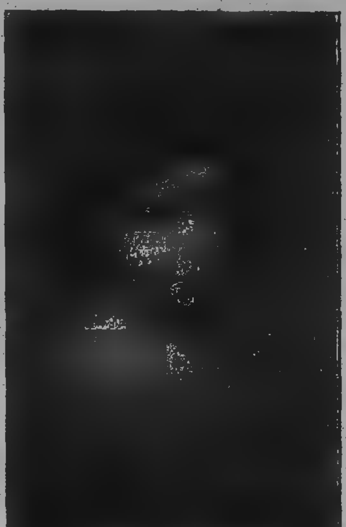
The Secretary's report as read by Mr E L Goodwill, reviewed the work of the society and cited a number of the most striking cases that had been dealt with.

The finances are in a most healthy condition as is shown by the treasurer's report, there being a substantial cash balance on hand. This was made possible by the donation of over three hundred dollars, the proceeds of the Sheffield choir concert.

The chair at yesterday's meeting was taken by the president, Mr D G Matthews. Those present were: Messrs E L Goodwill, Peter Campbell, George Cochrane, Wm Henry, G L Roszel, J H Burnham, A Montizambert, W Stocker and Revs Canon Davidson and E A Pearson and Mesdames Birdsall, Dest, O'Sullivan, Garvin and Misses Peck, Morse and Dunlop.

TENDERED HIS RESIGNATION

Mr E L Goodwill, who has been secretary of the society since Mr R M Dennistoun left town, tendered his resignation yesterday much to the surprise and regret of those interested in the work. But he was finally prevailed upon to retain the office and the matter of appointing an assistant was left in the hands of the executive. Mr Goodwill said that the amount of work of the Children's Aid deserved close attention and he had been unable to give it. He would still retain an interest in the work but he would be pleased to be relieved of the duties.



A Pretty Little Boy, One of the Wards of the Children's Aid Society.

Mr J H Burnham, an ex-president of the Society, said that no one could but feel impressed that the work of the Society had been well done. On account of the increase in the number of cases and the greatly increased responsibility of the officers, he thought that Mr Goodwill was deserving of all possible acknowledgement. The affairs of the Society had gone along smoothly and the vast amount of work was bound to result in accumulating correspondence. Anyone who had ever been connected with the work of the Society knew that there was a peculiar kind of responsibility about it. He thought that Mr. Goodwill should be induced to remain and that an assistant should be secured for him, and that his duties be chiefly those of advising. He was sure everyone had watched with great admiration the way Mr Goodwill had performed his duties.

SECRETARY'S REPORT

Peterborough, Dec 17, '08

To the President, Officers and Members of the Children's Aid Society, Peterborough.

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I have the honor to present my second annual report as Secretary of the Society and am glad to be able to state that the past year has followed on the

CONTRACT IS CANCELLED

Between Otonabee Light & Power Co. and Peterboro' Cereal Company

A meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Cereal Company, Ltd. was held in the office of Hall, Hall & Davidson for the purpose of receiving a proposition from a western miller to take over the company's milling business and operate same. There were present W G Ferguson, president, in the chair, R R Hall, Adam Hall, W H Meldrum.

A communication was received from the Otonabee power company that owing to the fire in the Peterborough Cereal Company's premises the contract for power between these two companies should be cancelled.

It was moved by R R Hall, seconded by Adam Hall, that in accordance with the communication from the Otonabee Power Company the contract be cancelled.

This was strongly opposed by Mr. Meldrum on behalf of the Peterborough Cereal Company shareholders as being in his opinion unjust and that they were not acting in the interests of the shareholders of the Peterborough Cereal Company in passing such a resolution, but notwithstanding this it was entered in the minutes as passed, Mr Meldrum's objections being recorded.

SPLENDID CUTS

The Review is indebted to the Canadian Dairyman and Farming World for the cuts used in connection with the report of the Children's Aid Society.

The post office at Creelman, Sask. with which is a general store and dwelling was burned and $16,000 worth of stock lost.

FALSE ALARM AND TWO CHIMNEYS

The fire brigade had to attend two calls last night and one this morning. The first one last night was sent in from box 57, Ashburnham and proved to be a false alarm. Between eleven and twelve o'clock there was a call to a chimney fire at Smith and London streets and another chimney blaze occurred this morning at 295 McDonnel street.

TAFT'S TRIP TO PANAMA WILL BE MOMENTOUS ONE

Washington, Dec. 19.—William H. Taft will be accompanied by a corps of expert engineers when he goes to Panama late in January for the purpose of investigating the work on the canal and deciding whether it shall be continued under the present system or whether it would be advisable to call a halt and begin construction of a sea level canal.

There were many stories as to the meaning of the sudden meeting between the President and President-elect.

Mr. Taft, it was finally admitted, came here of his own initiative to consult with the President about the Panama Canal, as this question has become one of the greatest concern to both the outgoing and the incoming President.

It was learned that Mr. Taft, when he goes to Panama, accompanied by several eminent engineers, will test finally whether the lock canal plan, with the questionable Gatun Dam, is to be continued, or whether, while, there is time, the plan shall be changed. It will thus be plain that the visit of the President-elect to Panama is to be of the most momentous importance.

The President, it is said, realizes that if he insists on the lock plan being continued and it should prove to be a failure, it will greatly reflect on his fame. There have been many disquieting things about the Gatun Dam scheme and the entire lock canal plan, including the constantly mounting figures of the total probable cost.

J. B. A. BOUDREAU STILL DENIES THE $3,000 EPISODE

Declares He Was Not in Quebec at Time.

Steamship Man Says He Does Not Remember the Incident ---Marine Inquiry.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—The sensational allegation that James Holliday of Quebec had paid $3,000 to J. B. A. Boudreau of the Marine Department, was not made any clearer at the Cassels' enquiry yesterday.

A. R. Lawrence, accountant of the People's Bank at the time, swore that he saw Boudreau in the bank at Quebec on two occasions at the end of May or beginning of June. He also saw Van Felsen, who made the allegation, go out and get some large bills, but saw no money paid.

Boudreau's reply to this later testimony in effect was a reiteration of the denial that he was in Quebec in May or June and that in making his statement Lawrence was influenced by Van Felsen.

Holliday, the man who is alleged to have signed the checks, persists in saying that "to the best of my knowledge, I did not do so at all."

E. G. Odell of Quebec, grandson of Agent Gregory, said he had a private arrangement in respect to the sale of contractors' supplies with Mr. Ritchie of Quebec. Witness sold to Ritchie, who was on the patronage list, and the latter sold to the Government. His grandfather knew nothing of the arrangement.

Witness deposed that he often made 50 per cent. profit on his sales and Ritchie made as much, too. He also worked for J. J. Murphy and got a commission on orders secured, while Mr. Gregory got 5 per cent. on money advanced in paying of drafts.

There were some interesting developments at the afternoon session. John McKelvey of Kingston, continuing his evidence in respect to house fittings supplied to J. F. Fraser, the suspended superintendent of light and payments therefor. There was an entry in his book of "J. F. Fraser, $1,591, note." The witness said that it was a mistake. It should have read "check." It was a draft on the Bank of Montreal from either British Columbia or Winnipeg, which was received in October last.

R. O. Mackay of Hamilton was further examined in regard to the payment to him of $7,500 for the steamer Goldspie, which was used to deliver light house supplies in 1906. He said the first offer to the Department was $5,800, but it was for the steamer Myles, a smaller vessel. Witness admitted that he had the influence of friends. That was always the case when possible.

The Myles was placed in commission and subsequently the firm offered the Lake Michigan at $6,000, but the Department would not accept. Mr. Mackay then came to Ottawa, where he saw Mr. Zimmerman, Mr. Brodeur and Col. Gourdeau. He offered the Golspie for $10,000, but after some negotiations it was agreed that she would be hired for three years at $7,500.

This continued till the Golspie was lost.

"What contracts or arrangements did you make with officials of the Department?"

"We don't do business in that way."

RUSE OF ROBBERS

They Turn Semaphore and Looted the Freight at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, Dec. 19.—Setting the semaphore against an eastbound freight coming into this city, three men carried out a daring hold-up of Wabash train No. 82 in the early hours of yesterday morning at Stamford. Two men, W. Forbes and A. Scott, are under arrest on suspicion, and the capture of a third is expected shortly. The engineer seeing the signal against him stopped the train at the semaphore, and for an hour waited to receive the signal to enter the Grand Trunk freight yards. During this time the thieves secured from a refrigerator car 12 turkeys and 5 cases of Moet & Chandon extra dry champagne. While guarding the train the conductor discovered that a car had been pilfered, and secured instructions to pull into the yards and Chief Kimmins was notified. An engine was placed at the disposal of the police, and Sergt. Welsh went to investigate. About two miles up the line he saw foot tracks, and in a culvert he found the turkeys and champagne. They were taken on the engine and Welsh remained and traced the footsteps. Following up the clues he made a visit to the home of Forbes, placing him under arrest. Officers Brown and Dart arrested Scott. They will come up for hearing to-day.

CHILD LOST TWO HOURS

Was Found in the Crowd on the Market

The three-year-old daughter of Mrs. Stuart, 386 Stewart street, was lost for two hours this morning and gerat anxiety was felt. The little tot wandered away from home about nine o'clock and it was nearly eleven when it was discovered in the crowd on the market.

ENGLISHMAN TO BE DEPORTED

Alfred King Pleaded Guilty to Vagrancy in Court To-day

Alfred King was charged with being a vagrant at the police court this morning. He pleaded guilty. Chief Roszel stated for several nights King had slept in a cell at the police station. He had been working for a farmer in Emily.

At the suggestion of Chief Roszel, King was sent up to the gaol until such time as papers could be got ready for his deportation.

THREE DIED ON SCAFFOLD

Two Negroes and Chinaman Executedin New Westminister.

New Westminster, B.C., Dec. 19.—Without assistance, James Jenkins, negro; Jack Pertella, negro; Lee Chung, Chinaman, walked to the gallows yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, and took the drop without a murmur. Only when Radcliffe tightened the rope about Jenkins' and Chung's neck did they commence to lose nerve, but Pertella never moved a muscle. They dropped together while a Salvation Army officer repeated prayers. Sheriff Armstrong giving the signal, and Radcliffe pulling the bolt.

The three men slept well Sunday night, Pertella remaining in bed till the guards roused him out to go to the gallows. He smiled at the crowd of seventy-five before the cap was pulled down.

Jenkins murdered Mrs. Morrison at Haselmere, Pertella killed a mulatta woman in Vancouver, and Chung murdered another Chinaman. Chung and Pertella confessed; Jenkins did not.

WAS BOUND TO END HIS LIFE

Toronto, Dec. 19.—James McAdam, 139 Bellwoods avenue, a clerk with the McDonald Drug Manufacturing Co., was very anxious to die yesterday.

He went down to the wharf at the foot of Bathurst street and there jumped into four feet of water. Then he hung on to the bottom lest he should fail of his object. But he did not count on the presence of Edward Housey and Fred Smith. These two saw him jump in and rushed to the rescue. Dragging him out they took him to Housey's boathouse and there warmed him beside a stove. He was later removed to the Western Hospital, and will recover.

His rash act, according to his own admission, was due to indulgence in morphine.

Singapore, Dec. 19.—Gunners at a distance of two miles sank the Kalam Kaloma, the oil ship which arrived here from New York two days ago with her cargo of case oil on fire.

For Stealing Oats.

Welland, Dec. 19.—Arthur Willis and Harry Jones of Fort Erie appeared yesterday before Judge Wells for sentence in connection with the theft of chickens and oats. Willis received one year in the Central Prison, and Jones was released on suspended sentence.

Killed In Storm.

Elizabeth, N.J., Dec. 19.—Three men were killed and two were seriously injured on the Central Railroad of New Jersey at Cranford by a freight train, which came down upon them unseen in the blinding snowstorm that was prevailing.

Tacoma Steamer Captured.

Prince Rupert, B.C., Dec. 19.—Captain Newcomb, commander of the Dominion fisheries protection cruiser Kestrel, recently overhauled and captured the Tacoma fishing steamer Seapora for an alleged infraction of the Dominion fisheries regulations. The steamer was released on payment of a fine of $1,600.

Horseman Sent to Central.

Welland, Dec. 19.—Arthur Willis, who is a well-known horseman at Fort Erie, was yesterday convicted of having received stolen goods, and was sentenced by Judge Wells to one year in the Central Prison. Fort Erie, Kenilworth and Lexington horsemen testified as to his good character.

Skull Fractured.

Welland, Dec. 19.—William McLaughlin, a moulder for the Ontario Iron & Steel Co., was hit by a falling pulley Thursday night and suffered a severe fracture of the skull. He was removed to a Buffalo hospital, but it is not anticipated that he can recover.

Train Robbers Still Busy.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 19.—An Oregon railroad and navigation train, known as the Chicago and Portland special, was held up and the express car dynamited by four unmasked robbers on Thursday night nine miles east of Portland.

Refused Leave to Appeal.

Vancouver, Dec. 19.—The full Court of Appeal yesterday refused to allow an appeal by the Attorney-General from the decision of the court against the province in the fishery case this week.

Windsor Man Appointed.

Vancouver, Dec. 19.—G. S. Haines of Windsor, Ont., has been appointed city engineer of North Vancouver.

Probing Cause of Six Deaths.

Somerville, Mass., Dec. 19.—Pending the result of an examination of Mrs. Mary Kelleher of this city, now in jail at Cambridge, as to sanity, District Attorney Higgins has ordered an investigation into the causes of the deaths of six members of Mrs. Kelleher's family during the past three years. The specific charge against Mrs. Kelleher is that of arson. It is said that the insurance on the lives of the deceased was paid to Mrs. Kelleher. The persons who have died were Mrs. Kelleher's husband, son, two daughters and two sisters-in-law.

Bank Statement Issued.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—According to the November bank statement issued yesterday demand deposits increased from 190 to 206 1-3 millions in October, while notice deposits ran up from slightly under 414 millions to almost 420 millions.

There was a slight decrease in deposits outside of Canada.

Call loans outside of Canada increased from $70,000,000 to $85,000,000, which indicates dearer money across the border. There was a shrinkage of three and a half million in current loans at home, as compared with October.

Total liabilities were $815,538,495, as against $791,972,683, and the total assets $994,885,648, as against $971,219,560.

Chops Off Fingers.

Cornwall, Dec. 19.—"These fingers will steal no more," said William Bero as he chopped the four fingers off his left hand in a local meat market at 10 a.m. yesterday.

Bero was on his way to the Police Court in charge of an official to receive sentence for stealing six hides and selling them. He asked the policeman to take him inside to speak to the proprietor, and, seizing the cleaver at the block, made himself a cripple for life.

Wanted to Go to Hell.

Charlotte, N.C., Dec. 19.—Henry Harvey, a negro, was hanged at Rockingham, N.C., for murder. He refused spiritual comfort, telling the ministers that he desired to go to hell for a special purpose.

On the march to the gallows a chicken flew over the heads of the party, and the condemned man exclaimed laughingly: "Somebody catch that chicken."

Representative at Rome.

Montreal, Dec. 19.—It is announced here that Mgr. L. A. Paquet, apostolic prothonotary, will leave at once for Rome, where he will permanently reside as the official representative of the Ecclesiastical Province of Quebec. In fact, it is necessary since Canada was taken out of the mission list. We must have a representative at the pontificial court for every ecclesiastical province, and Mgr. Paquet, one of the oblest men of the French clergy, will go to represent this province.

Airship Fails as a Night Terror.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 19.—Roy Knabenshue on Thursday night attempted to demonstrate how an airship could sail over a city unobserved under cover of darkness and destroy the city by the use of powerful explosives. His airship was easily discernible, however, and the whir of the motor and propeller could be heard a great distance. Knabenshue dropped a harmless bomb on the City Hall.

Brakeman Held Up.

Woodstock, Dec. 19.—A G.T.R. brakeman on a through freight west bound was the victim of a hold-up at the station here at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. He was about to climb on to the engine to assist in taking water when a man confronted him and at the point of a revolver demanded his money. The brakeman closed with his assailant, who got away.

Federation of Europe.

Paris, Dec. 19.—Sir Max Waechter, who is touring the capitals of Europe advocating the abolition of emperors and kings and the formation of the United States of Europe, was received yesterday by M. Pichon, French Minister of Foreign Affairs. Sir Max favors King Edward as the first president of his proposed union.

Last October the London newspapers published a long memorandum by Sir Max Waechter, advocating a "federation of the states of Europe" as a remedy to the existing alarming situation involved in the opposition of disunited Europe to united North America. The memorandum said that the plans of Sir Max had been submitted to all the reigning sovereigns of Europe.

Nailed to Bottom of Washtub.

Boston, Dec. 19.—Enclosed in a red envelope and nailed to the bottom of a washtub the will of Patrick Monahan of Charlestown, disposing of property valued at $250,000, was found yesterday and offered for probate.

When Monahan died last September no will could be found. John F. Lynch, his former counsel, believed a will had been left, and yesterday, with relatives of the dead man, resumed the search. In a sub-cellar the lawyer kicked over a washtub and caught sight of the envelope containing Monahan's will. After bequests to relatives, $10,000 is left to Catholic charities.

Stopped at Border.

London, Dec. 19.—Miss Egelton, a daughter of Mr. W. T. Egelton of this city, while on her way Thursday to visit friends at Chicago, was absolutely refused permission to enter the States at Port Huron.

Miss Egelton is deaf and a letter was given her by her parents which explained that she was going on a visit, but the officer at the border would not allow her to proceed, and she came home on the next train.

The Daily Review

SATURDAY, DEC. 19, 1908.

MR. STRATTON AND THE NEWS

"A case or two may be cited by way of illustration of the methods in vogue under the Ross regime. There is one instance of a large firm of Western Ontario flour millers, the members of which were of the Conservative stripe in politics. They could quote flour at a very low price, but they knew it was useless to answer Mr Stratton's advertisement. The contract went to a Liberal baker in London who turned around and bought from the flour milling firm in question. The extent of the loss to the province does not appear, but, in view of the quantity of flour furnished the department, it must have amounted to quite a large sum in the aggregate. Why did not the old Government buy direct from the miller and save the people's money.

"Then there was the supply of coal for a certain institution under the old Government. Tenders were asked through advertisements in the public press. The specifications called for anthracite, and firms, prepared to furnish a standard fuel of that quality put in tenders. But the contract was awarded by Mr Stratton to a company whose coal is complained of as being very inferior—not anthracite at all, but a hybrid. It is said to come from the mines to Niagara Falls, Ontario, as bituminous coal and to be there reinvoiced as anthracite. The claim is that by this means it enjoys a low freight rate to the Bridge and comes in duty free, there being no tariff on soft coal, while the impost on the hard variety is sixty-five cents a ton. Reliable authorities state that this inferior fuel could be placed in the Ontario Government institutions for a dollar and a quarter less than it would cost to lay down standard anthracite. But the saving to the Government on the price was almost nil. Fifteen or twenty cents a ton more would have filled the cellars with first class hard coal.

"Chagrined and humiliated by the disclosures of graft in the departments of Works and Marine at Ottawa, a leading Liberal newspaper sought to distract attention by insinuating that the Ontario Government also maintains a patronage list. It directed suspicion against the Provincial Secretary in particular. Mr. Hanna fortunately was in a position to reply that no patronage list has existed since he came into office. Further, he showed that the supplies for the institutions under his jurisdiction are always bought in open competition. The newspaper countered by "stumping" the Provincial Secretary. To employ another phrase of the playground, it "dared" Mr Hanna to produce any advertisement asking for tenders for supplies for his institutions. The Provincial Secretary retorted by pointing to the advertisements for tenders which have appeared in several city and outside papers every autumn since the Whitney Government assumed office. The last of these came out in October last. Such a government advertisement appeared in the Globe itself twice this year, and six times in the autumn of 1907.

"Abandoning its former position, the Liberal organ sneered that, even if Mr Hanna did advertise for tenders, he was doing no more than Mr. Stratton before him. It insisted that advertisements printed by the present Provincial Secretary were exact duplicates of those inserted by his predecessor in office. A Liberal newspaper thus is responsible for the introduction of Mr Stratton's name and Mr Stratton's methods into the controversy. Heretofore nobody has raised the question as to whether the former Secretary did or did not call for tenders. Now that this extraneous issue is imported, it is fair to say that Mr. Stratton did advertise for certain supplies. But it is said that to the advertisements might well have been added a paragraph to the effect that "no Conservatives need apply."—Toronto News.

THE SLUMP IN REVENUE

"Now that the general election is a matter of history, it is easier to tell the truth. Mr. Fielding is face to face with a great deficit. Canada's national business is in bad condition. For the eight months ending Nov. 30th our ordinary expenditure went up nearly four million dollars, and our revenue went down eleven and a half. In other words, we are fifteen and a half millions worse off than in the same period of 1907. This calculation does not include the capital expenditure, which also increased quite decently. Mr. Fielding should have the national sympathy."—Canadian Courier.

The Frank confession of the Courier that now that the general elections are over, it is easier to tell the truth, applies particularly to the Courier itself, which before and during the elections maintained an attitude of independence leaning perceptibly to one side. The Courier was a Laurier organ, and now that the reality is no longer conceivable it comes out with the facts in order that it may regain its standing by its pretendedly critical attitude, what it stands to lose by its palpable party prejudice and the blundering Laurier administration has been commandeering the resources of the country for many years. We have been living at a high rate of national extravagance. The so-called marvellous development of the land at large was made up of subsidized immigrants of a largely undesirable kind. The flow of money was such as a man experiences who has mortgaged his property and proceeds "to expand" upon the proceeds. The bloated revenue was merely a sign of hastening decadence. We are now deep down in the slough of despond. Another four years will see Canada in the position of the young man who surrounded himself with undesirables and expended all his money. But worse even than all this is the record of underground corruption that is being established from day to day before Judge Cassels. It is appalling and certainly disconcerting. Undue haste to become rich and make a show has plunged us in moral filth. Meanwhile the oft-foretold 20 millions deficit is staring us in the face. Canada is plunging into a wreck of the worst possible description. The worst of it sible description. The worst of it is that there seems to be no way of stopping the train.

EDITORIAL NOTES

John D. Rockfeller is establishing a fifty million dollar fund for educating Orientals in the far East. If John would get around the lower portions of New York, Chicago, and the other large cities of America, he might without much trouble find opportunities of spending two millions he is taking from Americans among Americans quite as much in need of them as the Orientals of the far East. John is giving no equivalent whatever for the millions he is taking out of the pockets of the people; he is not earning it. The least he could do is to put the money to some uses beneficial to the the people from whom he takes it. —Bobcaygeon Independent.

While no excuse can be made for those Conservatives who had the management of the recent saw-offs it can at least be said that the spectacle of a minister of justice taking part in and helping to bring them about is unexampled, we hope, in Canadian or any other history.

The marine inquiry still dragging its weary length along, is a record of what must look to every follower as wholesale and retail venality. The judge, one of the mildest of men, has adopted a cynical tone that speaks volumes in itself.

The Montreal Ice Carnival is or ought to be by no means the bug-a-boo some people try to make out. As Rev. Dr. Barclay says, Canada's winter climate is perfect, and we ought to let people rejoice in it for themselves.

OVER 100 CASES DEALT WITH

footsteps of those preceding and will be placed on record as a year of splendid progress, more work having been accomplished in the past year than in any previous year of the Society's history.

The work has, of course, been similar in nature to that done in prior years, but by reason of our well equipped Shelter we have been enabled to extend our work, and render assistance in numerous cases that formerly it would have been almost impossible, for us to have dealt with at all.

In the first place, it is our duty to express warm and cordial thanks to the City Council and Commissioners of the City Trust, for their liberal grant of the new shelter property, and to Richard Hall, Esq., trustee of the Nicholls Estate for the liberal grant which has enabled us to place this building in shape for our purposes. I think that I am safe in saying that we have the finest Shelter property in Ontario, and of which the Society and the City may well feel proud. It is in an ideal location, roomy and very warm and comfortable, and has adequate accommodation for a large number of children. It is heated by a hot water heating system, installed by Mr R J C Sutherland, who performed the work in connection with the installation in a manner which reflects great credit upon him and his assistants.

We express our warm and cordial thanks to the City and County Councils for continued interest in the work and cheerful contributions to our finances and it has been with pleasure that we have heard from time to time words of commendation in recognition of services which the Society has performed for the municipalities.

We are also indebted to the general public for the kind assistance which has been rendered in many ways. Subscriptions of money came from most unexpected sources, and much good has been accomplished and pleasure to helpless children from the kindness of these generous patrons.

To the ladies of the city thanks are due. They freely contributed their aid and assistance in promoting the various entertainments and benefits for the Society and have on several occasions gathered at the Shelter and hold sewing meetings, at which new clothing has been made for the children without which the work of the Society could not have been properly carried on.

Several organizations and associations have applied to us to have various entertainments carried on for our aid, and have sent us money, which has been collected, in an undenominational way and we have a good deal of satisfaction in feeling that the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough is perhaps the only strictly undenominational work which is being carried on in the community, and appeals to all nationalities and creeds alike, and is able to offer splendid machinery for child-saving, which could not be reached through any other channel.

The thanks of the Society is also due to the Committee of citizens who interested themselves so strongly on our behalf and were the means of bringing to the city the Sheffield choir, and arranged such favorable terms, as a result of which a large sum, the proceeds of the concert, was placed in our treasury.

Attached to this report is a reference to a few of the cases which have come under our notice since last annual meeting.—Infants. During the year as usual we were requested to take control of a number of infant children which we were obliged to decline, as the Society makes it a fixed rule not to take infants except in exceptional cases, where we are obliged to take proceedings and have them made wards of the Society in the regular way. Several small children however, have been in the Shelter this year, one little boy, a ward of the C.A.S., Belleville, is now in the Shelter and for whom we are desirous of obtaining a comfortable home.

A perusal of the cases attached, furnishes some idea of the varied work of the Society. Over 100 children have been passed through our hands during the year, of whom a large majority have been placed in comfortable homes. A number of others have unfortunately and as a last resort, been placed in the provincial Industrial Schools the latter being, as a general rule boys and girls of more mature years. 20 per cent. have made wards of the Society by order of the Magistrates; 35 per cent by the parents' voluntarily making the children wards, and of the Shelter while their parents were undergoing medical treatment in the hospitals and from various other causes of like nature.—Wills. The officers of your Society note that some people when making their will kindly remember this Society with a small legacy. It is to be hoped that this practice will become universal. A small legacy in a man's will, will not be missed by his family when his estate is being wound up and will go a long way to care for some poor and needy children.

The Treasurer's report shows we began the year with a substantial balance in the treasury, but we close the year with that reduced and the prospect of a deficit to face in the near future. The great increase of our work necessarily also means a correspondingly large expenditure of moneys, that taken with the amount expended on account of the permanent improvements placed in our Shelter, accounts for our present financial standing. We feel confident however, that our many good friends will assist us as they have done in the past under similar circumstances.

All of which is respectfully presented.

E L GOODWILL,
Secretary.

SCHEDULE OF CASES

Cases 510-511—Two boys under the age of 12 years were several times brought before the Magistrate on charges of theft and burglary. The mother was unable to manage and control them and they appeared to be rapidly travelling along the road to develop into criminals. The mother, in delicate health, was the only one providing for a family of six children. She consented to an order being made by the Magistrate making the two boys wards of the Society. They are now reported as progressing favorably and their education, which was for so long neglected is receiving considerable attention.

Cases 515—This is a case similar to a large number of others which have come to our attention during the year. A Barnardo girl, accustomed to living in a thickly populated district, married a native of a northern township and went to reside there, some five or six years ago. The solitude, absence of neighbors and want of care, food, and kind treatment from her husband, soon resulted in a miserable household. The husband was brought before a Magistrate charged with non-support; and at the trial his wife wished to have a separation order and to have the care and custody of her two infant children. The Society however, persuaded her to wait six months before making up her mind, and in the meantime were able to have this woman placed in the hospital and receive very needful medical treatment and the children were placed in the Shelter. After a number of months, the mother, completely restored to health and an entirely different looking person to what she had been a few months before, and her children, bright and healthy, went with her husband, who had formerly entertained great animosity to the Society, but upon having his wife and children restored to him, healthy and bright, expressed himself as unable to adequately express his gratitude to the Society. The family proceeded to a new home where they are now living comfortably and happily together.

A Little Tot Looked After by the Children's Aid Society.

Cases 519-22-29—These are cases of a similar nature to that last referred to, namely, where the Society cared for a number of small children while parents, through the aid of the Society, were placed in the hospitals or other institutions to receive medical attention, and upon their restoration to health their children were returned to them.

Cases 520-521—Two young girls were placed in the Shelter, on complaint of the mother, who was unable to control them. They were placed in a number of homes but ran away on each occasion and acquired a considerable reputation as long distance walkers. They were subsequently returned to their mothers and are now going to school regularly every day. Their conduct and behavior is now all that can be desired.

Case 522—This is one of a number of a boy of more mature years who had acquired a reputation for general badness and although considerable pressure had been brought to bear upon us to have this boy placed in a reformatory, we succeeded in our plea of having him placed on a farm and obtained a home for him with a good-natured farmer, believing that his reputation was on a parallel with the saying "Give a dog a bad name and it will stick to him." The boy is living up, in every respect, to our expectations, and is working hard and industriously. His employer speaks of him in the highest terms.

Cases 530-31-32—Three nice boys taken from the mother who was bringing them up under evil influences and who on account of her life and surroundings, was an improper person to have the custody of these children of tender years.

Two of the boys are now adopted in foster homes, and their foster parents say they wouldn't part with them for anything.

Case 540—A particularly sad case, of a young girl who figured in the police court on many occasions. The Society were unable to procure a home for her on account of her bad reputation. She was ultimately placed in the Reformatory.

Case 543—A young girl of 16, an orphan, residing with a relative, associating with evil companions, resulted in friction at home; and upon being checked for her conduct, ran away. The assistance of the Society was requested. We had the girl located, and investigated the matter, with the result that, with the assistance of Mr Kelso, a new home in a distant part of the province was secured for her among strangers. We received a letter from her a short time ago expressing her thanks and gratitude. She reported that "her new home was so nice and the people were so good to her, she felt she did not deserve it all."

Case 544—"Baby Roy," the Shelter baby, a ward of the Belleville Society; who is awaiting a good home.

Upon motion of Mr Burnham, seconded by Mr Montizambert, the report was adopted.

Board of Trade Meeting

Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Let everybody turn out to the eeting of the Board of Trade on onday evening to hear the how, why d when of the money by-laws to be ted on a week or so hence. Mayor and council will all ly be elected again with a few ceptions (and don't you forget it). w is the time for a few of them llows to retire who "don't want e job only because their friends are them all the time to keep on it."

The Fair Grounds

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in ur columns for a few words in re- rd to the city purchasing the Fair ounds. I think it would be unwise r fair city to involve itself to the ount of fifteen hundred dollars arly, in the purchase of the Fair ounds. It was the intention of the e Mrs. Nicholls, that the south end this city should have a good large rk free of cost, and I would like to e her good intentions carried out. There are fifty acres fronting the reet railway on the west side, and uth of Braidwood avenue, which, if option was taken by a real estate aler upon these five ten acre lots, rhaps they might be bought for than thirty thousand dollars, and the south of these five ten-acre ts, there are about twenty acres onting the river, which would make nice park, in honor of the late Mrs. chols.

It is said that a real estate dealer s offered a price for the Fair ounds, if so, he might as well go on d purchase the land at the sough hich I have mentioned, and the city ould take the late Mrs. Nichols en- wment and buy the twenty acres the river front, for a park. If a al estate dealer can see his way ear to speculate in the above lands, d make the purchase satisfactory to mself, the would have to extend orge and Aylmer streets, to the uth, and tap our park at the river. en the city might give the agricultural directors a space for buildings as the case may be, on the river bank,

The Exhibition Grounds

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—As the time is drawing near when the vote will be taken by the people of Peterborough for the purchase of the present Exhibition grounds. I hope that all good, true and loyal citizens will come out on January 1st next and vote for the purchase of the Exhibition grounds as I fully believe that it will prove one of the best assets the city will have and the property will be increasing in value every year. It is one of the best exhibition grounds in this part of the province, and as it is quite necessary for an exhibition to be held in Peterborough we must have grounds to hold that exhibition on. At the present time the grounds are under lease but that lease will soon expire, and the directors of the exhibition do not feel like spending money on new buildings until the city buys the grounds. When the city owns the grounds the directors are readdy to go ahead and put up new buildings and improve the grounds and make Peterborough Exhibition the best in this part of the province an I believe in a few years that this exhibition can be run for one week and you all know what that would mean to Peterborough. It would bring a great many people to our city, and these people would spend a lot of money here, just as the National Exhibition at Toronto does and we would all benefit by it. Then again these grounds could be rented out for lacrosse matches, baseball, football and many other sports, and when not in use could be used for a park. The grounds are very conveniently situated the street cars running right to the gates. There is another matter to be thought of in buying these grounds the stables, sheds and buildings are there, and go with the grounds. If new grounds were bought in any other part of the city, these would all have to be built and would cost a lot of money. The President and Directors of the Peterborough Exhibition have worked hard without pay to make it a success for the benefit of the public generally, so go to the polls on Jan. 1st and mark you ballot in favor of buyin the present exhibition and show the president and directors that you appreciate their efforts and it will give them renewed energy to go ahead and put up buildings and present to you a first-class and up-to-date exhibition.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the use o fyou valuable space.

I remain
Yours truly,
J. J. TURNER, SR.

THE ENNISMORE COUNCIL MEETING

The annual meeting of the 15th of December, 1908, was held in the town hall, Ennismore, on that day, all members were present, J Killen, Reeve, in the chair.

On motion of Messrs Perdue and Harrington, by-law No 326, for the purpose of buying a road across the second division of the township of Ennismore off the east side of the north half of lot number three, in said concession, and off the west side of the south half of lot number four in said concession, be read a first time—Carried.

BEETHOVEN.

The Composer's Own Story of How He Became Deaf.

Charles Neate, on a visit to Vienna, was either commissioned by certain English authorities to induce Beethoven to visit England or was persuading him to do so on his own account, and as an allurement he spoke of the superiority of the English aurists in their treatment of ear disease and held out hopes that were Beethoven to consult them he might at least find some sort of relief. Beethoven shook his head. "No," he said, "I have consulted all kinds of doctors and followed their prescriptions. I shall never be cured. I will tell you how the thing happened.

"I was writing an opera. I had to deal with a very tiresome and capricious tenor. I had already written two great arias to the same words, neither of which pleased him, and also a third, which he did not care for the first time he tried it, although he took it away with him. I was thanking heaven I had done with him and had begun to settle myself to something else which I had laid aside. I had hardly worked at it half an hour before I heard a knock at the door, which I recognised as that of my tenor.

"I sprang up from my table in such a rage that as the man came into the room I flung myself upon the floor, as they do on the stage" (here he threw up his arms and gesticulated in illustration), "but I fell upon my hands. When I got up I found I was deaf, and from that moment I have remained so. The doctor said I injured the nerve."—Diehl's "Life of Beethoven."

GRAFT IN RUSSIA.

Removing the Difficulties in an Army Officer's Transfer.

A young Russian officer wished to be transferred to another regiment and took his request in person to one of the lights of the Russian general staff. That powerful officer shook his head and declared the matter very difficult to arrange—almost impossible. Then his glance fell suddenly upon the shoes of the lieutenant. To the amazement of his visitor, the senior officer said that the lieutenant's shoes were not nearly good enough for an officer and that he would strongly advise him to buy new shoes of a shoemaker whose address he gave. Then, telling his visitor to return in eight days, he dismissed him. The latter was clever enough to realize that he could not return without the new shoes, so he hurried to the shoemaker. On hearing who had sent him the shoemaker said that the lieutenant could have the shoes in five days for the sum of $250. Much astonished, the officer went to a comrade for advice. He was told to pay half of this sum at once and the rest when his shoes were finished. This the officer did, and, wearing his new boots, he duly kept his appointment with the general staff officer and learned to his joy that all the "grave difficulties" in the way of his transfer had been successfully removed.

His Hobby.

One man with an odd hobby isn't a person who gets much mail, and what he has or expects to have he can keep in mind very easily. Probably he never had a letter which went astray.

Yet every time he sees in the newspapers the list of advertised mail sent out from time to time by the general postoffice in New York he turns at once to the initial letter under which his name comes and runs carefully through the list. He never yet has found any letter that might be supposed to be for him and, furthermore, hasn't found any that might be for any of his relatives.

He takes an odd pleasure in doing it, however, something with that eagerness which impels a man to grub through a packet of old letters in hopes that he may come upon some rare variety of stamp. Really, if ever he found his name in the list it probably would kill his enjoyment of the hunt forever thereafter.

Settled the Trap.

A certain Glasgow lawyer was fond of setting traps for workmen who might happen to be working in or about his house by leaving money or some valuable article about. A workman, well aware of this fact, found a half crown lying on the floor of one of the rooms. He smiled as he said to himself, "I know what that's for." And, taking a brace and a bit from his bag, he drilled a hole in the coin, and, putting a large screw nail through it, he fastened it securely to the floor. The lawyer has not set any traps since.

A HUMAN CARPET.

Living Pathway Formed as a Compliment to a Bride.

A writer in London Tit-Bits describes an extravagant compliment which he witnessed some years ago while traveling in the Brazils.

The occasion, he tells us, was the wedding of the daughter of the commanding officer of a large military training college. The bride, with her sisters, had from childhood taken part in the entertainments and concerts in the school and was immensely popular with the students.

The wedding took place in the college, and from the door by which she was to leave to the bridal carriage, some little distance, a bright strip of carpet had been spread. This was flanked on either side by a wall of eager cadets.

As the bride appeared about forty-five to fifty of these stepped forward and immediately laid themselves side by side, face down, upon the carpet, thus forming a living pathway extending from the door right to the carriage.

I do not know who invented the idea, but it was evidently a complete surprise to the bride, who looked quite scared as she halted in the doorway. The bridegroom, however, laughingly took her hand and, himself walking on the ground, persuaded her to advance.

Once her surprise had been overcome and she realized the compliment intended, the bride's smile was radiant as she slowly walked over the line of men with a care and tenderness which were almost a caress, her little high heeled slippers treading daintily upon the live, yielding bodies, which formed what is surely the most luxurious pathway ever traversed by a beautiful woman.

Probably this incident is unique, even in a country where politeness is carried to such a pitch that workmen and beggars in the street gravely raise their hats to each other.

That their is nothing new under the sun is, however, shown by the fact that the natives of the Hervey islands, in the Pacific, were formerly accustomed to provide in this same manner an "ara tangata," or living pathway, for the bride, extending from her home to that of her newly wedded husband.

The Logical Place.

It was closing time at the town library. Old Mr. Duke, who had filled the post of librarian for years, took down his coat and hat and, with the assistance of his little daughter, got them safely on. Together they started for the door. It was raining hard.

"Wait a moment, child," said her father and went back into the building. The girl remained obediently.

Five minutes passed. Then ten. She pushed open the door and walked in. Her father was bent over one of the card catalogues.

"What are you looking for, father?" she inquired.

He put the drawer back, suddenly abashed.

"I'm getting old, Margaret," he said. "I couldn't find my umbrella and I was searching for it under U in the lists."

The Clown Eclipsed.

For the third day in succession the golf tyro strode forth, determined to beat his record for the eighteen holes, which was 472. A villager and his little son stood by while the sportsman placed his ball on a very high tee.

Swish! Whack! The good turf flew in all directions.

Swish! Whack! (More turf and a little language.)

Swish! Whack! (Being a high class paper, we cannot print his remarks.)

Swish! Whack! Swish! Whack! Swish! Whach!

"Noo, Johnnie," said the villager turning slowly to his little son—"noo air ye sorra ye're mither wadna let ye go to the circus?"

A Witty Professor.

Professor Jebb, the eminent Grecian scholar, once held the Greek professorship in Glasgow university. By the arrangement of class rooms Professor Jebb's Greek room was immediately beneath the class room for rhetoric, conducted by Professor Veitch. These rhetoric classes attracted 200 students, who frequently indulged in loud applause at the efforts of their professor. In one of these outbursts a section of plaster from the ceiling of the Greek room fell on the head of Dr. Jebb. Looking up, he exclaimed, "I fear my premises will not support Professor Veitch's conclusions!"

A Straight Tip.

They were a simple looking couple, so thought the minister as he joined them irrevocably in the holy bonds of matrimony. But his suspicions were aroused when, after the ceremony, he observed the bridegroom searching through his pockets and looking a trifle humiliated and confused.

"I am afraid, parson," said the young man at length, "that I ain't got any money like to pay you with."

Then, after a moment of deep thought, he looked up cheerfully:

"But I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll tell you how you can fix yer gas meter so it won't register!"

Making Government Clerks Work.

M. Clemenceau is taking severe measures against clerks in the French Home Office whom he has caught napping. At unexpected moments he sends round the Home Office a sheet called the attendance sheet, which everybody in the office has to sign. He did so two days running, and found twelve clerks absent without leave.

Crown Prince's Cuff Links.

The German Crown Prince has invented and patented a new style of cuff links with two looped buttons. They have been registered in the Imperial Patent Office under No. 44 A. W. 30139.

Castro a Quitter.

Berlin, Dec. 19.—The feeling is growing here that President Castro left South American not because of illness, but to escape the political turmoil, and that he has no intention of ever returning.

Kaiser Swears Off Liquor.

London, Dec. 19.—The Kaiser has gone one step further in his policy of personal reform by becoming a teetotaler. He has pledged himself to abstain from all alcoholic drinks for the remainder of his life.

This ascetic vow would, according to strict etiquette, banish drink from all dinners at which the Emperor is present, but His Majesty, desiring not to compel his courtiers to follow his example, has prepared a temperance drink, like champagne, which he drinks while the others enjoy the real champagne.

When the Emperor is invited to dinner this special non-alcoholic drink is supplied to the host in advance and is served to the Kaiser in champagne bottles.

Knox, Secretary of State.

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 19.—W. H. Taft, President-elect of the United States last night announced the appointment of U. S. Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania as Secretary of State in his Cabinet.

The announcement followed the receipt by Mr. Taft of a telegram which came late yesterday afternoon conveying the information from Mr. Knox that he would accept the Premiership of the Taft Cabinet.

Appeal to Press.

New York, Dec. 19.—The Council of Jewish Women has issued an appeal to newspapers for the elimination of indecent details in the published evidence at murder and divorce trials.

Special request is made for a conservative dealing with the present Hains murder trial "in order to safeguard our homes and our children from the demoralizing influence of prurient details."

Dividends.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—The following dividends are announced: Farmers' Bank, 2 per cent. for six months; Sao Paulo Tramway, Light & Power, 2 1-2 per cent., for three months.

Three Rivers, Mich., was forced to replace hitching posts in the main street, after a seven years' fight with farmers.

Postmaster Morgan of New York, who was shot by a crank on Nov. 9, returned yesterday to his official duties.

SCOTLAND'S WORKINGMAN EDISON

Thompson's Weekly News of Glasgow, has the following interesting article:—

A good claim can be put forward on behalf of Mr. James J. Fraser, Glasgow, to be recognized as one of the foremost inventors of the age.

He began his career as an inventor over twenty years ago, and his record includes inventions connected with electricity, hydraulic and milling productions, and also with compositions in all their varieties.

He is even more varied in his ideas than Edison or Marconi, and gives promise of achieving as much, if not greater, fame than these world-wide inventors. He has invented a new propeller, and is at present running a patent for a pneumatic system whereby a railway train cannot leave the rails when in motion. His milling refining machines have attracted the attention of all countries, and he is the only man who has sent the patent for a milling machine to Hungary.

His method of dealing with manufacturers who wish to make use of his inventions is to sell them the rights of manufacture, and keep the patent rights himself. Indirectly he has had as many as 800 men working at his mechanical inventions at one time. Then Fraser's electric accumulators are now well known all over the country.

A VERY IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

For some time great attention has been paid to the scientific experiment carried out by Mr. Fraser in the Moss Company's Works at Bathgate, where he discovered a most interesting process for using screen shale and papermill refuse which lies in great bings between Edinburgh and Glasgow. From this material Mr. Fraser made a waterlight and hermetically sealed coffin, boxes for perishable goods, boxes for cartridges, gunpowder, etc., roofs to take the place of slate and wood, etc. This new composition which he discovered by mixing the spent shale and papermill refuse, etc., gives promise of revolutionising the chemical world.

By this system of working all the material is entirely cold, and obtaining the necessary liquids from the different bings he succeeded in making the different chemicals, "friendly" and thus obtaining the desired effect. Other men who have sought to make use of those refuse bings failed, because they worked on the heating principle.

The possibilities of this discovery are practically unlimited. Mr. Fraser believes that with it bridges could be built at a quarter of the present cost, and give three times the amount of wear, as the material is light, and stronger than steel.

Mr. Fraser declares that the district lying between Edinburgh and Glasgow, where there are innumerable shale, coal, and paper mill refuse, bings, is the richest district in the world. For this new industry Mr. Fraser has come to terms with a company, and, operations are to be commenced without delay. Already large contracts have been obtained.

Another invention which is at present causing some stir in engineering and shipbuilding circles is that of the "Butterfly" Turbine. The introduction of the turbine some years ago brought about great changes in the propulsion of ships, and it was then thought that developments had reached a state that would be satisfactory for many years.

The problem of the great consumption of coal, however, had still to be faced by the designers and builders, and how serious this is may be judged from the fact that it takes something like three thousand tons of coal to take one of the latest steamers across the Atlantic.

Mr. Fraser claims to have solved this problem. His new system has been built upon the "Butterfly" turbine principle, which aims at greater speed than has yet been accomplished, and also at a considerable saving in the consumption of coal. Mr. Fraser's objections to large steamships is that the engines are situated too far from their work, and this this means a great loss of power, because they require to be driven by shafting.

In the case of the "Butterfly" turbine, the engines are placed near their work the necessity for shafting is removed and the installation being much lighter a higher speed is to be obtained. In consequence of this Mr. Fraser claims that less than half the fuel will be needed, because less than half the power will be required to propel the ship.

A small boat equipped with the "Butterfly" turbine has worked with satisfactory results on the Clyde. The craft is used for experimental purposes, and further developments of Mr. Fraser's principle are expected—developments which may in time reduce the Atlantic passage to four days, with about one-sixth of the present power and one-sixth quantity of coal. Experts who have examined the invention have been struck with its possibilities.

LARGE NUMBER HEARD DR. MacPHERSON

Gave Interesting Address to Boys at St. Anerew's Church Last Night---Work of the Hospitals

There was an excellent attendance of boys at St Andrew's last night to hear Dr A. W. Macpherson's address on "Life in the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto." Dr Macpherson referred in glowing terms to the personal interest that J Ross Robertson had taken from the inception of the work in Toronto, of the large amount of personal benefaction bestowed on the institution in the erection of the Lakeside hospital, the College street city hospital and the recently equipped nurses' Home.

He interested the boys immensely in his discription of the "heaps of fun" enjoyed by the little inmates.

He referred to the comfort and care given to the sick ones and spoke of the excellent work done by the staff, comprising 60 nurses, 5 house doctors, 12 surgeons, 12 medical doctors and five specialists.

Last year 1200 indoor patients were treated and 11,00 outdoor patients.

The quantity of groceries and produce used is amazing. 5000 lbs butter; 12,000 lbs sugar; 10,000 dozen of eggs; 12,000 loaves of bread, etc.

The different cases treated are,—club feet; bow legs; fractures; paralysis; tuberculosis, spinal trouble, etc, etc.

Dr Macpherson urged the boys not merely to do all they could in helping such a work, but what was more valuable to the welfare of children, seeking to have cases brought to the notice of the Hospital as patients are admitted from any part of the Province free of charge.

At the conclusion of the address Mr. Will Gibson moved a resolution of thanks and appreciation to Dr Macpherson for his interesting and instructive address.

VICIOUS DOG BIT A LITTLE GIRL

Case Heard in Police Court This Morning--Enlarged Till Monday

A young man was charged at the police court this morning with harbouring a dog that bit a little girl while on her way to school the other day. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendant and pleaded not guilty.

According to the evidence of the mother of the child, the little girl and her brother—the dog had bitten so that marks were left and the wounds had to be dressed by Dr. Young.

The Magistrate after hearing the facts thought that the animal should be killed.

However, the defendant thought that the doctor's evidence should be heard before the dog was ordered to be shot.

His Worship consented to this and the case was enlarged until Monday at ten o'clock.

The lowest priced tea is not the cheapest. "Brown Label" "Salada" Tea at 30c. per pound makes many more cups than any tea sold at 25c. per pound. It is therefore not only more economical to use, but is infinitely more delicious.

LILLIAN RUSSELL WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Lillian Russell is underlined at the "Grand," and will be seen there next Wednesday evening in the racing comedy, "Wildfire," presented by Joseph Brooks, and which was written by George Broadhurst and George V. Hobart.

The play comes from a long run at the Liberty Theatre, New York, where Miss Russell scored a triumph in it. Her work in straight historic endeavors to have a revelation. The play concerns the adventures of a beautiful widow, who has been left a racing stable, secretly operated by her husband in his life time. The machinations of crooked race track men and the needs of concealing her identity make the task a ticklish one, but the successful manner in which the widow comes through and gets it all straightened out to the satisfaction of her admirers, make "Wildfire" a play of absorbing interest. It is beautifully staged in three acts, the second of which shows the interior of a racing stable at one of the big tracks. Miss Russell is gowned exquisitely, and is provided with a company of popular favorites, including Frank Sheridan, Will Archie, Thurston Hall, Sydney Booth, Joseph Tuohy, Gilbert Douglas, Franklin Roberts, Ernest Truex, J. aHyes Hunter, Ellen Mortimer, Mary Elizabeth Forbes and Annie Buckley.

The plan opens on Monday and a big rush for seats may well be expected.

GAVE LUNCHEON FOR MR. BEERS

At Conclusion of Play in Lindsay --Mr. Beers Appreciation of Treatment in That Town

The Lindsay Free Press says:

Mr Irving Beers showed his ability as director no less than as actor. In the latter role he showed himself is a leader among the professionals, and the appreciation of his services in the former capacity is suggested by the supper tendered him after the play.

The ladies of the cast served a dainty luncheon in honor of Mr. Beers after the performance, while many good words were said of his painstaking ability and talent in direction.

It is likely that "All the Comforts of Home" will be repeated in the near future as a great many desire to see a second presentation to allow all in the district opportunity to view the presentation of this enjoyable comedy by local talent.

Mr. Beers informed the Review today that he was given most cordial treatment by the people of Lindsay and he is very enthusiastic over the excellent manner in which the play was handled by the talented amateurs of the town.

HAVELOCK

Havelock, Dec. 18.—The rush on the C.P.R., which has recently took place has subsided to a certain degree and running is a little slack. At present there are 22 spare firemen on the list.

Several of the Smith's Falls Railway men runing on this division have returned to that town.

Miss Lillian Webb entertained a few of her friends to a card party on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. H. Falkner has returned from Peterborough, where she was attending the funeral of her father, Wm. Spilsbury.

Miss Eva O'Brien entertained a number of her friends on Monday evening, when a delightful time was spent at games and dancing.

The Public school children are practising hard for their school concert on Dec. 22nd. and it promises to be a great success.

The electric lights have been turned on again in the business section of the town.

Up to date $3,000 of 1908 taxes have been collected, $7,100 is the total amount on the collector's roll. It is likely a large amount of the taxes will be paid inside of the next few days as after Dec. 20th, five per cent. will be added to the taxes.

Mr. Jas. Fowler spent Tuesday in Peterborough with friends.

SHOPPERS FROM THE COUNTRY SWARM THE STORES TO-DAY

This is "Christmas Saturday," and several thousand persons from the surrounding country are in the city. The market was the largest of the year, and the stores, shops, hotels and restaurants did an immense business. The dining rooms of the hotels and restaurants were crowded from eleven o'clock until two, and town folk who have dinner at these places had a hard time getting their meals.

The merchants report a big business, the country people buying a large amount of goods for Christmas. It is a jolly crowd that is thronging the streets to-day, there being no evidence of hard times among those from the surrounding townships.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC TO-MORROW

In some of the city churches to-morrow there will be special Christmas music to signalize again to the world the glad tidings of the story of the birth of the Saviour of men. A number of the choirs are not rendering their Christmas music until next Sunday. The choirs of the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches do not, of course, render the Christmas music until the great festival on Christmas day, and it will be repeated the following Sunday. The choir ladies and the members of the choir have been working hard to make a success of the Christmas music, and the services to-morrow will be of special interest. The music in the churches to-morrow is as follows:—

ST. PAUL'S.

The musical portion of the services at St. Paul's church to-morrow will include Stainer's "Wake O Ye People," Neidlinger's "Birthday of a King," "I Waited for the Lord," from Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," Cornelius' "Christmas Song," Hawley's "Trisagin and Sanctus," Vanderwater's "Night of Nights." As a concluding anthem in the evening the choir will give "The Inflamatus" from Rossini. Stabal Mater, with obligato solo by Miss Davies.

MARKET BUILDING CROWDED TO THE DOORS THIS MORNING

The market building was jammed to the doors this morning with buyers all looking for turkeys for Christmas. It was almost impossible to move about, so great was the crowd. The throng of busy buyers were shoving and pushing to get in and out, and the large concourse of persons reminded one of the crowd at a circus. Police Constables McGinty and Meharry were stationed at the doors and the people were made to enter through one door and come out of another. This relieved a great deal of the congestion.

Turkeys, which were most in demand, sold at from one dollar to two dollars and a half. Geese were 90 cents to 1.25 each, and chickens were 60 cents a pair. Butter sold at 26 cents per pound, and eggs sold at 30 cents a dozen.

THE EXHIBITS AT Y.W.C.A. WERE OF UNUSUAL EXCELLENCE

Closing Exercises Held Yesterday Afternoon and Evening —A Fine Display—"Reveries of a Bachelor" in the Evening.

The closing exercises and Domestic Arts and Crafts exhibit held yesterday afternoon and evening at the Y.W.C.A. was such a success that it even exceeded the expectations of the enthusiastic committee in charge and was quite a surprise to the large numbers of visitors who attended. The excellent features were so numerous that it is very difficult to give special mention to any particular features.

The committee and exhibitors alike are to be warmly congratulated. The direct management was the Domestic Arts and Crafts committee the members of which are Mrs Walter Roger, Mrs Burnett, Mrs Devey and Mrs Burnett.

The Domestic Arts and Crafts exhibit was one of unusual merit and provided a wealth of articles of clever and attractive workmanship, including needlework, embroidery, crocheting, knitting, hammered brass, carving, etc.

In the basketry department the display was a revelation to the connoisseurs and lay admirers as well. There were baskets from Labrador, Alaska, Egypt and of local production. Mrs R N Merritt of this city had one on exhibit that elicited particularly favorable comment. Mrs. Edwards gave a delightfully spinning wheel demonstration and Mrs. Devey gave an interesting half hour talk on pillow lace making. She was dressed for the occasion in old fashioned costume.

The afternoon features consisted of the pillow lace demonstration, spinning demonstration, Krisp Krust pan tin demonstration and the making of ice cream in a toy ice cream freezer by two junior pupils and those of the evening were pillow lace making, candy making, the setting of an invalid's tray by Miss Browett, a trained nurse and that entrancing dream tableaux "The Reveries of a Bachelor." Mrs Collins was accompanist for the latter presentation and played the nocturnes in fine sympathy. Mr D Hughes-Charles made a splendid chairman. Mr Charles Barber looked the part of the dreaming bachelor and nineteen young ladies becomingly and appropriately gowned were the dream girls.

Everything in the cookery exhibit was shown in the gymnasium and all in the arts and crafts in the green drawing room. The ladies are thoroughly pleased with the entire affair, their only regret being that arrangements had not been made and announced to have held for two or three days.

VOL. LVII., No. 145. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, MONDAY, DECEMBER 21, 1908 TEN CENTS PER WEEK

THE BRITISH HOUSE CLOSES LICENSING BILL REJECTED

Government. Not Very Successful.

Of Ten Important Measures Five Became Law—Other Bills.

London, Dec. 21.—So far as practical work is concerned, the first session of Parliament under the Premiership of Herbert H. Asquith, came to an end Saturday. The two Houses will meet again on Monday, but only to receive the King's assent to bills already passed under, when they will be prorogued until Feb. 16.

Many minor laws were enacted during the year, but of the ten important measures foreshadowed in the King's speech, only five find a place in the statute book. Those are the old-age pension bill, the Irish universities bill, to which assent was given before adjournment for the summer vacation, and measures fixing eight hours as the time miners shall work underground, providing for the purchase of the London docks at $115,000,000, and placing them under a central authority, and a bill for the better protection of children. This last named bill for the better protection of children, prohibits juvenile smoking and aims at preventing minors from visiting saloons.

Of the other measures projected, the licensing bill was rej[illegible]ed by the House of Lords; two e[illegible]ation bills were withdrawn because [illegible] the failure of the church party and the nonconformists to report a compromise; the bills that aimed at the better housing of the working classes was put off until the next session, while the promised measure for Irish land valuation never saw light and the Irish land purchase bill was dropped.

The session widened the break between the Liberals and the House of Lords. The rejection of the licensing bill, for which the Liberals claimed they had received a mandate at the election of 1906, augmented the bad feeling resulting last year from the rejection or mutilation by the Lords of the education, plural voting and Scottish land valuation bills.

There is still talk of the dissolution of Parliament and an appeal to the country against the action of the Lords, but it is more likely that Premier Asquith will try another session, the main feature of which will be the budget, introducing radical changes in taxation. These changes include the reform of the income tax, a high license for saloons and taxation on land values, which would chiefly affect brewers, land owners and the wealthier classes and which the Liberal leaders believe would prove popular with the masses. One difficulty arises in the fact that the bonds uniting the various factions of the Liberal party are not so close under Mr. Asquith as under Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, and the Liberals would not present such a united front as they did in the last election.

GAME WARDEN UNPOPULAR

Posed as a Fur Buyer and Friend and Made a Big Haul in the North.

The Dorset correspondent of the Minden Echo says:—Consternation, mingled with indignation ran riot in the vicinity of Dorset a few days ago, when Mr. Coats, who has spent some time in the place in the capacity of bridge inspector, also posing as a buyer of furs and if rumor be correct, soliciting not only legal furs returned, wearing the official badge of a game warden, and, profiting by the knowledge obtained under the guise of a friend, proceeded to relieve several of the unsuspecting citizens of their stock of furs without the anticipated remuneration. Perhaps the end justified the means, but the benedictions called down were not calculated to enlarge his bump of self esteem or peace of mind.

"THE PRIVATE SECRETARY" TO BE PRESENTED

"The Private Secretary," a three-act English comedy, will be presented in Peterborough towards the end of January by a cast of local amateurs. The production will be under the direction of Mr. Irving Beers who has returned to the city from Lindsay. Rehearsals will be commenced at an early date. The company will contain several of those who took part in "All the Comforts of Home."

BIG RAID ON A MONTREAL JOINT

Montreal, Dec. 21.—Three gambling houses were raided, twenty-two men arrested, gambling paraphernalia, valued at nearly $3,000, consisting of roulette wheels, faro and stud poker tables, cards and colored checks, were seized early this morning.

The raid were under the personal direction of Chief Campeau, and the houses visited were on East St. Catherine street and University street. Each man arrested had to furnish a $20-bond for his appearance in court this morning.

TWO CHINAMEN ARE MURDERED

Winnipeg, Dec. 3.—Yat Sun, Chinese laundryman of 214 Jarvis avenue, and his hired man were murdered some time Saturday evening, robbery apparently being the motive, as the store was rifled.

The crime was discovered by a man who called for his washing half an hour before midnight and found the Celestials in a welter of blood, the head of one being almost completely severed.

Last spring almost a similar crime was committed near the overhead bridge, when two Chinese laundrymen were murdered, but in that case the shack was fired in an attempt to destroy traces.

LITTLE BOY KILLS SISTER

Eight-Year-Old Nova Scotia Lad Was Playing With a Gun.

Mahone Bay, N.S., Dec. 21.—Oberlin, the eight-year-old son of Capt. Benjamin Hamm, shot and killed his 12-year-old sister, Ruby, with a double-barrelled hammerless gun yesterday.

An elder brother had been using it Saturday, and the gun was left down stairs, instead of in its customary place. The young man who had it thought the barrels were empty, but one of them had a cartridge. This forenoon Mrs. Hamm asked Oberlin to take the gun upstairs. She, too, thought it was not loaded. The little fellow first pointed the gun at his sister Lottie and then at his sister Ruby. The mechanism was touched, the bullet striking the little girl below the cheek and lodging in the back of the head. Death was instantaneous.

WAS ORDAINED A PRIEST OF THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH

Victor Godfrey McFadden Invested With the Sacred Authority of Priesthood—His Lordship Bishop O'Connor Officiated and Rev. Father Roach, President of St. Michael's College, Preached the Sermon.

St. Peter's Cathedral was yesterday the scene of a most solemn, interesting and impressive ceremony, that of the ordination of a priest of the Catholic church when Rev Victor Geoffrey McFadden, was invested with the dignity of priest and was placed under and accepted the highest responsibility that can be assumed.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of the relatives and personal friends of the young priest and a very large congregation, by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor. He was assisted by Rev Father McColl, rector of St Peter's, as deacon, and Rev Dr. O'Brien as sub-deacon. Rev Father Lynch, the white haired priest, who officiated at the baptismal ceremony of the young priest, was at the altar.

The ceremony of ordination thanks to the presence of the cathedral of the diocese has so often been celebrated in Peterborough, some 28 times since His Lordship Rt Rev Bishop O'Connor became Bishop in 1888, and the public are so familiar with the details that it is not necessary to refer more than generally to them. Since his occupancy of the bishopric of Peterborough, His Lordship has officiated at 17 ordinations.

The high mass to which the ordination ceremony is incidental proceeded as far as the gospel when Rev. Father Roach, president of St Michael's college, Toronto, preached the sermon.

The Rev Father took his text from the gospel of the day, St Paul's. 1st epistle to the Corinthians, chap. 4-1, "Let a man so account of us as the ministers of Christ and stewards of the mysteries of God."

The sermon as was to be expected from the deep learning and piety of the preacher was scholarly and inspiring. It dealt with the divine authority and dignity of the priesthood the momentous spiritual and other responsibilities, the thankful discharge of its dduties involved and emphasized the reality and sanctity of the relations sustained by a priest as between Almighty God and His Church and the souls of the flock committed to his charge.

The mass then proceeded and at its conclusion the bishop addressed a few words of admonition and encouragement to the occasion. He expressed his pleasure at having another added to the priesthood of the diocese and congratulated the family upon having had the privilege and honor of seeing one of their own advanced to so high and holy an office in the church. He hoped that others would emulate the piety and zeal of Father McFadden, and devote themselves to the service of Holy Mother Church.

The ordination concluded the first official exercises by Rev Father McFadden of his spiritual authority was to give his blessing to the relatives beginning with his father and mother and afterwards the congregation generally.

In the evening the newly ordained priest sang vespers and this morning at eight o'clock he celebrated his first mass.

Rev Father McFadden is well known in this city of which he is a native being a son of Mr Martin McFadden, Elm street. He is 26 years of age and received his early education at the old Murray street separate school in the Collegiate Institute where he graduated, obtaining a first class certificate. He continued his studies at St Michael's College, Toronto, and afterwards took theological course at the Grand Seminary, Montreal. Necessarily he received minor ecclesiastical orders qualifying him for and leading up to the final ceremony of yesterday.

What adds to the significance of the occasion in relation to the interests of Peterborough is the fact that Rev. Victor McFadden is the 28th priest or bishop ordained since Bishop O'Connor was consecrated. He and other bishops have officiated at the ordinations.

Rev Father McFadden will receive the warm congratulations of his brother clergy and those whose knowledge of him during his life of respect and worth in the community, gives earnestness to the wish that his future, as a priest of the church, may be marked by the greatest usefulness and success.

SUFFRAGETTE LEADER WILL BE GIVEN FREEDOM TO-MORROW

London, Dec. 21.—When Miss Christabel Pankhurst is released from Holloway jail Tuesday morning on the completion of her sentence there will be a great demonstration by the members of the National Women's Social Political Union, who will assemble outside the jail.

Miss Pankhurst will find an open landau, which will be literally a bower of roses, awaiting her. The carriage will be drawn by four milk-white horses driven by suffragists, the driver, groom and two footmen being members of the union, attired in a uniform consisting of green skirt, a white jersey and a purple cap, the colors of the party. A breakfast will be held at a hotel.

Meanwhile Miss Pankhurst is being made the subject of some remarkable compliments. In the current number of "Votes for Women," the organ of the union, she is addressed as "the child of destiny," "the spirit of the dawn," "the maiden warrior," and compared with young Siegfried The address begins as follows:

"Christabel, Chrisabel as the dawn to the waiting earth upon whose breast have lain all night the chilling mists of tears, so are you dear to the hearts of women."

Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, who is responsible for the apostrophe, concludes with the following:

"Far away upon the fire-girt mountaintop sleeps womanhood, that is both human and divine. She will not awake nor give unto the world her lore of wisdom and of love until you and we have accomplished all that has been decreed."

THE LONDON GLOBE HAS A HOT ROAST FOR ROOSEVELT

London, Dec. 21.—It is impossible to ignore altogether the complete change in the attitude which has taken place in the past year in the English press and among Englishmen at large towards President Roosevelt.

The developments of the past fortnight have been of such a nature that even friendly critics have been led to speak openly on this subject. It would be easy to quote manifold comments from the best exponents of public opinion of rebuke to President Roosevelt for his unrestraint and undignified language,

A single example from a leader in Saturday's Globe, however, will show the trend of English feelings. It says:

"Roosevelt is so great a man in many respects that it is a thousand pities that he cannot contrive to be greater. The office which he still holds is one of the highest to which any human being can aspire, and the enormous power for good which it confers has upon the whole been worthily exercised by its present occupant.

"It is, therefore, with feelings of regret and repulsion that we see the President of the United States descending into the gutters of controversy and endeavoring to outvie the very Bowery in New York in violence and coarseness of his abuse.

"Roosevelt talks of lying, of blackmail and of scurrilous libel. He declares that his Parliament is deeply concerned over the fact that secret service agents are investigating the conduct of its members, and recommends the criminal prosecution of a newspaper which has dared to attack his Government.

"Roosevelt had far better recommend the prosecution of himself for the heinous offence of degrading the Presidential office by mingling in sordid and disgusting disputes. The ginger which, to use his own words, he imparted into Taft's campaign, has evidently entered his own system, and the result is a very melancholy spectacle.

"It was a betrayal alike of the traditions of a great office and of the simplest canons of good taste even to throw himself into the campaign at all, but having done so and having succeeded, he might surely have spent the last few months of his occupancy of the White House in an atmosphere of personal dignity.

"To preserve to the end the manners and language of an angry fishwife is not the way to win the respect of his own country, or of any other."

AN EXPLOSION AT COBALT TWO DEAD AND ONE INJURED

KILLED FOR HIS MONEY

A Murder on the G.T.P.—Montreal Pedlar Slain.

Plaster Rock, B.C., Dec. 21.—After several weeks of peace the Italians working on the G. T. P. construction broke out again yesterday, and a terrible murder was committed.

Patrick Breen, a pedlar, of Craig street, Montreal, was shot and instantly killed near here about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, by an Italian laborer. Last night the district for miles about was thoroughly searched.

Robbery was the motive of the murder, deceased having in his possession $4,300 and 30 gold watches. The murderer, who was accompanied by another Italian, took to the woods. They failed in their efforts to secure the money, for after rifling the top drawers of the old man's packet, they threw it away. It was found later by a search party with the money locked in the lower drawers.

THE SHORTEST DAY

To-day, Dec. 21st, is the shortest day of the year. Of course there are 24 hours the same as usual but the period of daylight is less than on any other day. The sun rose this morning at 7.31 and will set at 4.26. These figures are taken from Ayer's almanac. The sun rises and sets at practically the same times tomorrow.

Accident in Temagami Gold Reefs.

Dynamite Exploded in Blast Hole—Two Men Out of Five Escape.

Cobalt, Dec. 21.—Through the accidental explosion of a portion of a stick of dynamite, which had remained in a drill after the original discharge without its presenece being suspected, two men weer killed outright in the Temagami Gold Reefs mine, and a third so terribly injured that he cannot recover.

The dead are: Michael Doherty, single, aged 21, North Bay; Alfred Rioux, single, aged 22, Sudbury. The injured are: William Brennan, married, aged about 45, Cache Bay; may die; Eli Lalonde, badly cut and bruised, but will recover; — Lavallee, slightly hurt.

Two other miners were at the bottom of the shaft, 75 feet below the surface, at the time, but escaped with their lives.

The explosion occurred several days ago, but information has just reached here. The accident is the most serious that has thus far occurred in Cobalt mining operations.

The remains of Doherty and Rioux have been sent to North Bay. The men were almost literally blown to pieces. The explosion shattered large sections of rock, which were hurled with terrific force upon the miners working in the shaft. One flying fragment struck Brennan on the forehead, inflicting terrible injuries.

When taken to the surface, it was found that a portion of the brain had exuded, but that he was still breathing. He was removed to the hospital at New Liskeard, and latest advices were that he was still living, although the surgeons in attendance pronounced his recovery impossible.

The mining inspector of the district will, it is said, request that an inquest be held at North Bay next Wednesday.

The accident is stated to have been caused by the failure of a stick of dynamite to explode more than partially when the fuse was first lighted, about one-quarter of the explosive remaining in the heel of the hole, unknown to the drillers. In what manner this undischarged section was touched off has not been discovered, but it is thought that one of the men accidentally brought a drill into contact with it.

The detonation was tremendous, stunning the survivors for a moment. There were only five men in the bottom of the shaft, one of them, Lalonde, being foreman. Recovering himself, he began a search for his companions. He found Lavallee, who was less hurt than himself, and they brought Brennan to the surface in the bucket, and afterwards the mutilated bodies of Doherty and Rioux.

The Temagami Gold Reefs mine is located about seven miles from Temagami, and is separated by a small lake from the Fairview mine.

Two Killed.

Phoenix, B.C., Dec. 21.—A fatal accident occurred at the Granby mines last Friday night, by which John A. Anderson and Charles Johnson were killed. They had just completed the charging of 19 holes with dynamite when a premature explosion resulted in some way. Johnson's body was blown beyond recognition.

ARRESTED LAST NIGHT

Jacob and Jane Firnam Charged With Being Keepers of Disorderly House

Jacob and Jane Firman were arrested last night, and appeared in police court this morning, charged with having during the month of December, been the keepers of a house of ill-fame. They pleaded not guilty and were remanded until Thursday morning.

They asked for bail, which was ranted at $500 or two sureties of $250.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETS TO-NIGHT

The Money By-laws to be Voted on Will be Discussed

The meeting of the Board Trade to-night to discuss the many by-laws to be voted on in January should attract a large number of citizens. The subject is an important one and the Board of Trade deserves much credit for providing an opportunity of hearing the questions placed before them. The meeting is called for eight o'clock.

ELEVEN HORSES BURNT TO DEATH

Bad Fire at a Lumber Camp Near Dorset in North Country

Dorset, Dec. 19.—At one of the Mickle camps at Hollow Lake, A. McCracken foreman, a serious fire, under particularly tragic circumstances, is reported to have occurred on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 6th. A stable containing eleven horses and one cow were totally consumed. Nothing definite is known as to the origin of the fire.

THE LATEST CABLE AND TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Pulitzer Off For Panama.

Newport News, Va., Dec. 21.—Jos. Pulitzer, publisher of The New York World, accompanied by a party of friends and several staff writers, arrived off Old Point yesterday on Mr. Pulitzer's yacht Liberty. It is stated that he is on his way to Panama to investigate into the conditions prevailing in the canal zone, and probably to secure evidence in connection with the purchase of the canal property by the Government.

Mr. Pulitzer's trip is of especial interest on account of the attitude of President Roosevelt in demanding that Congress have Mr. Pulitzer and other publishers prosecuted for criminal libel for publishing articles attacking the administration in connection with the canal purchase.

Takahira Pleased.

New York, Dec. 21.—Comparing the recent joint declaration by Japan and the United States in regard to their respective policies in the Pacific to "a transaction between trusted friends," Baron Takahira, Japanese ambassador to the United States, in an address last night at the Lotus Club, where he was the guest at a dinner given in his honor, expressed in an unmistakable way his gratification that so strong a bond of union between the two nations had been cemented.

Canadian Northern Spreads Out.

Duluth, Dec. 21.—Official announcement of the new $20,000,000 lumber merger, known as the Virginia & Rainy Lake Co., was made public on Saturday by Edward Hines, president of the corporation. The new company is the amalgamation of the Edward Hines Co., the Weyerhauser interests and the Virginia Lumber Co.

In the amalgamation what is known as the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg Railway will become the property of the Canadian Northern Railroad.

Castro's Visit to Germany.

Berlin, Dec. 21.—Many of the newspapers in their weekly political reviews deal with President Castro's visit in connection with the Venezuelan situation. The Tageblatt says:

"The German Government cannot much longer show favor towards the President unless he gives us assurances that Venezuela will fulfill her international obligations."

A notable fact is that the semi-official Nord Deutsche Allgemaine Zeitung utterly ignores the presence of Castro. Such a course has never before been adopted when the chief of a foreign state was visiting Germany, even although in a private capacity.

Negro Killed In Fight.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 21.—In a sensational fight on Church street Saturday night, that caused intense excitement among hundreds of Christmas shoppers thronging the thoroughfare, an unknown negro desperado was shot and killed by Patrolmen Buck, White and Acting Sergt. Marshall.

When arrested for fighting the negro cut Patrolman White back of the ear, held citizens at bay who attempted to prevent his escape, slashed C. H. Chandler, who grasped him, and dashed away.

Marshall then arrived and he and White opened fire with pistols, killing the negro instantly.

Body In Ruins.

Port Arthur, Dec. 21.—The remains of a man were found in the debris of the fire of Vigars & Co.'s warehouse, which took place early yesterday. Chief McLennan was inspecting the ruins yesterday afternoon, when he came across the remains of a man who had evidently been sleeping and was lying on his back. He was burned to a crisp, only a small portion of the flesh on the back remaining, with a piece of sweater. He is believed to have been a man known by the name of Alex. Joe.

Fire In Halifax.

Halifax, Dec. 21.—Fire last night destroyed a large building on Argyle street used as a rooming-house in connection with the Carleton Hotel. The building was formerly occupied as a residence by Sir Charles Tupper, when he was city medical officer of Halifax. The occupants had a miraculous escape, many being rescued with ladders by firemen. No one was seriously hurt.

Suicides In Trunk.

Rochester, Minn., Dec. 21.—Mrs. Nellie C. Purcell, who was recently discharged as cured from the Rochester Hospital for the Insane, crowded herself into a large trunk Saturday at her sister's home, closed the lid, and then inhaled chloroform, which caused her death.

Sign New Wage Scale.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 21.—At the close of the first day of the strike of the National Window Glass Workers, inaugurated to enforce the adoption of the new wage scale with a 25 per cent. increase, President Faulkner announced that six plants had signed.

Prayers For King.

Montreal, Dec. 21.—A story of the King's serious illness was generally believed in Montreal last night, and prayers were offered up for His Majesty in the American Presbyterian Church.

C. P. R. Employe Run Over.

Winnipeg, Dec. 21.—William Whyte, a C.P.R. employe, was run over by an engine in the yards on Saturday afternoon, losing an arm. He is lying in the hospital in a critical condition.

Argentina Building Warships.

Buenos Ayres, Dec. 21.—Tenders will be invited immediately by the Argentine Government for the construction of two warships.

French Cardinal Dead.

Chambery, France, Dec. 21.—Cardinal Victor Lucian Sulpice Lecot, archbishop of Bordeaux, died at an hotel here yesterday from hemorrhage of the brain, while returning from a visit to Rome.

Cardinal Lecot was the leader of the movement among a group of French ecclesiastics to find a basis of settlement in the difference which has arisen between the Government and the church. He was the exponent of Liberalism in the College of Cardinals, and went to Rome to submit to the Pope a plan for the amelioration of the material condition of the French clergy.

Soap Combine In West.

Winnipeg, Dec. 21.—A huge amalgamation of soap manufacturers was officially proclaimed yesterday by The Manitoba Gazette. The capital involved is two million dollars, and the territory to be covered extends from the lakes to the Pacific coast and into the remote north. The combine includes the Royal Crown, the Standard and the Royal.

Grand Master Resigns.

New York, Dec. 21.—John J. Hannahan, grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, will, on Jan. 1 next, sever his official connection with the organization to take the vice-presidency of the American Automatic Stoker Co., with offices in Chicago.

Death of Father Breen.

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—Father John F. Breen, assistant priest of Egansville, and a native of Douglas, Ont., died at Water street hospital on Saturday after an attack of appendicitis, where he had undergone an operation.

Columbia Mobilizing Troops.

Paris, Dec. 21.—Private advices have reached here to-day to the effect that 4,000 Colombian troops have been mobilized on the Venezuelan frontier.

Trial of Night Riders.

Union City, Tenn., Dec. 21.—When court adjourned Saturday afternoon until Monday, the state had nearly completed its case against the eight alleged night riders now on trial for the murder of Capt. Quentin Rankin. On Monday it will put Frank Fehringer on the stand. He says he was present when the murder was committed and knows the name of every man who was present.

Windsor For County Town.

Windsor, Dec. 21.—As a direct result of the steps that are now being taken by Essex County to centralize the county offices at Sandwich, members of the bar in Windsor have started a counter movement, which, if successful, will entirely undo the work of the county fathers and end in legislation by the Ontario Government to make Windsor, instead of Sandwich, the county town.

The Ottoman Parliament.

Constantinople, Dec. 21.—The Chamber of Deputies met on Saturday and went in to committee for the purpose of examining the mandates of the deputies. Ali Haida Bey, son of Midhat Pasha, author of the constitution, has been appointed a Senator. Said Pasha, ex-grand vizier, has been elected president of the Senate.

Business Blocked Burned.

Warman, Sask., Dec. 21.—Fire, which broke out in a restaurant next to the Commercial Hotel yesterday morning, destroyed a business block, causing a loss of $50,000, with about $20,000 insurance. McGill, Clare & Co.'s and J. E. Knipfel's stores were gutted.

Newspaper Suffers by Fire.

St. Albans, Vt., Dec. 21.—The newspaper plant of The St. Alban's Messenger was completely destroyed by fire at a loss of $50,000.

FREE TRADE

Two correspondents this week discuss the editorial position of "The Farmer's Advocate" with relation to the tariff question. One asks why we do not go the length of advocating absolute free trade as being in the highest interests of the farming community of Canada; the other maintains that a high protective tariff system is the boot strap by which a nation may lift itself into a state of prosperity and affluence.

The position of "The Farmers' Advocate on this question is a moderate one. We recognize that tariff policies, while they may influence, do not so sweepingly affect the prosperity of a country as a good many people believe. The larger a country, and the more diversified its climatic, soil and other conditions the less severely is it hampered by adverse or unwise tariff policy. The smaller the country and the more restricted its range of natural productions, the more seriously is it inconvenienced by artificial obstructions of trade. To carry this principle to its ultimate conclusion we must imagine an individual deprived of trading with anyone but himself.

There is no doubt the principle of free trade is fundamentally and logically sound, though there are certain considerations that professional free traders have overlooked, which lend weight to the argument of those who advocate a moderate measure of protection as a judicious expedient for a young nation to employ, temporarily in order to build up diversified occupations and to enable manufacturing and mercantile industries particularly to develop to a point where they can compete successfully with the strong established industries of other countries. The ever-present danger is of paying more for the whistle than it is worth, of hampering the basic industries to a development of the bonused industry. Another danger is that the favored industry grown lusty and strong by long feeding on the nursing bottle, may tenaciously refuse to relinquish the pap, even after it is no longer required.

We feel tempted to discuss a number of points raised in the letters referred to, but have concluded to leave them with these few thoughts by way of a leader for other correspondents to tackle.—Farmer's Advocate.

LACK OF PRIDE

Lack of true pride may fairly be given as the reason for Canada's apathy in providing for her own naval defence so far as she can. It's frequently charged by our critics that we lack ideals and lacking ideals necessarily lack pride, by which, of course, is meant self-respect. The Ottawa Citizen takes up this matter in an editorial of considerable significance. It is not a question of the advisability or otherwise of going to war, but simply of helping to pay for what we receive. Had it not be for Great Britain we would have been severely handled by Japan during the late immigration muddle. Germany would probably have spanked us for denouncing our treaty with them. We must either prepare to defend ourselves or give up all international relations which means national death. Australia is doing nobly. Canada alone fails to back up its boast of being the premier colony. We are sponging. It is by no means agreeable to contemplate the withdrawal from national development of a large sum for unproductive purposes, but it must be done. The fault primarily lies in human nature. We must not aggravate our part of the universal offence against the dove of Peace by living on the protection afforded almost wholly by another. It is frequently pointed out that our defence expenditure would cost no less as part of the U.S. than it will cost as part of the great British Empire. This bait will ultimately appeal to many, and the quicker we put them beyond temptation the better.

THE LAYMEN'S MOVEMENT

We have been trying in our humble way to impress upon the laymen of Peterborough what other journals are impressing upon the clergy and laity of other places with all the power at their command, viz., the probably unintentional neglect of the moral and religious condition of Canada, which it is assumed will now be neglected more than ever. The quotations which we make below will suffice to close our series of articles. They speak for themselves. A serious mistake is being allowed to develop somewhere. It is time for us Canadians to take further stock of ourselves.

"The general morality of the people of this city, and of the whole of Canada, I am afraid, is much lower to-day than it was a few years ago."

Such was the statement made by one of Toronto's judges to the Star this morning. He does not wish to have his name made public, but he was not adverse to have his thoughts on the matter made public.

"There is no doubt about it, in my mind" said the man learned in the law. "I have had dealings with criminals of all classes during the past few years, and I have been forced to come to that conclusion.

"The amount of shoplifting going on in Toronto is appalling, he said, "and people generally have not yet awakened to the fact. The number of cases of shoplifting which appear in the Police Court is something to be astounde at, but fully twice as many cases occur as reach the police."

This statement was born out by Detective Black, who said that arrests were only occasional. Every week from one to half a dozen women, he said, are suspected and taken away to be searched. Unless they are caught in the act no arrests are made.

"The other day I suspected a well-dressed woman of having stolen goods around her person," said the detective. "When she was searched we recovered about $20 worth of goods. No one saw her stealing, so she was let go."

"People seem to have lost their honesty," said the judge, when these facts were made known to him. "Stealing to-day is looked upon by most people as a slight offence. The only part about it to be feared is being caught."

"Not only on that point, but on others has the morality of the people lessened. Perjury to-day is far more common than it was some years ago.

"In my opinion, there is a general lessening of morality all round: no amount of preaching will stop it. There is only one way to prevent it, and that is through the press. If the papers of this city would give the fullest publicity to those shoplifting cases, instead of shielding the offenders, as is too often done to protect the good name of relatives, or through the influence of friends, shoplifting would soon cease."—Toronto Star.

The thought that follows upon the realization of conditions just referred to is this: How can Christian, church-loving, missionary England allow such things to exist! How can so much zeal and enthusiasm be thrown into the dissemination of information about races at the ends of the earth or the collection of money to carry on the work of the Church in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, China, and elsewhere, when right in wealthy, generous England one in every five or six of its citizens is on the ragged edge of starvation and in spiritual extremity! "Spectator" heartily believes in missions. He believes that every Churchman should do something for the welfare of the church, that is extra-parochial, extra-diocesan, and extra-national. The communion of saints should be a real and living article of our faith, but the greatest missionary zeal on the face of the earth cannot justify the overlooking of the duty at our own door in order that we may engage in the more spectacular enterprises far off. We are liable, of course, to be told that the way in which the church in England meets or turns from its duty is none of our business. Probably there is a good deal of truth in that, but the fact that the Canadian Church is receiving large sums of money for Church extension and maintenance in this Dominion raises the question in minds that rise above the selfish maxim of "Take all you can get and ask no questions," are we justified in piteously pleading our cause in a land so overwhelmed with social and ecclesiastical problems! Can we rest satisfied in receiving gifts which are handed out over the heads of millions in a state of physical and spiritual starvation whose cry goes up to heaven for the help which no one but England can give! Has not the time come when Canada can say in the interests of a larger humanity; We shall tax ourselves for the full support of our Church work in this country and gratefully relinquish our claims upon contributions from a country that has such overwhelming demands at home. The effect could not help but be stimulating to ourselves and startling to our kinsmen beyond the seas. We shall no doubt be told that the missionary work that England is doing in no way interferes with the meeting of the church's duty at home. What "Spectator" feels, however, is that it is humiliating for Canada to go to England for help so long as such wretchedness abounds there. One thing we all need to remember, and that is that our zeal for what is far off is no justification for neglecting what is nigh at hand.—The Canadian Churchman.

Exercise in fresh air is the best health producer known. Therefore, some of it must be taken if we are to keep health. It cannot safely be ignored. The point, however, where exercise or athletics should stop and education prevail is when the consumption of physical energy is so great as to leave little for backing up mental energy. If the development of character is the aim, however, of mankind, then the acquisition of knowledge is secondary even to that. All efforts should tend in that direction.

WRAP YOUR GIFTS DAINTILY

Of late years much more attention is paid to the manner in which one's Christmas gifts are tied up and addressed. It is a well known fact that more pleasure is derived in the receiving of a daintily wrapped parcel than in one that is hastily tied up an despatched without much care.

Nowadays no parcel is really complete without a pretty little holly card with the donor's name put inside. The parcels then the wrappings are sealed with small holly or Santa Claus seals and the address within on a holly label or tag.

There are also several styles of cards labels, tags and seals, and they are all equally pretty. They are all on sale at the Review office together with many other materials and Xmas gifts.

A box of Initialled Writing Paper and Envelopes is always acceptable—Orders may be left at Soden's or at the Review.

BRASS HORNS.

The Way the Thin, Seamless Tubes Are Bent Without Injury.

Saxhorns, so called after a famous Belgian family named Sax, who invented and introduced these instruments about the middle of the last century, are the mainstay of all modern brass bands. They are manufactured in many different sizes, from high soprano to the huge contrabass or bombardon, and the most important of the lot is the enphonium, which supplanted the now obsolete "serpents" and ophicleides. The tallest saxhorn ever made stands eight feet high and contains more than forty feet of tubing.

The advantage of seamless or "solid drawn" tubes for such instruments as trombones and horns is considerable, since, no matter how good the join may be, sooner or later the action of the breath will wear away the solder.

To bend these thin brass tubes without splitting or denting the metal was at one time very difficult, but, thanks to a most ingenious artifice, the operation is now both safe and simple. The tube is first washed out with a chemical substance, such as is used by plumbers to prevent solder from adhering where it is not wanted, and it is then completely filled with molten lead poured in from a ladle. Thus supported from within, the brass is easily and safely bent to the required shape, the lead being afterward removed by heat.—Pearson's.

A CURIOUS WORD.

Twists That May Be Given to "Ba" in the Chinese Language.

In the Chinese language the same word may be given several different meanings by the modulation of the voice. The same thing may happen to the English "Yes," which may be pronounced so as to mean "I assent to that," or "I am doubtful," or "Indeed?" An eminent authority on philology gives an amusing illustration of these modulations in the Annamitic language, a monosyllabic tongue spoken by the people of Tonquin and Cochin China.

In this language the syllable "ba" pronounced with a grave accent means a lady, an ancestor. Pronounced with the sharp accent, it means the favorite of a prince. Pronounced with the semigrave accent, it means what has been thrown away. Pronounced with the grave circumflex, it means what has been left of a fruit after the juice has been squeezed out. Pronounced with no accent, it means three. Pronounced with the ascending or interrogation accent, it means a box on the ears.

Thus the word "ba," in the order given above, is said to mean, if properly pronounced, "Three ladies gave a box on the ear to the favorite of the prince."

Two Previous.

A Richmond woman has in her employ a little darky, Miff Cole. One day Miff became confidential and told his mistress he was "goin' to the cimitery next Sunday."

"But, Miff, that's a long walk. You know it is more than five miles."

"Oh, missus, I ain't goin' to walk. I's goin' to ride."

"How is that, Miff?"

"I's goin' in a kerridge t' my uncle's funeral."

All day Saturday Miff could talk of nothing but the approaching affair. Sunday his mistress excused him, and she expected that on Monday she would be regaled with a full account of the funeral. But Miff turned up with a most melancholy face. In answer to her inquiry he said:

"I didn't go, missus. He ain't dead yit."

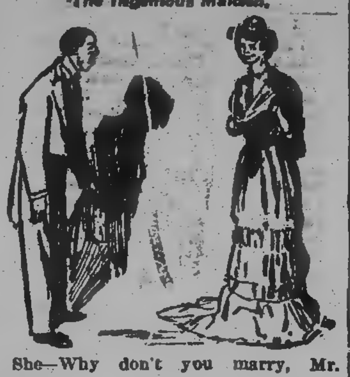
ABOUT MABEL.

Mabel puzzles me a lot.
Mabel's changeable, I ween,
Pretty Mabel, who is not
Any more than fair eighteen.
Mabel has such ruby lips.
Oh, her charms are very many!
Last year she had rounded hips.
This year Mabel hasn't any.

Mabel's eyes are azure blue.
Mabel's cheeks are rosy pink.
She would take your heart from you
If she only smiled, I think.
Yet a fickle maid she trips
Through the world in ways uncanny.
Last year she had rounded hips.
This year Mabel hasn't any.

Mabel's smile is still the same.
Mabel says her heart is mine,
Seeing her you would not blame
Me for kneeling at her shrine.
But the changes Mabel slips
Over me are far too many.
Last year she had rounded hips.
This year Mabel hasn't any.
—Detroit Free Press.

The Ingenious Maiden.



She—Why don't you marry, Mr. Scratch?

He—I'm too nervous, and a faint heart never won a fair lady, don't cher know.

She—Yes, but I'm dark.—Tatler.

Getting a Substitute.

"Never get out of trouble by bringing it on some one else," remarked a man on the train the other day. "I remember," he continued, "when I was a small boy I was one day going along the road when I came upon a man holding a ram by the horns. As I came up he said, 'Here, sonny, hold this ram till I climb over the fence and unlock the gate.' I took hold of the ram, and he went over the fence. When safely over he said: 'Thanks. I've been holding him for an hour. I hope you get rid of him as easily as I did.'"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Not Fit For Publication.

"Isn't it scandalous about the Wappsleys?"

"What about them? I understand that Mrs. Wappsley has secured a divorce, but I haven't learned any of the particulars."

"Nobody else has. The case is such a nasty one that the records have all been hidden." — Chicago Record-Herald.

He Was a Mean Man.

"What's the matter now?"

"Before we were married you used to steal kisses from me."

"You mean when your face was turned away?"

"Yes."

"Well, if you'll turn your face away I'll see if I can get up enough courage to steal one now."—Houston Post.

The Knowledge That Hurts.

Towne—So Dumley married a college woman. My, it must be fierce for him to be tied to a woman who knows so much that he doesn't know!

Browne—Oh, that doesn't hurt him so much as the fact that she knows "how" much he doesn't know.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Striving to Please.

"Yes," said the housewife, "yours is a sad story. But it isn't the same story you told last year."

"Well, lady," answered Plodding Pete, "you surely wouldn't expect a man to go all dat time an' not show any improvement!"—Washington Star.

A Strictly Feminine Comment.

"I notice that a leading actress telephoned that her automobile was broken down and she couldn't attend a meeting of her creditors."

"Wasn't that sweet of her? Going to all that trouble for a lot of fussy old creditors!"—Pittsburg Post.

Notice It?

"People usually try to do as they are done by."

"For instance?"

"Whenever some one is run down by a motor car a lot of folks begin running down the cars." — Kansas City Times.

A Great Difference.

"Margaret, it was very naughty of you to make such a fuss. You said if I'd buy you that new dolly you'd go to the dentist's without a murmur."

"I didn't murmur, muvver, I screamed."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Wise Youth.

"Come," said the reckless rounder, "get in the push and be a high flier."

"Not me," replied the wise youth. "I've noticed that it is usually the high flier who drops the hardest."—Pittsburg Post.

A Mixup.

"What made Miss Flip look so sour at the ball last night?"

"Probably because she was in a pickle at her pretty rival's being so successful in her preserves."—Baltimore American.

An Odd Combination.

"Young De Peyster's match with that girl who so unexpectedly fell into a fortune was a brilliant stroke."

"In what way?"

"He made a lucky hit with a lucky miss."

The Uses of Adversity.

"Grogan," said the head of the department store, eying him sharply, "you've quit drinking, haven't you?" "Yes, sor," answered the red headed Hibernian who worked in the packing department. "I haven't taken a dhrink av annything sthronger th'n iced tay f'r three months."

"I am glad to hear it, Grogan. I'll make it an object to you to stay quit. But how did you break yourself of the habit?"

"Be hittin' me thumb nail wid a hammer whin I was packin' a box o' goods."

"I don't see how that could cure you."

"Well, Misther Barker, it was this way. If I'd been sober, d'ye moind, I'd niver have done it, but I wasn't. Whin I whacked me thumb instead av the nail I was thryin' to dhrive it made a black spot at the root av me thumb nail. I says to mesilf: 'Grogan, I'll punish ye f'r that. Ye shan't have a dhrink av ayther beer 'r whusky until that black spot has gone.'

"Well, sor, it was two months befure it had growed out to the end o' me thumb an' I cud cut it off, an' be that time I'd lost all me appetite f'r beer an' whusky.

"Thin I says to meself: 'Grogan, I'll reward ye f'r that. Ye're a sober man now, an' ye'll stay sober.' That's the whole story, sor."—Youth's Companion.

The Russian Joke Teller.

Story telling and jesting have always been counted the favorite amusements of semibarbaric people. To the first we owe the "Arabian Nights" and to the second the clowns, who were formerly the appendage of all great houses. In Russia the paid joker still flourishes, and the people pay so much an hour to listen to his jokes and witticisms. He provides himself with two or three hundred tickets, and, mounting a sort of rostrum, he announces that he is going to regale his audience with choice tidbits of mirth provoking lore. He begins selling tickets at a penny each, and when he has sold enough to warrant his beginning he turns himself loose, and the audience remains spellbound by his humorous stories for an hour or two. A recent traveler who saw a number of these jokers in St. Petersburg says, "I listened to them several times, and, although I could not understand one word the joker said, I was sure from the way the audience greeted his stories with roars of laughter that the jokes were above the average."

Adam, Eve and Some Apples.

How many apples did Adam and Eve eat?

Some say Eve 8 and Adam 2, a total of 10. Others say Eve 8 and Adam 8 also; total, 16. But if Eve 8 and Adam 82, the total will be 90. Now, if Eve 81 and Adam 812 the total would be 893. Then if Eve 81 1st and Adam 812 the total would be 1,623. Or, again, Eve 814 Adam, Adam 81242 oblige Eve, total 82,056. Though we admit Eve 814 Adam, Adam, if he 8181 242 keep Eve company; total, 8,182,056. All wrong. Eve, when she 81812 many and probably felt sorry for it, and Adam, in order to relieve her grief, 812; therefore Adam if he 818 14240-fy Eve's depressed spirit; hence both ate 81,896,864 apples. —Kansas City Independent.

Marriage Customs in Savage Africa.

The charge which is sometimes brought against white men of "marrying for money" cannot be used against their sex in Africa, for there it is the other way about, husbands having to purchase their wives. When a man has a wife bestowed upon him as an act of charity he feels that she is not properly his own, and she, if she will, can treat him with contempt. This custom of wife purchase, although it is to be decried as tending to lower marriage to the level of a commercial contract, is an incentive to young men to work. Lazy youths cannot compete with energetic ones in the matrimonial market, as they are despised by the young women and rejected by their parents as being unworthy of their daughters.—Wide World Magazine.

Sea Roses.

The sea rose is a leathery looking creature which attaches itself to a stone at the bottom of the sea in its infancy and ultimately attains a size about three inches in length and an inch and a half in breadth. When quiet and feeding under water its top opens and blossoms into the semblance of a large pink rose, with petals fully an inch long, a really handsome object. As soon as it is disturbed, however, it shuts itself resolutely into its leather pod.

Southern Spoon Corn Bread.

Pour two cupfuls boiling water over a cupful cornmeal; cook five minutes stirring continually; add a tablespoonful butter, two eggs well beaten, a cupful milk, a teaspoonful salt; beat thoroughly, pour into a well greased baking dish and bake thirty-five minutes in hot oven. Serve from the dish in which it is baked.—What to Eat.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Overwork Causes Suicides.

Omaha, Neb. 21. Wm. R. Kelley, cashier of the Union Pacific Railroad at South Omaha, committed suicide at his home yesterday by sending a bullet through his brain. Kelley's office has been undergoing a periodical checkup by the auditor for the past week, but Union Pacific officials declare that so far as the auditor had gone Kelley's accounts were in perfect condition. Kelley left a letter to his wife, which indicated that overwork had perhaps unbalanced his mind.

Gen. Simon Is President.

Port au Prince, Dec. 21.—Gen. Antoine Simon, the newly-elected President of Hayti, took the oath of office at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at the palace, where a special sitting of the legislative bodies was held and in the presence of the foreign diplomats, the officers of the American and Italian warships and the Haytian officials of state.

Orlando Jay Smith Dead.

New York, Dec. 21.—Major Orlando Jay Smith, president and general manager of the American Press Association since 1882, died at his home in Dobbs' Ferry last night. Major Smith has been ill since September, at which time he was operated upon for cancer of the stomach.

Britain's Good Will.

Colombo, Ceylon, Dec. 21.—Rear-Admiral Sperry, on board the Connecticut, entertained the governor of Ceylon, Sir Henry Edward McCallum, and a small party at dinner Saturday evening.

Admiral Sperry said in his farewell message that the greatest benefit had been derived from the cruise. He expressed warm appreciation of the unvarying good-will of Great Britain, and declared that there was the happiest prospect of wedding together the English-speaking nations in friendship and common interests.

Bitten By Snake.

Kissimmee, Fla., Dec. 21.—While hunting thirty miles down the Kissimmee river on Saturday afternoon, H. C. Fountain, a prominent contractor, aroused a big rattlesnake, and in a fight killed the reptile only after it had sunk its fangs in his flesh.

Wih his hunting-knife he cut away the poisoned flesh, digging out the wound, and when he was found by the two men who were hunting with him, was able to hobble with their aid. He reached his home here yesterday, but died despite all efforts to save him.

Three Years Sentence.

Woodstock, Dec. 21. The young man, King, who was arrested a couple of weeks ago and pleaded guilty to stealing several articles of jewelry from the Royal Hotel, was sentenced by Magistrate Ball Saturday to three years in Kingston Penitentiary. King has many aliases, but just who he is the authorities have not been able to ascertain.

Paper Mill Burned.

Ballston, N.Y., Dec. 21.—The mill of the Ballston Paper Co. was destroyed by fire on Saturday night, causing a loss of $100,000. The mill was situated outside of the village, and there was no adequate means of fighting the fire.

Only One So Far.

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 21.—President-elect Taft said Saturday night that he had made no progress whatever in making up his Cabinet, aside from the Knox announcement.

He Knew.

A young teacher whose efforts to inculcate elementary anatomy had been unusually discouraging at last asked in despair:

"Well, I wonder if any boy here can tell me what the spinal cord really is."

She was met by a row of blank and irresponsive faces till finally one small voice piped up in great excitement:

"The spinal cord is what runs through you. Your head sits on one end, and you sit on the other."—Rochester Herald.

Once Was Enough.

They met by chance;
They'd never met before.
They met but once,
And she was smitten sore.
They never met again—
Don't care to, I allow;
They met but once—

Whisky Destroyed.

Baltimore, Dec. 21.—The first case of seizure of whisky under the Pure Food and Drug Act of Congress, which was put on trial here last fall, was on Saturday finally disposed of by Judge Morris in the United States District Court, when it was decreed that the whisky seized, fifty barrels, be destroyed and that the makers of the liquor, the Louisiana Distillery Co., of New Orleans, be required to give bond in the sum of $4,000 that they will not continue the sale of the liquor under Bourbon whisky brands.

Baseball Star Suicides.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 21.—Despondent over fickle fortune, Oscar E. Foster, better known as Reddy Foster, one time baseball star and a member of the New York Giants, Saturday placed a double-barrelled shotgun in his mouth and pulled the trigger with his foot. He died instantly. The tragedy came after he had been drinking for two days.

Jagged Throat With Knife.

Brantford, Dec. 21.—Annisley Shaw, resident of Eagleplace, made an attempt to commit suicide at his home yesterday morning by cutting his throat with a penknife. The cut was not deep enough, however, and he will recover. Ill-health was the cause.

THE CURIOUS SNAIL.

Strange Facts About the Peculiar Cold Blooded Animal.

If one wishes to examine a snail he should place the specimen on a piece of glass. The snail is a cold blooded animal, and contact with a warm hand probably induces in him the feeling which would result in us from placing the hand or body on top of the kitchen range. The coolness of the glass will be agreeable to his snailship, and he will travel peaceably along, rapidly expanding and contracting his broad, suckerlike feet.

His horns are protracted in an inquiring manner, and if a finger is placed in front of him he will probably walk on until these feelers come in contact with it. Then the tentacles are withdrawn and waved about in the effort to see the obstruction more clearly, for each feeler contains at its end a small, imperfect, but still discernible, eye, which is capable of distinguishing between light and darkness.

A snail's manner of withdrawing his horns is very curious. He does not pull them back bodily into their receptacle, but turns them inside out, just as one turns the fingers of a glove in drawing it off backward.

The funny little creature has a sense of smell and also a fairly well developed ear, which lies close to the roots of his horns. His breathing apparatus is of the simplest description. Looking carefully at his right side, one may see that a distinct hole occasionally appears there, remains open a few moments and then closes again. This is simply a cavity in the snail's body, into which he allows a certain quantity of air to enter "whenever he thinks of it," as one might say.

When air has thus found its way into his interior he keeps it there until its oxygen is exhausted by his vital processes. What remains, laden with carbonic acid, is allowed to escape by reopening the little trapdoor, and the receptacle is filled by another supply of fresh air.

The snail's mouth is armed with a sawlike tongue, which resembles a long, narrow ribbon, coiled up in such a manner that only a part of it comes into use at once. Distributed over the surface of this ribbon are tiny teeth, one animal sometimes having as many as 30,000.

As one set of teeth becomes worn away by leaf cutting another section of ribbon is uncoiled, and the teeth which before were wrapped up at the back of the mouth come forward to take their turn in pressing the food against the horny upper surface of the mouth and thus cutting it in clean incisions.

The shell of the snail is a horny covering that serves to protect him against his numerous foes. Slugs are simply snails that live a retired life and consequently need no covering at all. The snail's shell is built up from lime in the plants on which it feeds, and the creatures are never found on soil which produces no lime.

A Soft Answer.

One Sunday evening the old colored pastor of a church in the south stepped before his flock and as was his habit began, "Well, breddern and sistern, what am de text to be dis ebening?"

There was a pause, and then a voice in a rear pew was heard saying, "Speak on pills!"

"What's dat?" asked the pastor.

"Speak on pills!" was repeated.

For a moment the old servant of the Lord seemed disconcerted. Recovering himself, he began: "Pills! Pills! Well, breddern and sistern, dere am pills an' pills. Dere am quinine pills an' headache pills an' physic pills, an' dere am de kind ob pills our brudder in de rear pew takes when he has been out all night but de kind of pill dat I am goin' to speak about dis ebening am de gospil."

No Crest For Him.

Having just come into a large fortune, it was necessary that he should launch out in style. His first visit was to a fashionable tailor, to whom he mentioned that he was sending around his coachman to be measured for a suit of livery. A keen man of business, Mr. Snips scented a good customer, who might not be averse to flattery.

"Don't you think, sir," he said insinuatingly, "that it would be nice to have your crest stamped on your coachman's buttons? It's quite the correct thing."

"Crest!" roared the indignant Croesus. "What do you think my servants want with crests? D'ye take us for a family of cockatoos?"

Pat's Ready Wit.

An Irishman who was traveling through London met two Englishmen, who thought they would play a joke on him.

One of them said: "Good morning, Pat. Did you hear the devil is dead?"

They asked what this was for, to which he replied:

"'Tis always a custom in ould Ireland when the father is dead to give sou thing to the poor orphans."

Sand Box as a Bed.

Matthew S. McNolty, 52 years old, who was recently charged at the West London (Eng.) Police Court recently with wandering, was found by a policeman asleep in a sand box in Uxbridge road. He said it made a better bed than the wet grass. He was discharged.

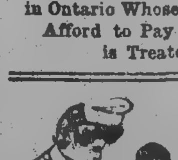
THIS APPEAL IS TO YOU!

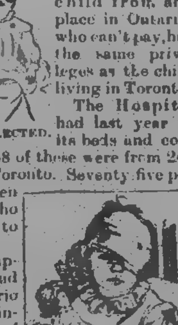
The Hospital for Sick Children

REMEMBER That Every Sick Child in Ontario Whose Parents Cannot Afford to Pay for Treatment is Treated Free.



SICK BUT NOT NEGLECTED.

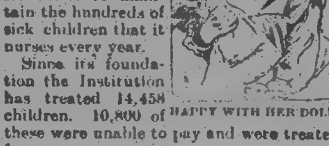
The Hospital is not a local institution, but provincial. The sick child from any place in Ontario, who can't pay, has the same privileges as the child living in Toronto. The Hospital had last year in its beds and cots 1,245 patients—368 of these were from 241 places outside of Toronto. Seventy five per cent. were children of poor people who could not afford to pay.



HAPPY WITH HER DOLL.

This Charity appeals to fathers and mothers of Ontario for funds to maintain the hundreds of sick children that it nurses every year.

Since its foundation the Institution has treated 14,458 children. 10,800 of these were unable to pay and were treated free.



BEFORE. AFTER.

There were 51 cases of club feet treated last year.

FEMALE DRUMMER COMING TO TOWN

Successful Extravaganza Here With a Bevy of Pretty Girls Next Thursday Night

A musical novelty with a background of the prettiest girls in the show world is a small part of what offered for presentation at the Grand next Thursday night for one performance only when "A Female Drummer" comes to town.

It is a safe bet, that of all the present day so-called musical comedies that "The Female Drummer" with its animated, dancing, prancing chorus of all that is beautiful in the path of the "great white way," will be presented in this comedy diversion and sprightly clique of Boardway show girls.

Six clever comedians in their respective parts have sufficient opportunity to display their ability in many laugh-provoking situations.

The "Female Drummer" abounds in musical, singing and dancing numbers that if you cannot make your feet behave, will surely have you whistling the many new novelties offered with this the greatest chorus girl show of the season.

Rather unusual is the engagement of this attraction in Peterborough, being the fact that their appearance in this city is at prices lower than they have played at any date this season or in the past, as it was after considerable diplomatic manoeuvres that Manager Turner has made it possible to see this whirly, girly production at popular prices.

J. D. CRAIG'S FURNITURE STORE SAVED BY THE TIMELY WORK OF FIRE BRIGADE SATURDAY NIGHT

A Great Deal of Inflamable Material in Store, Loss Was $600, Covered by Insurance—Two Other Calls and a False Alarm—Eight Fires in Two Days.

The Peterborough fire brigade rendered prompt and most commendable service on Saturday night when they were called upon to extinguish the fire which broke out at J. D. Craig's furniture store, Brock and George streets. The alarm was sent in at 9.25 and the firemen responded in remarkably quick time.

Mr Craig had been showing Rev Dr. Langfeldt through the store and lit a match in the upholstering department in the rear of the store on the second floor. The head of the match flew off into a quantity of inflamable upholstering materials. This very soon took fire and the room became full of smoke and flames. Mr Craig rushed out and closed the door and at once sent in an alarm. The brigade were on the scene at once and Chief Howard and his men proceeded to fight the flames in a systematic and very effective manner

Chemicals were used at first and then the hose. The controlling nozzles on the latter were used to great advantage and had they not been at the disposal of the brigade the loss to the thousands of dollars of stock in the front store below would have been very large.

The conflagration was a most threatening one on account of the great amount of stuffing, packing, upholstering, etc, on the premises. In fire story two222 about an hour's time however, it was extinguished. Owing to the large damage that might have been done and the really admirable work of the fire chief and his brigade a great deal of praise is due them.

The loss is about $600 and is fully covered by insurance.

Huge crowds flocked to the fire, and the street was thickly thronged with a large percentage of the great crowd that frequents George street Saturday night. They were greatly interested in watching the firemen at work, but thanks to the good work of the police there was no confusion or crushing.

Chief Howard desires to thank the Chief and constables for the order they maintained.

AONTHER CALL.

While the brigade was at Craig's store a call was sent in from Cressman's. It was found that there was no fire in the store but that some smoke had got into the millinery department from an adjoining store.

DAMAGE $100.

At 9.20 on Sunday morning an alarm was sent in from box 33, for a fire at 238 Charlotte street. It was in a bedroom of the house of that number, occupied by Mrs James Bennett and owned by Mr. George Webber of North Monaghan. A little five year old boy playing with matches caused the fire and about $100 damage covered by insurance, was done to a partition and some draperies

LAW BREAKERS BUSY

At seven o'clock last night a false alarm was received from box 57 Ashburnham

Another false alarm was sent in from the same box on Friday morning and the Chief was naturally pretty angry when he found the one last night was also a false one, especially after the horses were pretty well worn by eight runs in two days.

A resident in front of whose house is the box says he saw two men drive up in a cutter last night and ring the alarm. He asked them where the fire was and was not given a very definite answer.

The offence is a serious one and the matter has been placed in the hands of the police.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. ALF. PARKER ON SATURDAY NIGHT

After having been down town during the evening and apparently in his usual good health, Mr. Alfred Parker, 381 Park street, passed away very suddenly Saturday night within a little over an hour after his return home. He went home about half past ten after spending the evening with a friend. Shortly after entering his home he was suddenly seized with an affection of the heart. Drs. McClelland and Malcolm McCulloch were called but all that they could do proved of no avail. Mr. Parker passed away at midnight.

The late Mr. Parker was born in Manchester, England. He came to Canada when quite a young boy settling in Ottawa. He resided there until he removed to Peterborough twenty-four years ago, then he assumed the proprietorship of the Peterborough Dye Works. He retired from active business three years ago but was the proprietor of the works at the time of his death. He was married twice, his second wife being Miss Frise of this city, who, with three children, Harold, Madeline and Ola, are left to mourn his loss. One son to the first wife, Robert, of Hamilton, also survives him.

He attended at both George street and Charlotte street Methodist churches. He was a member of Corinthian Lodge, A.F. & A.M., and was one of the most highly respected residents of this city. The news of his demise was received with the profoundest regret.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock from the family residence, 381 Park street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

CHRISTMAS TREE FOR WARDS OF CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

The little folk whose home is at the Children's Aid Shelter will not be forgotten by Santa Claus when he pays his annual call to Peterborough. Arrangements have been made to have a Christmas tree at the Shelter and the children will have a good supply of the things that are dear to their hearts of little folk.

The Society has also made arrangements for supplying Christmas cheer to poor children throughout the city. This work is in charge of Mr George Cochrane who will call at the houses and see that no one will be in want on Christmas Day.

COLD STORAGE COMPANY LOSES AGAINST FARMERS

Whitby, Dec. 18.—Considerable interest among farmers has been created by the action before the court here of the Cold Storage Co. of Peterborough. V. Harris, the defendant, is a prosperous farmer, of Whitby township, who was being sued to cover the face of a promissory note given to the promoters of the joint stock company some years or so ago.

It is alleged that this clever promoter secured in Ontario County a large number of notes and much cash for shares in a company that was to locate at Peterborough and handle all farm products on something like the co-operative plan for sales. While several paid cash for their shares, some even to the extent of $400, the majority gave notes, thereby subscribing for two to five $50 shares of stock.

"The scheme was a plausable one," said John Stevenson, of Pickering, "and it was along the very lines that the farmers had been looking for, so that in conjunction with the Government's cold storage grants, as we supposed, the proposition was a most taking one." It is thus that many, some say over 300, names were enrolled.

Now it is alleged that the company had not proceeded with their building operations in Peterborough and had not handled over a dozen hogs from the farmers. Apparently it looked like an unprofitable game from the farmers standpoint and they objected to paying their notes.

The company had sold many of these notes to a third party in Peterborough, who won his case recently at the Peterborough Sessions. But all amounts less than $200 were being brought before the court at the county town, where the verdict was in favor of the farmers, and the evidence being as alleged, conclusive of fraud in obtaining the notes.

Charles Mackey, of Ninsale, who has been acting as secretary for the farmers, reports that this verdict gives some redress to those who have not paid their notes. All whose notes are held by the company, or third parties, will likely be guided by this judgment and refuse payment.

Nearly all of the farmers have different stories of the promoters' arguments which induced them to sign. Others who threaten suit against the company early got a return of the notes, so report goes from Brougham.

It is reported that some further action will likely be taken by the farmers.

Inspect our stock of fine Furniture, when looking for a gift that will be appreciated and you will find the prices are right at Belleghem's, 188 Hunter Street.

EAST LYNNE ON CHRISTMAS DAY

One reason for the undying popularity of "East Lynne," the great emotional drama, which will be presented at the Grand Christmas Day, matinee and night, by a splendid company, is that your interest is at once excited when Richard Hare is suspected by the villainous Sir Francis Levision.

The production will be under the masterful stage direction of Mr. Jos. King, who has earned an enviable reputation by his work in staging such successes as "The Ninety and Nine," "Uncle Dan'l," with Fred Wychoff; "East Lynne" with Rebecca Warren; "The Wife," with Selma Herman; "Tess of the D'Urbervilles"; "The Charity Ball" and many other notable productions. Notwithstanding the exceptional merit of this attraction Seats can be secured at the following special prices; Matinee 25, 35 and 50c; Children 15c. Night 25, 35, 50 75c.
